SAN JOSE SCALE DESTROYS TREES

FOUND IN GARDEN OF MICHIGAN AVENUE RESIDENCE

Attacks Not Only Fruit Trees, But Many Flower Shrubs Such as Lilacs, Dogwoods, Etc.

San Jose scale, greatly dreaded by all orchardists, has made its appearance in Charlevoix. If not taken care of at once by careful spraying and removal of affected trees, it may result in not only the loss of hundreds of fruit trees, but flowering shrubs as well.

The writer distinctly recalls the appearance of San Jose scale in Gratiot county some 30 years ago. Orchard after orchard was destroyed before the owners discovered what the trouble was and how to check its ravages. State authorities visited the infected orchards and cut down and destroyed practically every tree. Orchards that had been planted by the early settlers and had been prolific bearers for years, were depleted to a tree.

After a year or more of this method of eliminating affected trees, a rotation spraying method was adopted, which, where followed up, resulted in the saving of trees, but not before hundreds of orchards were destroyed.

San Jose scale is a tree destroyer, spreads rapidly, and before one realizes the extent of its spread, whole acres are affected. Immediate action should be taken. L. R. Taft, owner of Evelyn Orchards, confirms the statement above and in the following article, tells how to prevent the spread of the disease. Sample branches of infected trees, showing the scale in different forms, can be seen at the Courier office. Mr. Taft's contribution follows:

Editor, Courier—A few days since my attention was called to the unhealthy appearance of a number of fruit trees growing in a garden on Michigan avenue, Charlevoix, and on examining them, found the trunks and branches infested with San Jose scale, some of them to such an extent that they were completely encrusted and some of the branches had been killed.

This insect does not only attack all kinds of fruit trees but is often found on currants, elms, willows, ash, poplar, maple and mountain ash, besides many of the flowering shrubs, such as Japan quinces, lilacs, dogwoods, etc. It appeared in southern Michigan some 30 years ago and killed hundreds of thousands of fruit trees and its presence in the orchards doubled the cost of spraying. In more recent years, doubtless due in part to the increase in the number of its insect parasites, it has done less harm, although many spray for it regularly.

So far as known to the writer, it has never been reported further north than Traverse City and Suttons Bay, but from the way it has attacked several of the trees on Michigan avenue, it is likely to do considerable harm, not only to the fruit trees, but to the ornamental trees and flowering shrubs, if allowed to spread, and may become so troublesome as to detract from the appearance of "Beautiful Charlevoix." The mountain ash, which is so handsome here, is especially subject to attack.

A BIT OF TRUTH NOW AND THEN IS EXCELLENT TONIC

No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This applies to all kinds of business—general stores, dry goods, groceries, furniture dealers, manufacturing establishments, automobile dealers, mechanics and professional men. This does not mean that you should have a whole or half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two line space. A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in the town by looking at the business mentioned in the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who insists on sharing business that comes to town but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town. The life and the snap of a town depends upon the wideawake liberal advertising men. It's the truth—American Banker's Magazine.

While lime-sulphur solutions diluted with water at the rate of one part to eight, or dry lime-sulphur dissolved at the rate of one pound to two gallons of water, is an effective spray and may be used in orchards. It should not be used near buildings, since it spots the paint. For all purposes, the miscible oil sprays, such as scalecide, sunoco spraying oil and others, will be found very effective as scale sprays, and should be diluted according to directions. The best time to spray for this scale is in the spring, just before growth starts, but after freezing weather is over. Use only enough to cover all parts of the trees and shrubs.

If the San Jose scale is in one garden it may have spread to others, but it will not be worth while to use a scale spray unless it is actually present. The San Jose scale should not be mistaken for other and less injurious scale insects. Among them, the oyster-shell scale is quite common in northern Michigan and often does serious harm to apple trees. The name of this scale comes from its shape, which is elongated pear-shaped and somewhat curved. It is about three-sixteenths of an inch in length and of a light brown color.

The San Jose scale is saucer-shaped, having a groove around its center and varies in size from that of a pinhead to that of a pea.

SPECIAL FEATURE AT SHOW

APPLE PIE BAKING CONTEST WILL BE STAGED THIS YEAR

Officials of Top O' Michigan Potato and Apple Show Promise Pie to Those Attending

There will be apple pie for everyone attending the Top O' Michigan Potato and Apple Show at Gaylord on November 2, 3 and 4 according to the recent announcement by the show officials. It all comes about the introduction of an apple pie baking contest into the activities of the show.

Premiums totalling $50.00 will be awarded for the best 36 pies and all the prize winning pies will be served at the annual banquet on Thursday evening, November 3rd. In order to make it attractive to the housewives, $10.00 has been offered for the best looking and most appetizing pie.

Another new feature of the show will be the potato peeling contest open to all who attend the show. Liberal premiums offered will make it worth while to enter.

Still another contest, which is probably the outstanding contest of the show, is the potato grading contest. Fifty dollars has been set aside for this contest.

Each contestant will be given a quantity of field run potatoes and will be required to grade them into respective standard grades in a limited time. When he has completed his grading, judges will determine who has most nearly met the grading standards.

This contest should prove particularly interesting this year in view of the fact that there has been so much interest shown in the new Michigan grading laws. State department of agriculture officials will be present to discuss the new law in its application to farmers, truckers and jobbers. These contests are special features of the show. The regular attractive premiums will be offered in the potato classes and the apple exhibits will receive premiums in excess of those of last year.

The three day show will have something of interest all day. The first day has been designated as Apple Day; the second day as Potato Day and the third as Boys' and Girls' Club day. The annual banquet will be held on the evening of the second day.

OCT. 9 TO 15 FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

DESERVES SUPPORT OF EVERY COMMUNITY

Charlevoix People Urged to Keep in Mind the Purpose of the Campaign

The institution of "Fire Prevention Week" was a wise provision. It serves to remind us of the devastation done by this dread demon, and to take thought of prevention to just as great an extent as possible. During the life of the nation, hundreds, yes thousands of disastrous conflagrations have occurred that were either the result of carelessness or could have been avoided by preventive measures.

Our towns, our homes, our business buildings, represent our all to us. It behooves us to think of what their destruction would mean, and to do all that is possible to prevent any such catastrophe, as well as to prepare for such a contingency by providing for the funds to rebuild should it occur.

Each one of us owes it to himself and to his neighbors to first so build as to remove as many chances for fire as it is possible for him to do. There are many things that can be done about this line, many places in which lurks the danger of fire in buildings now standing that can be changed so as to remove much of that danger. Our artisans and building material people can, and cheerfully will, point out these possibilities for each of us. We owe it to ourselves and our neighbors to exercise every care for the prevention of fire, to avoid carelessness that might lead to a conflagration. We owe it to ourselves and to our neighbors to provide by insurance for the funds with which to replace any loss by fire. Fire prevention week, but serves to call attention to these things that are an all-the-year around necessity.

Any fire, no matter how closely confined it may be, that affects any one of us, to some degree affects all. The destruction of one home, of one business building is a loss to the community as a whole.

NEW SPEED LAW IS EXPLAINED

RECKLESS DRIVING IS NOW A SERIOUS MATTER

State Trooper Warns Petters to Seek a Quiet Spot Off Highway Right of Way

Before starting your petting party while driving with that "sweet mama" first park your car out of the way of traffic or else drive it in some unfrequented road.

This advice comes also as a warning and ultimatum from Sergeant George Aldrich, state police commander, located at Cheboygan, to lovers of the road in his district of fifteen counties in Northern Michigan to either drive "two handed" in traffic or be arrested for reckless driving. Under the new automobile law which went into effect August 13, drivers cannot be arrested for speeding but only for driving while under the influence of intoxicants or for driving recklessly.

According to this act a motorist can be arrested for driving slow on a charge of driving recklessly.

"A man can be driving ten miles an hour, one arm around a woman and one hand on the wheel," the sergeant said, "and be driving rashly. One armed driving in heavy traffic endangers the lives of both the principals and the people around them, and can make the driver subject to arrest."

The sergeant was asked his definition of reckless driving. As he defined it there are different kinds. Poking along on a trunk highway, he said, involves a danger to cars forced to go around when autos are coming from the opposite direction.

In the opposite extreme is the car traveling 60 miles an hour on rotten tires. Such driving endangers both the lives of the people in the machine and of those near it.

"One armed driving," the sergeant calls reckless, as also is traveling at a moderate rate of speed in the center of the road, resulting sometimes from lack of attention to one's direction while talking to a friend. Cutting out of line in heavy traffic without due regard to cars coming in the opposite direction is another case of recklessness.

Going around another car without sufficient space to clear it puts both cars in danger and is violation of the law. Another violation is passing a machine on a curve or at an embankment when the view or road is not clear for a safe distance ahead.

Failure to stop on a road before crossing a trunk highway at an intersection makes the driver subject to arrest. So too does failure to stop before crossing a railroad when the view is obstructed. Another violation of the law would be a case where a motorist makes a turn on a trunk highway without making the proper signals.

Watch Those Lights
Sergeant Aldrich says he has also arrested motorists on charges of reckless driving for traveling with defective lights.

"Sometimes a slow moving car can be driven more recklessly," he said, "than a fast car traveling under the same conditions of traffic and roadway. For instance, a man in a big car with four wheel brakes can drive 50 miles an hour with a great deal less recklessness than a man in a Ford going only 40 miles an hour."

Summing up reckless driving as the sergeant defines it, any motorist driving in such a manner as to endanger the lives or property of himself or another, is driving recklessly. The penalties are much more severe than those under the old law against speeding. For a first offense the culprit must either pay a fine of from $25 to $100 or go to jail for from five to 90 days, or do both. For a later offense, he must pay a fine of from $50 to $1,000 or go to jail for from ten days to six months or do both.

OCTOBER MEETING IN SESSION

COUNTY SUPERVISORS GOING OVER YEAR'S BUSINESS

Committee Work and Reports Occupied First Day—Several Appropriations Made

The Charlevoix county board of supervisors went into session Monday for their annual October meeting, with all supervisors answering the roll call. Chairman H. A. Craig presided.

Monday and Tuesday forenoon was taken up with committee reports and committee meetings. A special committee appointed at the last meeting to investigate the advisability of making the Ironton ferry a part of the county road system made their report Monday. It was found that the commission looked favorably upon the matter and the clerk of the board was authorized to make formal application to the road commission to make the ferry a part of the county road system, thus vesting in the commission the care, control and management of the ferry.

The report of William F. Bashaw, who was delegate to the state meeting of Equalization was heard and accepted, as also were two reports on jails by Judge of Probate Correll.

A special committee was named Monday to investigate the accounting of the office of the sheriff from the time the sheriff was put on a flat salary to the present time. This accounting will start back to the time when Charles Novak was in office and has been a matter of much interest and discussion during the present session.

At the Tuesday afternoon session, Jacob E. Chew of East Jordan, was unanimously elected as superintendent of the poor for a three year term. A. J. Duncan of East Jordan was elected county school examiner for two years and William J. Pearson of Boyne Falls as county park commissioner for a five year term.

A report of the county Soldier's and Sailor's Relief commissioner was heard and accepted, and an appropriation of $150 made for this body for the coming year. The county school commissioner was authorized to trade in his old car for a new one. The Michigan Tourist and Resort association received an appropriation of $1,000, as did also the Charlevoix hospital. The amount of $350 was appropriated to the Michigan Children's Aid Society of St. Joseph, and a like amount to the hospital for crippled children at Farmington, Mich.

A motion was carried to pay C. E. Kimball, publisher of the Northern Michigan Magazine, the balance due him on subscriptions to said publications. An appropriation of $1,000 was made to the city of East Jordan for the East Jordan bridge over the south arm of Lake Charlevoix. The financial report of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society was heard and after considerable discussion was accepted. It was voted that one tenth mill of the assessed valuation of Charlevoix county be appropriated for Fair work the coming year, which will amount to $1,103.57, besides an additional sum of $896.43 for advertising purposes.

Wednesday morning's session was taken up with reports and discussion of the county fair, as well as some other minor matters. The supervisors adjourned at 11:30 and proceeded to the Hotel Noble, where they were the guests of county officers at a dinner given in their honor. Doings of the board will be concluded in next week's issue.

83 COUNTIES ARE NOW ORGANIZED

CHARLEVOIX IS INCLUDED IN THIS NUMBER

State Organization Results in 84 Per Cent Reduction in Hold Ups and Bank Losses

Eighty of the 83 counties in Michigan are now organized under the vigilante campaign, launched by the Michigan Bankers' Association last spring of which banks of Charlevoix county are members, according to officers of the Charlevoix county association.

The success of our vigilante system is already apparent. The bankers are thankful for the cooperation they have received from all law-abiding citizens. They realize as does the public in general, the fact that they are simply cooperating with the law enforcement officers of our state, county and community. The officers have cordially assisted in every practical way.

The three counties which are, as yet, unorganized will be in step with the program within two weeks.

The next important step under our vigilante program, is the training of the men organized; the equipping of our forces with modern and efficient arms; the establishment of target ranges and a systematic procedure for local target practice. We realize that the efficiency of our program is dependent on the carefulness with which all of these details are worked out.

The best evidence of the success of the vigilante program, as put in operation throughout the state, is in the evident fact that the professional yeggmen and bank robbers have decided to operate in other fields less amply protected and less vigilantly secured against their methods.

It will be interesting to the public to know that the vigilante program is now in operation in six states.

The number of bank robberies in Michigan have been reduced 84 per cent in this one year and bank losses have been reduced 79 per cent. The reports from our state headquarters indicate that the officers and members of the vigilante committees in each state are taking as much interest in the success of the campaign as they would in a successful military operation.

per. "Old Saul, he keep away; he not see Etienne Savanne." But, gratifying as was the news he had picked up among the gossiping hunters, Savanne knew his Indians, and feared what the night would bring forth. For the old wizard was not master in the art of playing on the superstitions of the Crees, and with his incantations and mumbo-jumbo would doubtless persuade them into starting at once for Seal Cove.

But Etienne had no intention of giving Saul a free hand. Secretly, before the ceremony, and openly, when Saul from the tent delivered the admonitions of the spirits, he would brand the old man as the hireling of McDonald, friend of devils. If the outraged Saul dared to start trouble, this might be dangerous with the Crees in a high state of excitement, but the arm of the company was long. Its hand heavy, and Etienne Savanne, its servant, feared as a fighter the length of the coast. So the prospect of trouble gave Etienne little concern, but the loss of twenty thousand dollars in fur, which the Crees had with them, would be little short of a calamity. On his return to his tent, his active mind groped for the best method of, that night, hanging the shaman with his own rope.

"Well, what did you hear?" asked Garth.

"No, he keep ver quiet. De Cree have mouch fur, and manee of de men would go to McDonald, but de squaw have fear of devil. A feller by de name of Savanne, he tell de squaw down on de Ptarmigan some bad story, also up on de Rabbit, an' eet mak' dem squaw ver nervous." Etienne smiled at the success of his efforts.

"That was certainly a good bit of strategy, Etienne, but you say the men are now wabbling in favor of the schooner?"

"Ah-hah. I tink dat Saul, wid hees spirit, weel heat us tonight." "We've got to think of something to do—we can't let him get away with all the fox in this camp, man!" urged Garth, handing his friend a heaping plate of beans and bacon.

As Etienne ate, his swarthy face was graven with the problem confronting him. What could he do? He even considered secreted himself in the medicine tent downstream, binding and gagging the old man as he entered, and playing shaman himself. But the danger of discovery by the outraged Crees would be too great. Failure would make matters even worse.

The medicine rite was to take place under the moon, which was late, so deep in council of war lingered white man and half-breed, until the silver disk rode above the white tundra already lit by low-lying stars. Then Etienne returned from a short reconnaissance to report the hunters and squaws already moving to the rendezvous downstream where a fire glowed in the spruce. Small and cylindrical in shape, its tanned caribou-hide walls painted in red and black with the shapes of animals, the sun, and grimacing faces of the spirit friends of the conjurer, the medicine lodge stood a short distance from the fire. Gathered in the warmth of the blazing logs, shawled women and hooded hunters, heads together, conversed in low tones.

Higher over the tundra above the valley, the moon swung through the star-littered heavens. It was a night for magic, and as his curious eyes shifted from the sweet Crees to the medicine tent, Guthrie despaired of the efforts of Etienne, in such a setting to nullify the necromancy of old Saul. Moon and stars and the aurora joined with the purple shadows to lend invincible enchantment to the arts of the sorcerer. These simple children of the snows, bewitched by the mystery and magic of the night, would fall willing victims to the voice of the spirits.

Faintly, to the measured tapping of a caribou-hide drum, from the tent lifted low walling. Seizing the arms of their men, the women at the fire stiffened. Swart faces went gray.

Gradually the walling drifted into a sing-song, which, unaccompanied by the shell rattle, rhythmically swelled and died. Suddenly the song ceased. Growls and snarls, wiles and mewling—the hickering of beaks—filled the forest. Shrieks of a mating wolverine followed the caterwauling of a lynx. A wolf howled, lonely for his kind. From a September ridge drifted the mounding call of a cow moose. In a swamp a willow whistled, a whooping crane started with its trombone-like blast. From the gloom drifted the hoot of the snowy owl. Down wind, in full cry, swept warblers and Canadas, blue geese and brant. Through a repertory of the voices of the night and the sunlit forest wandered the ventriloquist in a marvelous imitation of nature.

Guthrie turned in surprise to Etienne. "He's a wonder!"

"Walt" was the laconic reply.

Then, amid groans and eerie cries, shrieks, as of souls in torment, the whimper of children, sobs of women in anguish, men tortured, the voice of the shaman addressed the spirits he had conjured from the world of demons. His kinsmen, the Crees, were in great doubt and perplexity, and had begged him to call upon his familiar spirits, who saw into the future as one looks from a hill; to whom the devils seeking to destroy the Cree were as children—harmless. "The hunters," continued the shaman, "possessed much fur—"

Etienne's hand gripped Garth's arm, as he interpreted the speech of Saul. "Now he meek de spirit tell dem to go to McDonald!"

"Fur of much value which they have taken for on the cold tundra where the wind always blows," the sepulchral voice went on. "It is the time to go to the traders for the New Year's feast. But the hearts of the hunters are troubled. At the schooner of the trader who waits at Seal Cove, the Crees have been told evil spirits and devils wait to hewitch them. And the women have begged their men to take their fur across the ice to Elkwan."

With a puzzled look Etienne stared into Garth's eyes.

"What he do now? I don't understand," whispered the half-breed.

Garth waited, hardly breathing, through the silence which followed. Then, on the hushed night hoomed a voice, hollow, sepulchral.

"Oh, Saul! Great Shaman of the Crees! It is well you call us to warn your people. There has come to the island a sorcerer from a far country—to destroy the hunters of Akimisk!—"

"By gar!" and the snarls of Etienne shut like a dead trap on the arm of the man beside him. "We are de beek fool!" he muttered, interpreting the reply of the spirit to the unsensitizing Garth.

"This conjurer," went on the voice from the tipi, as the listening Indians gasped with surprise and fear, "was bitten in the face by the devil, Matchimantou, himself. He is the friend of demons and woe to the Crees who bring their fur to him, for their wives will see them no more."

"Ahush! Ahush!" From the women at the fire rose a low wail as they clung in panic to the cowed hunters.

"Do not to Seal Cove but across the ice, for there the Crees may trade and feast in safety."

The voice died. Presently another answered in the same vein, and yet another, while the astonished and aghast Etienne and Guthrie, who had so lightly accepted the treachery of old Saul as a proved fact, electrified by the swift turn of fortune, listened with admiration and gratitude. With the artistry of a master, Saul had played upon the known weaknesses of his people, relying on the mysteries of the medicine lodge rather than on his personal influence—winning the squaws by the judicious planting of rumors, as had Etienne, and stampeding the men with a single stroke at the medicine rites, for no Indian who heard that unearthly voice from the tipi would now dare to trade with McDonald.

"The old son-of-a-gun," chuckled Garth. "He went to that ship to throw them off the scent and keep them away from this end of the island. He gets a life job with the company for this night's work."

In an overawed, whispering group, the hunters and their squaws returned to their tipis, where deep into the night was discussed the marvel of the spirit voices, which the great magician of the Elkwan had invoked for the safety and guidance of his people. In the privacy of their tent the two men, still dazed by the unlooked-for success of their mission to the island, gossiped by the fire.

"Forty-six silvers and eighteen black, besides a lot of cross and patch, you say?" Garth repeated, elated with the trade that would come that Christmas to Elkwan.

"Ah-hah! Wor twenty-tousand dollar—de heegest traile, Elkwan evalr mak'. We do good job wen we heeng Saul Souel from de headwater, w'at?"

"You and Saul turned the trick, Etienne. I can't thank you enough." In his second year in the trade Garth had made a telling business stroke. In the face of the higher prices of the free-trader—of what seemed inevitable failure, he had, with the help of the crafty old Cree, swung a huge trade to his company. They could hug their fire at Kapiskau and Attawapiskat, but he had carried the fight straight to the enemy, and had won. Going out to shoot, sang in his snow-hole, Garth poured his happiness into a hazy and comprehending ear, before he rolled into his blankets beside the staunch half-breed who had made it possible.

CHAPTER IX

"Queer we haven't heard from Jon yet," McDonald said to Skene, in the cabin of the Ghost, two days before Christmas.

"Time enough," answered the bearded mate. "He was to round up the hunters in the north, you know, and bring them down the shore ice."

"Well, we've made a good start. We've got twenty silvers now, with the three that came in this morning, and twelve blacks, not to count the cross and patch. There's fifty thousand dollars in this winter's work for us, John."

Skene looked hard at his chief. "What you goin' to do with your share of the fur we land in St. Johns?"

The deep blue eyes of the blunt half closed as the heavy brow contracted. "Do with mine? What is there to do with it?"

"Goin' to hand for the states and drink it up?"

McDonald laughed, without mirth. "Drink it up? No, I'm goin' to hunt up the family of a pal who 'went West' at Vimy Ridge. There's a wife and kiddies, out in Alberta. I'm goin' to share mine with 'em."

For a space Skene smoked in silence. Once or twice he glanced curiously at the man opposite, who sat with head in hands, staring at the floor.

"It'll be some surprise to my old girl with a nest-egg," he said at length. "She ain't had a too soft a life with me."

McDonald made no answer and Skene went on: "I'm goin' to buy a little place for her and the two girls—a cow or two, and a horse to get around with; then I'll have me a tidy schooner, and summers go cod-fishin' on the Labrador."

"That's sensible," vouchsafed the other. "You owe it to the woman." "Yes, she's never whimpered. When I enlisted, she turned to like a soldier and carried on. I owe her a good home, now—and a little of my company."

McDonald's broken-mouth widened in a smile. "Your company, you old scawbag! How many weeks in the year will she keep a restless old pirate like you on the farm?"

"You can laugh, Craig, but I'm for a home now, except that fishin' in the summer."

"A home . . . a home!" repeated the other, moody eyes on the pipe which he rubbed in his broad palm. "It doesn't mean anything to me, John."

"Yes, I know," and Skene looked pityingly at his chief. Then voice on deck straightened them in their chairs. A sailor thrust his head through the door of the cabin.

"There's an Injun, bere with some news."

"Send him down!" The Cree interpreter entered the cabin, followed by a hunter whose face was alive with excitement, as he chattered in the Cree.

"What's on his mind, Michel?" demanded McDonald. Shutting off with upraised hand the stream of Cree from the mouth of the Indian, the interpreter replied: "Joe Mokoman see dead!"

"What?" McDonald rasped. "Dead?"

"Haw d'you mean? Killed?"

"Found dead on de Canoe Riviere, wid hees t'road ripped out."

"Well, I'll be d—d! Who found him? This bird?"

"No, he see some Cree crossin' ice at de Beeg point—day tell him."

With a quick movement, McDonald reached and drew the interpreter to him. "You say some of the Indians are crossin' to the mainland?"

For a space the harsh phonetics of the Cree tongue filled the cabin. "At Beeg point, yesterday, he see many dog-team from de nord' cross de ice. A Canoe Riviere hunter epy he an' Mokoman dead in snow by riviera shore."

"But where's old Saul? Didn't he make his medicine on the Canoe?" "Yes, he say Saul mak' beeg medicine two sleep back—all de hunter seen nord' of islan' cove."

"Good! Saul is hating them down the coast."

But as the interpreter continued to interrogate the Indian his eyes widened in surprise, which swiftly gave way to consternation. Turning excitedly, he cried: "Saul tell dem Cree dat de devil see een de ship bore! He scra dem cranes—tak' dem all ova'r de ice to Elkwan!"

McDonald and Skene were on their feet. "What?" roared the free-trader. "He's taken them—to Elkwan? Stunned, the white men sought each other's faces."

"Saul, he come here to fool us."

BEWARE OF THE SWINDLERS

The United States government has announced a plan to redeem two billion dollars of second Liberty Bonds in November. The retirement of this issue will bring millions of dollars of cash into the hands of small investors and swindlers are already on the trail to collect these millions from the hands of the unwary. Every employer should warn his workers against those who offer questionable securities paying a fabulously high interest in exchange for this cash. Employers should make every effort to prevent any of their workers from being swindled and should insist that they get in touch with their bankers, the local Better Business Bureau, or their own employers when they are approached to purchase these perfumed and valueless securities. Judge Gary was a man who realized to the full how easy it was to dupe even intelligent people in the matter of investments and there is the following significant paragraph in his will:

"I sincerely request my wife and my children and descendants that they steadfastly decline to sign any bonds or obligations of any kind as surety for any other person, or persons; that they refrain from anticipating their income in any respect; that they refuse to make any loans except on the basis of first-class, well-known securities, and that they invariably decline to invest in any untried or doubtful securities or property or enterprise of business. They should reject any representations or opinions of others if involved in any doubt. They will be approached frequently with suggestions for investments that are entitled to be relied upon from a business standpoint."

ANNUAL FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Fire Prevention Week is to be held this year from October 9 to 15. Throughout the country various organizations will again attempt to train the public in offsetting the greatest menace in the United States today. Our people will do well to learn, and profit by example.

The tragedy of fire is that it is almost entirely preventable. There are, of course, natural causes for conflagrations that cannot be helped, but these are a very small percentage of the total. The greatest damage is caused by carelessness and ignorance. Billions of dollars are wasted and destroyed each year by a few people's carelessness. It would not be so reprehensible if the loss were borne by them alone. But it must be shared, directly or indirectly, by every citizen and taxpayer. It is the duty of every citizen to co-operate in the observation of Fire Prevention Week. And it should be his pleasure. Fire loss can be stopped. And in a single week, if everyone will observe and learn a great deal can be accomplished in the way of reducing it.—Manufacturer.

CO-OPERATE WITH YOUR CONGRESSMAN

It has not been decided yet whether the President will call the new congress in extra session or will wait until it convenes in regular session on the first Monday in December. In the meantime, however, probably about mid-October—the Ways and Means committee of the House, and possibly the Finance committee of the Senate, will continue to study the question of tax revision. There has been plenty of time for citizens to arrive at conclusions justified by economic, financial and national reasons. Those who may have delayed would do well to study the situation and be ready to make such suggestions to the committees as they think are fit and justified. It is really too bad that so many citizens look on our public men and our congressional committees as something remote and feel an inferior complex when they think of them. These men are the representatives of the people. They are entrusted with the important work of lawmaking and they are not either sacrosanct nor unapproachable. You will find that they are human, well posted, well meaning, kindly and patriotic men. The number of high hats among congressmen nowadays is very small.

OUR GOVERNMENT

Neither our national nor our state governments are planned or equipped for the task of government operation of utilities. The fathers purposely made our government to a different model, for a different task. They divided power and responsibility, where business must concentrate them. They thought liberty and individual rights were worth safeguarding.

This very fact leaves to private enterprise many things which other nations can, if they prefer do through government—after a fashion. On the governmental side the result has been one of which we are as proud as other peoples are envious. On the business side the accomplishment far surpasses anything they know. Through the one we have liberty; through the other, enterprise and decisiveness.

Our form of government, which we have developed over 150 years, has assured us a measure of freedom and progress hitherto unparalleled in political history. The more we cherish it the less ready we should be to load it with a burden for which it was not built. To bear this load the constitution would need to be rewritten a score of places, until it was no longer our democracy. Above all, it would change the major thought and purpose of our government into the making of money instead of devotion to the preservation of basic human liberties—big enough job in these times.—Herbert Hoover.

With the addition of the new Liquid Carbonic soda fountain at the Sugar Bowl, owned by George Glados of this city, his equipment will be the most modern and up-to-stalled, is mechanically refrigerated by the frigidaire system. Soda and drinking water are kept one degree above freezing at all times. Seven different temperatures for fruits, ice cream and syrups and maintained by one machine. Four ice cream containers have a combined capacity of forty gallons, each with a separate temperature, which must be maintained to keep the different flavors of ice cream in the proper condition for serving.

The fountain itself is a beauty and adds much to the appearance of the already attractive store. Mr. Glados is to be commended on the new addition, which is in keeping with his policy of improvements which have extended over a period the time he has been in business here.

As tough as varnish.....
As beautiful as enamel..
—but dry in 30 minutes

Devoe Brushing Lacquer is amazing in more ways than one! It is as tough as a varnish; as beautiful as an enamel. But instead of taking hours to dry, it actually dries hard in 30 minutes! Think what this means: you can lacquer a chair with Devoe and sit down safely on it in half an hour; refinish a floor and walk across it 30 minutes later; decorate things without taking them out of service for more than half an hour.

NORTHERN BEARS ON SHEEP KILLING RAMPAGE

Alba Farm Home Held Up by Masked Robber—Antrim Editor In Auto Accident

Last week we scoffed at the idea of bear already killing three thousand dollars worth of sheep in our state press connects some of our provision to pay for loss of stock killed by bear, and on top of that item comes a bear story right out of our own balliwick in which the state press connects some of our worthy game wardens and sheep raisers. For our readers' benefit we print the press report coming out of the wolverine country and supplementing our statement of last week we believe this is just as much of a bear story if not a little larger bear story than any we have heard yet, and that the Wolverine bear are of the auto driving specie that carried away most of the Freeman flock when an attempt was made by Mr. Freeman to raise sheep on the plains east of the city. This is the story coming from the south part of our country:

"Owners of livestock, in this vicinity, aided by state forces are keeping a continual watch for the giant black bear whose nightly prowls and unusual appetite have led him to kill about 70 lambs and to destroy many bee hives.

"The animal's capture was almost successfully executed last Monday night, when a trap, set by State Trapper Hayner, held the bear captive by one paw, but not for long. In some manner, it managed to free itself, but only at the expense of pain it must have endured in two fingers of its paw in the trap. The pads on the fingers found in the trap were as large as silver dollars, indicating the state trapper said, that the bear is of considerable size.

"Just the other night the bear satisfied his hunger by killing 70 lambs on the Cornwall ranch, entailing several of them. The Cornwall ranch, where considerable livestock is kept is about four miles from Wolverine.

"The hundred or more bee hives on Charles Norton's place, three miles from Wolverine, have been visited by the prowler. On one occasion the bear found it necessary to push over a high fence to get to the hives.

"P. J. McKian, of the state conservation department, is also assisting in the search for the bear."—Cheboygon Democrat.

Alba Farm Home Held Up

Some one with a mask and gloves on entered D. W. Lowe's house Sunday evening about 9:30 while Mrs. Lowe and children were into a neighbors. When she returned he met her as she came into the sitting room and demanded her money. She told him she had none but he insisted she had and caught hold of her wrist and twisted her to the floor and took six dollars out of her stocking. This money she had just earned picking up potatoes. Mr. Lowe and the oldest boy were away. The bandit escaped and they heard a car start away. No trace has yet been found. It gave Mrs. Lowe a terrible scare.—Manicella Herald.

Camp Keeper's Peculiar Death

John Kwiatkowski of Detroit, was accidentally killed at Camp Davis, on Douglas Lake last Saturday afternoon, when his foot became caught in a door of a car and he fell. Mr. Kwiatkowski was showing a party of guests about the camp and had gone to put the truck in the garage when the accident occurred. The guests, investigating the reason for his non-return to their camp cottage, found the man dead. A brother, James Kwiatkowski, is caretaker at the camp.—Petoskey Evening News.

Antrim Editor in Auto Smash

day noon, when his Ford coupe was struck by another car coming off a side street without observing a "stop" sign.

Mr. Bedell was thrown through the right hand side window and struck on his head and shoulders. He missed both the cement curb and the sidewalk at the side of the street, landing between the stretches of cement. No bones were broken.

Three young men were in the car that struck Mr. Bedell's car.—Antrim Record.

Static Bat at the Soo

In an effort to determine just what ails upper peninsula radio reception, a scientific radio expedition will leave Sault Ste. Marie shortly to make readings in a great circle round Sault Ste. Marie. The purpose of the expedition in charge of C. B. Robinson, United States army radio engineer, will be to find out whether the vast deposits of copper and iron ore in the upper peninsula influence radio reception and transmission. For years the upper peninsula has been a puzzle to national radio experts. Conditions here are unique. At times reception is good, at other times poor. Reception is better from some directions than from others. The Fort Brady transmitting station can send signals 400 miles in one direction and only 200 miles in others.—Soo Evening News.

IS THIS FARM RELIEF?

Among the important subjects to engage the next session of congress is the problem of farm relief, which has been a live issue for a good while. Several measures are proposed, as heretofore, and the ultimate outcome is a matter of conjecture.

But there is another bill being urged which has an important bearing on the present over-production of farm products—one which appears to be distinctly opposed to the interest of the farmers in the country at large. We refer to the proposal to build a dam in Boulder canyon of Colorado river at a cost of $125,000,000 to the government.

Boulder Dam is designed, among other things, for the purpose of irrigating and bringing under cultivation a million more acres of farming land. The question naturally arises: In the face of a present surplus of nearly all basic farm crops, would the opening up of this additional acreage for agricultural purposes be in the interest of the farmers at this time?

In other words, should the whole country, including the farmers, be taxed to finance this enormous project, which would inevitably add to the already burdensome surplus of farm products?

The money which it is proposed to spend for Boulder Dam would help a great deal toward flood protection for the Mississippi valley, and other worthy purposes not in conflict with the interest of the farmer.

In spite of the objection here noted, as well as others of equal weight, the Boulder Dam bill has strong support in congress, and unless farmers and others interested make known their opposition to its passage, it stands a fair chance of being enacted into law at the forthcoming session.

Thoughtful citizens should study this indefensible pork-barrel scheme and inform their representatives in congress of their views without delay.—Florence (Alabama) Herald.

A PICTURE OF SUCCESS

On a menu in a dining car appeared a picture of the family of Albert Volynski, American citizen and track workman on the Sunbury division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Under the picture was the following:

"He is the father of 12 children, 10 of whom, shown in the family group, are living. Two of the girls have completed high school and are pursuing business or professional study. Four of the girls are accomplished pianists and one is a violinist.

"Mr. Volynski owns his home—a little beauty spot in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—where he and his wife, from the village of Kosciencio, Austria, settlad on the Fourth of July about 20 years ago."

That was all. The picture showed a splendid family, the father and mother surrounded by a group of strong, smiling, bright boys and girls, ranging in age from a year to, perhaps, eighteen.

In the picture and in the short write-up there were the material and inspiration for a novel on American life.

Many fail in America. I saw a play last night in which it was stated that two people could not live on a salary of $135 a month. Bleak sketches of life in small towns and rural districts have been drawn by writers who type their manuscripts in the rooms of Fifth Avenue hotels. Yet here is the Volynski family, up-setting this gospel of gloom and supplying an example of vigor, courage, resource, thrift, and industry, reminiscent of the pioneers.

Bravery, enterprise and will-power are not the monopoly of men of large affairs. Opportunities to exercise such talents as we have are all about us. I cheer the Volynskis who do their job well, humble though it may be.

One other reflection that came to me as I looked at the Pennsylvania menu card was the good sense of management in applying this information to its patrons.—Wm. Feather.

went on Michel. "He was a boy for de Haden's Bay."

"Whipsawed!" And McDonald's bulk slid limply into his chair. "The old beggar! He fed it to an like a lot of schoolboys!" sputtered Skene, wagging his grizzled head. "He sure put it over in style."

"Played like a pair of fish!" McDonald suddenly straightened. "Skene, for two cents I'd cross the ice and get that fur. It's ours—they stole it." Skene looked hard into the blue eyes of his chief. "First, we'd have a handsome row to get it, that man with the spear, and his half-breed will fight; second, the police would be up here before we were out of the ice. Foolish talk!"

Skene looked suggestively at his chief, as he added: "We have—and you have."

"The other shifted his gaze as he muttered, 'Yes—that's only too true.' 'But Mokoman! What'd you say happened to him?' Skene asked Michel. 'He was killed by the dog—bees front fore.' 'Killed by his own dogs—queer! Might have been wolves.' 'No, de dog follow shoe trucks back to de trail. No wolf do dat.' 'Well, so much for Mokoman! Small loss—never liked him.' 'Does he know how much fur they had—these hunters who crossed?' asked the unit."

"They have moose fur—about one hundred skins."

"Half of it silver and black, probably. A small fortune! H—!" In his chagrin Skene crushed his hand fist on the table. "You're a judge of men, John. That fellow sure looked us." McDonald admitted ruefully. "Now we've got no time to lose with the southern hunters. —Michel!"

The Cree leaned to hear the whispered order of the free-trader. "You keep this Indian on the boat—fill him up and lock him in, forward. If he got loose among the southern camps with this devil talk, they'd follow the others. Breauld ought to know, but the Lord knows where he is."

Shortly two dog teams left the ship, bound for the camps in the south half of the island in a mad rush to save the skins yet untraded. The Christmas mail from Albany was approaching on the river trail below Elkwan. From the upper Elkwan and the Shumattawa, from the Wink and the Buft, for days the hunters had drifted in to the post, dog harness gay with colored worsted and flinging with bells. These old souls, cheered by his straggled and proud of the praise which Garth had given as freely in the privacy of his tent had led the Akimshi hunters with their valuable furs. In the trade-room Garth and Etienne were busy preparing for the trade which had not yet begun, for as Indian makes a ceremony of his Christmas visit to a post and in contrast to the speed with which he pushes his dogs over the river trails on the way in, is the deliberation with which he proceeds to barter his hunt when he has reached the fur post. It was a happy pair that were opening bundles of blankets, getting out sugar and flour, tea and tobacco, from the store-room—filling the shelves with the trade-goods of the company.

"Ah-hah! What gold on our deck!" Etienne looked from a window. "De mail ees comin'!" he cried, and, slipping on his parka, went out followed by Garth.

The Albany mail Garth Guthrie's thoughts were a medley of shrines, questions, hopes. Letters from Louie! There would be little from his family—Ethel, that would bring cheer to an exile's Christmas. But the letter which a girl on the moonlit shore of the Albany had promised to send him—had she remembered? As he passed the tips on his way to the chattering people on the shore, his heart was quick with expectation—hope. After the disapproval—reproach, of home letters, the letter from Joan Quirrier would come like the sun breaking through the cloud canopy of the day. But if she had forgotten? As he joined Etienne and Marie, the possibility of their being no letter on the sled behind the four Ungava huskies galloping in to Elkwan to the shores of the Cree, made him set his finger nails in the palms of his hands.

SCHOOL NOTES

HILTON SCHOOL NOTES

Visitors today, October 10, were Elsie Hilton, Eddie Pavlik and Anna Savara.

The fourth grade are studying Indian life as a project for language this month.

Vendel Facalak, 4th grade, made a poster to illustrate how to "Care for Milk." This was hygiene study.

The seventh grade have finished the study of South America and are now reviewing the study of the winds.

Our enrollment has increased rapidly this year from sixteen pupils answering roll call the first day to twenty-five answering the call the first day of October.

We now have a large class of beginners and first graders. They have been cutting out ovals, black cats, and witches and everything else that makes Halloween such a spooky time.

We have our bulletin board filled with interesting posters, maps, and other work. We also have a cotton plant that was grown in northern Michigan this summer from a seed obtained from a Louisiana cotton exhibit.

We also have two small plants which were given to us by one of the ladies of the district. These flowers help to make our school more attractive. We are trying to make it a real home. Our new curtains add much to the atmosphere of a home.

We have received two educational exhibits so far this year. "The Story of Rope" and "The Story of Corn and Cornflakes." If you want to see how these useful things are made come and visit us and we'll not have to explain them to you. You can see for yourselves.

The sixth grade have been making health posters for hygiene. We are now studying the "Care of the Teeth." We already have some good drawings of the tooth. A few mornings ago, our teacher gave us a lecture on "Care of the Teeth" and "Why We Should Care for Them." We all enjoyed this very much.

Although it is late for fresh flowers we had a large box of flowers delivered at the door this morning. The postman told us if we were careful of them and kept them out of the sun they would last a long time. Can you imagine flowers of this sort? They will not lose their perfume. Two beautiful vases were furnished free. We feel ourselves real lucky.

We are now planning a Halloween program to be held Thursday evening, October 27th at 8:00 standard time. Everybody come. You will see all the spoofs of Halloween in real costumes. The sixth and seventh grades are having a lark play, "Sambo, Li'l Sal and the Pancake Party." We are also planning other plays, songs and recitations. Come and have Dame Witch tell your fortune. Have a piece of the delicious fortune cake, pumpkin pie and all kinds of goodies. You can't afford to miss this big attraction. The best of all the season.

—AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT OF such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

The periods (.) used in this article, to that of the head of a pin. It is nearly black in color at this season, although when they die the scales turn gray and the trees then have the appearance of being dusted with ashes.

A magnifying glass is helpful in locating this insect, but if the bark on the branches instead of being smooth and glossy is roughened and, on being lightly scraped with the thumb nail, a crust can be rubbed off, the presence of this scale should be suspected, especially, if on careful examination, scales like those described above can be made out, or if the inner bark is blood-shot. Specimens should be sent for identification to the entomologist, experiment station, East Lansing, Michigan.

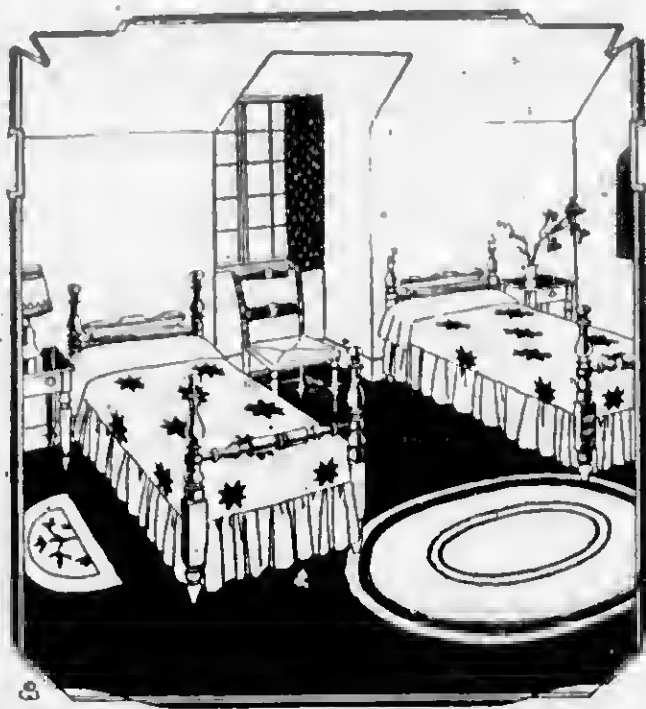

Respectfully,
L. R. Taft.

CHURCH OF GOD S. S. CONVENTION OCT. 5TH

Many Northern Michigan Cities Sent Representatives Here

The convention held at the Stone Chapel by the Church of God Sunday school of Northern Michigan on October 5, was a grand success. There were ministers and delegates present from East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Cadillac, all of which places were represented on the program.

The room in which the meetings were held was very inviting, being tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and asters besides other beautiful flowers.

The morning session began at 10 o'clock. After devotional exercises, a very instructive paper was read by Mrs. Ora Holly of East Jordan, her subject being, "The Superintendent and His Relation to the Sunday School." Mrs. Tower of Cadillac, spoke on "The Parent's Relation to the Sunday School." The discussions following these speeches were interesting and helpful as was also the question box.

At 12:30 a bounteous basket dinner was served in the basement to nearly fifty people. In the afternoon Rev. Foudy of Cadillac, gave a stirring address on "The Responsibility of the Church to the Sunday School." The five minute impromptu speeches given by different ministers furnished some merriest besides giving good wholesome advice. A paper on "How to Make the Sunday School Interesting," was read by Mrs. Arthur Guild, Charlevoix, and with the discussions brought forth some practical suggestions.

Mrs. G. H. Pye of Charlevoix, chairman of the convention, and who deserves much credit for the convention and its success, gave some demonstration work and instruction to the teachers and superintendents.

Plans were made for a more mature convention to be held at the camp ground next August at time of the annual camp meeting. Every one is invited to attend this convention regardless of denominations. Come. All are welcome.

Annual meeting and election of officers, Charlevoix Co-ops, Marion Center Grange Hall, Friday evening, October 14. Good speakers and eats. Come.—Adv. 41-11.

ORGANIZED NUTRITION CLASS LAST TUESDAY

Phelps and Marion Center Ladies Met at Marion Town Hall

Last Tuesday the ladies of Phelps and Marion Center communities met at the Marion town hall, and organized a nutrition class project with the assistance of county agent, B. C. Melencamp.

This work is given under the direction of Michigan State college extension division by local leaders and is a special opportunity for the ladies to learn more about the use of proper foods in the daily diet for their families, and thereby safeguard the health of each individual member.

All the ladies of the two communities should take advantage of this opportunity. Notice will be given later for the date of the next class meeting.

The assignment of work to be done during the month follows:

1. Make an estimate of the amount of money spent in the family, during the past ten years, for doctor, dentist or druggist bills.
2. Weigh and measure each member of the family and check to see if the weight is normal.
3. Strive to improve the posture of every member of the family.

Ladies desiring to get the most out of this course will follow carefully this assignment.

MANAGER OF PENNEY STORE HAS RETURNED

J. W. Scroggins Reports Ordering Of Immense Stock of Goods

J. W. Scroggins, manager of the Penney company store in Petoskey, has recently returned from a ten day buying trip which took him to Cleveland, Ohio, and many other metropolitan centers. Mr. Scroggins states that the management of the several hundred Penney stores in the United States is demonstrating its faith in a continuance of the country's prosperity by placing orders for forty million dollars' worth of merchandise for spring delivery. A three million dollar order for Penney's special 98c and $1.49 ladies' full fashioned hosiery has also been placed. This is the largest order of its kind on record in this country.

The outlook for business during the first part of 1928 is very good, according to Mr. Scroggins. Mr. Wilhelm, who acted in the capacity of manager of the Petoskey store during the absence of Mr. Scroggins, left last week on his vacation.

Burn Coke and get rid of all your smoke and soot trouble. Call us for a trial order and be convinced. Charlevoix Coal & Ice Co.—Adv. 41-11.

ROSENTHAL'S TO ENLARGE THEIR STORE

Petoskey Firm Will Largely Increase Their Floor Space

Having acquired the lease on the building at the corner of Lake and Howard streets, formerly occupied by the Salisbury & Hazelton shoe store, S. Rosenthal & Sons store will begin preparations about the first of the year for remodeling their entire store space, according to an announcement made by Aleck Rosenthal, store manager.

The mens' furnishing department will be moved into the newly acquired location on the corner, and will be entirely rearranged and equipped with fixtures of the most modern kind. It is hoped to have the changes completed by April first. That part of the original store to be vacated will be occupied by the ladies ready-to-wear department.

Mr. Rosenthal states that the store's plan for enlargement is an expression of his belief in the continued prosperity of this region. He will be remembered by Charlevoix residents, having been in business in Charlevoix some 30 years ago.

Will make fried cakes, pies and rolls to order. Hotel Noble, phone 404.—Adv. 4012.

Only Buick has an engine Vibrationless beyond belief

BUICK'S remarkable freedom from vibration is due primarily to three vitally important factors. First—the inherent smoothness of the Buick Valve-in-Head six-cylinder engine. Second—rubber engine mountings, front and rear. And third—the scientific and almost perfect balance of the entire Buick crankshaft assembly.

Only Buick enjoys these advantages. And only Buick provides the silken performance—the unvarying smoothness at all speeds—the longer life and greater serviceability of an engine vibrationless beyond belief.

Up in his quarters, the little Christmas spruce waited on a table for her letter—his Christmas. Should it wait in vain?

In the trade-room Garth opened the mail bag with nervous fingers. Clara's familiar hand, company mail from Cameron, two from Ethel, pale blue—He heard the hammering of his heart as he fumbled for, and drew out, the last envelope in the bag. One from an old friend, another from his cousin, a third! Slowly he slid the folded paper from the one beneath—the last, as he doubtfully shook his head, numb with disappointment.

He looked! A strange hand—a woman's! Here! She had kept her word to the exile.

In his joy Garth sought the privacy of the rear of the counter to read Joan Quarrier's letter. Then he remembered. He had said it was to hang from the tree, to be read last, on Christmas day. Tucking it into the shirt beneath his coat, he put the others in a pocket and joined Etienne and the hungry dog-runner, who waited for Marie's dinner.

After all, it was to be a happy Christmas. A trade beyond his hopes, triumph over the schooner which lay thirty miles away over the ice—and word from the girl who faced so dauntlessly with those unwavering dark eyes. A Merry Christmas for Gerth Onihrie, come what might from Oberlie and Clara—and Ethel. From Ethel, what?

On Christmas eve he stood in his living room with old Anna, before the little spruce, brave with wrosted and colored paper and bits of lighted candles. On the tree hung colored bags and at its foot were small parcels tied with gay ribbons. "Christmas! Tomorrow, on the happiest night was a letter."

"You told them, Anne?" he asked the grinning squaw, proud in her best wood dress, her raven hair coquettishly circled by a blue plaid ribbon—a gift of Garth's, cherished for ceremonies like the present.

"Ah-hah," chuckled the faithful Cree. "Day come soon, now, Marie, she rub dem child's face till dey shine lak de moon."

Garth paced the floor, his lean, dark face beaming in anticipation. Then laughter, giggles, shouts of children, followed by stern reproof in a man's voice, announced the arrival of the guests, the eight Savannes.

Garth and Shot simultaneously sprang to the door to welcome the comely Marie, leading her excited hood of six, with the grinning Etienne as FEAR KURDE.

"Merry Christmas, Marie! Jean! Yvonne!" he cried, fairly dragging the giggling and embarrassed children into the house. "Ah, Monsieur Etienne Savanne, friend of McDonald Hal Hal, is also with us tonight."

With his audience seated, Garth proceeded to divide the gifts he had ordered the previous year from lower Canada. For each of the children was a bag of candy, which was opened with wide-eyed curiosity and grins of delight. And, as the sweet tooth of grown-ups is also highly developed in the North, Marie and Anne, who had not been forgotten, swiftly evidenced their appreciation of good candy by joining the children in their munching.

Then the toys in packages marked with the children's names were given out. There remained a dress each for Marie and Anne, and a Rose sporting rifle for the delighted Etienne.

In the heart of the Santa Clara of Elkwan, the pleasure lighting the dark faces of his friends at his unexpected gifts reacted manifold. Besides, at the top of the tree, his own Christmas waited his eager eyes.

When with much bustle and chatter his friends returned to their cabin and old Anna left him, Garth sat down to read the letters from home. The first opened was his brother's, which ran as follows:

"If I had been told that my own brother was to disgrace himself as you have seen fit to do up there on James bay, I should have knocked down the liar who said it. We understand now your strange refusal to return home, your indifference to Ethel and the business. Professor Quarrier has given me the whole shameful story. A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw! Pah!"

Garth's lean face set hard as he read the first lines. Slowly the blood pushed up under the windburned skin.

"A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw!" Reading on further, he crushed the letter in his hand and let it fall.

"Poor Nina!"

The letter from Clara was a medley of hysterical reproach, and unmistakable evidence of a sincere affection for her erring brother-in-law. His eyes softened as he followed the misguided woman's effort to appeal to his sentiment—to his old love for Ethel.

"Of course she knows, Garth. That Quarrier man spread it all over town. But I am sure, in spite of it all, she still loves you—would forgive, if you asked her. Oh, Garth! You're the only brother I have, and I've always doted on you. Won't you, for my sake, come back this spring—for your own, for Ethel's sake. I don't know what she's willing you, but you mustn't take it seriously. She's terribly hurt, of course—but I know she'll forget it all, if you come back."

"Poor old Clara," said the man aloud. "Poor, simple Clara! She can't see yet that it's brother Charles who counts with Ethel, not I."

So Quarrier had had his revenge. Quarrier, her brother. It was not strange after the snubbing he got. But she? What did Joan Quarrier think of the tale her brother had brought to Charles Guthrie?

Then he opened the two letters in the blue envelope. One was dated a month earlier than the other and he read that first.

"I imagine your life in France," ran the letter, "was similar to that of the last year on James bay. I have learned much of what went on over there. Was it a French girl or an army nurse?"

She had unwittingly hurt him in the only way it was now possible for Ethel Falconer to reach the man who had once loved her. Army nurse! What had Ethel done for Canada to qualify her as a critic of the women who had toiled and dared behind the lines, that stricken men might live?

He read on: "Of course, Garth, this is your answer. I was willing to forget the slight, the neglect, but when we learned how you had been living, my love died. To share your affection with an ignorant, immoral squaw was asking a little too much, Garth."

The man who read laughed outright. "Your love died, my poor child, on the wharf at Quebec, when you saw what the Indians had done to your soldier boy," he said aloud.

"Well, why the postscript?" he went on. "She throws me over in the first letter, horse, foot and dragon; why continue the agony?"

Opening the second envelope, he read: "When I wrote you, Garth, dear, I did not understand that she had died, but Mr. Quarrier tells me that his sister helped nurse her. Of course, it was all a horrible shock, but now that it is over and you may come home, I am willing to forget the past—if you want me to."

Rising in disgust, Guthrie paced the floor. "Merciful heavens! She's willing to forget the past! Poor, shallow, scheming Ethel! Rather than lose brother-in-law Charles, you cray-fish, eat humble-pie, grovel on your knees. 'Was it a French girl or a nurse?' he quoted scathingly. 'Dearly to swallow that, too, are you, my dear?'"

Guthrie finished the letter. No Ethel Falconer waited with open arms for the prodigal lover. But, unlike the son of the tale, the prodigal lover was not returning.

Picking up and finishing the crumpled letter of Charles, Garth learned that, inasmuch as he had disgraced the family name and ignored the family wishes, the Guthrie family would proceed to try to forget its black sheep.

With a smile of contempt Garth opened the door of the sheet-iron stove and tossed in the letters. Clara's hand would answer—good-hearted, well-meaning, old Clara, who alone had sensed his condition and his unhappiness, on his return home. Then raising his arms and expelling a deep breath of relief, he said: "Thank God, that's over! And now—"

He took the letter of Joan Quarrier from the tree and eagerly opened it. "Dear Mr. Ethel:

"Have you kept your promise? Is this the last letter to be read? I wish you a very happy Christmas, but just how that would be possible up there on your frozen west coast is difficult to imagine. However, I hope you will not be lonely with thoughts of home and what you have so stubbornly turned from."

Garth's brows knotted in thought. "Of course," he murmured, "she must know about Ethel since her brother had met Charles—had heard of the engagement and his strange actions. But if she thought him still engaged, why did she write?"

Joan continued: "My winter has been an active one, working in a school for homeless children. Poor things! They need all one can give them. It has not been as uninteresting as it sounds. Everything is no new and strange."

"But you, when are you coming back to your kind, Mr. Ethel? You must be wonderfully well after two years—and they are still waiting for you."

"Again my deepest gratitude for your hospitality to the shipwrecked."

Garth finished the letter with a groan of disappointment. "She's heard a fine tale from the family, and her brother's version wouldn't help it any," he muttered. "Doesn't speak of meeting them, though. She, in a school for homeless children—"

It was evident to Guthrie from the reserved tone of Joan Quarrier's letter that she had heard of his engagement to Ethel, and it was also quite clear that she was ignorant of the color of the story Quarrier had related to Charles. To this, he realized, Joan Quarrier would give instant and not doubt that she was not even in Montreal—would never meet the Guthries. And after all, what did it matter? He was through with them—his smug brother, and the girl who had lost him when she stared in horror at his accursed cheek that day when the Royal Montreals came home.

He replaced the letter in the pocket of his shirt to be reread again and again with increasing disappointment—chagrin. He had hoped for something more personal—something of the Joan Quarrier he had known for five short days in September. But it was evident that she thought the factor of Elkwan not a free man. Well, he was now. Quarrier had done him an unintentional kindness in that he had forced Ethel's hand. Now he, Garth, could accept her release. Then what?

Far into the night Guthrie sat and smoked, but when he blew out the candle, he was no nearer a solution of his problem. Joan Quarrier had been right when she feared that a lonely Christmas awaited the exile at Elkwan. It did—a Christmas gray because a thousand miles of forest separated Garth Guthrie from a girl whose hair the moon once touched with silver dust on the cliffs of the Albany.

CHAPTER X

The New Year's festivities and the trade were over at Elkwan. The dance in the sleep-house, for which Etienne, seated high on a sugar barrel, provided the music from an ancient and scarred violin, had passed off without compelling the interference of the factor as peacemaker. The customary present of sugar and flour, tea and pork, had been given to each family of hunters and the Cree had feasted and gossiped to their hearts' content, oblivious of bitter moons to come on far trap-lines when, if game were hard to find, their children would whimper with hunger. The last of the dog-teams had flagged up the river trail or down the delta bound for Akimiski. Thanks to Souel, it had been an unheard-of trade which had come to the little post. Not only had he brought across the ice the Elkwan axes but some from Kapiskau and Attawapiskat, as well. A good joke on Graham and Boucher.

For a week Garth and Etienne were busy sorting and pressing the furs, which was to go by sled immediately to Albany.

"Twenty-eight thousand dollars," said the factor as he finished checking his list. "Our little trips inland after Souel and over to the island were rather worth while, my friend."

Etienne grinned. "No little post tak' dis evair mak' dat trade on dis bay. Dry groove you bigger place soon, You tak' Etienne Savanne wid you?"

"Take you with me, you old villain? How could I get along without you?"

"It Sure Grinds Me to Think of That McDonald Coming in Here."

You're responsible for this catch of fur, and you know it."

Savanne gravely shook his head. "Ret was you who tak' de chance on de riviere to fin' Souel. Wen we go to Albanee I tell dem peopl' dat da new bian at Elkwan ees hell on catch de fur."

Guthrie stopped to laugh at the serious bait-breed. Of the loyalty of his head man, who had taught him practically all he knew about pelts, he had had ample proof.

Down the coast over the sea-ice traveled the sled loaded with the Christmas trade. At Kapiskau, where the early January dusk overtook them, they turned up the delta to the post to pass the night with the surprised Boucher, whose Indians at Akimiski had left him to trade with McDonald.

Starting the following morning under the stars, before the light died, the sled from Elkwan sighted the buildings of Fort Albany.

As Garth and Etienne entered the trade room, Cameron, curious of the result of their mission, called: "Well, well, what's the news from the island? Did you get across the ice?"

"Yes, we got across a week before Christmas, but had a tough time," Guthrie dissembled gravely, nodding Etienne.

"Didn't see how you could do any good going over there. Your man failed to hold any of the Elkwan people, then?"

Money Saving Facts About Concrete Highway Pavements

Concrete is durable.

It will not shove, roll or rut. It remains as true and even as built.

Concrete pavement is now satisfying taxpayers in many countries and every state in the Union.

Maintenance cost is low. It does not require periodic resurfacing.

Wet or dry, concrete provides the safest surface for traffic.

Oil drippings will not cause concrete to disintegrate.

Concrete pavements are clean, smooth, dustless, free from stickiness and usable twelve months in the year.

6,000 miles of concrete pavement were placed on highways in the United States in 1926.

Concrete gives you more road surface value for each dollar invested than any other type.

THINGS OUR READERS SHOULD KNOW

A special committee appointed to investigate the re-imbursement account of former sheriff Charles Novak, failed to find any wrongful withholding on the part of Mr. Novak of moneys belonging to the county. On the contrary, after checking over records, it would appear that Mr. Novak had overpaid the county $7.87. The committee's report read in part: "While we believe that investigation of any county officer's record is proper, yet it is to be regretted that charges reflecting upon the honor and integrity of an officer should be given publicity before the real facts are known."

The above report vindicates Mr. Novak of any wrong doing, as far as the board of supervisors are concerned. But, we question their right to come to any such conclusion. It has always been the policy of the Courier to give praise and credit to the board whenever it was due, and even though things have gone against our liking at times we have held our peace. However, this instance we believe, needs an explanation.

tion. We have no "axe to grind" with Mr. Novak but we don't like the manner in which the board of supervisors smoothed this matter over.

The report made to the board by the special committee appointed to investigate the matter, showed that from November 1923 to December 31, 1926, 42 prisoners were taken to the various penal institutions of the state. Of this number former sheriff Novak claims he took but six with the county car and the records show that he had accounted with the county treasurer for this number. The rest, according to Mr. Novak, had been taken in his own car, by train and by his deputies, in which cases the monies received would not belong to the county. But it is alleged these statements have not been proven and were only taken as true. It is also alleged that the report does not coincide with the report from the state, which Mr. Flanders, county treasurer, received, after being requested by Supervisor Cook, who started the investigation, to write and find out the amount of money paid to the sheriff. We also find that on July 29, 1927, the former sheriff accounted with the treasurer for two prisoners taken away and again in August for three more. We wonder why he should wait until he was out of the office to make these accountings?

Concerning the matter of civil fees and the use of the county car in serving processes, the special committee reported that they could find no records that would furnish them with the amount of fees received or the mileage made. It was the claim of former sheriff Novak that it was his uniform practice to turn over to his deputies all civil processes which had to be served outside the vicinity of the county seat. But—we say—why take his word for such matters when he was required to make a report each month?

Another interesting feature is found in the annual audit of the county books made each year by state auditors. For the benefit of our readers we will reprint the audits from April 1922 to August 31, 1926, just as they appear in the audit book:

April 1922 to April 30, 1923—"This department has complied with the provisions of the uniform accounting law since January 1, 1923 only, the sheriff who went out of office December 31, 1922 failed to comply with the law, which made it impossible for us to get the cash receipts of this department for the last nine months of 1922."

May 1923 to June 30, 1924—"The sheriff does not comply with the provisions of the uniform accounting law, no record of the civil fees collected by him has been kept. His attention has been called to his evasion of the law."

July 1924 to June 30, 1925—"As per resolution of the board of supervisors dated October 1924, the sheriff should receive $2,400 salary per year, and remit all fees collected to the county treasurer."

He made reports showing collections for the three months, namely, October, November and December, 1924, but has made no remittance to the county treasurer.

If the board of supervisors desires that this resolution be enforced, we would recommend that a report of the sheriff be filed with county treasurer including remittance for fees collected, before check is given him for monthly salaries."

July 1925 to August 31, 1926—"No revenue vouchers or payment of fees collected have been recorded during the period of this audit."

As per resolution of the board of supervisors dated October 1924, the sheriff should remit all fees collected to the county treasurer.

We would recommend that all receipts be recorded, revenue vouchers be issued, and reports be made to the county clerk and county treasurer at least once a month."

It would appear from the above that the sheriff did not comply with the law in any of the years he was in office. Why did the board of supervisors set by and allow such infractions to go on? As we have formerly stated, Mr. Novak has been vindicated by the board—but from a public standpoint the board of supervisors have been negligent in allowing such practices to continue from year to year.

Another matter settled in the session just closed was that of rent due the county on the juvenile home on Mason street, of which Mrs. Nellie Meech is matron. It was found at the opening of the session that $300 rent was due up to October 1st. Mrs. Meech presented a bill to the county for $108.00 for items she had bought for the "home," the bill including the following:

22 yds. Linoleum	$14.30
24 yds. Linoleum	28.60
Border	27.00
Placing same	9.00
6 storm sash	25.50
1 door and 2 windows	5.00

$108.90
We find the board settled the matter in this manner:

"In consideration of $100.00 and the attached receipted bill (which is for the above items) for articles purchased for property on Mason street, to become property of the county, we, the undersigned committee do hereby declare that the rent of aforesaid property is paid up to November 1st, 1927. Rent hereafter to be $10.00 per month payable in advance."

We question the board's action to make a settlement in this manner. Whose permission did Mrs. Meech have to purchase articles mentioned above, and why make a present of the balance? It doesn't seem to us that the board takes into consideration the fact that the tax payer is paying the shot and is the loser.

The two matters referred in the above paragraphs lead up to the point we are now going to bring forth.

Paragraph 2272, Sec. 9, of the Michigan state Laws, referring to the matter of printing proceedings of the board of supervisors reads as follows: "They shall cause to be made out and published immediately after each session in at least one well-established newspaper, if there be one published in the county, if not, in some such paper published nearest thereto, a report of the proceedings of said board at such sessions, including a report of the receipts and expenditures, which shall contain a statement of the names of each claimant, the amount claimed, amount allowed, and a full statement of the amounts of the treasurer's account on the last settlement, as found on his balance sheet or account current in making the settlement."

For a number of years to our knowledge, this has not been done. The law has been evaded by having the county clerk make copies of the yearly audit of the county books, placing one in the hands of each supervisor and one in each public library of the county. But, what about the public, who is paying taxes to run the county? Are they not entitled to a copy of the supervisor's proceedings as the law intends they shall? Nevertheless, the board of supervisors this year turned down a legitimate bid from a county newspaper to print the proceedings of their meetings.

We say again that we are not inclined to mix into county affairs, but we believe it is time that such "white washing" as has been apparent during the last session should be stopped.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid will serve a chicken supper, Wednesday, October 26th, from 5:30 until all are served. Bill 50c.—Adv. 41-42.

ROAD COMMISSION TAKES OVER FERRY

as were also the township and city clerk's reports.

The original recommendation of the county road commission to raise a county road tax of 4 mills was turned down by the board. At Tuesday's session the board adopted the amended report of the road commission, which provides for a county road tax of 3 mills, one mill lower than last year, for road purposes during the years 1927-28. It was recommended the amount be expended as follows: for construction div. No. 1 for Norwood road, $5,000; construction div. No. 2, Boyne Falls-Deer Lake road, $5,000; construction div. No. 3, to be spent on re-location of the Iron-ton-south road, $12,000; tools and equipment, $6,107.17.

The original recommendation of the county sinking fund committee to raise a 3 1-2 mill tax for the purpose of purchasing and retiring county road and federal aid bonds and paying semi-annual interest on same was not accepted by the board, which at its Tuesday afternoon session adopted a resolution to raise 2 1-2 mills for this purpose. This is a cut of 1 mill from the amount assessed last year. This action was not looked for, as it was thought the board would cut down the road tax and allow the 3 1-2 mill sinking fund tax, which was deemed necessary by the sinking fund committee to retire bonds falling due in 1932.

There will be a Halloween box social and program held at the Hop Yard school, Friday, October 28.—Adv. 42-42 pd.

Danger in Old Paper Money
It is figured that there are from a billion to three billion germs on the average bill that has been in circulation for some time. If you have a few old dollar bills it is a good thing to mail them to the Courier for renewal for your own subscription or a year's subscription to some intelligent friend. The Courier will then see that the old bills are turned in to the treasury and be destroyed. In this way the germs are got rid of and everybody is benefited.—Borrowed from the Gladwin Record.

"GEORGE DID IT" TRUE THIS TIME

CHARLEVOIX BOOSTER UP TO HIS OLD PRANKS

"Uncle" George VanPelt's Latest
Stunt Shows He Is Still On the Job

"Uncle" George is still with us and will be until the 22nd of October, when he leaves for his winter home at Port Orange, Florida.

Occasionally, "Uncle" George says this is his last visit to Charlevoix. This year he has pretty good reasons for saying he will not come again—but he hasn't said so. He could no more stop blowing his horn for Charlevoix than he could stop breathing. His latest stunt here was pulled off last week. He went into the association of commerce office and saw ten big bundles of newspapers, copies of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, in which was published the best article on Charlevoix that he had ever read, according to his own words. The papers were ordered last summer to advertise Charlevoix, but only a small amount of them had been used.

"Uncle" George has a list of between 2,000 and 2,500 names of men and women throughout the country to whom he sends papers containing articles of interest about Charlevoix, also sending one of his cards, of which he has just mailed the last of 100,000. With this in mind, he asked Mr. Emory what he was going to do with the papers, the reply being that they were not being used and would probably be burned. "Uncle" George remonstrated and asked if he could not have them. His wish was granted.

He then went to the Abstract & Engineering company's office and asked Walker miles if he would get the papers for him, which Walker did. He then went to the post office and ordered 500 wrappers and stamps and with the assistance of Miles, the papers were mailed. Inasmuch as it was to advertise Charlevoix, Mr. Miles gladly gave him time free of charge. "Uncle" George later remarked to the writer: "It is the little things like this that have encouraged me to keep up this good work I have been doing for so many years, and it is letters like the following, of which I have received a great many each year that have also encouraged me."

Oct. 12, 1927.
"Dear Uncle George:
This will acknowledge the Chicago paper with all the bully things about Charlevoix, which the writer knows are all true.

But what about your promise to visit Cherry Home? (which has Charlevoix beat a mile.) Do you recall the time on the good ship Gilman D., when with Capt. Wilbur we were discussing the quality of the contents, etc. You promised then to come. Your automobile made fairly good time, but I am surprised that a man of your experience shows such ignorance. You have got 'em hitched up wrong end to. If you had 'em hitched up right and backed 'em up all the way of your trip, you could have cut down the time a few seconds.

With kindest regards and best wishes for you and concrete roads.
Very cordially yours,
G. M. Dame."

"October 13, 1927.
Mr. George H. Van Pelt,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Uncle George:
Thank you very kindly for your little reminder that you sent me and the very fine article about Charlevoix. I am sure that this wonderful town has our mutual love and admiration.

We "your friends in Lansing," often mention you in our conversation and have expressed the hope that you are enjoying your vigorous health and having your usual good time.

Whenever your journey should bring you anywhere near Lansing, I hope that you will be able to stop and spend the day going over this fair city. We use a lot of cement and I would like to prove to you that your little circular on the use of cement is followed out in this city.

Again thanking you kindly for remembering me and wishing you success and health during the coming years, I am

Sincerely yours,
R. A. Reed."

"Chicago Heights, Ill.,
October 14, 1927.

Dear Mr. VanPelt:
Thank you so much for the paper and enclosures. Now I have some idea as to the beauty of your surroundings in Charlevoix. I had no idea, of course, having never been there. No wonder you enjoy it each summer.

I'm just wondering if you wrote the article? It's a marvelous description. Sometime I hope I may see the place and other of Michigan's beauty spots.

Ruth Wallace."

"Chicago, Illinois,
October 15, 1927.

Uncle George:
I was glad to hear from you and I see you're up to your old tricks. When you can't get members for the Chicago Association of Commerce you boom your home town. You must be active and that is the proper spirit. I would like very much to see Charlevoix and will try next summer to make you a visit. I may go to Florida for thirty days and then to California for the winter. The association is doing fine and they all miss you. You must come and see us once a year or more.

Yours truly,
C. D. Osborn."

After reading the above account of "Uncle" George's activities we will all agree that he is still interested in Charlevoix as he always has been. He is a real booster and we are proud of him.

We might add that the balance of the newspapers related to above may be had by going to the Abstract & Engineering company's office. Probably every merchant on the street has friends and acquaintances who would be glad to get a copy of this paper with the wonderful story about Charlevoix. Go get a bundle and send them out.

Gas Spoiled Sleep, Made Her Dizzy

"For years I suffered with gas and constipation. Used to get headaches and dizzy spells. The first dose of Adierika gave me relief. Now I rest well."—Mrs. B. Brinkley. Just ONE spoonful of Adierika relieves gas and that bloated feeling so that you can eat and sleep well. Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes old waste matter you never thought was there. No matter what you tried for your stomach, Adierika will surprise you.—F. J. Fessenden, Druggist.—Adv. 42-11.

S. S. CONVENTION

Mrs. Secord of East Jordan to briefly state the local needs as she saw them.

Dr. Crooks, the president of Alma college, was the evening speaker. "It costs something," said he, "to be a Sunday school teacher. A Sunday school teacher who feels the importance of the job will not have much time for bridge parties and other social functions—not that there is necessarily anything wrong with these things—but she just will not have time. She will be having her class for supper, sometimes, and will be making other week-day contacts with them to add to the brief time on Sunday. It takes a lot of time and energy, but if you are willing to pay the price you can be a successful Sunday school teacher. Sunday school teaching isn't merely an intellectual process, we need Sunday school teachers with a heart. You can't be a successful church without paying the cost. It is sometimes better to have a social for the young folks than a prayer meeting for the old people. If your church wants a successful Sunday school they can have it if they are willing to pay the cost. If the Sunday school is too high priced the church will pay the penalty in another generation. You can pay the price and have it, or you can go without and pay for it.

"We buy many things such as washing machines, rugs and other household conveniences (not to mention automobiles) on the installment plan. We sign on the dotted line and if we want to keep the articles we have got to pay the price. You can pay the price and have them or you can go without them and pay the price in inconvenience and hard work and hiring help or wearing out your wife. This same principle is true in regard to peace and prohibition and many other good things. We want them, but are we willing to pay the price? We have laughed too much about violations of the prohibition law—it is a serious business. Too often we have been purveyors of wet propaganda. Too often we have consented by our silence to violations of the law.

"We used to hear about good saloon keepers. There never was such a thing. They had to violate the law to make their money. There never was a decent saloon or a saloon keeper who kept the law. Prohibition is a desirable and high priced article. It is a wonderful experiment. We've signed a contract for it. We've got to pay for it. We can pay for it by continued education, by law enforcement and law observance, or we can nullify it and pay the price in lawless communities, unsafe highways and other undesirable conditions. So far, prohibition has not been tried. The churches should demand the enforcement of the law. You can pay for prohibition and have it or you can go without it and pay for it.

"How best can I trade in my present car for a new car?"

WHEN you are ready to trade in your present car for a new car, you naturally want full value for your present car. But most of all, you want full new car value.

It will therefore pay you to consider varying trade-in allowance offers in the light of these basic facts:

- 1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value: i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
- 2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
- 3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.
- 4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
- 5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.
- 6 Remember that you are making a purchase—not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply using your present car as a credit against the new car's purchase price.

TEMPERANCE UNION HELD OCT. MEETING

Delegates Chosen to District Convention and Officers Elected

The October meeting of the Woman's Temperance Union was held last Friday at the home of Mrs. Frank Partridge with about forty present.
Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Pye were welcomed into the society, the former conducting the devotionals and later gave some very interesting and encouraging conclusions regarding the prohibition situation which had been reached after extensive travels all over the country.

The following delegates were chosen to attend the district convention to be held at Mancelona, on October 18th, viz: Mesdames Rife, Roger, Simmons, Campbell, Coulter, Blissett and Miss Simmons.

Officers were elected for 1928 as follows:

President, Mrs. Mary A. Rife.
Vice president, Mrs. Mary E.
Burns.

Cor. sec'y., Mrs. Ella Usher.
Rec. sec'y., Mrs. Annie B. Saltonstall.

Treasurer, Mrs. Lyda E. Benton.
Mrs. Hart presented the topic "The Economics Value of Prohibition," adding to the very convincing matterial gathered from national statistics the views of several local business men. While some were pessimistic as to the financial benefits derived, voicing the belief that money saved on drink was spent for autos and other luxuries, the figures of the savings bank tell us a different story as they show a total increase of $362,972.00 in deposits over eight years ago, during which time our population has remained about the same. None of the business men approached would want to see the saloon reinstated in Michigan.

The hostess served delicious refreshments and after a pleasant social hour the union adjourned to meet in November with Mrs. Harsha.
Topic, "Commercializing Narcotics."
Leader, Mrs. Belding.

Those wishing to beautify their

FURNISHING COMPANY MAKES IMPROVEMENTS

Install Electric Sign That Will Be Largest on Mitchell Street

The Petoskey Housefurnishing company, under the management of Mr. Dau, is making a number of improvements about the business location. Among these is an electric sign which will be one of the largest on Mitchell street.

An item of interest in connection with this establishment is the fact that the store has the exclusive agency for an oil burning stove. The front view of the stove is much the same as any ordinary upright stove, but on the rear and connected with the main body by a pipe is a five gallon tank in which is kept the furnace oil that the stove consumes.
Flow of oil into the stove is regulated by a valve in the connecting pipe, by the use of which any desired room temperature may be had. The fuel oil costs but ten cents per gallon and five gallons will operate the stove continuously for three days.
All things considered, this seems to be a real economical heating plant.
Cabinet heaters are also built on the same plan.

greater strength than the score indicates.

Fumbles right up close to the enemy goal line proved the undoing of the Boyne City high school football team at Cadillac last Saturday and Cadillac won 12 to 6. According to reports from Boyne City that city's team had several opportunities to shove across touchdowns but the ball squeezed out of the hands of the players at critical times.

Harbor Springs high school football team lacked the punch to put across scores when up to the goal line and was forced to accept a tie with Gaylord to the tune of 6 to 6, Saturday. Harbor had a dandy chance to count in the opening frame. In third quarter Harbor rushed the ball by clever plays up to the goal line and shoved it over in the fourth period. Gaylord received the kickoff after this marker and used a couple of clever passes to put their touchdown across via the air route.

Traverse City kept her slate clean last Saturday by winning a 26 to 0 victory from Alpena in the latter city. It was expected Traverse would win by a much larger score.

Cheboygan piled up the largest score for any northern team so far this year with her 85 to 0 win at Onaway last Saturday. This is the in the north and would indicate great largest score made in a single game strength for the Cheboygan team.

FORGER ARREST- ED HERE MONDAY

CAUGHT AFTER CASHING BAD
CHECK AT LEVINSON STORE

Captured in Armstrong Residence
After Chase—Pulled Gun
On Deputy Sheriff

Cashing a forged check at the M. A. Levinson & Co. store Monday afternoon resulted in the arrest about a half hour later of a young man giving his name as Jesse Levet, of Grand Rapids, Michigan. He is now in the county jail charged with carrying concealed weapons after he had pulled a gun on Deputy Sheriff Charles Marshall.

Levet claimed he had been in Charlevoix since last Saturday, when it is known he entered the County bank and inquired of Mr. Bridge about the arrival of the boat Marquise. Monday afternoon he purchased some goods at the Levinson store, giving a $25.00 check signed with Mrs. O. P. North's name in payment. Being suspicious, Mr. Levinson took the check to the bank, where he found that the signature had been forged. He went out on the street and located Levet, telling him the check was no good and was given back the articles purchased and the change received.

During the time Robert Bridge took his car and looked up Chief of Police Weikel and the two followed Levet, who had started up the hill towards the south side. Evidently becoming aware he was being followed, Levet turned back and went into the porch of Hallett's Inn. When he was approached here by Bridge and Weikel he turned and ran around behind the hotel and a cross lot chase followed, with the searchers losing track of their man. However, Levet was seen entering Armstrong's residence by John Olson of Boyne City, and upon learning this, Weikel and Deputy Sheriff Marshall entered and searched the house. The culprit was found in a clothes closet after the whole house had been searched, and when Deputy Marshall opened the closet door, Levet pulled a gun on him. Marshall, who was also armed, ordered Levet to drop his revolver, which he did. The gun was later found to be unloaded.

When questioned at the jail, Levet admitted he had entered the North residence on the South hill with the intention of robbery. He also stated he had entered three residences on the North side, obtaining a small loot. How he knew no one was at home at the Armstrong residence is not known, although officers believe he had been scouting over the town with the intention of entering other homes. He evidently was not new at the game and his arrest will keep him out of trouble for some time to come.

ADD ANOTHER BOAT FOR STATE FERRY

Gov. Green Says Traffic Will Be Taken Care of

"The state will put on a third boat for ferry service between Mackinac City and St. Ignace," was the statement made by Governor Fred W. Green to the Enterprise during his recent visit to the city to meet with the conservation aids in this section.

"We already have a boat in view," continued the governor, "but have not arrived at a definite decision in this regard as yet. The boat we have in mind is particularly fitted for the service wanted and has a draft of 14 feet. It is believed that with this additional craft the ferry service across the straits will be adequately provided for a number of years to come."

Governor Green stated that the state has a wonderful program for the further beautifying and improvement of the state park at Mackinac Island.

The Governor's visit to St. Ignace was prompted by his desire to meet all of the conservation aids in this section, and impart to them the aims of the department and what was expected of them. The meeting was held at the Hotel Northern. The governor was accompanied by W. H. Loutit, acting head of the state conservation department since the resignation of Leigh J. Young. They left during the afternoon for Newberry and will make a tour of the peninsula meeting with all employees of the department located above the straits.—St. Ignace Enterprise.

The Baptist ladies will hold a rummage sale in the Polly Kay shop, all day Saturday, October 29.—Adv. 43-11.

MARKED ACTIVITY IN CITY THIS FALL

City Work and School Building
Keeps Large Crews Busy

With crews working on the electric lines, setting new poles and laying conduits for the underground wiring system, Charlevoix presents more activity than has been evident here in a number of seasons at this time of the year.

Favorable fall weather the past two weeks has added greatly in progress of the work, which is well advanced at this time. By the time we go to press the conduit on the east side of Bridge street will be laid. The work of removing poles will be commenced in the very near future.

Favorable weather has also aided building operations at the new school building and the work is advancing at a rapid pace. The roof on the grade building has been completed and brick laying on the gymnasium is now being rushed ahead.

BEAVERS TO GET THEIR OWN DOCTOR

STATE RE-EMPLOYS R. E. PALMER FOR ISLANDERS

Physician's Salary Placed at $3,500
a Year—Salary to Start July 1 Last

The Michigan state administrative board at a meeting last week decided to re-employ Dr. R. E. Palmer as physician at Beaver Island, with headquarters at St. James, capital of the island kingdom in Lake Michigan, a part of Charlevoix county 32 miles north-west. The contract will date as of July 1, 1927, when the first contract with Dr. Palmer expired. The island is without a regular physician and for many years doctors crossed from Charlevoix, Petoskey and Levering to administer to the wants of the sick and injured.

Dr. Palmer's salary will be $3,500 per year, the same as under the contract of last year.

Michigan decided to employ a physician to care for her island residents after the winter difficulty of an injured man there, at which time an airplane carried a Charlevoix physician across the ice and snow and stretches of open water to set the broken bones and treat the injuries of a resident of Beaver Island, the main island of the group.

A dog and pony outfit also carried Dr. Brown, of Levering, across on the same mission, the physician leaving the mainland at Cross Village and skirting the northern islands in the group to reach St. James.

Dr. Palmer and wife have been in Charlevoix for the past month, awaiting the state's decision regarding his return to the island.

IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY AT TOURIST CAMP

Entire Area Will Be Available for Coming Season

Room for a large additional number of automobiles is being provided at the Charlevoix auto camp by clearing away brush in the cedar grove at the west end of the grounds.

Caretaker Hugh Brady is doing this work this fall, after an unusually successful year at the camp. Clearing out the balance of the grove will complete this part of the work and puts into use the entire area of the auto camp. Charlevoix's auto camp is known throughout the country for its beautiful location and excellent conveniences and no effort is being spared to uphold the splendid reputation the camp has established with the touring public.

The ladies of the Church of God will hold a Bake Sale in the window of the Charlevoix Hardware Co. on Saturday, October 29, beginning at 9 a. m. You will get good things to eat there.—Adv. 43-11.

Admission to "Flapper Grandmother" 35c and 50c. Tickets will be on sale at Withers' Variety Store and Bonthron's.—Adv. 43-11.

MUST ADVERTISE SAYS ROAD HEAD

AVERS WEST IS TAKING BUSINESS FROM MICHIGAN

Rogers Says Northern Michigan Towns
Could Have as Much Business as Western Towns With Boosting

Other states are out-doing Michigan in advertising their roads and thereby attracting hundreds of thousands of visitors who could see more and have better times here, Highway Commissioner Frank F. Rogers believes.

The commissioner returned in a very buoyant mood from last week's annual convention of the American Association of Highway Engineers at Denver.

"I was surprised to find that the biggest difference between Michigan roads and the roads of other states was advertising," Rogers said. "My! They certainly bring tasty pictures to your mind with their pamphlets."

"The accounts were so delightful that I had to take several trips myself, especially in Colorado, to see what they were doing that we are not."

"In most cases I was surprised to find they actually are not doing work we are to their roads, nor were road conditions as good as ours."

"For scenery, roadwork and facilities, our part of US-31, which runs from Mackinac City south to Indiana border and then to Mobile, is a match for anything I saw."

Rogers said the bulk of highway travel now has shifted from east-west to north-south. The city of Colorado Springs, population about 35,000 he said, was swelled to twice its size, largely through highway traffic from the south.

"To my mind," Rogers said, "Charlevoix or any one of a half a dozen of our west coast cities should have the same volume of traffic. They have everything else up there that is needed."

The commissioner said he was convinced US-31 is to become one of the country's greatest arteries. With the exception of a few bad spots in Kentucky and Tennessee, he said it already is in good condition.

Michigan will complete an important auxiliary feed line to the road probably early next year, Rogers said, with a new route south from St. Joseph to the state line near Michigan City, Ind.

US-31 has a bad patch north of Watervliet that needs smoothing over and a few other spots up the coast but with completion this year of a 20 mile stretch of paving south of Traverse City and start of another stretch north of Traverse City to Elk Rapids, much of the worst has been eliminated, Rogers believed.

Ship Loeb Farms Cattle
Eleven ear loads of thoroughbred horses, hogs and Holstein cattle from the Loeb Farms were shipped from here Monday to Grand Rapids, where an auction sale will be held November 1 and 2. The herd was in charge of Dr. L. V. Simmons and a crew of Loeb Farms employees.

BAPTIST CHURCH

The Ladies' Aid will meet today with Mrs. Clarence Meggison. The young people will join in an association rally at Petoskey Friday evening. Pastor Burns will preach Sunday morning and evening and other services will be held as usual.

MICHIGAN POTATO TO CROP SMALL

SAID TO BE LIGHTEST SINCE YEAR OF 1916

Warm Fall Weather Increased the Bean and Corn Crop—Harvest
Nearly Completed

A period of hot weather coupled with frequent rains and no frost during the month of September hastened the Michigan corn crop to maturity and materially increased the prospects of a month ago so that 57 per cent of a normal crop is now expected, according to a statement issued recently by Herbert Powell, commissioner of agriculture and Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician for Michigan. Potatoes that were planted late are still growing, and bean prospects showed considerable improvement although rains late in the month delayed the harvest somewhat.

On October 1, one half of the corn crop to the state was mature, much of it had been cut, and most of the silo filling had been completed. The forecasted crop of 35,765,000 bushels is still over eighteen million bushels short of last year's production. The United States corn crop prospects also increased greatly in September, and the nation's crop now promises to be only two per cent below last year. Michigan oats turned out slightly better than in 1926 and also above average with a yield of 33.5 bushels per acre. The total production is nearly the same as last year, but the quality is much better and is above average. The U. S. oats crop was 3.6 per cent smaller than last year with a yield of 29.1 bushels per acre.

The potato forecast is for the smallest crop in Michigan since 1916 or only 23,771,000 bushels. The condition of 60 per cent of normal on October 1, is ten points below that in any other important potato state. Consequently, the production promises to be even more than normal consumption requirements, being estimated at 394,575,000 bushels. Because of blight considerable rot is reported in eastern states, and this will tend to partially counteract the depressing effect on prices of this large national production.

Many beans have been harvested during September without damage and the quality is unusually good. The pick will be somewhat larger from the late portion of the crop coming from the eastern counties of the bean district where there has been some rain damage. The state yield is 9.5 bushels per acre, and the yield in all sections is below average. Based on the acreage of 662,000, this gives 6,289,000 bushels compared with 6,624,000 bushels last year of which 5,300,000 bushels were merchantable.

With a yield of 28.5 bushels per acre, the same as a year ago, 5,415,000 bushels of heavy weight and excellent colored barley was harvested in Michigan. Buckwheat did not recover from the long drought and frosts of August, and the yield will be low. Drought has also shortened the prospects of sugar beets to 670,000 tons, but the sugar content will likely be above average this year. Prospects are much better for this crop in other states than in Michigan. Our hay was a big crop this year, and the average yield was 1.50 tons per acre for all tame varieties combined first cuttings were especially good. The yield is boosted by the increased acreage of alfalfa.

FINE PROGRAM AT POTATO SHOW

STATE FARM LEADERS WILL APPEAR AMONG SPEAKERS

Various Judging Contests Should Attract a Large Crowd—Dates
November 2-3-4

The Top O' Michigan Potato Association has been able to get together an unusual program for the celebration of their fifth annual Potato and Apple Show.

On the first day of the show, H. A. Cardinell, extension specialist in horticulture at the Michigan State college, and Ralph Rees, horticulturist for the New York Central Lines, will discuss problems related to the production and marketing of apples, respectively. Mr. Cardinell and Mr. Rees will also do the judging in the apple department. Milton Grinnell, editor of the Michigan Business Farmer, is to discuss a program for quality apples and potatoes.

On the second day which is designated as Potato Day, most everything relating to potatoes will be discussed. Professor G. M. Grantham will discuss the fertility needs; H. C. Rather, the relation of alfalfa to potato production; G. J. Hays, the relation of dairying to the potato industry and C. M. McGarry, the selection of seed.

At the annual banquet on Thursday evening, the association has secured Hon. Herbert Powell, commissioner of agriculture, Dean R. S. Shaw, of the Michigan State college and E. L. Nixon of Pennsylvania state college. Dr. Nixon will also judge the potatoes and appear on the afternoon program.

On Friday morning the annual boys' and girls' contest will be held followed with a luncheon at twelve of which all members of boys and girls clubs will be guests of the association. L. V. Benjamin, district club leader, P. G. Lundin, assistant state club leader and A. G. Kettunen, state club leader, will make talks at the luncheon. The winners in the essay contest and judging contests will be announced at this luncheon.

The mornings of each day will be devoted to looking over the show room and for the various contests. Among the various activities for each day, are the potato grading contest, judging contest, disease identification contest, potato peeling contest, apple pie baking contest and the church choir singing contest. Liberal premiums in all these contests should attract a large number of entries.

There will be no dull moment at the show and A. C. Lytle, secretary, is anticipating a large entry to compete for the $1,600 offered in premiums and prizes.

Be sure to attend this show if at all possible. If you cannot, then send your exhibits to the secretary who will look after setting them up in the show room. Be sure to mark them plainly with name, address and entry number if you send them.

Remember the dates—November 2-3-4.

WARDENS TO KEEP "OFF" TRESPASS LAW

State Conservation Chief Tells Agents
Not to Arrest Under New Code

Farmers of Michigan will receive no assistance from the state conservation department in the enforcement of the new anti-trespass law, according to George Hlogarth, acting director of the department.

The law provides that it shall be the duty of prosecuting attorneys to their respective counties to enforce the ban on trespass, which Hlogarth declares relieves the conservation department of all responsibilities in this matter.

"Our wardens have been instructed under no circumstances to make an arrest for trespass," Hlogarth stated Monday. "If a landowner makes complaint against trespassers to a game warden the warden has been instructed to refer him to the prosecuting attorney of his county or to a sheriff, deputy sheriff or constable. The warden is absolutely without power or authority to make the arrest himself and all conservation officers have been so instructed by this office."

The new trespass law, effective for the first time this year, forbids hunting without permission on farm lands, private hunting clubs, or in public parks or game preserves.

"Well, be outlived us for it, and it's only human in the Indiana to let him be. It's how much is the whole island trade worth in an average year, anyway?" suddenly asked Garth.

"Let's see," said Cameron, scratching his grizzled head. "Um, I should say that it runs about two hundred for skins, all kinds."

"Well, Mr. Cameron," drawled the factor of Elkwan, "I've got half of it out on the sled, then."

"What?" Cameron stared stupidly into the twinkling eyes of the man before him. "Thought you said you didn't—half of it? What d'you mean, half of it? Half of what?" sputtered the factor.

"Why, half of the Akimiski trade. We got a hundred skins."

"You got a hundred?—Why, man, you said you didn't hold 'em—your people. Are you crazy, Guthrie?" cried the excited Cameron.

Useless to contain his mirth, Etienne exploded at the far end of the trade counter, as Garth replied: "You took it for granted that we failed. I didn't say we fell down," chaffed Guthrie.

"For heaven's sake, man, stop your fooling and tell me the truth. Do you mean to say that you've got a hundred fox from Akimiski on that sled out there?" demanded Cameron.

"I do."

"Well—I'll be—skinned alive!" And the dazed trader stood, fists on hips, gazing at the grinning Garth and Etienne.

"How in Jehoshaphat did you do it? You got 'em, after all, with Soule!"

"Soule and Etienne, here, scared them to death."

"Then, when the fox tracks had been trailing took, as he said—"I do."

The brooding face of the man with the scarred cheek sought the window. The tragedy of the man at Seal Cove, if he proved to be the Nova Scotian soldier wanted by the police, was, he realized, simply the story of Garth Guthrie in an exaggerated form. The wife he had come home to, like Etienne, had turned from the mutilated face—lacked the gentleness to shield him with her heart from the mockery of an unfeeling world. How many of the Canadian maimed, he wondered, the broken, the crippled, had walked in Gettysburg with Garth Guthrie and Laughing McDonald? How many had seen veiled horror in the eyes of those they loved?

"Well, I sympathize with any man whose wife goes wrong," the voice of Cameron went on, after a pause, "but that don't justify murder, Guthrie."

"I'm not so sure," was the quiet response, "when a man comes home with a comely mask for a face; that he isn't justified in killing both his wife and the man she turns to. Put yourself in his place, Cameron. Even the children on the streets must have looked at him as he passed. Think of the hell he lived through—then she, his refuge and his anchor—falls him."

Again Cameron felt that the man championing the unknown McDonald was making the case his own. That Guthrie was sensitive of his scarred cheek, he already was aware and it irritated the older man into blurring outright: "Guthrie, don't take offense at what I'm going to say, but it seems to me that you must be vain as a girl to have that scar always on your mind. Why, man, you're handsome enough to carry a dozen scars. Nobody ever thinks of it, except to envy your war record."

Guthrie's mouth curled slightly in answer: "Man, I've forgotten all about that scar, but I can't forget the men who were not so lucky."

But as Cameron's hand left the shoulder of the factor of Elkwan, he was sure that the furrow across the cheek of the younger man had played its part in a personal tragedy.

As Guthrie left the trade house to seek his room at Cameron's hospitable quarters and make himself presentable for the supper on which Mrs. Cameron would spare no effort, he turned for a short stroll across the clearing. He was approaching the mission when the fur-hooded figure of a woman passed him at a short distance on a parallel path. The face in the hood was turned from him but the swaying stride of the morose woman aroused his curiosity. The white women residents of the post could be counted on the fingers of a hand. It was a stranger—a new missionary teacher at the orphan Indian school, doubtless. At the mission the paths met, and Guthrie turned with a "good evening," as the woman in the fur capote came abreast, to gaze, with a furiously pounding heart, as he looked into the laughing eyes of Joan Quarrier.

"You! Here?" he exclaimed, gazing at the upturned head as if at a ghost. "Welcome to Albany, Mr. Kyle," she cried, extending a mitted hand. "I've just left Mrs. Cameron, and knew of your arrival with that fabulous amount of fur. Congratulations on your defeat of Laughing McDonald."

"You—wintering at Albany," he continued, "and you never told me!"

The color rose to the dark hair on her forehead. "I found a job. You see they needed a nurse terribly, at the school." Her eyes avoided his searching look now. "My brother returns in the spring, so I decided to wait for him here."

"But when I left, you were leaving in a day or two for Moose," he relentlessly persisted. "And you wrote my Christmas letter and never told me you were only ninety miles away," he added reproachfully.

"I—I couldn't interfere with your fight for the fox trade," she replied weakly.

"Well, the fact is, Miss Joan Quarrier," he said with a laugh, "that you're here at Albany, and I'm at Albany, and I hereby announce that I'm going to stay a day, or two, or three, and talk to you."

"I'm sure," she said with a low bow, "that you are most flattering. But you forget that my employer, Mr. Swan, does not approve of you, sir."

"All the worse for Swan, then, for I'm going to see you tomorrow morning, afternoon, and evening, Swan or no Swan. I am a masterful man and will have my way. What time tonight do I knock on the door of the Reverend Swan?" With all his eyes Garth was caressing the face which had come to him by the fire in the snow, followed him over the tundra of Akimiski, companioned his dreams. The miracle of her being here—to talk to look at, when he had thought her south across the forests! And why had she stayed on in the dreary north?

"I think you could come up tonight," Joan's teeth flashed in an alluring smile. "I'll try to reconcile Mr. Swan to the bitter dose of your presence. He needs me here, you know—finds my experience valuable."

Removing his mitten, with a quick movement Garth slipped off the mitten of the surprised girl and took her hand. "I need you here," he said, "as well as Swan. Eight o'clock tonight!" And walked swiftly away, mad hope in his brain, his emotions out of hand.

Why had she stayed? Why had she stayed? he kept asking himself as he hurried to Cameron's house.

At supper at the Camerons' Guthrie said: "I met an old friend on the clearing tonight."

The kindly eyes of the factor's wife grew quickened as they met the glance of her guest. "She was here when Etienne came to the kitchen and told us of your success. What did you do to that girl last September? She and I have talked a lot about you this winter."

Guthrie's heart warmed to the inference. He felt the blood in his face, and strove to cover his embarrassment with the question: "How did she come to stay and help, that silly of a man, Swan?"

Mrs. Cameron smiled. "They were dreadfully in need of some one who had training. Half the children had some ailment and Swan and his wife were at their wits' end. I suppose Joan couldn't resist the call, as her brother was to return to the bay in the spring."

"Did you meet him?" asked Guthrie. "Oh, yes, they ate here several times. Very important person—the doctor!"

"Ah-h!" This from Cameron. "What's the matter," laughed Garth. "Didn't you like him?"

"Like him? It was all I could do to keep my hands off that roaster," growled the lord of Albany. "He made a formal protest in writing to the company to the effect that he had been insulted by you and that you refused to get his stuff on Akimiski, but I told them at Moose what I thought of him."

Garth was grateful to Cameron for his omission of other details of Quarrier's charges, which he knew Joan had scornfully demolished.

"Well, Miss Quarrier is not responsible for her brother. Could I bring her over from the mission tonight? Swan almost kicked me out in September."

"Why, of course, Major Guthrie. I was going to ask you to," said Mrs. Cameron. "The poor child has a dreary enough time with the Swans. They've been worrying about her son, you know, because of her liberal views on religion."

After supper Garth hurried over the trail to the mission. At his knock the door was opened by the missionary.

If Garth Guthrie had been susceptible to withering looks from a reverend gentleman whose meager frame stiffened unsexily in the black cloth and clerical collar affected by Mr. Swan, he would have been embarrassed at the chilly reception extended to him when he said:

"Good evening, Mr. Swan! I have come to take Miss Quarrier over to the Camerons' for the evening."

"You, sir," indignantly replied the missionary, "have put yourself beyond the pale—have no right to the society of pure women."

Hands on hips, for a space Garth smiled good-naturedly down on the greatly excited Swan, struggling heroically with the part his conscience bade him play. Then he said quietly: "Swan, if you choose to believe the nonsense with which Quarrier has filled your puny brain, there is no law to prevent it. But Miss Quarrier has had opportunity to judge and she doesn't believe it. She is also her own mistress and capable of determining her own actions. She is going to the Camerons' with me now. Tell her I'm here."

The last was spoken with such cold vehemence that Reverend Swan instinctively drew back, fearing bodily harm. But the little man was stubborn. "Miss Quarrier was placed under my protection by her brother. I have a duty."

"Oh, is that you, Mr. Guthrie?" called a feminine voice from somewhere in the building. "Just a minute! I'm patting on my coat."

"Miss Quarrier," announced the red-faced missionary, aware that the situation was swiftly slipping from his control, "I forbid you walking to the Camerons' with this man."

"Oh, Mr. Swan! You can't be really serious," said Joan, appearing in a doorway. "Mrs. Cameron expects me and I'm sure my reputation is good enough to survive the walk there with Mr. Guthrie." She was talking as one coaxes a child, and Guthrie bit his lips in an attempt to stifle a laugh.

"Miss Quarrier, you know my wishes."

"If you choose to disregard them—"

"Mr. Guthrie is an educated gentleman," broke in Joan, "not a cave man. I will be home by ten o'clock."

She Laughed Merrily.

Good night!" And crowding past the discomfited Swan, Joan Quarrier closed the door of the mission in his face.

"It is not difficult to tell who's commanding here," chuckled Guthrie. (Continued on page 7.)

Keep Kidneys Active!

You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.

TO feel always tired, lame and aching is too often a sign of improper kidney action. When the kidneys act sluggishly, waste poisons remain in the blood, and are apt to make one languid, stiff and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions. Assist the kidneys with Doan's Pills. Doan's is a stimulant diuretic, increase kidney activity. THE URGE TO BE DUPED

Within the last few weeks how many pulses have throbbed at the miracles of science, and how many have responded to the dazzling succession of vast fortunes that have been, or almost been, inherited by Belgian peasant girls, German servant maids and penniless Americans? It is a safe guess that more people have been thrilled to the unexpected showers of gold than to the triumph of science.

The old romance of dame fortune is still more interesting and soul-stirring than the new romances of sciences. Along with the dream legacies in the news appear authentic tales of wealth found and inherited. But the real bananas are never half so exciting as the other kind. A million of Captain Kid's buried gold is more entrancing than ten million real dollars made in business. The public gets more thrill out of finding of a few dollars in an old shoe than from the story of Henry Ford's rise to fortune.

Front page space in the newspapers always will be at the command of tales about Weepah gold nuggets, fortune-winning lottery tickets, clerks who break the bank at Monte Carlo, fortunes inherited by poor relatives and faithful servants, and discoveries of buried treasure.

It seems to require less high-pressure salesmanship to talk people into their savings in "Spanish prisoner" and "heart of Manhattan" claims than in the most promising business enterprises. For decades people have been duped by swindlers of the "Baker Estate" sort, and will be for many decades to come.

Despite science and economics, humanity remains primitively romantic and gullible.

OUR COMMON CAUSE

This reforestation problem is a long ways from being settled. That is evident from the varied opinions on this important problem.

But the problem will be solved. That is assured from the interest of the public. During the past few days meetings have been held in both the upper and lower peninsulas looking toward some feasible plan. It has been suggested in both these meetings that the state be bonded to provide money for a seasonable and sensible campaign. As a result of these meetings, and others that will be held, the public and the law makers will be better informed.

Nature builds forests. She will continue with this work if allowed to do so. Protect natural processes of timber growth and you protect the forests of the future. Eliminate the artificial hazards to forestry first.

The great hazard is that of fire. Fire comes with roads, settlement, tourists, campers. A few hours of fire will destroy nature's efforts of years to build again the stricken forests of the past.

Thus the first thing to do is to stamp out and beat out the fires. That is possible. There need be no fires over any extensive areas of land. All that is required is watchfulness, management, money. Provide the funds, secure the public cooperation and the forests will be kept green and growing.

What about the money? This paper cannot see why the burden of fire protection should fall entirely upon the lands set aside for reforestation under the new laws. The question is raised as to whether proposed taxes on this character of land are not set at too high a figure to make the growing of trees an object. Every citizen in the state of Michigan is interested in keeping forests protected from fire.

METHODS OF DISTRIBUTION

The president of the Farmers' Loan & Trust company of New York, Mr. James H. Perkins, makes the point that it costs more to distribute than to produce, and points to the extensive study made by the Joint Commission of Agricultural Inquiry. Thirty-eight executives of some of the largest corporations in the United States have contributed their views to a survey of the problems of distribution issued by the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, and in a introduction to this survey Mr. Perkins says:

"Mechanical wizardry in practically every field of manufacture has resulted in a production which has gained upon and passed consumption. This overproduction, both in agriculture and industry, has brought in its train the pressing necessity for broader markets. People must buy who never bought before, or increase their buying, and to accomplish this old method of distribution have taken their place. On every side, and turn where one will, there is no escape from the insistent demand to buy. And no blame for intensive merchandising can, attach to its originators because those who fail to adopt such methods are either pushed to the wall or else struggle along endeavoring with but indifferent success to keep pace with the procession."

"ON GUARD"

"The open shop or American plan of employment in industry is not understood by a great number of people who should know just what these terms mean.

"It is not a plan or scheme on the part of a group of selfish and unprincipled employers to keep wages low; to grind down the working man; nor to do anything that is not honest, fair and just to any man or group of men. It is not a conspiracy to dominate industry, nor is it a plot to make men who work with their hands the slaves of capital.

"These are the things which the labor union agitator would like to have the public believe, and propaganda has been widely circulated which in some quarters has had this effect.

"What the open shop advocates are earnestly endeavoring to do is to free industry from the grip of the unscrupulous negotiator, the walking delegate and the labor demagogue, all of whose efforts are directed toward the sowing of seeds of discord and discontent in the minds and hearts of the men of brawn and sinew whose co-operation with capital makes possible the achievements which have gone so far to make this nation the most prosperous both for the working man and the employer—of any country in the world."

PROSPERITY AND POLITICS

It is curious that the greatest asset which the country possesses, namely, prosperity, should get into politics, but there is no doubt that it is politics, and is a live issue. It would seem as if one party is extremely positive that prosperity is here and that prosperity will stay. Another party declines to admit the presence of prosperity and will not believe that it can be realized until that particular party comes into power. Our people are concerned with actual prosperity and not with partisan or political prosperity. They will not figure the measure of prosperity existed by political speeches, but by their bank accounts and balance sheets. To inject the question of prosperity into a political campaign is essentially foolish. If it does exist, you cannot dissipate it by negatives. Let us enjoy the prosperity that may be in existence and seek to promote it rather than to frighten it away. Let us take prosperity out of politics so that it will stand on its own feet.

RULES FOR LIFE

When James A. Garfield was a young man a printed slip was given him by an aged friend which he carefully cherished to the end of his life. It read: "Make few promises. Always speak the truth. Never speak evil of anyone. Keep good company or none. Drink no intoxicating liquors. Good character is above everything else. Keep your own secrets, if you have any. Never borrow if you can possibly help it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Keep yourself honest if you would be happy. When you speak to a person look into his eyes. Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper. Spend less than you earn. Save or invest the balance. Live within your income. Save when you are young to spend when you are old. Never run into debt unless you see a way out again. Good company and good conversation are the sinews of virtue. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If anyone speaks evil of you, let your life be so that no one will believe him. When you retire at night think over what you have been doing during the day. Never be idle; if your hands can't be employed usefully attend to the cultivation of your mind. Read the above carefully and thoughtfully, at least once a week."

"WE"

Of the many good things that are resulting from Lindbergh's trans-oceanic flight, none is more valuable than the new realization of interdependence the public has obtained from Lindbergh's use of the word "we."

Who among us is independent? Who accomplishes anything unassisted? Who can live, clothe himself and go about in safety except by the help of others? Yet how often does any of us make acknowledgment of our interdependence? It is only when some genius flashes into view and makes the simple statement that "we" wrought some great deed that one gets a thought to the help one

"Conserve Our National Resources"

THE forest of our country never had a greater friend than Theodore Roosevelt, whose memory we honor today on the occasion of his 69th birthday, October 27th. Foresighted and aggressive, he aided in safeguarding the future Prosperity of this great nation by setting aside more national Forest Preserve acreage than all other presidents who preceded him did together!

We recall that act because it points out a worthy moral to you in private life. And that is to "Conserve your Financial Resources" . . . to set aside such dollars as you do not actually need and to SAVE or INVEST them WISELY for your future welfare.

EASTERN STAR PLAY IS A COMING EVENT

Fifty Charlevoix People in Cast of "The Flapper Grandmother"

A coming event which is commanding much interest is the play, "The Flapper Grandmother" to be given at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday, November 1st, at 8:00 p. m., sponsored by the local Eastern Stars. The cast consists of 50 Charlevoix people.

The production is a three-act musical comedy, staged under the direction of Miss Ruth Newman of the Wayne P. Sewell Producing Co. of Atlanta, Georgia. Resplendent with its galaxy of beautiful costumes, girls and stage effects, "The Flapper Grandmother" will mark one of the most enjoyable evening's entertainment Charlevoix has ever witnessed.

The comedy deals with an old grandmother who invests her savings in Tea Pot Dome oil stock and suddenly finding herself rich she goes to Paris in search of youth and beauty. In the office of a famous French doctor, she has her face lifted and her youth restored. She returns to America as a flapper and immediately has beaux galore at her feet. The play is a whole of a hit—in fact a scream. It causes people to laugh who haven't laughed for years.

The chorus of the "Flapper Grandmother" is perhaps the most attractive feature of the show. They sing the cutest, cleverest songs ever heard. Much originality has been displayed in the costuming which is most artistic—particularly the Tea Pot Dome hats and the Rabbit Ear Easter creations.

The Ridiculous Matrons, good looking Jelly Beans, the Debutante Flapper chorus, the Funny Door-Knob Children, the precious Rag Dolls, the charming Flapper Grandmother and her two granddaughters will combine to give the public their money's worth of entertainment.

There will be a Halloween box social and program held at the Hop Yard school, Friday, October 28.—Adv. 42-12 pd.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS

The third meeting of the Oteyway Camp Fire was held last Wednesday after school. The meeting was called to order by the president, Lila McMillan. We heard the secretary's and treasurer's reports. We voted to have a Halloween party Wednesday evening, October 26th.

On Monday the Camp Fire girls took a hike to 26 Lake and around by Ironton and home. A few of the girls had a thrilling experience when chased by cows. The girls reached home at 7 o'clock after an eventful day. The following girls, with Mary Lou Parker as a guest, went on the hike: Viola Stafford, Norma Smith, Kathleen McCall, Rosetta Bolton, Ethel Barnes, Evelyn Seymour, Florence Smith, Helen Burns, Marguerite Cross, Eva Bassett and Leone Block.

Evelyn Seymour, Secretary.

SHEEP KILLING DOGS AT WORK NEAR ADVANCE

Fog the Cause of Auto Accident Near East Jordan—Deer Apparently on Increase

C. H. Tooley of Advance found several of his sheep dead in the pasture Thursday morning. They had been killed by dogs.

This is not the first time his flock has suffered, as dogs killed a number of his sheep at another time.

Sheep killing dogs are not only a menace to sheep but to other stock as well and all dogs should be tied up nights.

No farmer likes to spend his time and money raising valuable stock, only to find it dead, some morning, and a total loss.—Bozette Citizen.

Fog Cause of Auto Accident

A near-serious accident occurred on the road near Sunset Hill cemetery, Thursday morning, about 7:00 o'clock standard.

The Boyne City's bakery delivery truck, driven by Mr. Towns, had completed deliveries in East Jordan and had started on the return trip. Misses Harriett and Helen Chaddock, students at East Jordan public school, were enroute to East Jordan.

Owing to a heavy fog the two cars met head-on on the hill, the Chaddock car and truck side-swiping each other. The Chaddock car was driven into a fence at the side of the road, and the truck was thrown down the embankment turning over several times.

Mr. Towns received a scalp wound and the Chaddock girls sustained minor injuries.

The truck was smashed beyond repair and the Chaddock car was also somewhat smashed.—East Jordan Herald.

Wonder What's doing Locally?

The work right now of swearing out warrants for dog owners who have not paid their dog tax, is in progress. There are about 400 of them. The extra expense entailed will probably cause owners to step up lively next year for their license tags.—Mancelona Herald.

Counts Forty Deer in Day

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott of Alanson, returned the first of the week from their trip to Crane Island where they went a week ago, Mr. Scott planning to fish for Mackinaw trout. On account of wind and unfavorable weather he was unable to fish, but to pass away the time Mr. Scott kept track of the number of deer which he saw.

He counted 89 in all and on Sunday alone counted 40. Nearly all of the deer had two fawns with them. The deer were very tame allowing Mr. Scott often to get near enough that he could count the spikes on the antlers. On one he counted 14 spikes. Crane and Temperance Islands are cut off from the mainland by shallow stretches of water and these islands are a part of the state game reserve.—Harbor Springs Graphic.

Independent Dock Plans

The promoters of the independent ferry to ply between St Ignace and Mackinaw City received the plans and specifications for the proposed docks and landings on both sides of the straits from Duluth architects the first of the week. According to the plans it is proposed to begin the construction of the St. Ignace dock this fall and that at Mackinaw City early next spring. The route between the docks is two miles shorter than that of the state ferries.—St. Ignace Enterprise.

What Will the Harvest Be?

A driver coming up from Detroit one day last week reported seeing 8 or 10 cars in the ditch—all Fords. And the unofficial report of the coming new Fords state they are to be very fast, meaning perhaps that drivers will be able to get even greater speed out of them than with the present models. What will the harvest be?—Mancelona Herald.

Sewing and Handicraft Clubs Organized

A. G. Kettunen and Miss Ruth Featherly, state club leaders, co-operating with the local extension service visited many schools in the county last week in the interest of boys' and girls' club work.

Many of the schools had clubs last winter and were so pleased with the results that they are planning on carrying on more club work this winter. For the girls' sewing clubs are being organized and for boys' handicraft clubs. The girls make towels, caps, aprons, and at least one dress, while the boys make a bench hook and five other articles of use for the home and farm besides keeping reports of their time, labor, expense and value of product and exhibiting their articles in the early spring.

The following schools were visited: Slaughter school, Harold Ikens, teacher; Afton school, Conn Nowland, teacher; Chaddock school, Miss Lucille Belding, teacher; Barnard school, Miss Bernice Courier, teacher; Phelps school, Russell Duffey, teacher; Hilton school, Miss Lottie Webster, teacher; Hopyard school, Wesley Joliffe, teacher; Star school, Mrs. Florence Novotney, teacher; Walker school, Mrs. Ruth Taylor, teacher; Tainter school, Miss Josephine Ellis, teacher.

From present indications we hope to have at least fifteen clubs this winter, including seven handicraft, six sewing and two hot lunch clubs.

Plan to Attend the Potato and Apple Show

The Top O' Michigan Association at Gaylord, Michigan, is all set for the best exhibit of potatoes and apples that this section ever seen. At this show you will see exhibits from the eight counties: Alpena, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Presque Isle, Montmorency, Antrim, Emmet and Otsego that are represented and inasmuch as this section produces the best potatoes and some of the best apples in the entire state, you will be seeing something that will make your blood tingle with pride and pleasure.

An excellent program has been arranged that you cannot afford to miss including many new features this year.

If you cannot plan to attend each day by all means attend on Thursday, November 3rd, as that has particular interest to the potato men. The following noted speakers appear on the program:

C. M. Grantham, soil specialist; H. C. Rath, farm crops specialist; J. G. Hays, dairy specialist; C. M. McCrary, potato specialist and Dr. E. L. Nixon, the potato judge.

These men will speak in the afternoon beginning at 1:30.

The annual banquet will be held Thursday night at 6:30 p. m. and again a wonderful array of helpful suggestions will be given you by Frank Ship, Herbert Powell, commissioner of agriculture, Dean R. S. Shaw, Michigan state college and many others.

Wednesday, November 2 is designated as apple day and if you are interested in fruit this will give you a wonderful opportunity of hearing a fine program on the subjects of interest to the fruit growers.

Space does not allow me to give you an outline of all the other fine features connected with the potato and apple show to be held at Gaylord November 2, 3 and 4 so put away your troubles for one day, crank up old Lizzie and spend one day at this wonderful show and you will be amply repaid.

One-fourth of all deaths by violence among policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company in the first six months of 1927 were caused by accidents in motor vehicle traffic, and thirty-eight per cent of the victims were children.

WINTER CARE OF YOUR AUTO

COLD WINTER WEATHER IS HARD ON ALL MOTORS

Preventative Care and Close Attention Will Result in Longer Life of Your Car

The vacation and touring season is ended and all that remains are memories of the good times enjoyed. There is one thing, however, that should not be forgotten and that is the good automobile that made the good times possible. A little attention at this season will insure a continuance of automobile satisfaction during the coming winter.

A list of suggestions for preparing the automobile for the cold weather season following the summer driving period has been prepared by T. H. Stambaugh, general service manager of a well established make of cars. Mr. Stambaugh classes these suggestions under "preventative maintenance," inasmuch as the items tend to prevent unnecessary maintenance charges.

"During the past six months," says Mr. Stambaugh, "privately owned automobiles, practically without exception, have traveled long and fast over all types of roads and under varying conditions. Preventative maintenance attention to the car at this time will result in longer life and continued satisfactory performance in the future.

"We recommend that the following suggestions be carried out:

"Have the water in your cooling system replaced with a good antifreeze solution as soon as climatic conditions require its use.

"Have the oil in the crankcase changed to winter grade.

"Lubricants in axle and transmission should be diluted or changed to cold weather grades.

"Body bolts and nuts should be tightened.

"The chassis should be given a thorough lubrication.

"Have generator checked for proper winter charging rate.

"Carburetor adjusted to prevent excessive use of choke.

"Distributor points should be checked for proper contact.

"See that the water in the battery is at the proper level.

"Lights should be checked for proper focus.

"Have front wheels checked for proper alignment to prevent tire wear.

"Brakes should be inspected for adjustment or re-lining.

"Touch up exposed screw heads and nuts with paint to prevent rust unless these are protected by cadmium plating.

"Following these preventative measures will amply repay the car owner in increased driving satisfaction."

"I don't like to humiliate the little man. He means well enough, but if they will send week men to work in this country, and the Obelisks strong ones, like your friend, Pere Rousseau, the Indians will flock to the French."

"But Cameron tells me you've done wonders with the orphan crew."

"Oh, yes! I've been useful to them—that's why he doesn't dare exert the authority which my honorable brother bestowed upon him. Imagine, nursing three years in France, and having Mr. Swan to guide my faltering feet!" She laughed merrily, as they swung through the stinging air of the clearing.

The man, beside her was hardly aware of his moccasins touching the brittle snow, so lifted his spirits was he with the nearness of the girl whose strange decision to winter at Albany defied analysis.

"You didn't tell me this afternoon why you deceived me as to your whereabouts in your Christmas letter," he hazarded.

"If I had told you, would you have come to see me?" she asked, turning her head and meeting his eyes with frank, impersonal gaze.

"Yes!"

"That is the reason."

"You mean you didn't want to see me?"

"I mean that you had your work to do—it would have interfered."

He walked for a space in silence, then turned to her. "You are that kind of a woman—you understand."

"I know so."

He was thrilled by the thought that Joan Quarrler's friendship was like that. But why had she stayed? Could it be that after the photographs she had seen at Elkwan with their inscriptions, she had stayed because—what? He could tell her now that he was free, since his reply to Ethel's letter which went out that afternoon to Moose. But what had his freedom to do with the girl whose overtones crunched the snow beside him?

"I would like to ask you a question," he said at length.

"The laugh rippled on the frosty air. "This sounds interesting, Mr. Exile, but to avoid self-interest you should wait for our walk back—the moon will be up then."

"The question won't wait," he replied. "Has your brother written you of my engagement?"

"Yes."

"Thank you! I wanted to tell you that it has been broken—by her—in this Christmas mail."

In silence the girl walked, stiffly. Garth thought, watching her with head turned to the river. He looked but could not see her face, hurried in the fur hood.

"The reason given was—Nlna."

She turned fiercely questioning eyes as she demanded: "He told your family that story?"

"Evidently," said Garth grimly. If there was capacity for feeling in this girl, he thought, she'll show it now. "My brother has done with me, you see. I've disgraced the family."

"No, I don't see," she said, hoarsely, gazing straight ahead. "My brother has told that story to Montreal—injured you beyond repair—my brother!"

"I'm sorry I told you," he replied, shocked at the depth of her emotion. "But I wanted you to know that my shackles are off—I'm a free man, I wanted you to know."

In the tide of emotion which stirred him, Garth faltered, stopped. The shoulders of the girl lifted in a sob, as she turned to conceal her distress. He touched her, thrilling at the contact. "Hush—I'm so sorry!" he said.

"My brother!—How low, utterly low!" he heard her say. Then she got herself in hand—straightened, and said: "I will write at once to your brother."

"You'll do no such thing. Do you suppose I'd allow you to sell yourself with this family row? Your brother has unintentionally done me a service, for which I thank him."

Joan's dark brows contracted, as she gravely searched his face. "You are not joking—you mean it?"

"I mean every syllable of it. Now let's forget it all and get on to the Camerons before you freeze out here! It's growing sharp," he said, but what he meant was: If you stand there another second looking at me like that, Joan Quarrler, I'll kiss you."

The talk of the factor's was not allowed by that brilliant fur trader to stray far from the mad raid on Akimshi by Garth and Ethel, and the medicine-making of old Saul. From the mouth of Cameron, Joan Quarrler learned the details of the desperate effort to save the trade and its ultimate success.

"Aren't you proud of yourself, Mr. Exile?" she said as Cameron finished, and her patent joy in his success was like wine to his blood. "And Shol, too, he earned his citation—but how gruesome it was—awful!"

As he walked beside her under the frosty stars to the mission, Garth strove to shift the conversation to the personal—to recapture the note struck with such poignancy when she learned the aftermath of her brother's story in Montreal, but the armor of her reserve defied him. Baffled by her mood, but respecting it, he asked if he might come to say goodbye the following morning, and left her at the mission door.

To the man whose love had been on his lips when his hand touched her shoulder, the new mood of the girl defied analysis. He had left the Camerons full of what Joan Quarrler had come to mean to him—hungry to tell her there above the white Albany what he had first sensed that September night, caught in the magic of her nearness. Here, on the rim of the world, with only the glittering stars to see, he would have offered the scarred face and the love of Garth Guthrie, black sheep; but she had known his purpose and closed his lips. Yet why, unless the exile upon the coast had meant more than a passing friendship, had she stayed on to the drugstore—the amusements motonary of the mission?

THE NEW TRAFFIC LAW

It is yet too early to gather comprehensive information regarding Michigan's new traffic law, which has removed the speed limit on highways, but has surrounded the drivers of automobiles with restrictions that are expected to cut down much of the reckless driving of the past. How accidents happen, and why, is contained in a report issued by the National Safety Council for 1925, which shows that there were 21,000 deaths from automobiles. The report of the council shows that in 33.66 percent of the cases the drivers did not have right of way; other causes found were: speeding, 16.58 percent; on wrong side of street, 10.50 percent; failed to signal, 1.24; cutting in, 6.78; cutting left corners, 6.78; passing on wrong side, 1.24; runaway cars, 1.76; driving through safety zones, 1.34; and passing on curve or hill, .88 percent.

The amazing thing that the figures reveal is that in 84.8 percent of these accidents which resulted fatally, the driver was violating a traffic ordinance. It is almost unbelievable that 10.50 percent of these fatalities were caused, primarily, by motorists driving on the wrong side of the road. There is no excuse for this offense.

The remaining 15.2 percent of the fatalities, although not occurring while the motorist was violating a traffic rule, are due to carelessness in a degree. Runaway cars are due to carelessness in setting the brakes or having them properly attended to. Backing in such a manner as to cause a fatal accident may be due to carelessness on the part of the motorist. Driving off the roadway may be due to careless driving or defects in the road. Passing on a curve or hill may or may not be illegal, but at best it is a dangerous practice. The small number of fatal accidents attributed to this cause is surprising.

Judging from these figures, one might say that if the traffic laws were strictly enforced, and citizens were law abiding, the accident problem would be solved. Carelessness is as destructive and evil as law breaking. How to combat it is a difficult problem.

THIS IS THE TIME TO PREVENT FIRE LOSS

Carelessness causes most fires. Every fifteen minutes someone's home catches fire.

Fifteen thousand burn to death each year in America.

Help prevent fire! Be careful!

The above are statements issued by the state fire marshal, and represent the reason for designating October 9 to 15 Fire Prevention Week.

As the days grow cooler, and fires are necessary in stoves, fireplaces and furnaces for comfort, the danger of losses increase. It is important, therefore, that flues should be examined, cleaned, and repaired where necessary.

Not all losses of property and lives, by any means, are caused by defective flues. A frequent source of danger is rubbish collected in basements or in and around buildings. A general clean-up is an effective method of fire prevention.

Statistics show that over $1,000 worth of property was destroyed every minute, and a life was lost every 35 minutes last year through fires. Thirty million dollars in losses were caused by careless smokers. It should be remembered that there is always danger in the discarded cigarette or cigar stub.

Common suggestions on fire prevention include the following:

Keep matches in metal boxes where children cannot reach them.

Don't keep ashes in wooden boxes or deposit them against wooden buildings or partitions.

Don't change your electric wiring without consulting a competent electrician.

Don't hang electric light cords on nails.

Use metal protection under all stoves and protect woodwork where stoves or furnaces are close to walls.

Don't pass stovepipes through ceiling, roofs or wooden partitions.

Every open fireplace should have a screen.

Don't use gasoline or benzine to cleanse clothing near an open flame, light or fire.

Don't use kerosene, benzine or naphtha in lighting fires or to quicken a slow fire.

Don't use liquid polish near open lights. Many such compounds contain inflammable oils.

Don't go into closets with lighted matches or candles.

It is evident that favorable action upon the suggestions by the general public would greatly decrease fire the coming year.

GOVERNMENT CREDIT

The credit of the United States is the best in the world. At the close of the World War the value of Liberty Loan bonds fell below par, although they bore an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent. Thousands of holders of these bonds became panic stricken and sold the government short. That was a foolish thing to do. In due time, faith and confidence in the ability of the government to pay these bonds when due became established and they soon went back to par. Now witness the difference in the condition that existed in 1919 and that of September, 1927, when $250,000,000 of three and five-year bonds, 3 1/2, were oversubscribed by more than three times. No, it don't pay to sell the government short.

The politicians say you can't get elected to anything by simply keeping still and looking wise, and the business men will find it equally difficult to win success without communicating their ideas through advertising.

MALADY PERILS RABBIT HUNTING

HALT IMPORTING WESTERN STOCK IS WARNING

Michigan Rabbits Not Affected As Far As Known—Disease Fatal to Some Humans

The following article is taken from the October 17 issue of the Grand Rapids Press and explains fully the disease called tularemia, which has killed thousands of western rabbits and may be present among Michigan bunnies:

Rabbit hunting, the favorite sport of the year for the majority of Michigan's 400,000 small game hunters, is menaced at present by a peril more to be dreaded than a complete closed season and far more likely to restrict the sport than the passage of anti-trespass laws.

This danger that threatens one of the most popular outdoor sports in the state, and that may eventually halt entirely the pursuit of cottontails and snowshoes in our fields and thickets, is tularemia, the new dread disease that has come out of the west within the past few years, and that scientists have recently proven is carried by rabbits and transmitted from them to humans.

So far the disease holds little danger for the Michigan rabbit hunter, for as far as has been discovered it is not yet present in the native Michigan cottontails or snowshoes. It is, however, a fairly common malady among the rabbits of Kansas and other western states, and already a number of rabbits from these sections have been imported by private clubs seeking to replenish covers where the Michigan stock has been depleted.

Disease Carried

It is known that the disease is easily and rapidly communicated from one rabbit to another, and if a few infected individuals have been among the stock released in this state, giving the tularemia a foothold, it is undoubtedly only a question of time until the malady will spread generally among our native rabbits.

Dr. Guy L. Kiefer, state commissioner of health, already has issued a warning against the further importation of western rabbits until the disease has been checked.

Meanwhile, there is little for Michigan sportsmen to do, save to heed carefully Dr. Kiefer's warning and pass up stocking projects where the imported rabbits are to be brought from sections where the disease is known to be present. There are also certain precautions local hunters may take to avoid contracting the disease in case they should chance to shoot an infected rabbit.

Tularemia is unique among known diseases in that the germ producing it is capable of making its way through the uncut skin. In this fact lies the chief source of danger to the hunter, as there is great likelihood of contracting the disease while dressing an infected rabbit.

Called Deer Fly Fever

When first called to the attention of scientists, tularemia was known as deer fly fever. Its chief symptoms were swollen glands, pains in the back and loss of strength, coupled with fever. It had been noted that it usually followed the bite of a deer fly, hence the name.

Medical men speedily decided that the diseases must have its source in some small animal, from which the deer flies transmitted it to humans by biting first the sick animals, then the humans. At first ground squirrels were believed to be the creatures in which the disease flourished and, in fact, it has been found to exist in their bodies.

It was soon discovered, however, that rabbits were the most common source from which the disease came. Jack rabbits were found dead by the thousands in the districts from which the cases of deer fly fever had been reported, and, in their carcasses scientists found evidence of the new disease.

Penetrates Skin

After this it was learned that deer flies did carry the malady from the rabbits to the humans. Meanwhile, medical men who had worked with the infected rabbits were stricken with the disease although they had been very careful to avoid cutting their hands or in any other way exposing themselves to the germs of tularemia.

Following this, body fluids from an animal that had died of the disease were placed on the unbroken skin of a healthy animal and in five days the latter was dead with tularemia.

Thus it was definitely established that the germs of this disease, unlike those of any other known malady, can penetrate the unbroken skin. This explained the fact that market men who handle large quantities of western rabbits for the market each year, have each autumn a disease which they call rabbit fever. They had been contracting tularemia from the rabbits they handled, and did not know what the disease was.

So far, there has been no cure discovered for tularemia. It is not always fatal by any means, but whatever course it takes, it will have its way unchecked, so far as any medical aid is concerned.

There is, of course, no danger in eating any rabbit that has been properly cooked. The cooking destroys the germs of the disease.

The great danger, however, lies in dressing the infected animals. A rabbit sick with tularemia will have white spots, covering the liver, Dr. Kiefer reports. Any hunter who happens to discover these spots on the liver of a rabbit he has started to dress should throw it away at once, Dr. Kiefer says, and the hands should then be washed very carefully and thoroughly.

So far the disease is not definitely known to be present in Michigan. Once it appears, however, it will swiftly spell an end to the popularity of rabbit hunting, and meanwhile in view of the importations of western rabbits already made, local hunters will do well to be on the lookout for tularemia-infected rabbits in their bags from now on.

STATE IS READY TO ISSUE AUTO PLATES

Arrangements Made for 200 Offices
Expect 1,500,000 Licenses.

Deputy Secretary of State Sidney A. Schulte has completed plans for distributing about 1,500,000 automobile license plates in the state next year.

The number of licenses is based on an expected increase of 250,000 cars in Michigan next year.

Schulte was in Jackson last week and issued the necessary orders for shipping the initial order that will be 1,100,000 plates. He is preparing a short synopsis of the state's new driving laws, which will be given out with each set of plates.

Numbers exceeding 1,000,000 will be given to commercial vehicles in the lower peninsula, according to the plan, while any passenger car numbers that exceed that mark will go to the upper peninsula.

The word Michigan will be stamped above numbers on the passenger plates and above the numbers on the commercial license tags.

Two hundred offices for distributing the plates are being arranged for. Two of them will be in Detroit.

Admission to "Flapper Grandmother" 35c and 50c. Tickets will be on sale at Withers' Variety Store and Bonthron's.—Adv. 43-1f.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Local Physicians and Nurses Cooperating in This Matter

A medical clinic or physical examination will be begun by the schools during the present week and will continue for some time. Local doctors and nurses and other citizens have consented to give their services free for this work.

Pupils will be examined for the various physical defects that are common to children, and advice given as to the best way to correct such defects. The examination is voluntary on the part of the children and none will be examined whose parents do not wish to.

Cards will be filled out giving a record of each child's physical condition and filed in the office of the superintendent of schools. Parents will be notified of defects in the children and they can then take what steps they deem necessary to correct them.

PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF DOG NUISANCE

Casinos Run in Packs and Have Attacked Individuals

Charlevoix citizens are again vigorously protesting over a condition that in some parts of the city has become almost a menace. The trouble is DOGS—allowed by their owners to run loose, destroy personal property, and in several instances they have attacked people.

The most vigorous complaint comes from the Chicago Club. According to James Gaskins, warden, this seems to be their favorite meeting place. He says a pack of five or six dogs of the Police breed are destroying flower beds, killing his chickens, and in several instances have attacked workmen on the ground. Besides this pack, the grounds are being overrun with hounds and other breeds of dogs. In another column of this paper Mr. Gaskins publishes a warning to dog owners. And he means business, too.

It appears to us that this condition is entirely uncalled for. If dog owners do not observe the law regarding the care and keep of their dogs, officials whose duty it is to see that all laws, dog laws or otherwise, are enforced, should shake the dust off their heels and get busy.

We have a dim recollection of a warning to dog owners published in all county papers some weeks or months ago. We've never heard of a dog being killed nor a dog owner being prosecuted. No change of condition has been noted, either. Dogs are still running loose, many without licenses, and apparently the matter has been forgotten. We may look this matter up more thoroughly and find, if possible, how much is owing the county from unpaid dog licenses.

Mrs. August Cellner visited Mrs. William Fuller Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones visited Mrs. William Fuller Monday evening.

Irene and Kenneth Cellner and Inez Critchlow visited at the home of John Kerchak on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. William Fuller and daughter, Inez, journeyed to Petoskey on Monday with Herman Newman on a shopping tour.

We have a vacant place in our neighborhood this week as August Cellner was one of the men who went to Grand Rapids with the Loeb Farms stock.

A party of twenty-nine friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Sarah Adams last week in honor of her eighty-third birthday. A pot luck birthday dinner was served, featured by a large birthday cake. The day was claimed a success by all.

BIGGER THAN GOVERNMENT

Rail transportation is a bigger business than that of the federal government, almost twice as big, in fact. In 1925, the government receipts were $3,780,148,684 with expenditures of some two hundred million less, while the operating receipts of the class I railroads totaled $6,122,500,850 and their operating expenses and taxes were slightly more than five billions.

Only one year has the government taken in as much money as did the railroads in 1925. That was in 1920, when the federal receipts aggregated more than $6,700,000,000. In only four years have the government disbursements exceeded those of the railroads. In 1918 Uncle Sam spent almost nine billions; in 1919, when he was cleaning up war bills, the total was more than fifteen billions, in 1920 exceeding six billions, and in 1921 it was more than $100,000,000 in excess of the railroads' total for 1925.

Switzerland now has a population of 4,000,000.

London has 341,365 more women than men.

FORMER CHARLEVOIXIAN DE-SCRIBES A RECENT TRIP

Has No Idea of Making Anywhere Else Their Future Home—Tells of Apple Crop

Charles E. Sec, for years a Charlevoix business man, now located at The Dalles, Oregon, writes interestingly of his recent trip and speaks in glowing terms of the city in which he is now located. He tells about the apple and vegetable crop, fills up on western celery, and then to work off his pent up energy, takes a fall out of the Courier editor for not keeping closer track of him. Charlie has a host of friends in Charlevoix who greatly value his friendship and wishes him well. We are loathed to state he has decided to make the west his future home. But whether he is in Charlevoix, the west or some other place, he will rapidly make friends and become, as he was while here, one of the hustling citizens of his community. His letter follows, carefully censored:

The Dalles, Oct. 25.

Dear Friend Usher: As we are now located for the winter at least, please forward my Courier to this address. (Here Charles raps us rather hard for not keeping track of him closer and seeing he receives his Courier each week. But, gosh, how does he expect us to keep track of him with all his tramping around. We gave up trying to keep our eye on newly-weds years ago.) His closing sentence in this paragraph is as follows: "I am not kicking about it. (We all know Charlie never kicked, but I'm just reminded how soon one is forgotten when he leaves a place. I could have asked you before to send the paper to me, but just neglected it. Possibly that's the case with you—you intended to get my address, but just neglected it.)"

I was out in the apple country (which is this whole region) a few days ago, and visited an apple packing house on a farm. They pack for the neighbors within a few miles' range. I saw more apples packed in boxes than are raised in the whole of Charlevoix county. They raise fruit here. Not only fruit, but vegetables. The truck gardeners as a rule seldom work more than five or ten acres; but it is worked and the owners make good money. Some of the celery fields here make Kalamazoo patches look like thirty cents. I have eaten as fine celery here as I ever had anywhere else—and much better than the far famed Florida celery.

Our trip out here was one of great pleasure until we got into South Dakota. It is similar to a trip through southern Michigan. The Black Hills country is simply wonderful. Going through Black Hills Needles is a thrill one will not soon forget. Then through the Yellowstone park it is wonderful. It would take pages to describe it.

Touring through Shoshone Canyon, especially seeing the great Shoshone dam, is a wonderful sight. Then through the pass on Big Horn mountains, on through Ten Sleep canyon, down the Snake River Valley, which appeared to be one of the finest farm sections of the country, over the foothills and through the valleys, the scenery is beyond description, especially the varied colorings of rock formations.

This little city, The Dalles, of about 7000 population, is nicely located on the Colorado river. Railroads on both sides of the river carrying millions of bushels of grain to the Portland elevators for shipment all over the world. We have wonderful weather. Even at this time of the year dahlias and roses are in bloom, and are found in every garden, along the walks in front of the homes, and seemingly everywhere. What they will be next summer one can only wonder.

It would do you a great deal of good to start out with your good wife and take a trip through this, one of God's greatest countries. I know you would feel amply repaid, and when you got back to Charlevoix you could fill columns after columns of the Courier with a write-up, describing your trip and the beautiful, interesting country you had passed through. Your readers would "rise up and call you blessed."

This leaves us both well and happy and with no idea of making anywhere but the west our future home. Kindest regards to the Ushers and the Courier staff.

Very truly yours,

Charles E. Sec.

Opeas Battery Shop

BOULDER PARK THE BEAUTIFUL

DESTINED TO BE SHOW PLACE OF NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Comprehensive Parking Layout Will Have No Peer in Our North Country

The improvements on Bridge street and operations at the school house are not, by far, the only activities in our fair city. As comprehensive a plan of landscaping as Charlevoix has ever witnessed is now under way at Boulder Park, and upon completion will have no peer as a beauty spot of Northern Michigan.

Mr. Young's present plans call for a large lagoon inside the Lake Michigan shore line in front of his subdivision. A break-water 300 feet in length is being built of huge boulders. When dredging operations have been completed it is planned to have a depth of four feet of water in the lagoon, with an outlet and inlet to Lake Michigan providing passage way for small boats, which will be sheltered behind the stone break-water. Sand will be hauled in to cover the bottom now of gravel and provide a good bathing beach.

Directly in front of the first entrance gate beyond Lake Shore Drive a 180-foot reflection pool is under way. It will be bordered by beautiful boulders and surrounded by flower beds and shrubbery. A small island in the center of the pool will have a fountain with its water supply coming from flowing springs piped to this central spot from throughout the sub-division.

A comprehensive plan of parking the area beyond the roadway towards the lake is being carried out and next summer will see beautiful flower beds and shrubbery set out. The entire layout will have a border of boulders, which have been gathered from far and near. Some of the larger weight tons and have required men and teams sometimes over two days to place them in position. The odd shapes and beautiful color markings of the rocks are almost beyond description. There is no doubt in our minds but what Boulder Park is destined to be the show place of Northern Michigan.

Besides the activities above mentioned, two more stone bungalows are now under construction and plans call for seven more to be commenced in the spring.

BIRTHDAY PARTY AT PEARL HOME

Twenty Guests Remind Mrs. Stephens of Anniversary

The home of Mrs. Ruben Pearl was the scene of a happy gathering, Friday evening, October 28, when about twenty young people gathered there to remind Mrs. John Stephens of her birthday.

The house was beautifully decorated in Halloween trim. The evening was spent in playing games and Halloween stunts. Then at a late hour Mrs. Pearl served dainty refreshments. Mrs. Stephens received many nice gifts. The party broke up late hoping to have another such gathering soon.

LAW VIOLATORS ARE SENTENCED

THREE WILL SERVE PRISON
TERMS FOR OFFENCES

Others Held Under Bond and Will Be Sentenced at Coming
Term of Court

Sentences were meted out to a number of law breakers during the October session of court, which had just got under way at press time last week, of for which reason we were unable to cover.

Robert Kane of Petoskey, who pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law, was released under $300 bond to appear the first day of the February term of court for sentence.

John O'Neil and Tom Lynn were found guilty of violation of the liquor law when tried before a jury. They paid fines of $50 and costs of $150 each.

The case against Allie Ward on a similar charge, was continued over to the February term of court. After the trial was under way, attorney for the defense pointed out to the court that Geo. Arnold, one of the jurors, had been employed as watchman over the two cars figuring in the smash-up which resulted in Ward's arrest, thus being unqualified for jury service on the case. Ward's bail was set at the same figure as before, $20,000, and he is being held in jail until his case is brought up again.

Stella Evans and Ina Evans, both of Boyne City, were found guilty by a jury on a larceny charge. The former was sentenced to serve not less than two years and not more than five years in the Detroit House of Correction, with court recommendation of two years. The latter will appear the first day of the May term of court for sentence.

John Pesek, charged with violation of the liquor law, was found guilty by a jury. His case was continued to December 17, and he was released under $300 bond for his appearance on that date.

Arthur Moon of Boyne City, who was implicated with Stella and Ina Evans on a larceny charge, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve from one to five years in Jackson state prison at hard labor. The court recommended he serve one year.

Jesse Levett, arrested last week after cashing a forged check at the Levinson store, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny and was sentenced to serve one year at the Michigan State Reformatory at Ionia. The larceny charge resulted from his breaking into the O. P. North residence. An investigation into Levett's character is being made in Grand Rapids.

William Mosher of Boyne City, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny. He was released under $300 bond to appear at the next term of court for sentence.

LOCALS LOSE TO PETOSKEY TEAM

LIGHTER SQUAD NO MATCH FOR FIGHTING NORTHERNERS

Petoskey Has Slight Edge In Championship Race—Results of Other Games

In a game featured by unusually clean playing and in which time was taken out but once for a player with wind knocked out of him, Petoskey high school won from Charlevoix on the Petoskey field 58 to 0 last Saturday afternoon.

The locals put up a game fight in spite of a heavy weight handicap and fought hard throughout the entire game. Charlevoix lost a lot of ground on account of low passes from center and never threatened Petoskey's goal, while Petoskey showed better form than in her game with Boyne City the previous week. Charlevoix gained but three yards in the first half and six during the second. Petoskey scored in each quarter, three in the first, two in the second, two in the third and one in the final frame.

Charlevoix plays East Jordan on the home field next Saturday and hope to upset Jordan's string of victories.

Other Northern Results

In a one-sided game featured by occasional spectacular runs and plays Traverse City beat Boyne City on Boyne's home field last Saturday by a 44 to 0 score. Traverse presented a stone-wall defence and a varied offense. G. Kucera was the scoring ace for Traverse, accounting for four of her touchdowns.

East Jordan kept her slate clean last Saturday by trouncing Harbor Springs 14 to 0 on the latter's field. Jordan showed superiority in every department of the game and played a brand of football which is predicted will place her in Class C championship of Northern Michigan. Cheboygan added another victory to her string last Friday by taking Alpena into camp in a close game 7 to 0. McLeon, Cheboygan fullback and Meden, quarter, contributed much in winning the game.

A little light on the outcome of the Northern Michigan football championship race, was shed by Manistee's defeat of Cadillac last Saturday. Manistee took the encounter by a margin of one touchdown. Petoskey defeated Manistee by the same score. As far as scores indicates anything, Petoskey has a little edge on Cadillac, who plays our northern neighbor this coming Saturday. Many local fans intend to see this game and many are planning on witnessing the Petoskey- Traverse City struggle a week later. The outcome of the mythical Northern Michigan title hangs on these two games.

ALLIE MOORE LOCATED IN CINCINNATI, OHIO

Will Act As Skating Instructor at Norwood Ice Rink

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Moore and their two faithful comrades, Dick and Rags, who left here some time ago in their modern "Covered Wagon," are now located in Cincinnati, Ohio, for the winter.

We were recently in receipt of a letter containing a clipping from a Cincinnati paper which had a two column write-up of Moore showing his picture and stating that he had just been engaged as special instructor at the Norwood Ice Rink for the winter. The article made a short resume of Moore's colorful career as world's champion skater and other of his many activities in former years, stating that it was while Moore was applying for a position as animal trainer at the Cincinnati zoo that his ability as a skater was discovered and he was subsequently hired as skating instructor.

Allie will be on the ice rink at all skating sessions and will assist those desiring to learn to skate. He will also be available for professional lessons. Charlevoix will be glad to hear of Mr. Moore's success and will wish him the best of luck.

ROBBERS NET BUT SMALL LOOT

TWO BUSINESS PLACES AND LI-BRARY ENTERED FRIDAY

Jobs Last Friday Are Continuations of Depredations Throughout Entire Summer

Three robberies netted a loot of slightly over $30.00 last Friday night when thieves entered the Northern Auto company garage, Bergeon's store and also rifled the desks in the librarian's and city treasurer's offices.

Joe Lemieux, employed in Bergeon's store, became aware of the robbery Saturday morning when he went to the cash register to make change for an early customer. He found the till had been sacked and a check-up revealed that $20 in bills and a few dollars in silver had been taken. Subsequent investigation showed that the vandals had entered the store through a transom at the rear of the building.

It is thought the same thieves entered the Northern Auto Co. building the same night, taking in the neighborhood of $6.00 from the money drawer. Investigation revealed the robbers had gained entrance to the office through a hole broken out in the plate glass window facing on the alley.

Reports from the library building Friday morning were that the librarian's desk had been rifled and less than one dollar in small change taken. Success did not reward the robbers when they opened the desk in the city treasurer's office, however, as all cash was locked in the safe. The thieves chiseled open the locks on both desks in the library building.

The depredations last Friday night are but one of a series of robberies which have continued throughout the entire summer. Hardly a week has gone by without a report of thievery from some store or business place. Although no large losses have been sustained in any instance reported, the fact remains that officers have been unable to check the robbers thus far. Even a small robbery a few years back would have created untold excitement. Now they seem to pass as commonplace and are soon forgotten. Drastic measures should be taken to curb this small thievery before it reaches large proportions.

LOCAL PYTHIANS HIGHLY HONORED

VISITING LODGE PRESENT RE-PLICA THURSDAY NIGHT

Fitting Reception Ceremonies Held at Local Temple Followed by a Delicious Luncheon

Local members of the order of Knights of Pythias were honored by the presence at their lodge hall last Thursday evening of an exact copy of the school house in Eagle Harbor where Justus Rathbone penned the ritual of the order that has enjoyed such a wonderful growth since its introduction many years ago.

The replica was presented by South Lake Lodge Knights of Pythias of East Jordan, who in turn received the replica from the Pythian lodge of Traverse City. Ceremonies attending the reception of the shrine were conducted by members of the East Jordan lodge, some twenty being present.

Charlevoix Pythians, to the number of a dozen or more, left the city Monday for Cheboygan, and presented the replica to the Cheboygan lodge in due form.

The history of the replica of the famous school house and other interesting matters pertaining thereto is contained in the following article taken from the Michigan Pythian:

For many years the "Rathbone Schoolhouse" at Eagle Harbor, where Justus H. Rathbone wrote the first ritual of the Knights of Pythias and where the order was really born in his heart and brain has been a mecca for Pythians who knew of the early history of the order.

This schoolhouse is now and has been for some years the property of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, and is being preserved as a Pythian Shrine and memorial to the founder of the order. Thousands of Pythians from this and other states have visited Eagle Harbor and the little building where Rathbone after school hours, penned the ritual. Thousands of others have wished they might make this visit, so full of meaning to every Michigan Knight.

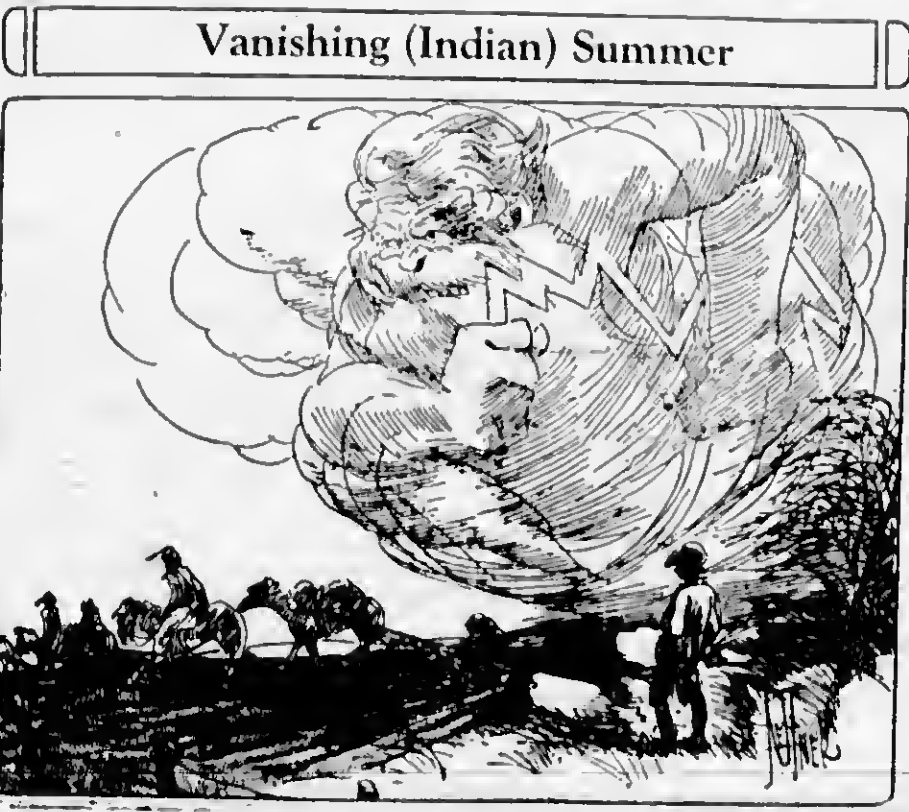

While all cannot have this wish fulfilled the Grand Lodge has started a movement which will bring the Shrine into every lodge so that all members can pay their tribute to it and to the founder of the order. The Grand Keeper of Records and Seal has had built a small replica of the original schoolhouse, which is an exact copy of the building as it now looks after being placed in good repair by the Grand Lodge. This little schoolhouse was constructed by Arthur Reif, a member of Ann Arbor Lodge, No. 44 and it was a labor of love with him, he donating his services. As he is an expert cabinet maker, the little building is a beauty, with a door that opens, windows that can be raised and lowered, a blackboard where the original one was located, siding and shingles and everything real—so that when you look at it, you gaze on the Rathbone school house in miniature.

The schoolhouse made its first appearance in a lodge on Tuesday evening, January 18, when a large crowd was out to welcome it. A book has been prepared that will accompany the schoolhouse with a record of each lodge where it appears, giving names of officers and the total number of members present. On the front pages of the book is a history of the school house and also a brief biography of Justus R. Rathbone. Pictures showing the schoolhouse before it was taken over by the Grand Lodge, as it now looks and of scenes in and about Eagle Harbor are also included in this book. The plan is to have the Shrine carried from lodge to lodge until it has been received in every lodge in the state. No lodge will receive it, unless that lodge will first promise to carry it on to the next lodge on a schedule that will be prepared in advance.

CHAPTER XI

She was waiting in the clearing when Shot loped up, snuffed, looked at her curiously, then pawed her joyfully with fore feet.

"Shot, you know me?" And she rubbed the ears of the wriggling sled.

"He has a good memory for his friends," said Garth, as the dog leaped in the snow around the pleased girl.

"I think it quite wonderful, though, that he should remember me. He knew me but five days."

Garth's mouth curled. "His master knew you no longer. And the factor of Elkanan revealed in the slow color that touched her temples—the swift flickering of heavy-lashed lids."

"His master had reason to remember the guests who insulted him in his own house."

"One of his guests," countered Guthrie, "was an angel of mercy. We seldom forget the visitation of angels, do we?"

"And the other—an ungrateful scandal-monger."

"I told you last night he was a blessing in disguise."

She looked squarely in his eyes as she said: "But I did not believe you, Mr. Exile."

his reluctant goodbye with a sniffle so personal—so like a caress that the hand he gave her shook like a leaf in the wind.

"My friend," he repeated under his breath as he followed Shot back to Etienne and the waiting dog team, "my friend—my world."

Hour by hour, over the coast ice, the light sled reeled off the miles. So good was the going, so keen the five great huskies for the trail, that the man left their robes only to stretch their legs. The forty miles to the Big Willow river slid past by early afternoon, and the hungry men turned in to the river mouth to build a fire from driftwood and boil their kettle.

Twenty miles directly across the strait, the gray Akimiski hills parted to form Seal cove.

"If I give a good deal to know how they took the news over there of the loss of the northern fur, Etienne," said Guthrie, busy with his plate of beans and bacon, "Hello! There's a team coming in over the ice. Wonder who it is."

For a time Etienne studied the black object through the binoculars, but when the kettle and fry-pan had been slowed and the sled cover slashed, two riders in their skin coats rode by the sides of the passengers.

A mile from the noon camp at the river, the sled, evidently headed for the mouth of the Kapiuskau, drew inshore.

"A hunter from de Kapiuskau. We weel now hear how dey swear on de schooner dis Christmas."

The dog-team slowed to a walk and shortly were within speaking distance.

"Kequay!" called Savanne. "Were you go?"

Leaving his pending dogs, who straightway lay down on the ice, the stranger hurried to the sled from Elkwan. As he approached, it was evident to the two men that the Cree was laboring under strong excitement. His sled was heavily loaded and his hand-breathing indicated that he had run much crossing the strait. Staggering up, he gasped: "De boat—ovnlr ders All gone! McDonal! Ha! Hu! dead—all dead!"

"What?" cried Garth, "the schooner's crew—dead?"

"You cooo from dere—you see dem!" demanded the astute Etienne. A shrewd hand shot out, and gripping the Cree's shoulder, shook him violently.

"You see dem? How many?" repeated the half-breed, searching the Indian's face in an attempt to probe the truth of his statement.

"I see one dead man. No answer when I yell, I asked the other, and seemingly at the memory of the ship of the dead, his small eyes filled with dread."

"What happened? Was this man shot?" demanded Garth, exchanging glances with Savanne.

"He dis of sickness—I look at run. It was ver' had down dere den dat boat," said the Indian with a shudder.

"Were the dogs there?"

"I see no dog."

"Were you from?" snarled Savanne, thrusting a face fierce with suspicion, into the Cree's.

"From de Kapiuskau. I go to de boat to trade some fox."

"You get dat flour from de boat—stout it!" hazarded Etienne, guessing at the nature of the bulky load on the Indian's sled.

The Cree nodded. "Dey not use it now."

The smart face of the head man at Elkwan hardened into creased leather as he turned to Garth, and whispered: "I don lak dis ting. He see one man. Maybe de oders ambush us. What wa do?"

"I'm going over to find out. It's my duty. Boucher will wait for days. They may not all be dead. I'm going."

"Suppose eet ces a trick? Suppose de ones not dead wait for der revenge?"

"We'll stalk 'em and see."

Dropping his mittens and deliberately reaching under his capote, Etienne drew his skinning knife. Coolly running a thumb over the edge, he thrust his face into that of the disturbed Indian while his still-like eyes snapped as he hit off the words: "You llo! McDonal! Ha! Ha! sen' you to Kapiuskau. You spik de trut', or I—" and seizing the Indian by his hood, he made a quick pass at his throat.

Overawed by the fierceness of the strangers, the undersized Cree swayed on his feet, repeating in his seeming terror: "I spik de trut'. You go to de boat—you see!"

FOCHTMAN'S TO ENLARGE STORE

NEW ADDITION TO BE BUILT TO THE WEST

Old Landmark to Be Razed to Make Room—Inaugurate a Thirteen Day Sale to Reduce Stock

Keeping step with progress seems to be the watchword of the management of northern Michigan's largest retail store, Fochtman's of Petoskey. Ever seeking an opportunity to improve their lines of merchandise, their methods of selling—or their working conditions, they have outgrown the three buildings they now occupy on Mitchell street and will start immediately to build a new modern brick building on the site now occupied on the ground floor by their meat market and by Foley's novelty store.

This building, one of the oldest landmarks in Petoskey is now known as Fochtman's Annex. It was formerly the Clifton House and was erected about 1875. It was used as a hotel and operated by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rowan until 1910 when it was purchased by Fochtman's and remodelled into a store. The building now connects through the third floor to the third floor of the McDonald building, in which the bulk of Fochtman's furniture stock is displayed.

Starting the excavation from the rear of the building immediately, work will continue until this old landmark is razed and a new fire-proof, steel enforced, brick building takes its place. The new building, according to plans, will be ready for occupancy before the resort season begins next summer.

Sale Starts Thursday

Beginning Saturday, November 5th, a massive thirteen day sale will start over the entire ten departments of this big store. Sacrifice prices will tag each article from needles and pins to furniture and equipment for a complete home.

It is necessary to have this sale to reduce the stock because the old Annex will be torn down immediately after the sale and this not only eliminates this space but cuts off the entrance to the furniture department in the building to the west of the Annex.

Petoskey and the Fochtman department store have grown up together. The city was only a few years old, when Fochtman's opened its first small store.

The first railroad from the south preceded Fochtman's by only four years. It arrived in 1874.

Petoskey and this store have this in common; vision and faith. The North was opening. A new world was to be peopled. Petoskey saw it. Fochtman's saw it. Fochtman's said, "Nothing is impossible." Petoskey said, "Nothing is impossible." That spirit made Petoskey. It made Fochtman's department store, also.

AT THE MOVIES

Richard Dix Hits Again With "Shanghai Bound"

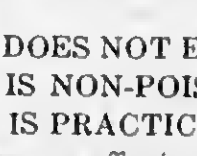

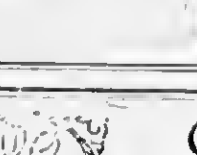

That motion picture producers know no geographical barriers is proven Saturday and Sunday on the screen of the Palace Theatre. There, local citizens can see Richard Dix in a thrilling, exciting vividly colorful film "Shanghai Bound." The locale is China, and the Yangtze River, where the action takes place, is realistic enough to please the most captious critic.

Dix has a great vehicle in "Shanghai Bound." This one of Paramount stars has increased his popularity immensely recently with such splendid pictures as "The Quarterback," "Knockout Reilly" and "Man Power" but in "Shanghai Bound" he even betters them. The unusual background, stirring action and timeliness of theme are sufficient reasons why this is a picture not to be missed.

Supporting him is an excellent cast headed by Mary Brian, who has played in several of his recent pictures. As the haughty American society girl who finally succumbs to her love for the ship captain, she has probably the best role of her career. Other members of the cast are good and an interesting feature is the fact that more than 150 Chinese appear in the production.

Luther Reed has directed this picture with meticulous attention to detail and he has contrived to present what seems to be a wholly authentic picture of modern China. The story is by Edward S. (Tex) O'Reilly, erstwhile drillmaster in the Chinese Imperial Army. It's evident that he knows China.

INSURANCE COMPANIES STRIVE TO PREVENT FIRES

When the general cost of fire insurance is discussed it is usually regarded from the standpoint alone of the loss indemnity paid. The popular aspect is that it costs 47 cents in expense to collect and distribute 53 cents of loss. No consideration whatever is given to the millions of dollars of loss wholly prevented or modified by insurance activities in fire prevention by better building, introduced factors of prevention and the tireless pursuit through their laboratories of possible new hazards arising from the extraordinary developments in composition into which chemistry enters.

Many years ago the late Francis C. Moore demonstrated that the public would be better served to its own benefit, if 90 per cent of the premiums were consumed in expenses and only 10 per cent for losses. Like most novel discoveries in economics, it seemed a paradox and never reached popular understanding. But it was true in principle. Expenses have steadily increased, yet the rate of premium has an steadily increased, together with the ratio of losses per $100 at risk. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Insurance companies are behind every development of architecture and equipment to minimize the possibility of fire; their inspectors check and most often grade municipal inspectors; they are behind fire departments and salvage corps. They save to the country more than is lost annually in fires, yet, the results of this service can neither be demonstrated nor itemized in any rating schedule or bill for premiums.—Insurance Field.

PURCHASED POWER CHEAPEST FOR MUNICIPAL DISTRIBUTION

Municipally owned power plants find it to their advantage to buy current from interconnected systems, but not often does a manager of such a plant admit that the generation by his own plant of all the power needed for his particular municipality would be a losing adventure. One of the exceptions is J. F. Byxbee, manager of the city owned plant at Palo Alto, California. Mr. Byxbee was recently criticized by a zealous municipal ownership advocate for buying current from the Pacific Gas and Electric company, a large and far-flung hydroelectric company. He replied by making a long report to the city council in which he fully analyzed the costs of purchased power as compared with power generated at the city's own plant. His conclusion was that power could be purchased cheaper than it could be produced by the city itself. He added:

"Alameda, Lodi, Redding and a number of other cities in the state buy power under resale schedules to distribute over the local municipally owned lines, and find this plan to be more economical than to install oil consuming electric generating equipment."

Mr. Byxbee might have gone further and said: If the municipally owned plants in California, or any other place, had to generate all the current demanded by their communities, they would soon find their costs mounting so high they would either have to go out of business or increase the burden on the taxpayers, who so obligingly make up municipal ownership losses.

FREIGHT RATES SHOW VERY SLIGHT INCREASE

While wholesale prices of all commodities average 79 per cent higher than in 1890, and wholesale prices of farm products average 96 per cent higher than in that year, the average freight rate per ton per mile is now less than 14 per cent higher than it was in 1890. In 1890 is cost .941 cents to haul a ton of freight one mile, while today the average cost is 1.069 cents.

If the increase in the average freight rate since 1890 had been relatively as great as the increase in average price of all commodities, the nation's bill for freight transportation would be 57 per cent larger than it now is, or $2,740,000,000 more annually, and if the increase in average freight rate had been as great in proportion as the increase in prices of farm products, the nation's freight bill would be 72 per cent larger than it is, or almost $3,500,000,000 more annually.

The history of prices, of freight rates and of railway development during the last 40 years constitutes an unanswerable argument for future regulation that will encourage ample investment of capital in railway improvements.

GAS MAINTAINS EVEN HOUSE TEMPERATURE

Gas as a fuel for house heating is winning out on an economic basis, as well as on scores of convenience, comfort and cleanliness.

Though the temperature may vary from below zero one day to many degrees above the next, the user of a gas-fired heating plant with thermostat control is assured that fuel is being used only in proportion to fluctuations of the weather.

On a cold day the furnace will consume more gas than on a warmer day, but only sufficient will be used to maintain the desired temperature. The automatic control turns the gas off and on to hold that temperature either continuously day and night or for such part of the 24 hours as is wished.

SANCTITY OF AN OATH

The oath I have taken is to support the constitution of my country's government, not the fiat of any political organization, even could its will be ascertained. It is true I was chosen a senator by a majority only, but not for a majority only. I was chosen by a party, but not for a party. I represent all the good people of the state which has sent me here. In my office as a senator I recognize no claim upon my action in the name and for the sake of party. Animated by this spirit, the partisan is enlarged into the patriot. Before it the lines of party sink into hazy obscurity; and the horizon which bounds our views reaches on every side to the uttermost verge of the great Republic.—Thomas F. Bayard.

PROBLEMS PREDICTED AS RESULT OF INCREASE IN FARM MACHINERY

For three years ended December 31, 1925, farmers bought more than $1,000,000,000 worth of machinery; number of tractors increased 105.9 per cent in five years.

This great increase in farm machinery enables fewer farmers to produce America's food and feed crops, releasing vast amounts of human energy for other purposes.

To solve the problem, new industries must be found. Just what industries will be evolved cannot, of course, be foreseen, as the locomotive, the telephone, the motor car, the moving picture, the radio and the thousands of miles of improved highways could not be foreseen.

TELEPHONE A NECESSITY ON THE FARM

The telephone as a medium of contact is firmly established on the modern American farm.

The telephone enables the calling of help immediately in case of fire, sickness or sudden accident. In case of breakdown of farm machinery, the telephone saves hours, sometimes days, in getting repairs.

Not to be overlooked is the opportunity the telephone gives for social contact—a few minutes' chat with the nearest neighbor, who may be miles away, or a call to an adjoining state may be accomplished in the same short space of time.

The telephone is not only a convenience—it is a social and economic necessity on the farm as well as in the city.

UNITED STATES LEADING MINING NATION

Not only is the United States the greatest producer of mineral products of any country in the world, but it is also the greatest consumer. L. S. Cates, vice president, Utah Copper company, points out that consumption per person in the United States in 1926 was 15 pounds of copper, 13 pounds of lead, and 10 pounds of zinc. We use more than double the amount of copper consumed by other leading nations, with relative proportions of zinc and lead.

Further development of home markets, exportation of surplus minerals, necessity for an equitable basis of taxation, both state and national, are matters of deep import to the mining industry.

INCOMES

If incomes reflect the actual value of their recipients to society, as economists tell us, will one of them kindly explain these incomes. Dempsey, $1,000,000. Babe Ruth, $70,000. Cabinet member, $12,000. Congressman, $10,000. Bootlegger, $8,000. Average lawyer, $4,000. Average professor, $3,200. Average doctor, $3,000. Average wage earner, $1,400. Average farmer, $800. Average preacher, $700.—Exchange.

BE CAREFUL AT HOME

As many or more people are killed right in their own residences than on the streets and highways.

Hundreds of communities, nationally organizations, state bodies and local associations are trying to cope with the traffic problem, but practically nobody is worried about the national toll taken by home accidents. More than 18,500 men, women and children met accidental deaths in their own homes last year.

FRESHENING BREEZES

Nowadays every man is entitled to life, liberty and an automobile in which to pursue happiness.—Norfolk Virginia-Pilot.

As a remedy for divorce a Chicago judge urges men not to marry until they reach the age of reason. But that would bar so many marriages altogether.

Not that it makes any difference, but had you noticed how many "touring Canada" signs one meets on the highways these days?

A writer suggests thirteen ways for a wife to lose her husband, but she might succeed, we suspect, without having to avail herself of all of them.

In the old days, chivalry consisted in saying: "May I smoke?" Now it consists in saying: "Try one of mine."

One thing that can be said in favor of prohibition: you never hear anything these days about seashore serpents.

What has become of the old-fashioned bum who had to be bounced out of the town saloon a couple times every day?

Our idea of a hick town is where the natives are still waiting for a chance to attend another world's series at Detroit.

With but a few exceptions, Halloween in Charlevoix was observed Monday night in a peaceful manner. The exceptions referred to are tipping over of the large boulder in front of Earl A. Young's real estate office and upsetting the cobble stone flower urns in front of the Bartlett residence on Park avenue. In both instances damage was done to personal property. It is hardly believable that boys could have moved the boulder in front of Young's office, inasmuch as it was set solidly in concrete. It looks like the work of men, who could have put their time to better use than prowling the streets on Halloween until the wee hours in the morning. The flower urns mentioned were valuable to the owner and was completely smashed. The guilty parties should be apprehended and punished.

J. C. PENNEY CO. BUY MORE STORES

Twenty More Are Added to Large String—Already Listed

Announcement was made recently by J. W. Scroggin, manager of the J. C. Penney store of Petoskey, of the purchase of twenty stores operated by the Golden Rule Mercantile Co., by the J. C. Penney Co. The deal is reported as being the largest of its kind ever put through in the mid-west and involves a consideration of more than $2,000,000.

The stores involved will start operation under the J. C. Penney Co.'s name on January 1, 1928, following the annual inventory of both companies, and the J. C. Penney Co. will take over the furniture, fixtures, leases and stock of the Golden Rule Mercantile Co. at this time.

The consolidation is unique also in the fact that the Golden Rule concern was founded by Cuy Johnson and R. W. Stevens, with whom J. C. Penney worked in the early days before the founding of the present giant chain system.

Insofar as possible, the personnel of the Golden Rule Mercantile Co. will remain unchanged by the consolidation. Both organizations have been favorably known to the community they have served and both have developed along the same policies regarding service, convenience, and economy rendered to customers.

FISHING SEASON OPENS FRIDAY

EARLY CATCHES AVERAGED AROUND 1800 POUNDS

General Opinion Is That Run Has Not Started and Will Last Ten Days or Two Weeks

Last Friday afternoon saw the opening of the 1927 fishing season for Muskegon trout, after a closed period of several weeks. Test nets lifted Friday morning showed the required percentage of ripe spawn and fishermen were notified of the results and immediately set forth for the spawning grounds.

Operations of the fishermen were badly hampered by Saturday morning's heavy blow, and with but one exception no lift was made on that day, that being the tug operated by Harold McCann. Many of the boats put out late Sunday evening and Tuesday saw all packing houses humming with activity as boat after boat pulled in laden with fish.

It is estimated there are about fifteen local and out-of-port boats operating out of Charlevoix. The average lift Monday, according to figures we have been able to gather, ran in the neighborhood of 1800 pounds. The largest catch reported was brought in by Harold McCann, who lifted 5000 pounds Tuesday. Nearly all boats reset Monday, but with few exceptions left their nets out intending to lift Wednesday. The catches brought in Tuesday were decidedly lighter than the first day.

The general opinion among the fishermen interviewed seem to point to the fact that the season is still early and that the run has only commenced. It pointed out by many that the spawn is still green, and this fact leads fishermen to believe that the fish have not come onto the spawning beds yet. Those more optimistic expect the run to last ten days or even two weeks. A minority have voiced the opinion that the run is over.

No little dissatisfaction is apparent among local fishermen in regard to spawn regulations by the state department of conservation this year. Permits to fish and where, along with being told the number of nets they might use, has stirred up considerable feeling. Fishermen contend that this is their time of harvest and the only time of year fishing is really profitable to them. Who is right or wrong we are unable to state, although it is our belief that the conservation department is doing all in their power to help the industry and preserve the supply of commercial fish for years to come.

EDWIN McCANN'S LEG WAS BROKEN IN FALL

Fell From New Gymnasium Roof
Saturday Afternoon

Edwin McCann, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCann of this city, had his leg broken last Saturday afternoon while playing on the roof of the new gymnasium now under construction.

The lad had been playing with other companions when he accidentally slipped and fell. His descent was broken when he lit on one of the steel supports for the balcony. His leg was broken in the thigh, near his hip, and he hung in a precarious position on the steel beam until assisted down by others nearby.

He was taken to the local hospital where his injuries were attended. According to latest reports, the lad is resting well.

HEAVY WIND STORM DONS LOCAL DAMAGE

Hotel Alhambra Lost Portion of Roof in Saturday's Gale

A 60-mile gale accompanied by the first snow of the season, struck Charlevoix last Saturday morning, leaving considerable damage in its wake. The first onslaught ripped off a portion of the roof of the Hotel Alhambra, scattering boards and timbers upon adjoining buildings with resultant damage. The large sign on the Northern Auto company garage was twisted out of shape and a path of broken limbs and small signs showed evidence of the wind's high velocity. One fisherman, who was about to hit nets when the gale struck, stated the wind laid his boat over on her side and lifted fish boxes off the deck and threw them into the water.

Charlevoix was fortunate as far as snow is concerned and got only a small portion as compared with towns south and east of us. A heavy fall of snow is reported south of Traverse City and also in the vicinity of Mancelana, Gaylord and Elmira.

TRI-COUNTY REALTORS GUEST OF EARL YOUNG

Fagan, president, and John Doelle of Lansing, executive secretary of the Michigan State Real Estate Association.

The Lady Macabees will give a card party at their hall next Tuesday evening. Admission 25c.—Adv. 46-44.

WORK ON BRIDGE STREET NEAR-ING COMPLETION

Property Owners Must Arrange Rear
Wiring Before Shift
Is Made

The city of Charlevoix's share of the Bridge street improvement, which have been under way for the past month, are practically completed.

Conduits are laid from the bridge to the top of the hill, and cement sidewalks necessarily removed to do this work are nearly all re-laid. New poles in alleys on both sides of Bridge street are set and wired. Boulevard lighting poles on the east side of the street have been put in place and everything is nearly ready for the shift.

Property owner on Bridge street whose buildings are not wired from the rear at the present time, should make arrangements at once with electricians to have this work done, so there will be no delay when the time comes for the shift-over to be made. Many may have the mistaken idea that re-wiring from the rear is a part of the city's work and done at their expense. This is not true. Each property owner must make arrangements for this work. VOTE FOR WID- ER PUBLICITY

EXPANDED NEWSPAPER ADVER-TISING GETS BIGGEST VOTE

Michigan Tourist and Resort Association Outline 1928 Publicity Program

West Michigan resort authorities cast the largest number of votes for an expansion of newspaper advertising program of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association in 1928.

They voted on a referendum consisting of seven planks the results being:

First. Expanded newspaper advertising.

Second. Establishment of County Boulevard systems.

Third. Extension of tourist season to fall months.

As outlined by the executive committee, of which John C. Beukema of Muskegon is chairman, a platform of seven major planks was submitted for a referendum vote to decide which of these phases shall receive the strongest emphasis.

The newspaper plank received the most enthusiastic endorsement. It aims to sell the many vacationland attractions of West Michigan anew next year with full page advertisements in the great dailies of the central west. It will also promote such activities as annual tours of newspaper men through the territory, national radio broadcasting and more contacts with magazine writers in the territory.

Another 1928 program plank solidly backed by the members is one that reads: "Shall the Association work for the improvement of trunk line and county highways, and the establishment of county boulevard systems?" This plank urges all possible activity in developing U. S. 31, U. S. 131 and M-66, direct feeders from the dozen states from which the bulk of West Michigan tourists are coming. This plan also provides for the early development of the east and west highways which serve as feeders to the three main highways.

The plank that ran third in the number of votes received had to do with the extension of the tourist season by stimulating business during the fall months, securing conventions in June and actively promoting winter sport carnivals that will attract more visitors in January and February.

Closer cooperation with railroad, bus and steamship lines is a fifth plank, working for the commercial development of West Michigan is a sixth, and the final plank deals with the development of airports and airways.

The flowers were large and beautiful and would be hard to duplicate even in the glorious west.

Miss Arbutus West, who attends school at Charlevoix, spent the week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert West.

Kenneth VanHosen was injured during the Boyne City-Alpena football game Saturday. Nevertheless, he played long enough to help Boyne win the game 12-0.

Mrs. U. L. Fox left Wednesday for Grand Rapids, where she will visit relatives and friends until Saturday. Leaving there Saturday she will go to Lansing, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. G. D. Harris, for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Osborne were greatly surprised on Monday evening, when about 18 cars carried 75 friends and neighbors to their home for a farewell party. A delicious lunch was served as a token of remembrance. The Osbornes were presented with a beautiful Indian blanket.

"We go to de boat—na' you go wild us," snarled Etienne.

At the words, the Indian's face went gray. "De spirit—I am scare to go back," he protested, but the inexorable Etienne ordered him to turn his dogs and lead the way back.

It was hard on the hunter, if his story was straight, but bearing a waiting McDonald in his hair was not to be lightly hazarded.

"I think the man is honest, Etienne. He naturally hated to go again to the ship. But what could have happened—du—smallpox?"

Savanne shook his head. Only recently the bay had been swept by influenza, brought in by a whaler, partially striking down Eskimos, Indians, and dogs, but he was still suspicious of a counterstroke by the schooner people, sore from their defeat, and confidently expected a confession from the dog driver ahead before the dusk caught them. Guthrie, on the contrary, believed that some epidemic, or possibly scurvy, had stricken the crew, and wondered if the great McDonald, in the pride of his strength, had found a grave in the Akimiski lake.

The Indian had seen but one body and fled, so he said; but the schooner had been silent as a tomb. Queer that all had died, so soon. As he left, he had called repeatedly from the deck, without answer, except once, faintly, he had heard something—like the voice of a spirit.

When the Cree had reluctantly reached his load of flour and they started to cross the twenty miles of ice, he begged them not to force him into that grave of white men. The ship was haunted by demons, an Indian from the north had said. They had brought the sickness—were displeased with McDonald. But Etienne would surely bewitch him if he again went to that ship of the dead. But Etienne insisted that the seeming fear of the Cree was only a ruse to lead them into the trap while he hung back and thus avoided a shot in the back for his treachery.

Halfway across, the dusk from Akimiski moved out to meet the travelers, soon to look upon, in the berths of the schooner, death, in all horror of plague-stricken men; or to meet a treachery, as Guthrie believed, too vile for the uses of a fighting man like Laughing McDonald. But the canny half-breed would not be convinced, and the knife, shifted to his capote sash, and the unneeded rifle barrel thrusting from his robe, were sinister witnesses to his distrust of the Cree.

The barrens of the island purpled, then fused with the dusk. Stars glittered above the moving teams. At last in the starlight, the black masses of the hills, quaking Seal Cove loomed ahead. The Indian stopped his dogs.

"Eet ees ovaire dere," he pointed to the invisible shore.

Ordering the disarmed Cree to remain with his dogs, Etienne called Guthrie for a whispered council of war.

"De schooner ees not far. Wa stop an' tie up de husky. Den you an' Shot go one way an' I tak' dees feller wid de gun een hees back an' we circle round de boat."

"All right! If either sees or hears anything, two long whistles. Will they hear our dogs if they yelp?"

"No, eet ees too far."

Shot, trained to silence, would be invaluable in a fight, but the husky yelping would betray them, so they were lashed to the sleds.

"Eet we don' see nodin', I mak' dis feller holler to de ship. Den we wait. I tell heem he is de first een de boat, wid de gun een hees ribs. He ver scare—something bad here," warned Etienne.

"He's afraid of the devil," suggested Guthrie, uncasing his rifle, and regretting that his army automatic hung neglected in its holster on the rack at Etienne's. This stalk of the ship had much of the color of a trench raid—a fight in the dark, if Etienne was right—and he passed the feel of his pistol on his belt, the drag on the shoulder strap of a bag of Mills bombs.

As they separated, Etienne gripped Guthrie's hand. "I meet you at de boat. Keep behin' de ice wen I mak' heem holler, eet dey shoot."

The idea of stalking dead men was grotesque, but as Guthrie and Shot made their way slowly toward the shore, for the stars were dim, the possibility that Etienne's suspicions were not unfounded grew in the mind of Guthrie. Suppose the Indian had seen a dead man. There might have been a fight aboard while the rent were temporarily ashore after fur. True McDonald might be dead, but with the leader gone, Braunt, desperate, sick possibly, perhaps insane, might have evolved this scheme to lure some of the Kapiskau people across the ice. For the Indian was bound for Kapiskau when they met him.

That the ruse was McDonald's Guthrie put aside, but strange things had happened before among a ship's company wintering in the ice, and who could guess what had fallen out on The Ghost?

When, in the faint light of the stars he made out the ice-scented poles of the schooner, Guthrie put his excited dog. "Stand to, Shot!"

The alreadie stiffened, sniffling the wind, then side by side, man and dog cautiously made their approach. From behind a pressure ridge, a hundred yards from the frozen-in craft drifted with snow to her low rails, Guthrie stopped. There, under the dim stars, silent, sinister, lay the ship. Was it the sepulcher of luckless dead, or—

Two whistles from the direction of the ship started Guthrie swiftly over the ice behind his silent dog. Circled the stern, he found behind a mound Etienne and the shaming Cree.

"What is it?"

"I fear some soun' on dat boat."

"Eet ees de spirit," whispered the Cree.

"We go up an' leesten," said Etienne, prodding the reluctant Indian forward.

Standing with rifles leveled on the plank-sheathed deck house, they waited. Presently to the straining ears of the men came a moaning as of a creature in agony, to culminate in a crescendo of groans.

The two men peered questioningly into each other's faces. At their side the wirelike trembled in a frenzy of excitement.

"Make him call to them," muttered Guthrie, with a nod at the pulse-stricken Cree.

The steel muzzle of Savanne's rifle found the Indian's ribs.

In a voice shattered by terror, the Cree called: "Kooquay! Allee!" But no answer from within broke the heavy silence. They waited. Again low moaning drifted from the deck house.

"I'm polog aboard," said Guthrie and calling Shot, leaped the rail, followed by Etienne. A door, behind the sheathing, opened to his hand, and with the dog in front, they made their way down to the pitlike blackness of the cabin. The odor of spilled whisky, food—and the stench of corpses struck them like a blow in the face. Striking a match, Etienne lit the stub of a candle he took from his pocket. In its flickering light the two gazed in horror at the chaos around them. On the table, the floor, whisky bottles, empty, half full, lay in a litter of meat and biscuit tins, dishes and scattered food. Sittag, jammed grotesquely between boxes in a corner, a rigid hand gripping a glass, the candle lit the staring eyes and gaping mouth of a dead man.

"Black Braunt!" muttered Guthrie. "Dead drunk! But that groan! Where are the rest?"

Turning, nauseated from the air and the loathsome spectacle, they found a stateroom. In two berths lay the dead bodies of the bearded mate Guthrie had met on the beach, and a sailor. Then a muttered groan and a curse led them to the adjoining room. Guthrie stood in the low door, holding the candle above his head.

In a bunk a gigantic figure lay in a sleeping bag. Guthrie bent forward, thrusting his arm with the light into the room. The heavy breathing of the bulk in the berth pulsed through the small room.

"McDonald!"

Etienne crowded beside his chief, curious to see the man whose fame had swept James Bay. The face was turned from the door and Guthrie entered the room to stumble over a bottle which rolled away, spilling its contents. Then he held a light over the mutilated face.

As the candle lit the russet hair and anseeling eyes, flaming with fever above the shattered face with its red beard, Guthrie stared motionless. Slowly his jaw dropped. As if in the spell of some strange fascination, the grimacing face in the candle light held Guthrie's unwavering eyes. Bewilderment, profound, shifted slowly to amazement—to recognition.

"Craig Guthrie!" he gasped. Then swiftly turning back the robes, exposed at the base of the corded neck a jagged scar.

"Craig Guthrie!—Laughing McDonald! God!—what irony!"

Turning to the perplexed Etienne, Guthrie rapidly explained as he felt for the pulse in a huge wrist.

"Etienne, you and I have work ahead! This is 'du' or pneumonia. He needs some nourishment—may have starved for days. The bag has saved him—kept him warm with that fever."

"But you nurse heem—dis McDonald! Ha! Ha!" demanded the surprised half-breed.

"Nurse him!" Guthrie laughed rawly. "Why, this man took me on his back through hell, itself—brought me

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT A WAY TO COMMUNITY BETTERMENT

This community represents much to all of us. It is home; it is where our families are reared; it is the center of our joys and sorrows; it is where our property interests lie. The better the community the better it is for each individual member of the community. A greater degree of prosperity for each individual, a whole means a greater degree of prosperity for each individual.

Making a better community, a more prosperous community, is the work of individuals, but of individuals working together along comprehensive and progressive lines. As a community we get nowhere when each one travels his own path, each leading in a different direction, and each striving for a different goal. We have collective interests and to accomplish anything must work collectively—each for all.

When we think of ourselves as a community circle, in which each member of the community has a place, we can visualize the benefits of co-operative action passing from one to another around this circle. When by such co-operative action we increase the prosperity, the wealth of the community, we have increased the prosperity, the wealth of each member of the circle.

A better town means a better market place for the farmers who are a part of the community and a better market place means better farm values. A better town means better property values, and this without increasing, but in reality decreasing the burden of local taxation, means better schools for our children, better streets, more attractive living conditions for all of us.

Communities in which the individual members are not working together are dying because of a lack of co-operative effort. With each backward step there comes a decrease in property values, a decrease in the number of opportunities for the individual in the home town. This community cannot afford to be numbered among those that are going backward. We must, and will, keep in the forefront of those that are going forward. We can do this by working together for the interest of all.

This working together means that our merchants must do all that is possible to supply our needs for merchandise at equitable prices. It means that they must afford our farmers a market place for such of their products as are disposed of through local buyers and sellers. But for the merchants to do these things means that we must give our merchants the opportunity to supply our needs. They cannot carry adequate stocks of merchandise if we do not offer them patronage for such stocks. We must realize that the prosperity of our merchants but adds to the prosperity of the community as a whole, and increased prosperity for each of us as individuals.

Our bankers, our professional people, are here to render service to each and every one of us as individuals. Our interests are necessarily their interests, and their interests are our interests. We grow and prosper only as they grow and prosper. We are all a part of the community circle, each unit of which is dependent upon each other unit.

Let us make our community a better place in which to live by co-operative effort.

DEER HUNTING SEASON SON OPENS ON 15TH

Michigan Will Play Host to Many Outside Hunters

With the open season on deer less than a week away the annual migration of deer hunters from all parts of the United States to the woods of northern Michigan has already begun. Since both Wisconsin and Minnesota prohibit deer hunting this year the rush into Michigan will no doubt be the heaviest on record.

It will be lawful this year to hunt or take one male deer with antlers extending not less than three inches above skull under hunters license fee of $2.50 for resident citizens and $50.00 for non-residents. Hunting parties of not less than four persons holding deer licenses, and camping together may secure permit to kill one deer for camp use, license fee $3.00. The season is from November 15th to November 30 inclusive.

The director of conservation and the commission have the power to prohibit deer hunting in certain counties and this power has been called into play this year. Deer hunting is banned for 1927 in Allegan, Arenac, Barry, Bay, Berrien, Branch, Calhoun, Cass, Clare, Clinton, Charlevoix, Eaton, Emmet, Genesee, Gladwin, Gratiot, Isabella, Lake, Mason, Mecosta, Montcalm, Oceana, Missaukee, Wexford and Manistee counties, and in some other counties in the lower peninsula. Briefly, the upper peninsula and most of the upper part of the lower peninsula are wide open and here the deer are said to be numerous.

FIRST SNOW IN U. P. FALLS NOVEMBER SECOND

The Sault Ste. Marie region of the upper peninsula, had its first snow of the season on Wednesday, November 2, just about a month later than the "first snow" last year. In 1926 the snow came on October 6. The earliest visit of "the beautiful" to the Soo is September 13. This record is held by the year 1890. The temperature record for November is that of 67 degrees above zero on November 4, 1898.

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE DELIVERY IS INAUGURATED

The house-to-house delivery service of the White House Bakery, inaugurated last Friday, is proving popular with patrons, according to reports. It has been a great number of years since such service was afforded Charlevoix citizens and it should be a welcome venture.

Left Wednesday for South Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Emrey and son, Bobby, left Wednesday morning on the first leg of their journey to Edinburg, Texas. Mr. Emrey stated Monday that his plans were not completed as yet, and that he would look over a business proposition at Pontiac and might locate there. Otherwise he intends to go on to Texas, where real estate holdings will occupy his attention during the winter.

CHARLEVOIX TEACHERS IN BAD AUTO ACCIDENT

Four Injured When Car Collided
Near Petoskey Last Saturday

Four persons were injured, when an automobile driven by Stewart Coleman, teacher in the local schools, collided with another machine Saturday afternoon on the Charlevoix-Petoskey road.

Mrs. Coleman was thought to have internal injuries, but left the hospital the following day. Mr. Coleman had a sprained right hip and shoulder and Mrs. Bayard Bucken, who with her husband were enroute to Harbor Springs with Mr. and Mrs. Coleman, was severely bruised about the right hip and leg. Mr. Buchen suffered only minor injuries and continued to Harbor Springs, where he refereed the Harbor Springs-Cheboygan football game.

The injured were brought to the Charlevoix hospital for treatment. B. J. McGee of Grand Rapids, owner and driver of the other car involved in the crash was unhurt. Wet pavements, which caused the cars to skid, is blamed for the accident.

Two weapons originally carried by Jesse James are used by Fred Thomson in his first picture for Paramount "Jesse James" which reaches the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Lloyd Ingram directed. Frank M. Clifton wrote the original screen story with the help of Jesse James Jr.

Role in New Film

He has the most versatile, villainous face in pictures! That is the way George Fitzmaurice characterizes Montague Love one of the principal players in "Rose of the Golden West," a first National special feature which comes to the Palace Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

Love has played almost every kind of villain that has been discovered in Hollywood, and has been different in every character.

In "Rose of the Golden West," he takes the part of a Spaniard of the early California period. Mary Astor and Gilbert Roland are featured as the romantic lovers of this stirring story of the conquest of California in the days of the Dons.

HALT SPEARING IN ALL TROUT STREAMS

Deputies Declare Spearing Leads to Trout Poaching

The spearing of any kind of fish in Michigan's trout rivers and streams was banned last Thursday by the state conservation commission and in order to that effect will be promulgated by George R. Hogarth, acting director.

The action ended a long controversy over fish spearing. Supporters of the latter proposition held that killing of suckers in trout streams was beneficial on the ground that they were predatory.

Harold H. Titus of Traverse City, submitted the report of a special committee on which were also Harry H. Whiteley of Dowagiac and Lee J. Smith of Detroit. The report expressed the opinion of 12 out of 16 conservation officers that spearing was objectionable and lead to trout poaching.

After receiving a petition from residents of Barry and Allegan counties asking for the closing of all lakes from January 1 to June 16 for a period of from three to five years the commission asked the acting director to investigate and report.

TURN ROMONA HOTEL INTO BIG CLUB

Resort Corporation Reorganized—Addition Planned

A deal was completed last week whereby the Romona Hotel Corporation, at the head of Little Traverse Bay, east of Harbor Springs, is changed from a hotel to a club corporation which will operate the hotel and grounds as a great private all year-round club, starting next spring.

Under the reorganization plan L. A. Rossel, of Detroit, becomes president and Frits Cremer of the corporation becomes the vice president and secretary.

It is the idea of the new organization to sell memberships in the club to a selected number of persons, the total probably being limited to 1,250 families. Work of selling will likely start within a few days. The outlook seems most promising, according to Mr. Cremer.

Operation plans call for the addition of a fifty room wing to the hotel, erection of a building to serve as an employees-quarters and the changing of the present help quarters into guest rooms, giving the hotel enough rooms to care for from 300 to 350 guests. A 27 hole golf course, indoor swimming pool and other summer sports and entertainments: Skiing, skating, tobogganing, sledding, and like winter events will be included in the club's equipment.

More children are killed from swallowing pins than by "unloaded" guns, according to statistics recently compiled.

NO-LICENSE DRIVER RUNS OVER
12-YEAR-OLD BOY

Cheboygan Normal Student Falls as a Moon Peddler—Man
Hit By Auto

Tony Benser, 12 years old, was knocked down and run over by Ira Gumm in the business section Monday evening. The lad maintained he wasn't hurt when help reached him, but at Dr. Wessels' office it was found he had a broken collar bone, the arch of his right foot broken, one ear partly torn off, and a bad abrasion on the bridge of his nose. The car had passed over his head.

Later when being taken to the Ferris home, where he had been staying, he maintained he could walk on one foot and needn't be carried. He was a game little cuss, as someone remarked.

The lad was taken home Tuesday by his father, who has recently moved onto a place south of town, from Wolverine.

Ira Gumm, driver of the car, was driving without a license and was going at such a speed through the business section that Deputy Sheriff B. W. Mitchell, who was sitting in his own car talking to two officers, was preparing to take after him when the officers saw him strike the Benser boy.—Mancelona Herald.

Student Moonshine Peddler

One of the young men students of the county normal class was arrested last Saturday charged with peddling moonshine to the workers in the road camp on the Mackinaw road north of the city. Owing to the trouble that the foremen of the camp have been having in dealing with moonshine peddlers to the workers of the camp a watch had been set for the offenders and this young lad was the first one to fall into the trap. He was detained there after being caught with the goods and the sheriff sent for, who went out and brought him back to the county jail to rest there until on Monday when he appeared before Justice King, where he wanted to plead guilty as charged, but there was nothing the justice could do but send the lad to the circuit judge where he again repeated his plea and the judge put him under bonds to appear at a later session of the circuit court.—Cheboygan Democrat.

Harbor Man Hit By Auto

George Smith, aged about 40 years, was struck by a passing automobile on the highway near Harbor Springs on Monday evening of last week at about 6 o'clock and received a very serious fracture of his skull. The man was brought to Petoskey hospital and Dr. Dean Burns reports that several pieces of the fractured skull bone were removed. His condition is reported critical.—Emmet County Graphic.

New Postmaster at Harbor Springs

Announcement was made at Washington last week of the appointment of W. DeMont Wright as acting postmaster at Harbor Springs, succeeding Arthur B. Backus, resigned. The naming of Wright followed the resignation of Postmaster Backus, who has held that position since his appointment by former Congressman Frank D. Scott. In relinquishing the duties of postmaster, Mr. Backus gave as a reason the pressure from his growing real estate and insurance business.

Killed at Alanson

Louis Newman, a former resident of this city, was killed Monday afternoon at Alanson when struck by a train. The regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be held Wednesday, November 9, and hereafter each regular meeting will be held the second Wednesday of each month at 7:45 p. m. in the high school assembly room.

The program for this month has been arranged in keeping with American Educational Week. Roll call will be answered with, "My Favorite Book." Paper, "Children's Reading," by Mrs. Harley Ochs. "Home Reading," by Mrs. Wm. Supernaw. "What Can We Do To Interest Our Children, in Reading and Discussing Current Events" by Miss McKinley. A picture will be presented to the room having the largest number of parents in attendance at the meeting. This picture is to be kept in the winning room for one month or as long as this particular room can keep it in compliance with the contest. This contest is from the kindergarten to and including the 6th grade.

An open forum will be held at each meeting where questions may be brought to be discussed at the following meeting, or be taken up thru the executive board of the P. T. A., the school board or committees.

PRISONERS TAKEN TO SERVE TERMS

Sheriff's Party—Encounter—Heavy Snow on Southern Trip

Accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Henry Cook of East Jordan, Sheriff Dave Vaughan, made a trip to the southern part of the state last Friday, transferring prisoners from the county jail to state institutions.

Stella Evans of Boyne City was taken to the Detroit House of Correction, where she will serve two years for larceny. Jesse Levett of Grand Rapids, convicted on a similar charge, was taken to the Michigan State Reformatory at Ionia, to begin a sentence of one year. Arthur Moon of Boyne City, also convicted of larceny, was taken to Jackson prison, where he will serve one year.

On the return trip the party encountered deep snow in many places. The vicinity of Gaylord, Elmira and Mancelona had a heavy snowfall, necessitating plowing of the highways.

VIOLATING FISHERMAN PAYS FINE AND COSTS

Charles Bissell Arrested by Game Warden Ed. Pettet

Charles Bissell, local commercial fisherman, was fined $50.00 and costs of $3.20 in Justice Cooper's court last Wednesday, for failure to comply with the state law governing the disposition of spawn.

We understand that instead of turning in his spawn at St. Ignace, in accordance with the ruling in force, Bissell sold his lift of trout at Mackinaw City and turned in no spawn. Game Warden Ed. Pettet of the state department of conservation made the arrest. Rather than lose his permit to fish the remainder of the season, Bissell paid his fine.

NORWOOD

The sun on the water and the wind tossed pines has called Norwood's last resort family, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cox, also a daughter, Mrs. Packer and her son, who left last Saturday for Chicago. After a short visit there with relatives, they will go to Miami, Florida.

WINTER SPORTS BOOSTERS GATHER

GREAT MICHIGAN RALLY HELD LAST WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Soo, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Many Other Cities Are Represented

With men attending from as far north as the Soo and as far south as Grand Rapids and Muskegon and from nearly every city and town between those points, an enthusiastic winter sports meeting was held at Traverse City last Wednesday evening. The banquet and program were held at the Park Place hotel with about 100 present.

W. L. McManus, Jr., of Petoskey, president of the Michigan Winter Sports association, was toastmaster. The first speaker, C. C. Wells of Traverse City, told of the organized winter sports in the schools of Duluth and suggested that hockey leagues be established and week-end trips on snow-shoes and skis be encouraged in the schools of Michigan.

Harry W. Musselwhite of Manistee, P. T. Mitchell of Petoskey, J. T. Sharpsteen of Cadillac and representatives from several other cities told of the encouraging progress being made, all agreeing that inter-city leagues in hockey and other sports would be of great help in interesting the general public.

Harold Titus of Traverse City, member of the state conservation commission, assured the gathering that the commission members are in full sympathy for the winter sports movement. Five state parks, including one at Grayling, are being made ready for use this winter, where various experiments will be tried, with the plan of extending those activities found most suited to other state parks as rapidly as possible. The theory of the state officials, he said, was to provide sports for the average individual to enjoy.

Hockey League Suggested
Stanley Newton of the Soo, told of the enthusiasm of the upper peninsula for winter sports and commended the men present for the fact that in this section of the lower peninsula the work has the support of the city governments and civic organizations. H. W. Boehme of Greenbush, gave further advice drawn from his experiences, emphasizing that sports requiring hills and snow are the ones with which to attract outsiders, as skating and hockey are available in almost any section except the south.

John A. Doelle of Lansing, secretary of the state association, expressed the satisfaction of the officers with the progress being made and predicted that in time the winter programs will be such that Michigan people will prefer to stay at home and enjoy them rather than to go to warmer climates for the winter. He also advocated that the state department of public instruction secure a competent man to supervise programs for the public schools.

The meeting was closed with an enthusiastic invitation from the Cadillac delegation to hold the next meeting in their city.

WORK ON STREETS WORTHY OF COMMENT

We May Polite With Pride to Conditions in Our City

The Courier points with great pride to the condition of the many streets of our fair city, which have been cleared of leaves and other rubbish through the work of the city street commission in charge of Archie Alecock.

We dare say there is hardly a city in the state of Michigan that takes the same amount of pride in its appearance as does Charlevoix—and we believe our readers are of the same opinion. During the fall season, the streets are usually cluttered with leaves and small branches and this condition leads to later trouble from plugged sewers and drainage system.

Charlevoix will not have that trouble as long as such meritorious work as is now under way is kept up. Our city officials take pride in the name of "Charlevoix the Beautiful" and are always on the alert to maintain it.

JUDGE CORRELL WANTS THE MISSING GLOVE

How would you like to be in this predicament? Someone the evening of the chicken pie supper at the M. E. church placed a glove in the overcoat pocket of Judge S. A. Correll. The presumption is they thought the overcoat was their own. Now the judge has the glove—just the one. He has asked the Courier to express this desire—that the person owning this glove either come and get it or mail him its mate. One glove is no good to him as he is a two-fisted man. We cannot help but wonder how the deal will end.

REAL ESTATE BOARD ELECTS

TRY COUNTY GROUP MET HERE LAST WEDNESDAY

Elder Matthews Named to Lead Association for Year—Have Meetings Each Month

Earl A. Young, local real estate dealer and developer of Boulder Park on the Lake Shore Drive, was host last Wednesday to members of the Try-County Real Estate Board of Charlevoix, Emmet and Antrim counties, at a luncheon served at one of the stone cottages at Boulder Park.

Following the splendid dinner served by the host there were talks by James Fagan, of Muskegon, president of the Michigan Real Estate Association, and John Doelle, secretary of the state association.

This was the annual election meeting and these directors were named: Emmet county—W. G. McCune, Samuel Smith and John Quinlan; Charlevoix county—C. T. McCutcheon and J. H. Parker, Boyne City, and Earl Young, Charlevoix; Antrim county—R. C. Bennett, Alba; M. B. Carver, Elk Rapids, and J. Barry, Central Lake.

Officers elected by this board are: President, Elder Matthews, Harbor Springs; vice president, John Quinlan, Petoskey; secretary, Earl A. Young, Charlevoix; treasurer, S. C. Smith, Petoskey.

A new plan of meeting was announced and sessions will be called once a month, the first Wednesday in each month, all to be held at Charlevoix, it being considered proper to have the meetings at the most centrally located city in the group. Nearly all the real estate dealers of these three counties are already allied with the association. The Tri-County society is already allied with Michigan and the national associations.

The slogan for the year is "One Hundred Per Cent Membership," while the aim is the development of Northern Michigan in the most stable manner. Winter sports will be pushed not only by the organization but by the individual members.

COUNTY CLERK REPORTS HEAVY LICENSE SALES

That Charlevoix county will be well represented among the vast throng taking to the woods in quest of "whitetails" this fall is indicated by a report from the county clerk's office Monday morning. Up to that time 205 licenses had been issued to hunters with fifteen of this number going to the fairer sex. It is estimated 250 licenses will be issued before the season is closed.

Notice
Marion Center and Phelps nutrition class will meet at 10:30 fast time, Friday, November 18, at Marion town hall. All the ladies are invited to attend. Bring pencil and note book.

EAST JORDAN WON FRIDAY'S BATTLE

ADDED 19 TO 0 WIN TO LONG STRING OF VICTORIES

Locals Outclassed Before Large Armistice Day Crowd—Result of Other Games

Before a large Armistice Day crowd last Friday afternoon, East Jordan won a well played game from Charlevoix high school, 19 to 0, thus keeping intact their unbroken string of victories.

Although the field was slippery, both teams made some nice end runs. The all-around team play of East Jordan and some classy passing and end running by Barnett, Pray and Taylor proved Charlevoix's undoing. The game opened with East Jordan receiving. Being held for downs, an exchange of punts followed. After Pray returned 20 yards, Taylor made 20 yards around end and repeated for 20 yards more behind beautiful interference. Barnett went five yards and over for a touchdown.

In the second quarter, Marshall carried the ball for 15 yards, and Charlevoix was forced to punt, Pray returning 20 yards. Taylor passed to Barnett 15 yards, Taylor went 15 yards around end and a pass, Taylor to Pray, netted 12 yards and another touchdown. The half ended 13 to 0. Barnett went over for the third touchdown in the third period from the three-yard line. East Jordan made 15 first downs to Charlevoix's five.

Results of Other Games
Petoskey further strengthened her hold on the Northern Michigan championship last Friday by humbling the hitherto undefeated Cheboygan team by a score of 32 to 0. It was Petoskey's game from start to finish and was Cheboygan's first set-back this season.

Harbor Springs won a 6 to 0 game at the expense of the oft-defeated Alpena team Friday afternoon, while Cadillac was hammering Big Rapids into a 13-0 defeat. Another game of interest to Northern Michigan fans was the struggle between Traverse City and Ludington at Traverse City Saturday afternoon which Traverse won 28 to 0. The victory left them with a clean slate for the year and the Northern Michigan championship now hinges upon the Petoskey-Traverse City game at the Traverse City stadium Saturday afternoon. Many from this city plan to make the trip to see this deciding game.

NO CONTRACT IS GIVEN FOR AIR MAIL SERVICE

Postmaster Weaver Has No Confirmation of Current Reports

Reports are current throughout the state that a contract for air mail service to Beaver Island has been let to Roy D. Campbell by the postal department.

To date no confirmation has been received by local postmaster, George W. Weaver, to that effect. Mr. Weaver stated that even the postal inspector was unaware that such a contract had been signed and had written him to confirm the report. The contract will be let through this office, and it certainly seems that local postal officials would be the first to be notified.

Inasmuch as three bids for air mail service have been received, there is a possibility such a contract will be closed and it is hoped locally that the case will terminate in that result.

Miss Winder, who is now visiting her mother at the Hotel Charlevoix, has many Charlevoix friends.

MARION TOWNSHIP MAN DEAD

MATTHEW SAUNDERS WAS VICTIM OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

Staunch Character Had Won Him Respect of Neighbors and Entire Community

Residents of Charlevoix and Marion township lose an honored and respected citizen and neighbor in the death of Matthew Saunders, which occurred at his home near Nowlad Lake last Wednesday evening, November 9th.

Mr. Saunders had been in poor health throughout the entire summer. He was afflicted with mastoid trouble, which became complicated about two weeks before his death, resulting in spinal meningitis.

Deceased was born in Essex county, Canada, August 22, 1874 and was 53 years old at time of death. He moved to Charlevoix county with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Saunders, at the age of four years and has since made his home here. On May 7, 1902 he was united in marriage to Miss Lillian Sandrok at Petoskey, Michigan. To this union were born three children, two of whom survive, viz: Clayton and Wallace of Charlevoix. A daughter, Dorothy, died in 1921. Besides his wife and the children named, Mr. Saunders is also survived by two brothers, Jerry of Charlevoix, and James of Los Angeles, California. Three sisters, Mrs. Martha Denno of Detroit, Mrs. Mary Hester Campbell of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Lina Brown of this city also survive him.

Funeral services were held Saturday morning, November 12, at 10:00 o'clock, from the home in Marion township, Rev. John Lockyer of the Methodist church and Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church officiating. Interment was made at Brookside cemetery. Deceased was a member of the Methodist church of this city.

Mr. Saunders was one of the progressive farmers of Marion township, where his noble character won him recognition and the friendship of his neighbors. Such men are missed when they answer death's summons. Mr. Saunders will be greatly missed from our daily life.

LANSING COUPLE WERE MARRIED HERE SATURDAY

Miss Gladys Horton, niece of W. T. Driggatt of this city, and Robert Richardson, both of Lansing, Mich., were married last Saturday afternoon at the Methodist parsonage. Rev. John Lockyer performed the ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends of the young couple. A wedding supper at the Driggatt home followed the ceremony. The newly-weds left Sunday for their home in Lansing.

HEROS AVERAGE LOWER IN MONTH

CHANGE OF FEED AND WEATHER CONDITIONS RESPONSIBLE

Report of County Dairy Herd Improvement Association Covers Leaders in All Classes

Following is the report of the Charlevoix Dairy Herd Improvement Association for the month of October, as prepared by Cecil G. Dobben, Charlevoix county cow tester:

For the month of October the herds averaged 11 cows, with an average of 5,964 pounds of milk and 245.8 pounds of butter fat to the herd. The average production per cow in the association is 535 pounds of milk and 22.06 pounds of butterfat (including dry cows).

There are 234 cows on test of which 62 are pure breeds, or about 27 per cent registered cows.

The high herd in butterfat is owned by the Breezy Point Farm, Ironton. The herd consists of 11 pure bred Holsteins, averaging 987 pounds of milk and 33.90 pounds of butterfat. These figures include dry cows.

Elmer Ingalls of Charlevoix leads the two year old class with a grade Holstein giving 1302 pounds of milk and 45.6 pounds of butterfat. A two year old Jersey owned by Fred Wurn of Boyne City, is second in its class with 728 pounds of milk and 38.6 pounds of butterfat for 31 days. Another grade Jersey owned by Elmer Murray of East Jordan is third, giving 635 pounds of milk and 36.8 pounds of butterfat.

The Orchard Hay Farm of Charlevoix owns pure-bred Holsteins which are the two high cows in the three year old class, giving 1038, 1032 pounds of milk and 363 and 361 pounds of butterfat respectively. Elmer Murray owns the third high cow, a grade Jersey, giving 530 pounds of milk and 33.2 pounds of butterfat for the 31 day month.

R. J. Srigley of Route 3, Charlevoix, has high cow in the four year old class, a grade Jersey, giving 995 pounds of milk and 41.6 pounds of butterfat. The Murphy Bros. of East Jordan, own a pure bred Guernsey which is second high in its class, giving 629 pounds of milk and 30.2 pounds of butterfat. Irving Crawford of East Jordan, owns third high cow in its class, a grade Guernsey giving 685 pounds of milk and 29.5 pounds of butterfat.

S. Ulvund of East Jordan leads the mature cow class with a grade Holstein which gives 1674 pounds of milk and 60.3 pounds of butterfat. Almost a two pound a day average. A pure Jersey owned by Elmer Murray is second, giving 1078 pounds of milk and 58.2 pounds of butterfat. The Breezy Point Farm has two pure bred Holsteins giving 1551 and 1590 pounds of milk and 58.1 and 54.1 pounds of butterfat respectively. Albert Balch of Route 1, Charlevoix, owns a grade Guernsey giving 1240 pounds of milk and 49.6 pounds of butterfat for the 31 days.

Two separators have been found during the past month, losing for the members about $1.90 in one month. They both can be and will be repaired.

Due to change in feed and weather conditions, the herds have been averaging lower than during previous months.

STATE SEEKS MORE NEWS OF GAME

Sportsmen Are Asked to Fill in Questionnaire

Questionnaires issued by the state department of conservation, formerly sent to hunters after the county clerks had made returns on license sold, have been furnished to county clerks this year with instructions to give them to the licensees.

The information gathered in this way is used by the department in planning for more game and better game protection. The questionnaires are printed on government post cards so that there is no expense to their return.

The questions asked are:
In what county did you hunt?
Did you get a buck?
Near or between what towns?
If not, how many days did you hunt?

If so, how long did you hunt before killing your buck?
Number of points on his antlers and his weight.

How many deer did you see?
Bucks, does and fawns.
Did you get a bear?
If not, did you see a bear?

FIRST DEBATE TO BE NOV. 18

CHARLEVOIX BOOKED TO GO TO MANCERONA

Will Take Negative of Question of Doing Away With Direct Primary Election Idea

Charlevoix high school starts this debating season Friday evening, meeting the strong Mancelona high school team at Mancelona.

Charlevoix will be represented by LaRue Higman, Audry Orvis and Helen Dick, who will attempt to convince the Mancelona audience, or at least the judges, that the direct primary system of nomination should not be abolished.

It is believed that several carload of rooters will accompany the team to Mancelona to support them in a determined effort to bring home the forensic scalp of one of the strongest debate teams in Northern Michigan. On Friday evening, 238 high schools in every part of the state will meet in 119 debates in which 714 high school pupils are participating.

This debate followed by three others on December 9th, January 13th and January 27th, will constitute the four debates of the preliminary series in which every high school must participate in order to qualify for the elimination series of debates.

Every high school that qualifies for the elimination series of debates will be presented with the University of Michigan wall plaque trophy, which is a mahogany shield eighteen inches by fifteen inches wide, upon which is superimposed a nine-inch solid bronze medallion with embossed lettering.

Only 64 high schools can qualify for the elimination series which will culminate at the eleventh annual state championship debate to be held at Ann Arbor in Hill auditorium on Friday, April 27.

The two schools participating in this final debate will each receive a trophy cup presented by the University of Michigan extension division, and each of the six debaters will receive a gold watch as a testimonial of individual merit.

In the final state championship, held in Hill auditorium at Ann Arbor on the 11th of last May, Ann Arbor high school won first honors and Albion high school won second honors. The audience assembled for this final debate numbered 3,000 people, which is the largest audience that has ever attended a state championship debate in the Michigan high school debating league.

The league was organized by the board of regents of the University of Michigan in 1917, and has for the past ten years conducted debates among the high schools of the state.

AT THE MOVIES
Beery and Hatton at Last Get the Breaks

A new era has dawned in the lives of Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

For the first time in their screen careers they "win the gal" in one of their pictures.

Romanec has always been denied these two screen stars. In all their pictures they have struggled through reel after reel in hectic adventure in behalf of some dainty heroine only to see her lost to a handsomer and younger rival, just about 50 feet ahead of the final close-up.

It is different in "Now We're in the Air," which will be at the Palace Wednesday and Thursday, their new Paramount comedy, produced under the direction of Frank Strayer.

Of course there is a catch to it. They both win the same girl, which gives Louise Brooks a chance to play her first dual role on the screen. She is her own twin, for the purpose of the plot of "Now We're in the Air." One twin has been raised as a German, the other as French.

W. C. T. U. DISCUSSED
"PEACE" ARMISTICE DAY
Interesting Meeting At Home of Mrs. H. S. Harsha

The November meeting of the Woman's Christian Union was held last Friday (Armistice Day) at the home of Mrs. H. S. Harsha.

Mrs. Walter Roger conducted the devotionals. Plans were made for sending a Thanksgiving box to the Brown Home for Aged Women at Grand Rapids. Mrs. A. C. Belding was leader of the meeting and the topic "Peace" was presented and discussed. Fear of war was mentioned as one of the causes that brings about war. Conscription business as well as men was advocated in case of another war. The thought is abhorrent while the country is plunged into debt and the soldiers often come home to find themselves jobless. Great advances toward permanent world peace have been made in recent years. International meetings of official character have been held such as the Limitation of Arms conference in Washington in 1922 and the conferences at Locarno (1925) and Geneva (1927.) During the same period hundreds of gatherings of non-political groups, such as the American Peace Society and similar organizations, have sought to make future wars impossible.

It's a pretty good idea to so conduct yourself that you won't have to ask the town editor to keep the story out of the paper.

Not merely is the social fabric said to be weakening, but many of us find our trouser seats getting thin.

Is the only perfect Anti-freeze on the market for winter protection of automobile cooling system.

It is an anti-freeze and not an anti-leak and therefore does not form a coating over the cooling system as everything of an anti-freeze nature must do in order to stop a leak. Prestone conforms to the requirements of the Bureau of Standards and has been recommended by leading automobile manufacturers.

It is economical because it does not evaporate and can be used year after year by drawing off and saving in the spring. Put 45 pints of Prestone in your radiator and it will need only the same attention as it does in the summer.

He was my friend—my pal, under-

"He's name not McDonald?" asked the bewildered Etienne, dazed by the swift reversal of the situation.

"No! I never suspected—never dreamed who McDonald was. He was shot in the face while I was in the hospital. I didn't know how bad it was—never saw him again."

With a quick glance of admiration at the elegant frame of the man deep in delirium, Etienne went to find the galley and start a fire.

Guthrie found and lit a lamp; then poured some whisky in a glass and propping up the head of the unconscious man, got it down his throat. A rapid inspection of the boat discovered a fourth corpse. The Cree known to be with the schooner, and another man, had evidently deserted the dying. The absence of rash on the bodies and faces did away with the possibility of measles or smallpox. It was doubtless influenza, contracted from an Indian or Eskimo, for a warning had been received at Albany from Moose that influenza was again loose on the bay.

PETOSKEY, MICHIGAN

"Yes! It's my duty to report this to Cameron at once."

"De Cree cag go."

"No, you'll need his help. I'll pay him well."

"But," Etienne sensed that something lay behind it all. "we tak' dis man to Elkwan an' de police come—den wait?" Etienne also had guessed.

"At Albany," smiled Guthrie. "I'll tell Cameron that you shot yourself accidentally—bad wound. And I am going to bring Miss Quarrier up the coast tomorrow, to nurse you. She knows all about wounds—and I think —she'll come," added Guthrie quietly.

"By gosh!" The half-breed stared at his chief in unqualified admiration.
"It's his only chance for life. Here he would die. The place is infested with germs—ought to be burned. You understand? You start as soon as you can. I'm on my way now. I'll be in Elkwan tomorrow night—if she'll come with her medicine kit. And I think she will—for she's a soldier.
God bless her!"

After forcing more soup down the throat of the sick man, he was given a stiff drink of whisky, huddled in fur, bound with strips of blanket, and with great difficulty carried to the sled.
Fortunately for Guthrie's plan, the delirium had not taken a violent form, for the enormous strength of Galbraith would have baffled them.

With a grip of the hand Guthrie bade his staunch head man good-by, and whistling in shot, started with his tired team for Albany. Already that day the dogs had done sixty miles and the forty miles before them over the rough sealer, even with the light sled, would, if pushed, bring them into Albany, five sore-footed, stiff-legged cripples. So it was not until the sky grayed with the dawn that Guthrie drove up to the tradehouse at Fort Albany, and feeding his tired team, put them in an empty shack, where they might sleep through the morning, undisturbed by the hectoring of the post dogs.

Later, walking in on the Camerons at their breakfast, he told of the atak-ing of the schooner of the dead.

"Well, that's the wildest tale I have heard in forty years on this coast," ejaculated the factor, while his wife and children sat with awed faces.

"Not a soul alive on the ship?"

"Not a soul alive," repeated Garth.
"Fit" and probably the whisky they carried didn't help any. The schooner reeked with it. Poor devils, they must have stayed drunk to ease their misery."

"And the fur, two years' trade, did you see it?"

"No, but Etienne said there was a lot of it on board. Then, somehow, in casting his rifle, he shot himself."

"Shot himself?"

"Yes, in the hip. That's why I'm here," Guthrie took the bill in his teeth as his gray eyes squarely met Cameron's. "I'm going to ask Miss Quarrier to come to Elkwan with her medicine kit. She knows wounds—
I'm afraid of blood poisoning."

"But, whyever didn't you put him on the sled and bring him here. She can take care of him better at Albany, and then—"

Guthrie shook his head. "He wouldn't come, Cameron. He thinks he's going to die, and wanted to be with his wife and children."

"Oh, but how can you ask that girl to go to Elkwan? She's needed here.
Swan'll raise a devil of a row—has already, over your scalping her."

In the narrowing eyes of Guthrie lurked a glint which Cameron recognized. He had seen it before in the look of men, indomitable, desperate.
It startled him, made him wonder—about the affair between Joan Quarrier and the factor of Elkwan.

"Of course, we don't want anything to happen to Etienne," he temporized,
"but why you didn't bring him here is beyond me."

"I've already told you why, Cameron. The gray eyes of the speaker were black, as they bored coldly into those of the kindly Scotsman. Ill at ease, Mrs. Cameron went to the kitchen to digest the startling announcement.

"Yes, I know they always want their family around when they're scared.
Well, if she'll go, it's her business.
I'll raise a rumpus, though, and I hate to have her—hurt."

Guthrie was on his feet, scowling down at the other. "One minute!
Let's go slow here! You're my superior, and I had hoped, my friend, but you're on dangerous ground, Cameron. What do you mean by—hurt?"

"There, there, now, my lad! Keep cool," expostulated the older man.
"I'm your friend and I'm proud to be.
Now you've brought it up, I've got to talk from the shoulder. You don't realize what that skunk of a Quarrier tallied about you—"

"Oh, I know all about that—that sleek child who died at Elkwan—Joan was there. Hasn't she told you?"

"Why, of course! But the rest, here, and at Moose—you know them. Swan has made a row because she wasn't sent to the mission, to die."

"What of it?" snapped Guthrie.
"He says you kept her there against her will!"

"Nonsense! She couldn't walk a hundred yards without stopping to rest. She refused to come down the coast to the mission—just faded away."

"Mrs. Cameron and I understand,
Guthrie. Etienne and Joan told us.
It's this white-livered missionary who has made the trouble and if Joan goes with you to take care of Etienne, he'll not spare her either—he'll hurt with righteous horror—And it'll hurt Joan."

"Will you call your wife?" asked Guthrie, in a tone brittle like the shattering of ice, the muscles of his jaw and temples working under the skin.

"Why, yes!" replied the factor.
"Marry! We want to speak to you."

"Mrs. Cameron," said Guthrie, quietly,
"your husband tells me that it will

How Timber Fires OFTEN START

HOW TO PREVENT FIRES

1. Matches — Be sure your match is out. Break it in two before you throw it away.

2. Tobacco — Be sure that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stems are dead before throwing them away. Never throw them into brush, leaves or needles.

3. Making Camp — Before building a fire scrape away all inflammable material from a spot 8 feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the center and in it build your camp fire. Keep your fire small. Never build it against trees or logs or near brush.

4. Breaking Camp — Never break camp until your fire is out—dead out.

5. Brush Burning — Never burn brush or brush in windy weather or while there is the slightest danger that the fire will get away.

A carelessly left campfire—a carelessly thrown match or spark—may mean acres of timber destroyed in a few hours. Only decades of slow growth will replace the loss.

Pine forests catch fire easily. Many travelers from states where there are no forests, or only hardwood forests, do not realize that our northern woods, composed largely of highly inflammable pine, will burn so easily. The underlying bed of leaves and dry pine needles acts like tinder in carrying fire from a spark dropped in it. Fires creep underneath this forest floor and appear in distant places.

Be careful! Help preserve the forest treasures for everybody's use.

seriously hurt Joan Quarrier's reputation in missionary circles, if she goes to take care of Etienne's wound."

"I'm afraid it will cause a lot of talk here and at Moose," regretfully agreed the factor's wife. "You know what they are."

"No, I don't know what they are—except this, I know that Mr. Swan must have a foul mind. Of course, he has no head—there's no room under his bet for one."

"I'll surely forbid her to go with you, Major Guthrie."

"Suppose she goes anyway?"

"I don't know what to say."

Guthrie smiled. "Well, would you feel better about it, if I told you I loved her, and have already tried to ask her to marry me—will ask her every day she's at Elkwan?"

The face of the startled and embarrassed Mary Cameron flushed with delight. "Oh, Major Guthrie! I'm so glad—so glad!"

"I'll take her up today! I wasn't sure you were serious, my boy, and we think a lot of her," gruffly exclaimed the factor.

Her eyes misted with tears she could not control, the factor's wife grasped the hand of Guthrie with both of hers. "I don't know—she never told me!" she cried, "but I've thought somehow that she thinks a lot of you. I wish you luck!"

So peace was made at Cameron's.

CHAPTER XII

Garth found Joan Quarrier at the Mission school. Entering the building, he stood for a space in a doorway and watched her read to a group of Cree orphans.

As she looked up, aware of his presence, he said: "It is not February, but I have returned."

"Something is the matter?" she said, apprehensively. "What has happened at Elkwan?"

"Etienne shot himself."

"But you, why are you here? Why did you come?"

"For you."

"For me—to go to Elkwan?" Dazed at the idea, her hand sought her forehead, while the chattering children crowded curiously around them.

"He wants you. There may be infection—and you know wounds—have everything in your kit, bandages, stimulants, antiseptics."

"Let me put on my coat and we'll talk outside," she said.

So they went in the clearing.

"I know well what I'm asking," he said. "It means a day on the sled—discomfort, for you. But he is my friend, and it may mean his life—your coming."

Her troubled eyes turned to his. "I want to go—the trip is nothing. It's going, alone, with you—it means leaving the mission, I suppose."

"Of course, Swan will make a fuss. To him it will look immoral—you going—to save a man's life," he said, savagely, "but for you—an army nurse, with a life at stake," he pleaded, "is there any choice?"

She smiled wistfully as she gazed over the frozen river.

"I've got to go. It's in my blood—to help them—the wounded."

His heart leaped at the words. "To help the strong—to help me—is that in your blood, too, Joan Quarrier?" he asked passionately.

She shivered and avoided his eyes, as a wave of color swept up to her dark hair. "The strong need no help," she parried.

Again in control of himself, the elated Guthrie smothered his own emotion in this thought for the stricken friend at Elkwan, for whom he had led to the man he respected and the girl he loved. And he wondered what she would say to him when she learned of the deception. That she would have come as readily, had he told the truth, he had no doubt, but the secret of Guthrie's presence at Elkwan was a trust, sacred, inviolable. He had told Cameron that the crew of the Ghost had died to a man. At Albany, Laughing McDonald was a dead man. On the way up the coast, Joan Quarrier should learn the truth.

"Oh, ye of little faith!" Guthrie sadly shook his head. "What must I do to convince you?"

The girl made no answer.

Looking up, Garth saw, huddled in fur cap and coat much too large for him, a "short figure blocking their path."

"You're going on this mad journey?" the shrill voice of Swan demanded. "Do you hold your reputation so cheaply?"

"You have heard?"

"Yes! Mrs. Cameron has told me what this man has come for."

"You're too late, Swan, she has promised to go," said Garth quietly. Ignoring Guthrie, the little man gravely warned:

"You realize, Miss Quarrier, if you go, you cannot return to the mission?"

"Yes, Mr. Swan. Before I became a mission teacher, and my moral welfare the object of your solicitude, I lived a man's life. It is at stake. It is worth more than my reputation."

To Garth she said abruptly: "Come for me when you are ready. I'll go and pack my kit."

"Bravo, Dealer of Wounds! That was spoken like a soldier," and walking squarely at the mortified missionary, dazed at the flouting of his authority, who stepped into the soft snow to avoid the threatened roll-along, the elated Guthrie hurried to the trailer-house.

"She'll go, she'll go!" he announced to the waiting factor.

"Good! You'll take good care of her, I know. I wish you the best of luck, my boy. She's a rare one—is Joan."

"Swan told her she couldn't return to the mission."

"A-h-h!" contemptuously granted the other. "We'll send over and get her belongings. She'll spend the rest of the winter with us. But she's much too valuable to the Swans for them to stick to their high horse. They'll be over trying to wheedle her into coming back."

"But I hope she won't."

"We'll see to that. Why, they didn't know how to feed a husky pup, and in charge of twenty children! Think of it! Joan turned to and taught 'em something, scientific, you know. Oh, they'll be back after her."

Guthrie grinned broadly as he said: "So will I."

"Well, I hope you get her."

Behind the slab counter Garth curled up on a bundle of blankets for a few hours' sleep, until his dogs were fit to take the ninety-mile run north to Elkwan and the sick man who, officially, had died on the coast.

At noon he drove his refreshed team to the mission where Joan, standing beside her duffle bags, waited in the snow.

With the light load of two passengers, the big runner sled—its wooden shoes shod with ice, which slips over a hard surface with less friction than steel and can be renewed at will, would ho sport for the five powerful dogs. Driving, as he would, to bring skill and medicine to the succor of the guest at Elkwan, Garth hoped to reach the post before dawn, but much depended on the light. A thick night would slow the dogs to a walk while crossing the mouths of the big rivers, where the cracks opened and closed over night and the trail led through hummocks and ridges, bad going by day—at night, heart-breaking to driver and dogs.

"You're not sorry—haven't regretted promising to come?" he asked, as he wrapped her in robes and stowed her bags.

She shook her head. "Not in the least, Mr. Exile. I'm reconciled now to the loss of the last shred of my reputation. It was a wild scene—in the house. They even prayed for me when they realized threats were futile."

"Prayed for you—you, bonded on an errand of mercy? In the name of all the saints, they'd let an innocent man die for want of proper care because of my reputation? I must be a monster to them!"

She laughed. "Yes, I can truthfully say that after what my brother told them, they think you are a terrible person."

"Do you?" he countered, leaning over the sled.

"Well," her dark eyes flashed up into his, "not exactly terrible, rather—what shall I say?—stubbish."

"Marche, Enstori!"

And the huskies, with shot ahead, galloped to the trailer-house. There the Camerons were waiting for the girl who had, also, burned her bridges. Shortly, down the cliff trail and over the river-ice raced the team, carrying hope for Craig Guthrie, deep in delirium at Elkwan, ninety white miles away.

As they left the river and turned up the coast, Guthrie's anxious eyes circled the gray horizon for indications of what would follow the haze-smothered sunset over the Kewatin muckies. For days, now, the weather had softened to above zero temperature, a characteristic of James bay winters, which are milder than those of the forest country to the south, and he prayed for a bright night, as his thoughts were busy with the tragedy of Craig Guthrie and his own part in the climax of the pitiful history.

Considering Its High Resale Value
The PONTIAC SIX
Actually Costs You Less
To Own and Drive

Even if the Pontiac Six did not command the high resale prices that it does, it would still enjoy the reputation of being a "wonderful buy" . . . for it is the only car combining the advantages of superior six-cylinder performance and the luxuries of a Fisher body at a price of $745 . . . But with a high resale price which reduces the net cost of ownership, a Pontiac Six is actually more economical to own and drive . . . This is a direct result of definite planning to design a low-price six that would win approval on the sound principles of genuine, long lived, inexpensive owner satisfaction . . . That is why used car buyers are willing to pay more for the Pontiac Six when the original owner is ready to replace it . . . Come in—get a ride—and let us give you the facts.

New lower prices on all body types (Effective July 15th): Coupe, $745; Sport Roadster $745; Sport Cabriolet, $795; Landau Sedan, $845; De Luxe Landau Sedan, $925; The New Oakland All-American Six, $1045 to $1285. COMMENDS DEPARTMENT

The postoffice department deserves warm words of commendation upon the announcement that the activities of undesirable mail patrons are to be curbed as far as possible, says the Toledo Blade. Included in the list of so-called undesirable patrons are those business houses which send out by mail thousands of parcels of unneeded merchandise, mostly neckties and handkerchiefs, and which attempt to use the facilities of the postoffice department for safe return of rejected packages or as a collecting agency for such goods as may be accepted by the recipients. Some further restrictive legislation may be necessary, the first assistant postmaster general says, and the next congress should pass it as quickly as possible, for the recommendation that practice be made an offense against the postal laws is sound and sensible. It certainly should not be possible, under any law, for a dealer in any kind of goods to thrust them upon the public with demand for immediate return of prompt payment. The parcel post never was intended for this nuisance traffic which has grown to great proportions, frequently in direct competition with home-town merchants.

PREPARE FOR CHRISTMAS RUSH

POSTMASTER OFFERS SUGGESTIONS ON PART OF PUBLIC

Mail Gift Packages Early and Insure Safe Delivery and Avoid Last Minute Rush

Postmaster George Weaver is already beginning to prepare for the Christmas rush of business. Notice from the postmaster general at Washington that this is the time to make ready for the big rush that always comes at holiday time has found a ready response in the Charlevoix postmaster.

Following is a part of some of the suggestions pertaining to public co-operation relative to Christmas mailing sent to the Charlevoix postmaster from Washington:

"The tang in the air and the wonderful colors of autumn leaves evidence the fact that another year is nearing its close and that the holiday season with its spirit of good will and cheer will soon be here.

"Christmas is a time of joy and gladness, and the custom of exchanging gifts, greetings cards, and other remembrances which is so generally followed during the holiday season is one of the main factors in promoting this happy condition. The observance of the custom of exchanging gifts greatly increases the volume of mail during the month of December, and it is therefore necessary to do everything possible to facilitate and expedite its handling.

"A sentimental value is attached to Christmas mail, and, in order to be in keeping with the purpose for which sent, it should reach the addressee in time to give its full measure of happiness and cheer on Christmas day. Postmasters should be pleased to assist in the promotion of this beneficent spirit. At the same time they should earnestly seek and develop the co-operation of mailers in the preparation of their Christmas mail, since such co-operation is an important and necessary factor in effecting its satisfactory movement. Patrons should be particularly urged to comply with conditions set forth below, the observance of which will accomplish the end desired, and thus promote the pleasure and satisfaction of all concerned.

"Postage—Prepay postage fully on all mail matter.

"Addresses—Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street number or box or rural route number whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left hand corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel for identification if tag is lost.

"Packing and wrapping—Pack articles carefully in strong, durable containers. Wrap parcels securely, but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label or endorsement reading: 'Contents: Merchandise. Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for inspection if necessary.' Together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled or indorsed in printing are subject to postage at the letter rate.

"Limit of weight and size—Parcels may not exceed 84 inches in length and girth combined, nor weigh more than 70 pounds if for delivery within the first, second or third zone, or 50 pounds in any other zone.

"Permissible Additions and Inclusions—Parcels may be marked, "Do not open until Christmas." This being permitted in order to encourage early mailing. Written greetings such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," and names numbers or symbols for the purpose of description may be included, with third of fourth class (parcel post) mail. Books may bear dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. Other written additions subject parcels to letter postage. Do not inclose letters in parcels, as doing so would subject entire parcel to letter postage. Communications prepaid at the first class rate may be sent with parcels prepaid at the third or fourth rate by securely attaching the envelopes containing the letters or other written matter to the outside of parcels.

"Seals—Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

"Insurance—Valuable parcels should be insured.

"Attention is renewed to previous campaigns to discourage the use of small or odd sized greeting cards and envelopes, which is a practice costly to the postal service. The co-operation of manufacturers, dealers and the public generally in the elimination of small-sized cards and envelopes to the end that postal service may be relieved of the burden of handling them is desired and should be sought and cultivated. It should be suggested that in no case should cards and envelopes be smaller than 2 1/4 by 4 inches, a size somewhat larger being preferable.

DEVELOPMENT OF CUT-OVER LAND

Old Lumber Town Transformed into Attractive Park Resort

When the virgin timber supply was exhausted by lumber and logging operations, conducted for a number of years by the Wisconsin Land & Lumber company of Hermansville, Mich., that town became merely an ugly blot on the landscape.

The important question then arose of how to best utilize the cut-over lands so that they become a real asset to the entire state of Michigan and especially to that part of the upper peninsula.

After exhaustive research and study, the idea was conceived to establish a resort that would be entirely different from the usual resort proposition. Blaney Park Resort, which was recently dedicated to the public, was the result of this idea. The 22,000 acres immediately adjacent to this point now presents to the passing tourist and to the more permanent visitor a scene of beauty and attractiveness unequalled anywhere in the northern country.

As the tourist speeds into sight of Blaney on either of the two important trunk lines that penetrate the upper peninsula he finds a handsome, commodious hotel; clean, attractive looking cottages and lawns, a complete waterworks and electric light system and in the distance a lovely little lake. A splendid nine-hole golf course is being laid out by a professional golf engineer and in the background is a forest of mixed hardwoods and pine that affords the lovers of nature every facility for exploring the woods and enjoying the trees, the birds, the game and the wild flowers.

Thus, an old lumbering operation has been transformed into something artistic and useful in the way of development of the upper peninsula.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS by B. C. Mellenkamp

The fifth annual Top O' Michigan potato and apple show held last week at Gaylord goes down in history as the best ever held with the largest display of apples yet gathered together.

Charlevoix county was well represented among the prize winners in this our first year in the show. We are indeed proud of the accomplishments of two of our exhibitors, Charles Koteskey, Hortons Bay and Eveline Orchards of East Jordan, who were the heaviest winners of potatoes and apples respectively in the entire show.

Charles Koteskey won 1st on a bushel sample of certified seed with competition from eight counties, carrying $25.00 in prize money, then copped 1st on his peek sample in the beginners class for $12.00 more, still not being contented, won 4th on the same peek in the open class for another $7.00, and finally, $5.00 for the best peek shown from Charlevoix county, making a total of $49.00 as his reward.

Harry Behling of Boyne City, was another winner getting 4th on a bushel sample for $10.00 premium money. Other exhibitors in potatoes were Bert Lumley of Boyne City and Cornelius Vandenberg of Ellsworth.

In the apple division the Eveline Orchards of East Jordan won, an even $100.00 in money besides several trees and a quantity of fertilizer. Through the splendid efforts of Prof. Taft and A. L. Darbee, they won the following:

1. Plines of five specimens—1st on Grimes Golden. 1st on Golden Russet. 2nd on Wealthy. 3rd on Wagner. 3rd on Stark Delicious.

BOYNE FALLS WOMAN INJURED BY NAIL

Murder and Suicide Takes Two at Rugg, Near Mancelona—Mio Ed. Talks of Bears

While Mrs. G. Hueston was driving a nail, last week, she received injuries which will probably cost her the sight of one eye.

Mrs. Hueston was trying to drive the nail into a wall when the hammer struck it a glancing blow in such a way as to cause the nail to fly backwards. It struck her eye and pierced it badly.

She was taken to a hospital where the nail was removed and every effort is being made to save her sight. The doctors are not very hopeful, however, as it is a dangerous wound. At last reports she was resting as easily as could be expected.—Boyne Citizen.

Shoots Enemy and Kills Self
Otis Peck, 50, operator at the Rugg power plant of the Antrim Iron company, was shot and killed about 11 o'clock Sunday night while on his way to his work at the plant.

Frank "Cudge" Carothers, 52, whom the coroner's jury found fired the shot, then went back to his own home and shot himself after writing five notes.

One shot from a 22 calibre revolver caused the death of Mr. Peck, but Carothers fired four shots into his own head with the same weapon before causing death. One at least passed under the scalp but did not enter the head. The first three shots entered the scalp high upon the forehead. The fourth shot was fired into the temple and probably caused instant death.

Bad blood between the two principals of months duration was the cause of the tragedy.—Mancelona Herald.

Some Difference in the Fish

All on account of a rainbow trout's tail, Raymond MacZuski, of Manistee is serving 50 days in jail in that city in lieu of paying a fine of $40 and costs after his conviction by a jury. MacZuski contended that the fish he sold was a whitefish, but the prosecution introduced in evidence at his trial the tail of a rainbow trout. Selling the latter is an offense.—Petoskey Evening News.

Mio Editor Talks of Bears

The editor of the Mio (Oscoda County) Telegram says: "Every protected bear in Michigan should have a trainer appointed over him. Bears are good travelers and the trainers should be long legged people. If not enough men can be found, women will do. Then every day shall the trainer say to the bear: 'Thou shalt not covet the farmer's honey, his orchard, his children, his calves, his pigs, his sheep, nor anything that is his.'"

The Literary and Sewing Club of the Methodist church will hold their annual Christmas Bazaar December 9 and 10. Place will be announced later.—Adv. 46-11.

$227,000,000 AMOUNT OF FEDERAL TAX MONEY

Governor Fred Green told government tax experts last week that the federal government took out of Michigan last year $227,000,000 in taxes. The state, county and municipal taxes collected in the state amounted to $220,000,000, giving the state a total of $447,000,000 paid in taxes last year.

WRITES ABOUT EASTERN FLOOD

LETTER TO MRS. ALWARD PUBLISHED IN PART

Mrs. Morton Goodrich Tells of Experiences in Recent New England Disaster

The following letter to Mrs. Will Alward of Charlevoix, Route 4, was written by her sister, Mrs. Morton Goodrich of Richmond, Vt. Mrs. Goodrich tells of her experiences during the recent disastrous flood which swept the New England states with great loss of life and heavy property damage:

Richmond, Vt., Nov. 6, 1927.

Dear Sister and All:
Am going to write and tell you about the "dreadful flood" we have had. Do not know where I can mail this as the railroads are all out of commission. Think you will see an account of it in your papers, and you might wonder if we had perished.

It certainly is a dreadful thing. It began Wednesday night with a hard rain which lasted all day Thursday and that evening the river began to overflow. Then we got word that a large dam in the northern part of the state had given way. Those who lived in the lower parts of town left their homes, one couple coming to our house. They had to carry the woman, but her husband got through by wearing rubber boots. The river was overflowing so rapidly now, that everyone was watching with much excitement. Of course Mart was out in the pouring rain with the rest. Finally they came to the house and said we must get out. So I threw our papers and what money was in the house and everything else I could get hold of into a bag, called Evelyn (the girl who rooms with us) from a sound sleep, (it was then 11:30 p. m.) and went to the Congregational church where others were gathered.

Soon we heard a loud crash—the large iron bridge was torn out, the lights went out and we were in total darkness. Someone came to our aid with flashlights. Mart had taken his car and horses to higher ground. We all stood around with the men outside, watching as best we could in the darkness. The word came for us to get to still higher ground, as they feared the flood might rush down the R. R. track and cut us off entirely. So we started out again in pouring rain. We went to the Masonic block where we remained until morning, when food and hot coffee was brought to us. Mart's sister and her daughter live in the upper part of town, so at daybreak they were down looking for us, and we later went home with them and are still here.

The water came into our house about 10 inches above the baseboards, so that the rugs and everything to that depth were soaked. In the cellar our canned fruit, vegetables and coal are all jumbled together. We worked all day yesterday shoveling out dirt, washing rugs and such. But we consider ourselves fortunate, as four houses in town were washed away entirely, the people losing their home, clothing and everything.

One house next to us has the cellar walls all washed out, windows broken, furniture thrown together and smashed up, beautiful lace curtains hanging out of broken windows, the porch torn away and the hen house entirely gone. Our steps are gone, also porch furniture and most of the porch.

But the saddest part of all was the next day when they began picking up bodies of some less fortunate above us. We do not know just how many lives were lost. At one farm house near here they were having a farm meeting and about twenty-four were caught in the flood there. They arrived the furniture upstairs, turned the cattle out of the barns. They are unable to escape in time, so they huddled up stairs and waited for daylight, expecting any moment at something would crash against the house and carry it away. All telephone connections were gone. Of course they were watching for someone to come to their aid. Finally motorbort from Burlington came to their rescue after saving many millions in other towns.

No deaths have been reported in this town, but of course hundreds of cattle and other animals were drowned. You see we had never had such thing here, so no one was prepared. We are thankful we have a home left for many were left homeless. I have read about floods and have seen pictures, but never realized what it meant before. They find all sorts of things washed ashore, but worst of all is finding the dead. We do not expect to have railroad service all winter because of so many wash-outs. Do not know when or how we will get mail. Mart cannot drive his route because so many bridges are washed out. Write us and tell other sisters to do same.

Your sister,

Maud.

WORK ON ROAD NEAR CLARION SUSPENDED

Work has been suspended this year by the contracting firm of Marsman and Taber on the state road south of Clarion and Boyne City, and the road is now open for traffic. Over four miles of cement have been completed with but 430 feet to be laid next year after the frost season has passed. Cement pavement now extends from the point south of Clarion to beyond Bear River, with gravel from there within one and one half miles of the city limits of Boyne City, the latter mile and half being of concrete.

SPANISH REVELERS HERE NOVEMBER 30

OPEN LECTURE COURSE FOR COMING WINTER

Four Other Popular Numbers From Redpath Bureau Promise Exceptional Entertainment

The opening number of what promises to be the most popular lecture course series ever presented in Charlevoix, is scheduled for Wednesday, November 30, at the Palace theater.

The following description of the Spanish Revelers, who appear here for the opening number, is typical of hundreds of other comments from newspapers in towns where they have entertained:

"The clash of the tambourine, the snap of the castanets, tinkling of guitars and plaintive violins, combined with the beauty of fresh, young voices, give unique charm to the program of The Spanish Revelers.

"Costumed in the dress of a wandering minstrel, the tinkling coins and gaudy colors, they sing mellow songs of the open road, the flickering fires of vagrant camps, twinkling stars and velvet shadows of the night.

"The young musicians know the type of music that will make popular appeal. Into the interpretation of this music they put all of their native ability, years of training and youthful ardor.

"An interesting group of players and singers is the Spanish Revelers. There is an individuality of character about their program that finds its way into the heart of every listener."

Other numbers on the program include Dr. Scott E. Bedford, Charles R. Taggart, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Wells and the Light Opera Revue, these numbers appearing December 12; January 9, February 14 and March 3, respectively. All come highly recommended from the Redpath Bureau, whose programs are always marked by their popularity from an entertainment standpoint.

With the completion of the auditorium and stage in the new gymnasium, now under construction, lecture course numbers will be held there. This will greatly cut expenses now being paid for rent, and it is hoped will put the series on a paying basis.

MCKENZIE HOME SCENE OF A SURPRISE PARTY

Friends Remind Couple of Their Wedding Anniversary

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Colon McKenzie was the scene of a jolly party Monday evening, when eight couples, friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie, dropped in to surprise them on their 15th wedding anniversary.

The evening was pleasantly spent by playing progressive pedro which was followed by a delightful luncheon served by Mrs. McKenzie. Before leaving the guests presented the host and hostess with a fine present as a token of their regards.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the Methodist church will hold their annual Christmas Bazaar at the Charlevoix Hardware Co., December 3.—Adv. 47-12.

SCHED. OF GAMES IS NOW ARRANGED

BASKETBALL TEAM STARTS PRACTICE SOON

With Many Veterans Back Prospects for Successful Season Are Bright

According to present plans, the Charlevoix high school basketball team will start practice in the new gymnasium within the next two weeks.

Work on the gymnasium is nearing completion at the present time and athletic officials have made it known that, but with the exception of equipment, which can be put in at any time, the gym will be ready for the team practice within a short time.

With a good place for training, Charlevoix's prospects for a successful season in basketball competition are very bright. Six letter men from last year's team, including Lyle Beaudoin, Dick Marshall, John Williams, Ed. King, Ted Brown and Max Novak are available again this season and it is probable that a team will be built around this group of experienced men. Coach Buchen also has a good looking bunch of reserve material to pick from, including some who will make last year's regular work for their berth on the team.

A schedule of 14 games has been arranged by athletic officials, although it was intimated the first three games scheduled in December would be canceled unless seating equipment at the gym was installed in time for these games. The other games on the schedule are as follows: Jan. 6—East Jordan here. Jan. 13—Pellston there. Jan. 14—Kalkaska here. Jan. 20—Kalkaska there. Jan. 21—Mancelona there. Feb. 10 Pellston here. Feb. 17—Gaylord here. Feb. 25—Mancelona here. Mar. 2—Boyne City here. Mar. 8—East Jordan there.

An effort is being made by local athletic officials to have the district basketball tournament, which will be played off March 7, 8 and 9, brought to Charlevoix. Charlevoix's bid for the district tournament now depends on whether seating equipment will be arranged for by that time. The new gymnasium when completed will have a seating capacity of 1200 people and for this reason chances for bringing the district meet here are very good. It has always proved a big draw for the town in which it was played and is an item worth serious consideration.

NONE INJURED WHEN BIG CAR OVERTURNED

While returning from the Traverse City-Petoskey game at Traverse City last Saturday, the Buick car driven by John Martin overturned in the road about two miles north of that city. According to occupants of the car, Mr. Martin was following another Buick which was preceded by two Fords. One of the leading cars stopped suddenly, causing the other to do the same. Mr. Martin's car careened sideways when he applied the brakes, struck a rut and overturned. No one was injured.

Spiritualist Meeting

The First Spiritualist church of Charlevoix will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock Sunday evening at the Moose hall. Lectures and messages will be given by Mrs. Ethyl Barnett of Anderson, Indiana. All are welcome.

WINTER SPORTS ARE LOOKING UP

ADVANCE RESERVATIONS ARE NOW BEING MADE

Results of Advertising Campaign During Month of August Becoming Apparent

Results of Charlevoix's special winter sports advertising campaign, held during the month of August, are now becoming apparent. That the campaign was not without success may be seen by a letter recently received by J. J. Hallett.

Mr. Hallett last week received a communication from Mrs. Joan Stewart of Chicago, requesting him to reserve four rooms for herself and party at his hotel for the New Year week end, at which time they intimated they were coming to Charlevoix for winter sports. Mrs. Stewart is a regular summer visitor at the Chicago Club and has been coming to Charlevoix for a number of years.

Through the efforts of D. T. McHugh, chairman of the Winter Sports Club, a real advertising campaign was carried through last summer in the form of winter displays in the store windows of the business places on Bridge street. An excellent spirit of co-operation from merchants rewarded Mr. McHugh's efforts with the result that the campaign was the talk of Northern Michigan for many weeks. Winter togs, skis, toboggans, bob sleds and accessories of winter sports adorned windows on Bridge street and many unique displays resulted. A very popular feature was the ice palace erected by Earl Young in front of his real estate office. This palace was illuminated evenings with colored lights and caused unusual comment. Large cards with a description of Charlevoix's opportunities for winter pleasure were distributed throughout the region, while picture slides shown at the local theater and summer hotels added extra interest.

And then, the crowning effort was the organization of the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club, with a big representation of our summer visitors as its officers and directors.

Many of these people have indicated they would be in Charlevoix at some part of the season of winter sports which will cover the months of January and February according to present plans. Many other inquiries have also been received up to this time and we predict that Charlevoix winter sports will lead the north again this year as it has in former years.

CHARLEVOIX DEBATERS LOST TO MANCERONA

Those who attended from Charlevoix voiced their satisfaction in the work of Charlevoix's team, stating they looked well even in defeat.

CITY LOOKS FOR NEW FIRE TRUCK

CONTEMPLATE PURCHASE OF COMMUNITY EQUIPMENT

Protection in City and Smaller Adjoining Resorts Are Objects in View

The matter of purchasing a community fire truck, with the cost apportioned among township adjoining the city of Charlevoix, was thoroughly discussed at the regular meeting of the council Monday evening.

Representatives of the American-LaFrance Fire Engine Co. of Chicago and the Oberchain-Boyer Fire Apparatus Co. of Logansport, Indiana, were present at the meeting to present the qualifications of their respective products. The American-LaFrance Co. had one of their large fire fighting units on hand and demonstrations were carried out before city officials Monday. Although the proposition was discussed from all angles, no action was taken at the meeting Monday and the matter was put over until next week.

The purchase of a community fire truck has been before city officials for some time. Just what territory the community truck would cover, if purchased has not been worked as yet, but we believe that our position as a resort, within smaller resorts surrounding us in all directions, calls for a successful conclusion of the matter as a safety measure, and to that end should have unlimited co-operation from all concerned.

Charlevoix, we must admit, has been more fortunate in past years for the reason that it has never suffered a serious fire loss. Neither have the smaller resorts surrounding us. We credit this fact to our very efficient volunteer fire department, to our excellent water facilities and to the great care taken by the various resorts in regards to precautions taken to prevent fires. Vigilance on part of wardens at the two large resort clubs after the resort season has lessened danger, as has also their yearly practice of keeping the grounds clear of leaves and brush where fires might start. This is also true of other resorts near us.

But the fact remains that sometime in the future we might have need for a community truck like the city now has in mind. Assurance of resorters who have property here that their cottages will be protected when not occupied should also be taken into consideration. They would appreciate such protective measures.

YOUNG PEOPLES MEET. ING WELL ATTENDED

Special Numbers on the Program Greatly Enjoyed

The union young people's Thanksgiving meeting at the Baptist church last Sunday evening was well attended and a very happy occasion.

The special numbers were a duet by Miss Black and Mr. Kirby and a chalk talk by Mr. Kirby. The map of the United States was drawn by the artist as he told the history of the Thanksgiving holiday, and at the end the inverted map, with a few skillful touches, became an enormous turkey ready to serve.

A FINE OPINION IS WELL VOICED

CHEBOYGAN ED. SAYS MICHIGAN SHOULD BE THANKFUL

Defeat of Detroit's Wet Candidate Acclaimed a Victory for Peace and Order

Editor Al Weber in the Cheboygan Democrat covers the results of Detroit's recent mayoralty election in a popular voice in the following article:

"The most hopeful thing that Michigan has to be thankful for today is the result of the mayoralty election at Detroit last week, where, in Johnny Smith, an outstanding and outspoken foe of the law and order, whose attitude toward the enforcement of the present liquor laws contribute to make Michigan's great metropolis infamous throughout the world and attracting to it from the scum of the world, a class of underworld characters and criminals who came to look upon the great city as a haven of protection.

Not alone Mayor Smith's attitude of leniency toward the bootlegger, but the outspoken opposition to our present liquor laws justified the better element, the law loving citizenry of Detroit to put him to his political career, which they so effectively did. His defeat was not by a preponderant vote, but when it is remembered he made the most strenuous kind of a campaign for re-election, and the gentleman that succeeded him was forced into the campaign by an element not in accord with the Smith policy, and after being forced in took no active part toward carrying on a vote-getting campaign for himself, defeat is rightly considered a decisive voice for a better element still able to wield the balance of power in Detroit once they are stirred to action as they must have been by happenings in Detroit under Johnny Smith's rule.

It appears by the election returns that Mayor Johnny Smith didn't know the temper of his people. Heeding alone, the voice of a people that demanded a wide open city, the haunting of law and order and the freedom for city officials Monday. Although the proposition was discussed from all angles, no action was taken at the meeting Monday and the matter was put over until next week.

The Detroit Motor Club of Detroit is in pretty much the same position Mayor Smith was in. Its officers are in open defiance of state over the three cent gas tax. They are selfishly attempting to invalidate and make inoperative a tax whom the people in practically all of the state outside of Detroit feel is necessary to continue a road program in keeping with present demands. Someday the officers of the Detroit Auto Club will wake up to find that the responsible industrial and business interests of that city do not concur in their selfish attitude. They will learn they are creating a barrier that will be difficult to break down, and will react to their disadvantage in the future. They will learn all of Michigan outside of their great city can retaliate and make it embarrassing for the big city folks and their industry and progress."

MERCHANTS GATHER TO PROMOTE TRADE

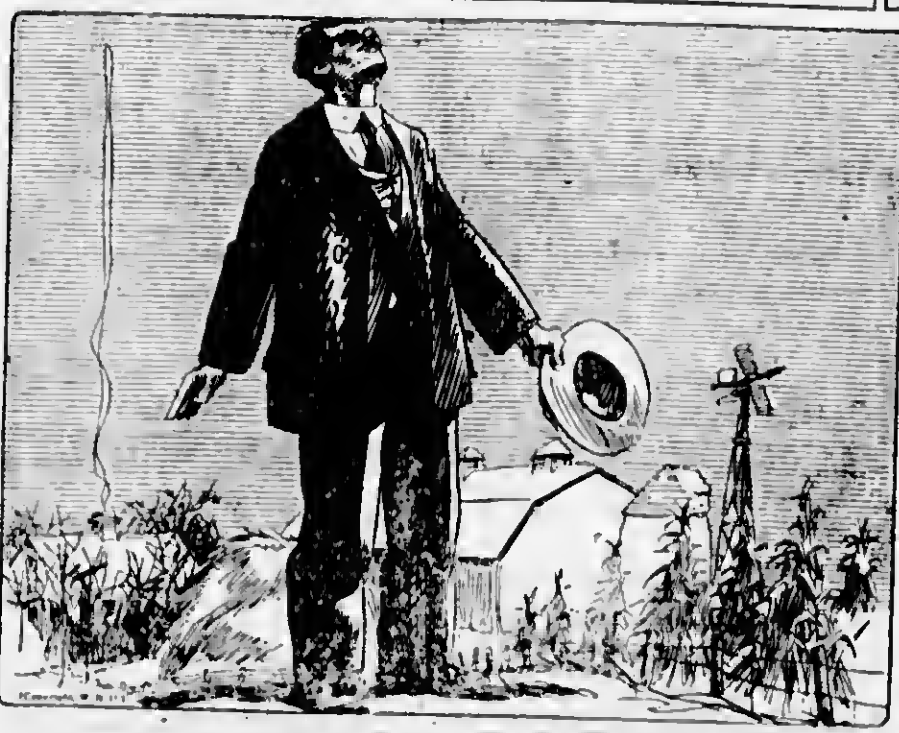

Meeting Sunday Attended by Business Men of Charlevoix

The Charlevoix Business Men's Association, with Charles Gale as Chairman, came to life last Sunday after a long period of inactivity, with a get-together meeting outlined to promote better business in Charlevoix.

The meeting was held at S. M. Seo & Sons' furniture store and with the exception of probably a dozen who were unable to be present for various reasons, the business men of the city were well represented. Such special inducements for the buying public as dollar days, community sales, etc., have been sadly lacking in Charlevoix for some time and we look upon the results of Sunday's meeting with optimism. In fact, we welcome a concerted effort on the part of business men in the city which will sponsor better trading and merchandising conditions in Charlevoix.

The Baptist ladies will hold a baked goods sale also fancy work and apron sale, at the Charlevoix Hardware Co., Saturday, December 10, all day.—Adv. 47-12.

Jack Luden's first starring vehicle for Paramount "Shootin' Irons" in which he is presented as a Western hero, has one of the strongest supporting casts ever assembled for this type of picture.

Potential starring material himself, and recognized as an outstanding master of his art is Fred Kohler, the "wolf of the screen" famous for his great characterizations in "The Rough Riders," "Underworld" and villain role.

The virile, savage antagonism of Dick Hardman, played by Kohler against "Pan" Smith, Luden, is said to be treated with deft suspense and menace throughout the picture, which reaches the Palace Theatre next Thursday, one day only.

W.N.U. SERVICE

The decision he had made beside the buak in the Ghost, once he had struck on a feasible plan of procedure, was inevitable to the man who owed his life to the heroism of the stricken Guthrie. But the situation which Guthrie faced as he watched the high harrows of Akiwiskitch and held the velle light of the dying sun, might easily result not only in dismissal from the company but in arrest by the authorities. His clear duty to his employers had demanded that he report to Cameron the presence of Laughing McDonald at Elkwan. The information that a Hudson's bay factor had concealed from the government a man suspected of murder would raise a hornets' nest in Ottawa. All this Garth Guthrie had seen with clear vision the night before, when he shared his plan with Etienne, but as his eyes rested for an instant on the tragic face of the friend who, that day in front of Amiens, had not counted the cost, there was in his face the look of a man who would repay to the last farthing. Ottawa, the company he had served so well, were nothing. There lay Craig Galtbrath, sick, hunted by the law he had defied, deserted—Laughing McDonald, whom he had fought for the trade—his friend, and he would see it through. Craig should have his chance, slight as it looked, with the woman of the great heart and the skilled hands, he was hurrying over the sea-ice as fast as his Uu gavas could travel. Hold on, Galtbrath, Y. C. as you held at many a disputed parmpet and shell-hole!

They had talked little through the first miles, the thoughts of the man centered on his problem. With the skill of long training, she had gone into the details of Etienne's wound, and Garth had had no heart so early in their journey for a confession of his duplicity. But when, off the mouth of the Big Willow, he announced that it was time to rest the dogs and eat the supper prepared by Mrs. Cameron, he felt that, over the hot tea, Joan Quarrier should be told the facts.

With the aid of cedar kippallings carried on the sled, he soon had a fire under the teakettle.

"Do you realize how you have ignored your passenger, Mr. Exile? This is my first ride behind the dogs and I wanted to talk about them."

The huskies, except Shot, who was inspecting the willow thicket, were sprawling in their harness, sniffing hungrily at the odor of bacon. Now that he was alone with Joan, was to be alone with her through the long miles to Elkwan, Guthrie felt strangely diffident. Until he had laid the truth before her, told of the love he bore this broken thing, once feared as Laughing McDonald, waiting in such sore need of her ministrations, and

"Laughing McDonald?" she cried. "You said you found him dead on the schooner?"

"He was alive, but very sick—flu, pneumonia, I'm not sure—Etienne and an Indian took him to Elkwan while I came to ask you to go—to help—"

"He was this friend who saved your life—in France?" she asked, wide-eyed with surprise.

"Yes, Capt. Craig Galtbrath. He took the name of McDonald—"

"When he disappeared after this murder?" she broke in.

"That is unworthy of Joan Quarrier," he demanded gently.

"But his description tallies with that of the man wanted in Halifax. You forget that I've seen him."

Guthrie warned to the defense of his friend. "Suppose he is the man? Is it strange that a man branded for life with that grimace, he pleaded, 'a man, proud, sensitive, counting home with the Victoria Cross—twice won—should go mad when the wife he cherished, as I know he did, turns in horror of his scars, to a lover? Tell me, is it strange?'"

"It was murder," she objected, half-heatedly.

"No, not if the man was struck in the heat of passion—as Galtbrath could strike. It was retribution."

"After all, he was a gallant soldier," she mused aloud, "and he saved your life."

Ignoring the inference, Garth pressed his point, for he saw to his joy that his story had touched her. "Think what his bitterness—his agony—must have been, doomed forever to wear, that mask when the woman who should have been proud to hear his name failed him. Imagine his loneliness—his despair, when, in his need, she turned to another."

There was a mist in Joan Quarrier's eyes as she said: "You must have loved him greatly to defend him so well."

"He threw away his hope of reaching the lines, when he followed Shot to my shell-hole and started back with a gasped man; is it strange that I'm fighting for his life, oh, Helen of Wounds?"

For an instant, as he waited for her answer, she met the fierce pleading of his eyes, then looked into the thickening night as she said gently: "You have won, I'll give all I have to save him—for he was a gallant soldier—and has suffered."

Joan Quarrier did not see the pride, the gratitude, and the love that shone down on her from Guthrie's eyes.

For an hour after the stop at the Big Willow for the hot tea the weather er had been gradually thickening. As the dogs followed the coast, Guthrie's restless eyes watched the muck slowly blot out the stars. It meant feeling their way past the river mouths; and, across the delta of the Attawapiskat, a sharp watch on the compass to avoid entering the river itself. Clearly, cation, tested turning into the Kapiskau and spending the night at the post. But the chance of the man at Elkwan might hang on the hours saved by pushing on through the sable blanket which shrouded the coast. He turned to the girl muffled in robes on the sled behind him.

"It's not going to be cold, but a cold night with the stars would have better than this."

"How can you tell where we're going? I can't see a thing."

"I'm letting Castor pick the trail—just checking him with the compass. It has a luminous dial."

"But he can't see any more than we can."

"A good lead dog has an extra sense—instinct for a trail. Castor has it; that's why he's our lead dog. He has brains, too."

"Where's Shot?"

"Oh, he's following the shore. If he misses us, he'll circle and get our scent."

"Won't he bark?"

"No, he was taught not to—at night. But I must make a decision."

"A decision?"

"We're near the mouth of the Kapiskau. It's going to be slow work—can you stand this till daylight?"

"What has that to do with the Kapiskau?"

"If you're tired—too tired to go on, we can stop at the post." She caught a note almost of appeal in his voice.

"Too tired," she protested, "an army nurse tried when there's a patient to take care of?"

"I know, but it's a bit dangerous, too," he said doubtfully. "Of course I'd like to keep on—for his sake."

"Well, we'll keep on, it means making Elkwan hours sooner, doesn't it? And that counts, I can sleep on this sled, I'm almost asleep now."

"Thank you, Soldier!" he said, and tapped the team while he consulted his compass. "If I could only see that shore—the boulders."

Guthrie let the sled, and fastening a long rawhide thong to Castor's collar, cried, "Haw, Castor! We're going ashore to see if we can stumble into those boulders."

But leading his team and at intervals stopping to examine the ice from his knees, to Guthrie's surprise the dogs traveled many hundred yards without reaching the drift and the shell ice of the shore. Was he deep in the mouth of the Kapiskau? And off shore?

He had been too careful to have drifted out toward Akiwiskitch, yet he had traveled a mile straight into the shore without hitting it. The only possible solution was the wide mouth of the Kapiskau—and he had wished to avoid getting into the river—had hoped to pass well outside, he decided to travel by compass for another mile. That would bring him into the north shore, if he were inside the river mouth. It would also—He looked toward the invisible figure on the sled—the girl who had unreservedly placed herself in his hands—who had entered on this voyage of mercy, thoughtless of self. The hands inside his mittens shut convulsively, as a warning Etienne had once given him flashed across his memory. And he had brought her—the thing most precious in the world to Garth Guthrie—into this. Why had he not camped on the Big Willow?

For minutes Guthrie walked ahead of his team, praying for signs in the ice—a gray blur at his feet—of the proximity of the shore. Then—desperate, he stood on the tail of the sled and urged his dogs into a trot, as he checked them from circling with the luminous dial he held in his mitten. For a space Castor gingerly led the team into the black wall when through the muck sounded a brittle bark.

Aroused, the yelping huskies quickened their pace.

"Shot's found the shore—he smells something," cried Guthrie to the girl in front of him. "Queer, he barked, though!"

Again the rough voice of the hired dog broke through the pit-like blackness. Castor answered. With a jerk the huskies started into a fast trot.

They had not traveled a hundred yards when, directly in front of the invisible team, sounded Shot's raw challenge. There was an impact of hard bodies, Castor's snarl of rage, Pollux's roar, followed by the headlan of huskies fighting into the melee of enraged dogs tangled in their traces slid the sled. With the handle of his heavy dog-goad clubbed, the bewildered Guthrie ran to the rescue of the alreade, who for some inexplicable reason had attacked Castor. Merely swinging the heavy butt of the whip, calling the dogs by name, he blindly fought to free the offending Shot from the kaleidescopic fumes of Castor and Pollux. A heaving mass of snarling jaws, the huskies mad with excitement, grappled, hampered by their traces, were slashing wildly in the dark at their enemy and each other.

At last, taking a slash which ripped the sleeve of his parka as he reached in, Garth got Shot's collar with one hand and lifting the struggling dog while he clubbed the others back, dragged him from the milling team. Attempting to follow, Castor fell stumped by a blow on the skull, and Guthrie was free from the infuriated team, snarling, enmeshed in their traces, to drag the sled in pursuit of the alreade who fought in Guthrie's arms to return to the battle.

"Oh, what has happened?" called Joan Quarrier's frightened voice. "It was too awful. What started them?"

"It's all right, I've got Shot and he's not cut much. He'll cool off in a minute. For some reason he piled into Castor."

"Attacked Castor?"

Guthrie led his dog to the tail of the sled where he made him fast. "Yes, he must have bowled Castor over on the run. Of course that started the team. But it's so dark I doubt if any of them are hurt much. They couldn't see to strike—and their traces saved Shot. He's got two on the shoulder but they're not deep."

The girl was off the sled and soothing the alreade trembling with the heat of the fight.

"I'll straighten out the dogs now. They don't care for this whip-handle."

"I could hear the blows," she said. "It hurt, but I suppose it was the only way."

"They'd have killed Shot, if they once got him down. I had to get him out of it quickly," Guthrie explained, and calming his excited dogs, soon had them on their feet with straightened traces. Castor, Garth's favorite, who had taken the bulk of the blows, found the hand of his master with his tongue as he rubbed against Guthrie's leg. Garth rumbled the erect ears of the trembling Ungava.

"Poor old boy! It wasn't your fault, was it, if Shot went crazy? Don't blame you a bit, old man. I had to do it, but it's forgotten, isn't it? Yes, good old Castor!" With a pat of the massive skull, Garth went to soothe the still excited Pollux, and the rest.

But all the while his brain was busy with the strange action of the alreade. They were close to the beach. Shot had found—killed—something, and refused to share it with the approaching team. But why did he leave it?

HORTON ANTI-TRESPASS LAW

In spite of wide publicity given the Horton anti-trespass law, which provides severe penalty for hunting on privately owned lands without first securing the permission of the owner or lessee, there seems to be a wide divergence of opinion as to whom has been delegated the power of enforcement under the provisions of the act. The law is specifically plain in this respect, stating it is the duty of all prosecuting attorneys to proceed with prosecution when complaint has been made.

Inasmuch as the law was primarily directed towards hunters, many land owners conceived the mistaken idea that all prosecutions would have to be made through the department of conservation, and the department has been flooded with letters in this respect. While the department officials are always willing to co-operate with local authorities whenever necessary in the prosecution of offenders, this is not necessary under the plain provisions of the law. In fact, complaints may be made before any justice-of-the-peace, who is empowered to issue a warrant without permit or consent of the prosecuting attorney.

"LIBERAL" PRESS CREATES SYMPATHY FOR SOVIET.

Part of the befuddlement with regard to Russia in the minds of our people is due to their reading of what they call the liberal press, those papers which seek advertising from financial and industrial leaders and seek circulation from radical and destructive individuals. It is usually an unhappy combination, but it sometimes works. These papers do not go so far as to advocate the policies and plans of communists, but they want them severely let alone to do their utmost in promoting their own ideas. These editors of so-called liberal papers would take the position that if a burglar is in someone's house, they might disapprove of his profession, but would not interfere with his activities. They might draw the line at arson because that would inconvenience them considerably. Probably they would not want the burglar in their own house either, but the average citizen in their opinion is bound to treat the burglar with respect and consideration and not interfere with him unduly. It is almost a relief to read real communist ranting instead of the liberal platitudes of some of our circulation seeking newspapers. What happens among the newspapers is true in public life, and the high advocates of Soviet recognition will undoubtedly be very stringent in their criticism of England when congress comes in session again.

CURBING SPEED MANIACS

Is Michigan's new traffic code, which has been in effect for several weeks, working out as its framers believed it would? Has the removal of the 35-mile speed limit, while making penalties for reckless driving more severe, had the effect of curbing the driver who persists in taking all kinds of chances regardless?

Recently, so numerous were the reports of plain violations of the present law, that Governor Fred W. Green felt impelled to issue a warning that hereafter a more careful watch would be kept over the highways of the state in an effort to bring to an end the appalling loss of life directly traceable to reckless driving. In his message to the state the governor asked the co-operation of all village, city and county officials with state traffic officers in bringing about a war to the finish against this class of drivers who are no more or less than potential murderers.

The reckless driver cuts in and out of traffic, passes cars on curves and steep grades, drives to the limit of his car regardless of congestion, endangers the lives of everybody. He has an evil accomplice in the man who drives while drunk. Both must go. The sober-minded, careful-driving public is fast rising in revolt. They are demanding the prompt removal of these unnecessary risks in no uncertain language.

The average automobile driver would be just as careful, if there was not a single traffic law in existence. They have a wholesome respect for their own safety and the safety of others. On the other hand are those who seem speed crazed the moment their hands come in contact with a steering wheel. It is this latter class of drivers who are making the highways unsafe for even ordinary travel. The governor has sounded the call—let us join in the movement to drive the reckless driver out of this state.

THE PRESIDENT ON BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Recently there came from Washington a statement from the president reciting certain facts concerning industry and business throughout the country. The data had been carefully compiled by the various departments and answer definitely the nervousness of some of our people concerning our present and the future situation. The president, after studying all the facts, is tremendously impressed with the evidence that not only is the tide of good times not receding, but that every prospect points to more money in the pockets of the farmers, workers and everybody generally. He feels that prosperity is increasing, and that the future holds greater buying power. This applies both to luxuries and necessities. These statements can be found in the recent issues of the newspapers, and we call attention to them for a particular reason.

We are approaching a presidential election and, as usual in such an election, an issue will be made as to whether there is real or simulated prosperity in the country. Those who feel the effects of prosperity will have little interest in the discussion, but business men always have to keep a long look ahead and it is imperative that they should seek to know the exact facts. It would be exceedingly unfortunate if an artificial contraction should be produced simply because of political statements. On the other hand, it would be just as bad for business men if they were to ignore a prospective contraction in business and continue their expenditures without an eye to the future. Let not the enthusiasm of one political party for prosperity or the political maneuvering of another party to minimize that prosperity, be your guide. Find out for yourself and act accordingly.

SAFETY IS NOT A GESTURE

Since 1913, notwithstanding the material increase in the number of railway employees and the volume of passenger traffic, the number of persons killed, and also the number injured on the railroads of the country have been reduced by 35 per cent. The number of deaths of passengers last year was 155, a reduction of 56 per cent, and of these fatalities all but 79 were due to causes largely beyond the railroads' control.

When we reflect that our railroads carried over 860,000,000 passengers last year, and that 23,000 persons were killed by automobile accidents in that period, one-third of whom were passengers in cars, it is apparent that the achievements of the railroads in the interest of safety have been splendid and remarkable.

SAFE DRIVING REQUIRED

It is the careless driver that makes railroad crossings dangerous. Whenever a grade crossing accident occurs the public has a habit of considering the crossing instead of the driver. Nearly every grade crossing accident is preventable. Careful driving would eliminate this hazard entirely. The automobile is what we must think about, not the crossings. Ninety per cent of all auto accidents occur on highways. Not over ten per cent occur at grade crossings. Separation of grade crossings would entail a heavy burden on the taxpayers, while leaving 90 per cent of the hazards of automobile accidents unremoved. Safe driving costs nothing, yet it would remove the hazards of driving, not only at grade crossings, but on the highways as well.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR

According to statistics the young doctors coming out of medical schools are fighting shy of the country and are opening offices in the cities. It is predicted that if this continues a few years there will be a great shortage of doctors in the rural districts. In some parts of the state the need of physicians is already felt. The younger generation of medical men see only the enormous fees charged by some of the doctors who have reached the top and who are attracted to specialization by that example.

Probably, however, no one man knows more about human ailments than a good country doctor. He can cure baby's tummy ache, grandma's neuralgia, and if necessary amputate father's leg. He is ready to answer calls at all hours of the night and for some of his work he neither expects nor receives any pay. In addition to this, he is a true friend of his patients and they feel free to come to him with other troubles beside their ailments. Probably as time goes on and if there is a steady falling off of country doctors the fees will be raised to attract young men to the field. But no man who is attracted by love of money alone can take the place of those who have stood the test and are now serving the rural communities.

TRY THIS

The other day, according to information reaching this office, a peddler selling silk hosiery stopped at a door in the community and started to interview the housewife. As soon as he came to a period, the lady said, "Say, you are just the man I am looking for, come in and sit down." The peddler with visions of a good sized order sank down into the cushions of the easiest chair in the parlor. Then the lady said, "Now I am on the finance committee of our church and I know how much you are interested in our local enterprises and I am going to let you make a subscription to the pastor's salary. I am so glad you dropped in this morning." The peddler swallowed his Adam's apple two or three times, spurred around to get his words and then said, "Well, you see, lady, I do not live here. My home is in Detroit, and the family gives something to the church there, so I guess you will have to pass me up." The lady continued to urge a contribution to the support of the pastor, but she did not get it and as soon as he could get away the young man bowed himself out. The incident is interesting. Building up a village or city is a community effort. The place where we live is built up as we all co-operate. The peddler who drops in, gathers up all the orders he can for merchandise and then departs, is not one of the co-operators. The more peddlers and the more business they do, the poorer we become as a community.

The next time a peddler rings your doorbell, sound him on the church subscription proposition.

It only takes a couple losses by your college team to start up the cry that football is being commercialized.

ACCIDENTS TAKE THIRTEEN LIVES OVER WEEK END

Traffic and hunting accidents claimed thirteen lives in Michigan over the week-end, a United Press survey showed today. Returning home from a dance, a 15-year-old girl was killed in an automobile wreck near Ionia. Five persons died in Detroit hospitals from injuries suffered in traffic accidents. Two boys were killed when their machine was struck by a passenger train near Port Huron, and a taxi crash in Flint took one life. A Toledo boy was killed at Monroe. Hunting accidents near South Boardman, Caro and Mancelona, each cost a life.

COMMERCIAL FISHERMEN LAY UP EQUIPMENT

Commercial fishermen at this end of the Great Lakes says the Cheboygan Tribune, have taken up nearly all their nets and are ready to end their 1927 season. It is reported that little loss was sustained in taking up nets in spite of the stormy weather. The freighter Edna A., coming from Canadian waters, is expected to be the last fish carrier to lay up in the Cheboygan harbor. The Edna A., carried over fifteen tons of whitefish and trout for eastern markets.

PRESTONE

Is the only perfect Anti-freeze on the market for winter protection of automobile cooling system.

It is an anti-freeze and not an anti-leak and therefore does not form a coating over the cooling system as everything of an anti-freeze nature must do in order to stop a leak. Prestone conforms to the requirements of the Bureau of Standards and has been recommended by leading automobile manufacturers.

It is economical because it does not evaporate and can be used year after year by drawing off and saving in the spring. Put 45 per cent of Prestone in your radiator and it will need only the same attention as it does in the summer.

NEW EQUIPMENT INSTALLED AT PRIEST'S

Local Photographer Will Remain Here Through Holidays

A considerable sum of money has been spent at the studio of our local photographer, George Priest, for new equipment that will enable him to do a higher grade of photography.

A new electric lighting device, making possible excellent photographs even on the darkest of cloudy days, is one of the latest additions at the studio. Another feature which will prove very satisfactory to local patrons of the studio is the fact that Mr. Priest will remain in Charlevoix this year until after the holidays, so that all work will be done under his personal supervision.

For the past few years Mr. Priest has left early in the fall for Florida, thus making it necessary for patrons to go outside for their picture work.

Islander Held for Murder
Charged with the murder of Albinus L. Todd, aged Bois Blanc islander whose charred body was found in the ruins of his burned cabin last February, Arthur D. Wratton, 60, is awaiting in the St. Ignace county jail for his hearing in justice court last Saturday morning. Wratton, formerly hired man for Mr. Todd, has been under confinement there since Friday, when he was moved to St. Ignace jail where he had been serving time for carrying concealed weapons. The transfer to St. Ignace to face a charge of murder comes as result of police investigation into suspicious circumstances that made it seem as if Todd might have been murdered rather than burned to death.—Potosky Evening News.

Hunters Lost in Storm
Henry Bennett, Pellston workman, was taken to a hospital in Newberry last Thursday suffering from his harrowing experiences in the 24 hour blizzard which swept that region last Tuesday and Wednesday. Bennett and Edward Gravelle of Newberry became lost in a great swamp during the storm. They shared their one sandwich when night came and stumbled on. Bennett finally dropped into snow from exhaustion, but Gravelle was able to continue. Finally he connected with a rescue party which had been sent out to search for the pair and led them back to where Bennett was slowly freezing to death in the snow.

CO-PARTNERSHIP IN HOME MANAGEMENT

By P. G. Holden

Make the home a co-operative society and let the children have a part in the home making. Teach them early in life that home is not merely a place where they go to have care, comfort and protection, but for this something must be given; that every member of the family has rights and privileges and should share in the work and responsibilities. Give them an interest in something, encourage them to put forth their best effort in everything they do. Give them credit for earning something besides a bare "keep." There is nothing so valuable as a well-developed boy or girl and nearly all boys and girls are good under the proper treatment. They need work, employment for head, hands and heart—in all-round development; to be taught to think for themselves; to observe, to study out the why and wherefore, and to experiment under intelligent guidance.

Give them a share in all things—your gains and losses. Develop in them the responsibility of ownership. Get their ideas on all subjects and you will be wonderfully surprised at their abilities.

Consult the boys and girls. Take them into your confidence. Have them help solve the problems of the farm and household. Make them realize that they are a part of the machine that runs the affairs at home. Keep the garden free from weeds. Let the boy help you do it. He will enjoy the results when he sees that his labor has produced something worth while.

Give him a piece of ground to cultivate for himself. This will increase his interest. Let him enjoy the financial return from his effort.

If you give the boy a pig, remember it is his pig when you sell it. Did you ever know the boy who owned all the pigs and lambs but whose dad owned all the hogs and sheep?

Interest the girls in culture of flowers, the raising of poultry, gardening and canning. Success depends upon co-operation. Endeavor to create a co-operative spirit in the home and in the field management, so that the family will live and labor as a unit instead of a chance group of individuals.

The home should be considered a corporation in which every member is a stockholder, and don't forget the "ownership" proposition. See that your children own something. Boys and girls will never leave the farm if you take them into partnership.

A SOUND JUDICIARY

In naming Judge Walter H. North of Battle Creek to the vacancy in the Supreme Court caused by the death of Justice Snow, Governor Green has continued the extremely high caliber of his judicial appointments. Judge North has served on the circuit bench for twenty-one years and the record is as honorable as it is long. He personifies capacity and dependability. So long as a sturdy, independent, able, courageous judiciary exists, the Republic is safe—no matter what else happens. To this end of Justice Snow, Governor Green has tended to do his part. Michigan welcomes his latest jurist-designate to its highest tribunal.—Grand Rapids Herald.

MAKING MONEY FROM PIGS Some Problems to Solve

By Edgar W. Cooley

We have shown how to get a start in raising pigs, how to build a home for the pig, how to keep the pig healthy and how to get bankers and others interested, so as to organize pig clubs.

As a final article, we will submit a few problems such as we should figure out before deciding whether or not it will pay us to raise pigs. Some of our boy and girl friends will not be able to figure some of these problems without securing information from their fathers, or other practical farmers, or perhaps from their agricultural college. But it will pay them to get this information, as it will be of practical use to them in after years. Here are the problems:

1. If you have eight pigs to sell and each pig weighs 225 pounds, how many pounds of pork will you have to market?
2. If you market your pork at the current market price, how much money will you receive?
3. How many pounds of corn do you feed your pig each day?
4. How long will a bushel last?
5. What do seven bushels of corn cost if you buy them?
6. What will it cost to raise that much corn? How many bushels can you grow on an acre?
7. Suppose you had one sow which farrowed and raised a litter of eight pigs in the spring and you save one sow for a brood sow and keep the old sow?

In the fall the old sow raises another litter of eight pigs. Save one of these and still keep the old sow. The next spring the old sow and the oldest pig you kept, each farrow, and raise a litter of eight pigs each. You keep one sow from each of these litters.

The next fall the old sow and the oldest two of the others you kept each farrow and raise eight pigs each. From each of these litters, you keep a sow pig and continue in this way. How many brood sows would you have at the end of five years provided none of them dies?

8. How many pigs did you have to sell the first year? How many pigs the second year? How many pigs altogether?
9. If each pig weighed 225 pounds and you sold them at an average of eight cents a pound, how much money would you receive?
10. How much lumber will it require to build your hog house?
11. How much will this lumber cost? (Get the price per thousand feet from your local lumber dealer.)

Other problems relating to the feed necessary for the pigs, the acreage required to grow the corn, and the profit on the money invested may also be worked out.

INSIDE INFORMATION

Use cold water on first egg stains, then hot water and soap. If the yolk leaves a grease spot use carbon tetrachloride or some other grease solvent after sponging with cold water and allowing the stained place to dry.

The legs of children's rompers should not bind. They should be straight or have loose bands. The size of the band should be determined by measuring the child's leg five inches above the knee. A knitted band or cuff may be used if the blousing effect at the knee is desired.

Several times a year, or whenever waste water begins to run away slowly from your sink drain or from other fixtures, the pipe should be well flushed with boiling hot water to dissolve the grease. This should be followed with a strong solution of caustic soda or caustic potash (lye) and an hour later the pipe should be flushed thoroughly with clear hot boiling water.

People are learning to understand the value of liver in the diet as a source of vitamins and minerals, as well as of protein. In addition to plain fried liver, or liver and onions, there are numerous appetizing ways of cooking liver. Equal parts of ground ham and cooked liver seasoned with cream and with parsley chopped and served on toast make a good dish. Liver may also be cooked in a casserole with mushrooms or other vegetables. Chopped liver is excellent for stuffing onions or baked vegetables.

The dasheen is a vegetable used in place of potato in southern climates where white potatoes cannot be kept for long stretches of time. Its flavor slightly resembles that of chestnuts. It can be boiled and prepared in any of the ways potatoes are good. As the texture is somewhat dry, it should be liberally seasoned with butter.

Scrapple is a good example of a food combination in which the incomplete protein of a cereal is supplemented by a little of the more nearly complete protein of meat. It is an old fashioned Pennsylvania-German dish made by cooking corn meal with pork trimmings or lean pork. The U. S. department of agriculture will tell you how to make it.

Jerusalem artichokes are similar in food value as potatoes. Since they grow somewhat irregular in shape, the easiest way to prepare them for the table is to boil or bake them in their skins and then pare them. Boiled Jerusalem artichokes can be served in cream or other well-seasoned sauces, fried, or baked in a sauce with grated cheese and buttered crumbs spread on top. Baked Jerusalem artichokes may be served in their skins, or scraped out and seasoned with butter, salt and pepper.

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

With Shot lashed to the tail of the sled, and the heat of the combat cooled in the blood of the huskies through the soothing tones of the master's voice and the touch of his hand, Onthie again called to his lead dog.

"Marche, Casior!"

As the sled started, the sleds broke into furious barking. Puzzled, Guthrie turned back. "What's the matter, Shot?"

The Cog was clearly excited about something. With a whimper he rose on his hind legs and pawed the man's chest in dumb attempt to communicate the reason for his protest.

"What is it, old boy? What's over on that shore you don't want us to see?"

"Tell me, Shot," called the girl, and the dog left Guthrie to go to her but was stopped by his leash.

"It's more than queer," said Guthrie, "it's uncanny. Well, I've got to find that shore to make a fresh start. Now, Shot, be quiet, will you?"

Again the driver called, "Marche, Casior!"

The dogs leaned into their collars and the sled started, but from its tail rose the hoarse of the protesting Shot.

"Good Lord, I've got to look into this! I'll be back shortly." And, stopping his team, Garth walked into the inn.

He had advanced but a short distance, doubled over the ice, feeling his way with his moccasins, when he stopped, as a chill, like the touch of a cold wind, cut through him.

"Tide crack!" he gasped. Within a step of the gray blur of ice on which he stood, a black streak, fading into the enveloping gloom, barred his way.

"We're in the river mouth!"

Among the tide cracks—Etienné warned me! Shot—old Shot, God bless him—he knew!

Shot's actions were clear enough now. Coming upon the open water toward which the sled was hurrying, the sleds had returned on the bound, barking in warning as he came. Then, as the dogs came on at a trot, Shot had catapulted into Casior, starting a fight and—stopping the sled.

Stunned, struck with remorse, Onthie crouched on the lip of the gash in the river ice, into which dogs, sled—all of them, would have blindly plunged but for Shot's mad attack on the team.

To have led her to this—a hideous death with the dogs drawn under by the drag of the sled. And Etienné had warned him of the tide cracks in the river mouth. He had intended making a wide swing around the Kapskai, but in his search for the beach, had entered the river. But Shot, staunch old warrior that he was, had through some unanny instinct sensed their danger and taken the only method of stopping the team.

Putting her trust in Garth Guthrie, Shot had saved her. He turned back to the team, thrilled with pride in the dog who worried at his leash. The love of the man for his dog had been cemented by yet one more bond. Shot had saved her for Garth Guthrie!

"What did you find?" she asked as he reached the sled.

"Whenever we find, Maj. Garth Guthrie, you have squared your debt. No man could have done more for his friend."

"But I almost lost you—"

"That would have been the fortune of war."

"And the irony of fate, with Etienné and poor Galbraith waiting up there at Elkwan for two who never came."

CHAPTER XIII

At noon, that day, a lone figure stood in the snow on the clearing at Elkwan and searched the river-ice below the post. With a dubious shake of the head, Etienné returned to Old Anne and his wife, waiting in Guthrie's quarters.

"Ver' black night; hard to follow de shore. Something happen to M'sieu' Guthrie. Mebbe de woman not come wid heem."

"She come," insisted Old Anne. "She come w'en he ask. She come."

"Dat McDonald, he ver' seek man. She breeng de med-cene ef she come. I go an' have a look at de trail."

Again Etienné stood on the cliff above the white Elkwan and watched for the moving spot on the ice, which would mark the approaching team. Disappointed, he was about to return to the women in the house when his keen eyes suddenly lit with excitement. Far on the white shell of the river seemed to move a black spot. For a space the half-breed studied the barely distinguishable object. Then he trotted to the quarters.

"De come!" he cried to the waiting women. "De come de beeg islan!"

When the huskies that had traveled forty miles since daylight drew in to the cliff trail at a slow walk, Guthrie barred to the waiting Etienné with the demand: "You got him here? He's alive?"

The half-breed nodded, then with a wide grin turned to the girl on the sled. "Allo! You welcome to Elkwan, m'am'selle!" as he assisted her out of the robes.

"I'm mighty glad to see you, Etienné. How are Marie and the chicks, and dear Old Anne?"

"Oh, ver' fine, t'anks. You have hard ride las' night?"

Joan and Garth exchanged smiles. "We surely did," replied Guthrie. "We camped at the Kapskai."

"At de Kapskai?"

Guthrie's thoughts were of the man at his quarters and he did not explain. With Joan and Savanne he hurried across the clearing.

"Well?" he questioned, as the army nurse finished taking the pulse and temperature of the man whose rough breathing filled the room.

Without answering she placed her ear to the broad chest of the man muttering in delirium. After a space she turned to the waiting Guthrie with puzzled eyes.

"I don't quite understand. Pulse almost normal, temperature only 101, respiration not high, and yet he's developed pneumonia in one lung. I can easily hear the rales!"

"You mean he has beaten the flu?"

"I think so; he's so strong. But pneumonia!"

"And you never told me what you found when you left us?"

"Why sure you? It was bad enough as it was."

She shook her head in protest. "You call me a soldier, and treat me as a woman."

"You are a woman to me—too precious to take out on a night like this and drive into a tide crack," he replied, watching the light of the fire play on her brooding eyes.

For answer she called: "Come here, Shot—to me. I want to kiss you."

The sleds rose, stretched, yawned, and wagged his way to her. "There," I'll never forget what you did tonight. You deserve the V. C."

With a grunt, Shot thrust his nose toward her hood.

"Look out, he's trying to return the kiss," warned the man who envied his dog.

Her white teeth flashed in amusement. "You may, Shotty, on the cheek, for you're a brave and gallant gentleman!"

"And the other brave and gallant gentlemen—are they to be ignored?"

Aren't Casior and Pollux, and—their brave and gallant master, to share in your salute, oh, mon general?"

"This general decorates but one hero tonight and that is Shot," she replied, smiling. "His devotion has been proved."

"And mine?"

"She would not meet his eyes. 'Oh, my friend,' she parried, 'we have work before us—a bitter fight for the life of a brave man. Why think of ourselves?'"

In the lee of the sled, tipped on its side, its canvas cover stretched above her like a shed tent to reflect the heat of the fire, Joan Quarrier slept, warm in her robes, until waked by the cracking of the ice at dawn.

"Good mor'ning, Master of Wounds. The tea is almost ready; the bacon done; the bread cut. Will you wash your face and hands in the snow, and partake of the hounties set before you on these beautiful plates of tin?"

Through sleepy eyes the girl smiled up at the man who had labored for her comfort. "You are very good to your passenger, Mr. Exile. I shall recommend this line to all who contemplate a night voyage up this coast."

"We ought to make Elkwan by noon. I wonder what we'll find," he said, pouring the hot tea.

on the boat, they would naturally come to Elkwan to talk to the man who brought the news to Albany. If Craig lived, he would be weeks in bed, recovering his strength. Where could they hide a man needing constant care if a police dog-team appeared on the ice below the post? Etienné could be hustled into bed and hounded to corroborate the story told to Cameron, but Galbraith—what of him? Accessory though it made him to the crime of his friend, the gray eyes of Guthrie hardened at the thought of Galbraith, V. C., Galbraith the trench-raider, whose name was known the length of the British front, being hounded down in his dire extremity. Guthrie laughed as he pictured the police attempting to take Laughing McDonald on his schooner in the fullness of his strength—McDonald! Ha! Ha! and the bearded mate who limped, with Lewis guns and the snipers' rifles they had slept with for four years.

And Joan—he had made her an accessory as well; asked her to nurse a man she knew, now, was wanted for murder. How was he to square his conscience with that? To pay his debt to Galbraith he not only had asked her to throw her reputation to the winds, but to defy the law—Joan Quarrier, who had stepped into his life to become his world.

It stripped down to this: If the police found Galbraith at Elkwan Guthrie was done. Cameron might fix it with the company, but the authorities would be merciless. Then the smug Charles could revel in his "I told you so," and Ethel—he had not thought of Ethel, whose Christmas letters he had not answered, since he found Joan Quarrier on the Albany clearing—she could thank Heaven for her lucky escape.

"But the police won't find him at Elkwan," Guthrie rasped through his teeth, and went to the trade-house to make his plans with Etienné.

"Did you have any trouble getting him up here?" Guthrie asked.

"No, he hauled some, but he was lashed in good."

Then Guthrie explained the part Etienné was to play when the police appeared. They would want to interview him, and must find him in bed, a sick man. Accordingly, he must have the handages, which Miss Quarrier would prepare at once, ready to put on. The children would have to be coached and kept out of the way.

"Have you ever been badly hurt, Etienné?"

PETOSKEY TAKES NORTHERN TITLE

Top Traverse City High for North Michigan Honors

Principally because it has two brilliant backfield stars in the persons of Capt. Irving Menzel at halfback and Donald Wells at fullback, Petoskey high school won the undisputed northern Michigan championship for the second successive year here Saturday by defeating Traverse City 13 to 0.

Menzel's forward passed to Wells in the second period for the first Petoskey touchdown after Traverse had held on its six-yard line, and in the third quarter, Menzel broke around the Traverse left end for 14 yards for the other tally. Wells' first attempt for extra point by placement was blocked, but he made good on his second.

Petoskey's superiority is accurately told in the fact that the Emmet county lads registered 10 first downs to Traverse City's 5. Traverse took to the air in the final quarter in a vain attempt to cross the Petoskey goal line and while four heaves connected for a total gain of 77 yards, there never was a real threat to score. Petoskey tried only three passes, but one of them was for a touchdown and another was good for a first down in Traverse City territory.

Nine Petoskey athletes played their last game of high school football and seven of the Traverse City eleven finished their interscholastic gridiron competition. For Traverse City, Capt. Alden Potter at right tackle, Core at right end, and Unger at center, were the outstanding players.

WELL KNOWN MAN ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Murray "Bill" Bailey Had Spent Many Summers Here

Many Charlevoix people will regret the death of Murray "Bill" Bailey, which occurred last Thursday, November 10, near Grand Rapids, when he was accidentally killed when a telephone pole fell upon him while he was riding on a trailer behind a truck.

"Bill" was known throughout northern Michigan, where he spent many summers. He worked as hotel porter, plumber and at numerous other jobs and for a number of years was engineer at the Troy Laundry here. He was known as a great hunter and fisherman and his stories along these lines would have filled volumes. It has been said that "Bill" could imitate most any animal but a fish. One of his amusing stunts was to go to the railroad station while passengers were waiting for a train, and unbeknown to them would make a noise resembling a train. People would grab their grips and rush out of the station and the laugh was always Bill's.

Pages could be written about his amusing characteristics. His good-nature was unflinching and he had a surprising amount of common knowledge. "Bill" will be greatly missed here and at his home in Big Rapids.

California to Old Home

Fred M. Elliott, formerly a resident of Harbor Springs, where he operated a tin-smith shop, passed through Petoskey Friday, enroute on a "walking trip" from Riverside, California, back to his old home village.

Mr. Elliott said while in the city that autoists had been kind to him and that where he walked one mile he rode ten. He left the West September 15 for the International Purity convention at LaCrosse, Wisconsin, and reached there October 12. From that city he headed for Petoskey, leaving last Thursday and crossing from Milwaukee to Ludington by boat.

Mr. Elliott is 78 years old and said he was born in the first frame house built in the city of Lansing. On his long trip east, he declares, he never asked for a ride but that kind autoists aided him along the way most of the time.—Petoskey Evening News.

In this day of insistence upon the practice of Christ's teachings as a solution of many personal and social ills, we hear it said repeatedly that His ideas are impractical. At 7:30 we have another of those "Different Sunday evenings." What have we to be thankful for this year? Come and see through stereopticon and pantomime pagentry with good music what might be involved in a Church school at noon. The lesson is "Isaiah instructs in True Worship." INFORMATION COLUMN

Curried veal is a good dish to serve when lima beans are in season, because the flavor of curry goes well with lima beans. Cut 2 pounds of stewing veal into small pieces and simmer in water enough to cover until almost tender. Then add 2 cups of fresh lima beans. In another pan cook one medium-sized onion, chopped fine, and 1/2 a green pepper, chopped, in a small amount of butter. Add to the meat. When the beans are done, thicken the liquid slightly with a little flour which has been mixed with 1/4 teaspoon curry. 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, and a little cold water. Add 1 cup diced cucumber and cook a few minutes longer. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the top when serving.

The matter of variety and contrast in the texture and flavor of the foods combined in one meal is not always given sufficient thought. Serve something crunchy like toast or browned crumbs on a scalloped dish, something soft, as a white sauce or custard, something crisp and fresh, like lettuce or cold slaw, to give variety in texture. For variety in flavor some foods should be bland or mild, like potatoes or bread; some should have a pronounced flavor, as in the case of rare steak, roast lamb, ham or cheese or some of the vegetables such as cauliflower, cabbage, onions, green peppers; there should also be something sour in itself like tomato or pickles, or like spinach or beets, something that is ordinarily served with vinegar, or a salad with a French dressing. Sweet flavor is usually provided in the desert, or it may be introduced elsewhere, as in candied sweet potatoes, or as jelly with meat. The five food groups should also be represented—vegetables and fruit, cereal or starchy foods, efficient protein foods, fats, and sugars. The relative proportion of foods chosen from these groups should supply sufficient protein of the right kind, calories, minerals, and vitamins.

Bring in the milk bottles as soon as possible after delivery. Wash them, especially the mouth and cap. Place at once in the refrigerator, which should be 50 degrees or less, never more.

MANY COMING FOR WINTER CARNIVAL

ST. LOUIS PARTY MAKING PLANS TO BE HERE.

John Knight Plans Bringing Party of Students from University of Michigan

Still further evidence that Charlevoix will continue to lead Northern Michigan as a mecca for winter sports enthusiasts is contained in the following letter recently received by the Courier from John Knight, Charlevoix summer resorter now attending the University of Michigan:

"Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 28, 1927.

Dear Mr. Usher:

I was interested in reading last week's issue of the Courier to note the article about winter sports, and thought maybe you could use a little material along that line.

As you probably know, we are all planning to come up for winter sports around the first of February, and stay for a week or ten days. I have been in correspondence with several St. Louis people, and they are very enthusiastic over the prospect. Mrs. Bemis is endeavoring to get two private cars from St. Louis, and there will be many summer people included. Also there will doubtless be some from Harbor Point and Wewington.

I am bringing about six boys from Ann Arbor and I want to warn the local business men right now that they will have their hands full on the hockey rink. Louis Gilbert, steller half back on the Michigan football team this year and prominently mentioned for all American honors, will be with us, and he is just as much at home on the ice as he is on the gridiron. He will probably hold down the goal guard position. Harold Carlier is coming out from New York, and with his brother Clare, should be a hard combination to beat on the rink. Clare is also bringing several boys from Grand Rapids who are good skaters. James Bayne of Detroit, who learned his hockey in Canada, will hold down a defense position for us. Dave Monroe, a former Princeton boy and a fast, hard skater, will be in our line-up. Also Alan Smith, well known as a member of the Belvedere summer colony, a clever stick handler and a good shot, will hold down a wing position. I will manage our team, the "Wolverines," and probably play a wing position.

We will also be represented in other lines of activity. Jim Lewis, one of the best amateur ski jumpers at Lake Placid in 1923 and '24, will be on hand; and Bob Stout, who learned to drive dog teams under the tutelage of the famous Alaskan Seppala, will doubtless enter a team in the dog race.

Beside Mrs. Bemis and Dorothy Bemis, there will be Elizabeth Clarke, Virginia McVoy, Florence Ludington, Elizabeth Jameson, and several other girls from St. Louis. Also there is a possibility that Austin Leland, the greatest all around ski jumper at Princeton, will be able to attend.

I am going to St. Louis Christmas vacation and may be able to give you further information then. Needless to say, we are all coming up with the expectation of having a splendid time, and will be glad to co-operate in any possible way with the local committees in order to make the 1928 winter sports carnival at Charlevoix the best ever held.

Sincerely, John Knight.

John and others mentioned in the above letter may rest assured they will receive a rousing welcome when they reach Charlevoix, and that no effort will be spared to give them the best Charlevoix has to offer in hospitality and entertainment. Both the business men's and high school hockey teams have been organized and will start practice on the first ice, so that visitors will have plenty of opposition in this line. In fact, there will be no idle moments, as a full program, covering each day and evening, has been arranged for their pleasure.

FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Fifty-one Relatives Help Make Occasion a Happy One

The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Smith was celebrated at their home at 401 Antrim street, on Thanksgiving Day. The house was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and yellow and white chrysanthemums, these colors being carried out in the table decorations and in the huge wedding cake.

The forty-one relatives present gave Mr. and Mrs. Smith a floor lamp, numerous gifts were sent in by friends, as well as a golden gift from a daughter who was unable to be present to commemorate the occasion.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and daughter, Bertha of Bellaire, and Mrs. Ida Pulphier and grand-daughter of Traverse City.

BOARD OF COMMERCE MEETING

ELECTION OF OFFICERS NEXT WEDNESDAY EVENING

Annual Reports, and Business Sessions in Dining Room of Hotel Charlevoix

An event which will hold the attention of every business man and another interested in the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, which will be held in the dining room of the Hotel Charlevoix on Wednesday evening, December 7th.

A banquet dinner will be served at 6:30, followed by the routine work of the association. Various committees will make their yearly reports and the secretary-treasurer's annual report, covering receipts and disbursements of the association for the year will also be given. Election of officers for the coming year is another matter of importance, which will come before the meeting. A general view of the situation leads one to believe that the "chosen few" who have carried the burden of the work for a number of years, are going to step out and let someone else do their share for a change.

Winter sports will probably hold the center of the stage next Wednesday evening. The committee in charge of the program for Charlevoix's third annual winter carnival have been busy for some time and a report of their work and plans for the future will be given at the coming meeting.

Everyone interested in the future welfare of the city, whether a member of the association or not, is invited to this annual meeting. New ideas and suggestions are always welcome and if anyone has any they should make themselves known. Tickets for the banquet may be had at the state or county bank.

LOCAL BOY COACHES CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM

Piloted Tekonsha High School Eleven to County Title

Robert "Bob" Burns, former Charlevoix football star and graduate of the local high school, has just closed a very successful season as coach of the Tekonsha high school football team at Tekonsha, Michigan.

Bob's team won seven victories out of eight games played, and by their brilliant record won Class C championship of Calhoun county. The Jackson Citizen Patriot of a recent issue carried an article referring to the performance of the Tekonsha eleven and gives Bob due praise for his work as coach. Charlevoix people will be pleased to know of the success of one of our local boys as making in his chosen field.

FIREMEN'S PARTY WAS VERY WELL ATTENDED

The Thanksgiving dancing party given at Hallett's Inn last Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Charlevoix fire department was well patronized and thorough enjoyed by a large number of local and out-of-town people. Gate receipts of $102 indicate the large attendance and will swell the fire lad's treasury. Excellent music was furnished by Wexstaff's orchestra.

The Literary and Sewing Club of the Methodist church will hold their annual Christmas Bazaar at the Charlevoix Hardware Co., December 2 and 3, with the Bake Goods Sale on Saturday, December 3. Adv. 48-11.

Community Discount Day Saturday, December 10

According to latest advance reports, Saturday, December 10, will be a Red Letter Red for people living in Charlevoix county. Through the cooperation of the Charlevoix Business Men's Association that day has been designated as Community Discount Day. Every merchant in Charlevoix plans to offer special discounts on part or his entire stock on this "day of days."

Here is a chance for everyone to stretch the dollar "until the eagle screams." Charlevoix merchants and business places propose to show the buying public of this entire region that there is no better or cheaper place to trade in Northern Michigan than at Charlevoix.

The old saying that "A dollar's a dollar and a dime's a dime" won't mean anything on Discount Day. Instead it will mean that your dollar will purchase more than a dollar's worth, and your dime will be worth two bits.

It will be your loss if you are not on hand Saturday, December 10, for your share of the bargains offered. Watch the Courier, the best advertising medium in Charlevoix county, next week for Discount Day advs.

ARBUTUS NORDRUM WAS WEDDED AT HOME HERE

Ceremony Performed Thanksgiving Day Before Twenty-five Guests

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Oluf Nordrum on Park avenue was the scene of a very pretty wedding last Thursday evening at eight o'clock, when their daughter, Arbutus Juonita, was united in marriage to Benjamin Franklin Rasmussen of Chicago.

After the couple advanced to the altar to the strains of a wedding march played by the bride's brother, Oluf Isen Nordrum, Rev. John Lockyer of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of 25 guests. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Temple of Traverse City. Following the wedding delightful refreshments were served by the Misses Francis Milner, Julia Britton and Noreen Moran.

Mr. and Mrs. Rasmussen left the same evening for their home in Chicago. QUICK WORK BY SECRET SERVICE MEN

Alleged Guilty Parties Apprehended Near Mancelona

Some person or persons stripped a Ford truck owned by the Charlevoix Co-operative association of its generator sometime between Saturday evening and Monday morning and made their get away.

As the association were under the protection of the National Secret Service Bureau of Traverse City, the association was notified shortly after nine o'clock Monday forenoon. By two o'clock representatives of the association stopped two young men at Mancelona, thought to be the guilty parties.

The stolen generator, however, could not be properly identified, but the couple having recently installed a generator in their car, it is thought to be the same one. The pair were made to fork over all the money they had, some $5.00, and were allowed to proceed on their way. We understand later charges were preferred against them, and an effort was made to detain them at Cadillac.

Charlevoix is having her share of pilfering and sooner or later those guilty of the misdeed are bound to face the court and get their just desserts.

INDEPENDENTS LOST TO EAST JORDAN FIVE

Took Short End of 22 to 9 Score Last Friday.

Charlevoix's Independent basketball team opened the season last Friday evening with East Jordan at the gym in that city. They took the short end of a 22 to 9 score, but in spite of the fact, show promise of a strong team when they get organized and have a few practice sessions.

Some fine material for an Independent team is in Charlevoix this winter. Such former high school stars as "Pete" Hallett, Gordon Todd, Dean Davenport, Earl Harrington, Harold Jones, Floyd Brown, J. C. Marshall and others played in the opening game. These men are planning a good schedule of out-of-town games for the balance of the season and are making arrangements to bring some strong teams from the southern part of the state here this winter.

RETAIL SALE OF AUTOMOBILE PLATES

COUNTY HEADQUARTERS AGAIN AT BOYNE CITY

Chas. B. McCutcheon Named to Distribute License Plates for County as Before

As the time is rapidly approaching for the purchase of 1928 automobile plates, the question is frequently asked at what point in the county will the plates be distributed. The following letter from Chas. B. McCutcheon of Boyne City, contains the much desired information. Mr. McCutcheon had charge of the license plate distribution during the past year, and from what we can learn, is about as obliging and accommodating a fellow as one could ask to deal with. His letter to the Courier follows:

Charlevoix Courier, Charlevoix, Mich.

Gentlemen: The automobile licenses for Charlevoix county will be issued from this office for the year 1928.

At least two places will be designated in Charlevoix for forwarding application for licenses, title, assignment of title, etc., and proper blanks placed with them for the convenience of the public.

We expect to give 48 hour service to applicants from Charlevoix. Applications received in the mail at Boyne City will receive prompt attention, and the license plates placed in the mail for forwarding the following morning.

With each set of license plates will be sent a concise summary of the laws governing the operation of motor vehicles, compiled by the department of state. This is not a full text of the laws, but a short summary of the rules, easily grasped, and so arranged that any particular item may be found quickly.

Very respectfully yours,
Chas. B. McCutcheon, Branch Manager,
Department of State.

Is the only perfect Anti-freeze on the market for winter protection of automobile cooling system.

It is an anti-freeze and not an anti-leak and therefore does not form a coating over the cooling system as everything of an anti-freeze nature must do in order to stop a leak. Prestone conforms to the requirements of the Bureau of Standards and has been recommended by leading automobile manufacturers.

It is economical because it does not evaporate and can be used year after year by drawing off and saving in the spring. Put 45 per cent of Prestone in your radiator and it will need only the same attention as it does in the summer.

NO BUCK, BUT A THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Five Charlevoix hunters, A. J. Hamilton, P. J. Morn, Walker Miles, George Roderick and A. L. Fitch of Charlevoix, and Charles Benser of Boyne City, returned Sunday evening from a week-end hunting trip near Vanderbilt. They played in hard luck and failed to get a buck. This disappointment has not been unusual among hunters this season, as hundreds from all parts of the state, including the writer of this article drew a blank this season. These fellows, however, experienced the thrill of becoming confused in their directions, and had it not been for a lantern and the ringing of a bell at the camp, they might have spent a night out in the brush.

METHODIST CHURCH

John E. Lockyer, Minister

"Utopia" has been an attractive idea for people with imaginative minds and facile pens, but the shortest and most effective way to "Utopia" comes from Jesus. He too had his Utopian dream in "The Kingdom of God" but he said "The Kingdom is at Hand." This is our topic for Sunday, at 10:30.

You may know that next Sunday has two prominent interests "Golden Rule Sunday for Near East Relief" and Universal Bible Sunday. At 7 p. m. we shall hold a Bible Hour with a local display of Bibles and the pastor will speak on "How We Got Our Bible." We ask for the loan of any Bible you may have that is of special interest.

Church school is at noon and the lesson is "Isaiah Teaches Right Living."

Epworthians assemble at 6 p. m. for "Timely Topics Hour."

Tuesday at 7 young people's "Character Study Hour."

Thursday at 7 p. m. the mid-week devotional topic is "The Message of Deuteronomy."

At 7:30 on Friday the Epworthians will hold a "White Elephant Party." Ask any Epworthian about it and come along.

WHITE DEER KILLED IN CRAW- FORD COUNTY

Elk Rapids Editor Pays Students for Bootlegging Activities—Makes Reasons Plain

Richard Erdman, formerly of Butterfield township, but at present official cow tester for the Missaukee No. 1 Cow Testing Association, which embraces territory stretching from Lake City south and west past Lucas, took a couple days holiday to hunt deer, and returned last Friday with a curiosity that attracted much attention.

It was nearly a pure white deer, a buck with spike horns of good length. The body was mostly white, with spots of the ordinary colored hair toward the front of the body.

Mr. Erdman reports capturing his prize over near Lovell, some twenty miles north west of Grayling. He said when he first saw the animal, he mistook it for a Holstein calf, and it was some moments before he was sure enough of its real nature to shoot.

The animal was brought to Lake City and attracted much interest. So far as known, it is the first white deer ever seen here. One was reported killed near Rosecommon, a year or two ago.—Lake City Plain Dealer.

Pans Student Bootleggers

Things have come to a pretty pass when the students of a high school "go in" for bootlegging. But such is the case. In a neighboring city we hear that the culprit is a seventeen year-old lad and he is charged with the crime of furnishing intoxicating liquor to a fourteen-year-old school boy, getting him drunk. Two charges have been placed against the elder of the twain and he is out on bail. It is well that the authorities have taken steps to suppress this sort of juvenile delinquency.—Elk Rapids Progress.

Making His Reason Plain

An Oklahoma editor tells of an old Indian who came into his office to pay for his paper. The editor took the money; then the Indian wanted a receipt. The editor tried to talk him out of it. Mr. Indian insisted. After making it out, the editor wanted to know why he was so persistent about wanting a receipt. The Indian said: "Me die some time. Go to big gate and St. Peter ask if I been good Indian, I say yes. He say, 'Did you pay editor for paper?' I say yes. He say, 'Where is receipt?' I no have it. I have to run all over hell to find yoll and get receipt."—Exchange.

AT THE MOVIES

"The Last Waltz" Taken From Broadway Hit

The Shuberts who have produced more musical shows than perhaps any other theatrical organization, were responsible for "The Last Waltz" which played at the Century Opera House for a long run. This delightful operetta was written by Julius Brammer and Alfred Grunwald. The music was composed by Oscar Strauss who is famous for his Viennese melodies.

The cast of this musical gem was made up of such stars as Jimmie Barton, Eleanor Painter and Walter Woolf. So excellent was the story that it was thought it could make an ideal romantic moving picture. UFA of Berlin set out to make an exceptional cinema and they have accomplished just that.

Now the picture is being released by Paramount under its original name "The Last Waltz." It will be shown on the screen of the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, December 7 and 8.

wandering off from a driven herd, how was he to know that the drivers were rustlers? How was he to realize that when he drove them back into the herd a wounded cowboy guard was to see him and identify him later as leader of the thieves?

That's what happens, at any rate. But not before Tex has met and fallen in love with Lucy Blake, and she with him. Then she is able to save him, for now both the townspeople and the rustlers are after him—the townspeople because they think he stole the cattle; the rustlers because they realize he knows their identity.

How Tex clears himself of the charges and proves his innocence, how this very cattle that have gotten him in all this trouble save his and Lucy's lives, how he stampedes them into a village to drive out attacking Indians—all these thrilling deeds and more are in the Paramount-Zane Grey picture "Open Range" which opens at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, December 3 and 4.

The Baptist ladies will hold a baked goods sale also fancy work and apron sale, at the Charlevoix Hardware Co., Saturday, December 10, all day.—Adv. 47-12.

"To be good is not enough; we must be good for something. Unfortunately weakness is often mistaken for goodness because it is harmless and brainless. Ability, ambition, achievement—these must be added to give goodness true value. Combined, they spell service. And service is no longer a mere word. It is work."

The value of optimism over pessimism is illustrated by Grove Patterson, noted paragrapher, when he says: "To try to sell the idea of thrift by pointing out the need of money on the rainy day that may come is not the best sort of salesmanship. Why not point out the pleasant things that may be done with money on sunny days? Too much of our thought is negative. It is aimed at the immense possibilities of gloom. We are warned to do something lest something unpleasant may happen. Why not forecast the good results of good action rather than the bad results of bad action?"

SANDERSON'S FLOCK ARE TOP NOTCHERS

Rated by State Poultry Inspector as 98% Perfect

The poultry flock of pure-blood Plymouth Rocks belonging to Wm. Sanderson of Northwood Farm—East Jordan, Route 2,—was recently accredited 98% of perfect by a state poultry inspector. As a result of above, the Traverse City Hatching Co. have arranged with Mr. Sanderson for his output of eggs during the coming hatching season. Mr. Sanderson has gone to considerable expense in building up his poultry flock, and in providing suitable quarters. He is also a firm believer in the use of cod liver oil in feeding, being probably the first in Charlevoix county to adopt the use of this oil.—East Jordan Herald.

HOW TO KEEP WIND- SHIELD CLEAR FROM ICE

Water freezing on the windshield creates one of winter's greatest driving difficulties. It can be prevented by rubbing a thin film of glycerine over the surface of the glass. The Thanksgiving program and raffle, which were held at the school house on Wednesday evening, November 23, were certainly well attended, there being 125 present. Every one pronounced the program a success, but all experienced great suspense until the 13th ticket was drawn from the box, Mrs. Gilmartin of Bay Shore, held the number and was awarded the quilt. The quilt was made by the children who also worked very industriously selling tickets, as you will see. They sold 300 tickets. The material having cost $4.07, gave them a profit of $25.93.

DEATH CLOSES ACTIVE CAREER

ARCHIE MACNEILL WAS ONE OF CHARLEVOIX'S PIONEERS

Had Been Employed by Local Milling Concerns 55 Years—Life
Member of Masonic Order

Charlevoix lost one of its pioneer citizens and a man who held the respect of the entire city in the death of Archie MacNeill, who died at his home on State street Monday morning at 3 o'clock.

Mr. MacNeill had been in poor health for the past three weeks, but his condition had so improved in the last few days that his recovery appeared very eminent. His condition was unchanged Sunday evening when he retired and his death early Monday morning from apoplexy was unlooked for and a great shock to his family and many friends.

Deceased was born February 5, 1850, near the town of Ingersoll, Canada. He spent his early days with his parents there. Leaving home at the age of 19, he went to Clinton, Iowa, where he served his apprenticeship in a saw mill. Here he and four friends built themselves a boat, in which they sailed down the Mississippi river to New Orleans. At New Orleans Mr. MacNeill served at several occupations, one being operator of a horse-drawn street car. From New Orleans our subject returned to his home in Canada, but soon after, in the year 1872, he came to Charlevoix, starting to work in the George Estley & Son saw mill as edge saw operator. The following year, 1873, he took the job of setter on the log carriage, a position he occupied for 43 consecutive years.

In all, Mr. MacNeill served nearly 56 years in the employ of what we know as the Charlevoix Lumber Co. During this period the mill changed hands three times, but such change saw him at his old station. His fame as a setter was well known in Northern Michigan and the quality of his workmanship accounts for his long term of employment with one concern. In 1915, after all available timber had been lumbered in this section, the mill was dismantled and moved into the upper peninsula. From that time up until his death, Mr. MacNeill had been employed as watchman over the lumber company's property.

Mr. MacNeill was married in Charlevoix to Miss Melvina Hancock, September 30, 1874. To this union were born eight children, all of whom survive beside the widow, viz: one son, Archie Lewis of Chicago; seven daughters, Mrs. Catherine Kopf of Rice Lake, Wis.; Mrs. Mary Polinsky of Detroit; Mrs. Irene Pinkvener of Middleville, Mich.; Mrs. Nina Reynolds of Charlevoix; Mrs. Marguerite Morton, Mrs. Lillian Morton and Mrs. Leone Herrin, all of Detroit. Deceased is also survived by three sisters.

Mr. MacNeill was one of the oldest members of the local Masonic order, was a past master of the lodge and had been a life member for over 11 years. Charlevoix boasted one store and a population of 100 inhabitants, Indians and white, when Mr. MacNeill first came here. He had seen the village grow to a thriving city and had helped in this growth by serving many years as elderman and member of the various civic committees. Morning days, the coming of the railroad and the dredging of the government channel were all happenings he witnessed in the early days of Charlevoix.

Funeral services will be held at the Methodist church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of the local Masonic order, with Rev. John Lockyer officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

SONG BRINGS WRITER HANDSOME INCOME

Two and a Half Million Copies of "Meditation" Sold

The following from the Grand Haven Daily Tribune, will be read with interest by friends of C. S. Morrison, formerly band leader at Boyne City and well-known here. Mr. Morrison presented the Charlevoix band with "Meditation" along with several other compositions specially written for band music.

"Meditation," a composition written by C. S. Morrison 33 years ago has brought him royalties of $30,000 on a ten per cent basis with the copyright only half done.

"There have been 2,000,000 piano copies sold, 80,000 song copies and 100,000 band and orchestra arrangements of the number of which about two and a half million copies in all have been sold.

"Mr. Morrison has written some 209 compositions but can play less than half of them. Of late he has composed several band marches which have been popularized by radio.

"Mr. Morrison, who teaches music in the Grand Haven schools, has studied his art 63 years and has taught for 52 years, starting at the age of 15. He was for years director of the Newsboys Band in Grand Rapids."

FOUR WEEKS AWAY

More Detailed Plans Will Be Available After Commercial Association Meets Tonight

With the arrival of the first group of winter enthusiasts scarcely four weeks distant, activities along this line are stepping right out in front.

A party of Chicago Club summer resorters are planning on bringing a group of younger members of their families here for the holiday school vacation. Correspondence in regard to reservations for the party have already been received and a final decision is expected daily.

Plans for their entertainment while in Charlevoix are under way at this time. A group of local winter sports enthusiasts, headed by D. T. McHugh, chairman of the Association of Commerce winter sports committee, made a recent trip to Mt. McSautha, where they laid out new ski and toboggan slides for the coming winter carnival. Each was laid out in practically the same location as last winter, crossing the same clearing. Some work is necessary to get them into shape and we are informed that the job will be completed this week. Both slides are steeper and more difficult to negotiate than those used last winter, promising thrills aplenty for toboggan and ski enthusiasts.

A more recent letter from John Knight of Ann Arbor, stated that John Hennessy, who won the Western Michigan tennis championship cup at Charlevoix last summer, would be a probable member of the Ann Arbor party coming to Charlevoix around the first of February. According to John's letter, Hennessy's trip to Charlevoix depends upon whether he goes to France for the Davis cup trials or not.

Discussion at the annual Association of Commerce meeting at the Hotel Charlevoix tonight will have winter sports as its center attraction. The winter sports committee have prepared a tentative program, which will be presented at this time, and their complete plan of action will be available after the meeting.

MISS WINDER HONORED WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Friends Surprised Her at Hotel
Charlevoix Monday Evening

Miss Evelyn Winder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Winder, was very pleasantly surprised Monday evening when twelve of her local young friends dropped in at the Hotel Charlevoix to remind her of her birthday anniversary.

Christmas colors were carried out in the table decorations, which consisted of evergreen center pieces, tall pink candles, pink and white carnations and pink "mums." Delightful refreshments with the proverbial birthday cake and candles, were served in the dining room of the hotel.

Refreshments were followed by an impromptu program of readings, etc., given in the candle light by teachers of the local schools. A social time with cards and dancing in the hotel lobby rounded out the evening's enjoyment. Miss Evelyn was the recipient of many fine gifts from her Charlevoix friends as well as greetings by telegram, card, letter and gifts from friends in other parts of the state.

DEER KILL FELL SHORT THIS YEAR

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER CON-DITIONS GIVEN FOR REASON

Department of Conservation Figures Show Bucks Suffered Little From Heavy Invasion

Charlevoix hunters are not alone in the lamentation of poor hunting conditions during the deer season just closed. The same story comes from over the entire state. Never had the Wolverine state got as large an army of hunters into the woods as during the season just closed, but in spite of this fact, the kill was the smallest for a number of years past.

The following article, taken from the Grand Rapids Press, gives latest figures from the state department of conservation, carrying out our statement in the above paragraph:

The deer kill in Michigan this fall only was about 50 per cent of that of a year ago, according to figures now in the hands of the conservation commission.

The decrease in the number of deer killed is attributed to the weather more than to a scarcity of deer in the woods. The postal cards issued by the department with deer licenses are beginning to come in and the reports are to the effect that in some localities there are more deer in the woods than in a number of years past. In the upper peninsula the heavy snows of the first three days of the deer hunting season greatly reduced the bag limit. Many of the hunters left that region after the first week and as a result got only a day or two of good hunting. In the lower peninsula there was little tracking snow. The rains continued during the entire season and this greatly cut down the bag limit. In the lower peninsula particularly the hunting camps were deserted before Thanksgiving and only resident hunters remained for the close of the season. However, they were favored with no better weather than the hunters of the first 10 days. It is estimated that only about 2,000 deer were taken out of the upper peninsula by hunters who were foreign to that district. Whereas the deer bag of a year ago was estimated in excess of 15,000 for the entire state, the total this year will not exceed 9,000 or 10,000 buck deer.

With normal conditions to help the deer through the coming winter, next season should see the buck population in the state's big game cover the largest on record. That the deer are on the increase is evident from all parts of the state. An "old timer" in the section of the upper peninsula in which the writer of this article spent the hunting season, made the statement that there were more deer in that country now than in the past thirty years.

MUNYONS ENJOY THEIR CALIFORNIA JOURNEY

Write Interesting Account in Recent Letter to Courier

Last Friday the Courier received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Munyon, who had just completed their auto trip to California, their winter home. The letter which follows in part, gives an interesting account of their journey:

"Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Mich.

After a trip of 3,093 miles in fourteen days, here we are and feeling fine. We followed the southern trail through Indiana and Illinois, crossing the Mississippi river at Cairo, Ill. There we took the Blackhead highway through Arkansas, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona to California.

We had 1,700 miles of paved road, 1,000 miles of good gravel, 79 miles of good graded dirt road, 68 miles of poor gravel, 29 miles of poor dirt road and 195 miles of oiled gravel. We enjoyed every mile of it. Through Arkansas and Texas we saw large fields of cotton and negroes picking it. Through Arizona we saw large flocks of sheep and cattle and more cotton. It was all very interesting.

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year, we are The Munyons."

PIONEER RESI- DENT IS CALLED

MRS. JOHN HAMMOND DIED AT ADVANCED AGE FRIDAY

Was One of Region's Early Pioneers, Having Lived Here Over
62 Years

The long and useful life of Mrs. John Hammond, who had resided in Charlevoix county near Ironton for 62 years, passed out at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. John Hammond on State street, last Friday morning at 4:00 o'clock. Cause of death was apoplexy.

Mary Scamson was born in Lisle, Brown county, New York State, October 2, 1837, being 90 years and two months old at the time of her death. She spent her early life at Lisle, where she was married to John Hammond November 20, 1863. In the year 1860 the couple came to Michigan and settled at Hillsdale. Here they resided for five years and in 1865 Mr. Hammond joined the union army during the civil war, serving as a "90 day man" in Infantry Co. K, 130th regiment of Ohio national guard under Capt. Wm. S. Webb. After receiving his discharge that same year, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond moved to Charlevoix county, taking up a homestead near Ironton on what is known as the Lee Barnum farm.

Here the couple faced all the privations of early pioneer days. Theirs was a hardy life and that spirit which prompted untold numbers to claim the forests as their own guided these early settlers in their struggle for a home. Mrs. Hammond shared her husband's hardships besides her household duties and mothering a large family. She exemplified the type of womanhood that knew no obstacles in the early days of our nation. Mr. Hammond died in 1888, but Mrs. Hammond continued to live in the old homestead until 20 years ago, when the duties of keeping up a large home became too strenuous for her declining years, so she sold the farm and bought the Allen property near Ironton, where she had made her home with her son, Frank Hammond, up until two months ago when she came to Charlevoix to live with her granddaughter, Mrs. John Meyers.

Up until her death, Mrs. Hammond's family represented five living generations. She was the mother of 10 children, six boys and four girls, six of whom survive her, viz: Mrs. Alice Southerland of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. Mary Prevost of Charlevoix; George Hammond of Greenville, Mich.; Frank and O. D. Hammond of Charlevoix; Louis Hammond of Tucson, Arizona. There also survive one sister, who lives in California; 31 grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and 4 great great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church in this city, Rev. John E. Lockyer officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery. Mrs. Hammond had been a member of the Methodist church over 70 years.

Mrs. Hammond had been a good mother and a good wife. She lived for those near her, winning the love of all. For this exemplary life the children have given her their affection and respect in return, and she goes hence with that affection and respect still lingering in their memory.

There will be a couple of numbers by some of the school children; but there will be musical numbers by some of the Dads; talks by some more of the Dads; and some unusual experiences by some of the most prominent Dads of our own little city.

Let us all be at the high school assembly room, and hear what the Dads of Charlevoix have to offer.

SECOND NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

DR. SCOTT E. BEDFORD TO AP-PEAR DECEMBER 12TH

His Subject of "City Beautification"
One of Great Interest to Charlevoix Citizens

"People who live in cities today are starving," says Dr. Scott E. Bedford, who has been secured to lecture here Monday evening, December 12th, at the Palace Theater, under the auspices of the Board of Education, "starving for lack of beauty in their physical surroundings."

Dr. Scott E. Bedford

They are restless, dissatisfied, irritable, because this craving for beauty is not satisfied.

"The ugliness of the material things in a city gets on a man's nerves," says Doctor Bedford. "One function of beauty is to arrest motion—extract haste and impart poise. Utility is no excuse for ugliness—anything in the city, a building, lamp-post, news stand, can be beautiful as well as useful. The object of all ornamentation is to make people happy, and cities are under obligation to make themselves attractive."

Some cities have already discovered that civic beauty is a financial asset, it attracts visitors and they spend their money. Paris is a world-example of this.

"In America we desire cities where grace, refinement, art, beauty and harmony in color, form and sound may lift their heads under the patronage and appreciation of the entire community. Art is not for the few. In a democracy it is for the many."

Doctor Bedford will discuss in his interesting lecture "Beautification of Cities"—the practical ways and means of securing and developing the beauty of cities.

This is the second number of a series of lecture course entertainments sponsored by the board of education. Dr. Bedford's lecture will be of interest to everyone in Charlevoix, inasmuch as we are more than ordinarily interested in making our city one of great beauty.

YOU CANNOT PLAY IN MUD AND COME OUT CLEAN

It does not require an alarmist to give serious thought to the great number of divorces taking place in this country and to reflect upon the ultimate outcome of this growth. Boiled down, it simply means the utter destruction of the home and when the home has been destroyed, chaos and darkness follow.

What is the cause of divorce? Or, rather, what influences are largely responsible for bringing about domestic troubles that end in divorce proceedings? While there are many causes, possibly the greater number of divorces can be traced back to a lack of "home loving," the desire to go "on parties" with mixed couples; a wild desire to "have a good time" and carouse around until the wee hours of the dawn. A too-free intimacy with persons of the opposite sex; drinks together, and would-be innocent little squeezes and hand pressures.

You can't play in mud and come out clean.

The man or woman who participates in these wild orgies; the couple who "thrill" at the prospects of a "wild party" where husband and wife momentarily indulge in improprieties and while under the influence of liquor laugh in a light-hearted manner as petting is exchanged by all—this couple is courting certain disaster and the walls of a once happy home are tumbling down upon their heads.

"As you sow, so must you reap," and as surely as there is a sun in the heavens, the married couple that indulges in these intimacies with other couples will have to pay the price, and, invariably, this price ends at a divorce court.

STATE AND MUNICIPAL TAXES

We are so accustomed to the idea of prosperity nowadays, that exultation which comes from the knowledge that we are a great nation, that we overlook some of the problems which confront the nation and which, if they are not solved will make trouble in our own or our children's time.

Among these problems are our steadily growing state and municipal taxes. A little while ago an investment banker protested that these international bonds of ours did not represent inflation, but represented actual assets. We doubt that very much. If the increase in bonds throughout the United States for municipal or state purposes were justified by the expenditures and developments for which they were nominally intended then this country would represent a great place of temples and palaces. There would be no slums, no second rate state or municipal buildings and our roads would be platinum paved. If there is not a percentage of graft involved in the expenditures then there is something mysterious about the money paid out. The dollar bill of the state and city must only have twenty-five cent value. It remains for tax committees to correct the unnecessary expenditures which are going on and to fight through the courts, if necessary, to compel a dollar's worth of goods being delivered for every dollar's worth of taxes paid out. Involved in this question are our administrative methods and the inefficiency of civil servants who represent political squalor rather than efficiency.

The biggest bargain in town Saturday, December 10, will be at the Bank on the Corner. Try it!—Adv. 49-11.

THE GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

The people of Michigan will resent the insult aimed at Gov. Fred W. Green last week, when he was accused of belonging to a wealthy lobby opposed to a government inheritance tax. The Governor believes in a state inheritance tax only; one not confiscatory, the returns from which should be used in creating a permanent building and replacement fund for state institutions.

As Governor of Michigan it was his duty to go to Washington and protest against the further encroachment of the government in creating new methods of taking more tax money out of this state. The question by a member of the congressional committee—"who paid your expenses?"—was a typical bureaucratic expression coolly calculated to beat down any opposition to this plan of usurpation of state rights in the matter of taxation.

It is time a halt was called upon this growing tendency of encroachment by the national government, not only where tax matters are involved, but in the attempt to inject itself in the business affairs of the nation. Whether generally recognized or not, that is the overshadowing issue in America today. Shall our local, State and Federal governments continue their socialistic encroachments upon the constitutional and institutional prerogatives of their constituencies, or shall an aroused citizenship rise up in the majesty of a calmly conscious right and say to government: "Get out of all business for which you were not intended and for which you are not qualified, either by experience or natural ability, and go back where you belong and stay there."

RELIGION VS. AGRICULTURE

Does the progress of the rural church depend upon the prosperity of the agriculturist? Forty-seven rural churches in Illinois are reported to have reduced the amounts paid for pastor's salary from $1,000 to $500 during the last year because of the depressed agricultural situation. In not a single instance does the report show where an attempt was made to overcome this decadence of their religious enthusiasm through individual sacrifice. Instead, an appeal to the federal government was formulated for aid in the farming districts, inferring that only through artificial stimulation could there come a renewed support to this very cornerstone of modern civilization.

Rural church life in America blooms into its fullest flower during the pioneer days. Its greatest growth was during that period when agriculture was virtually in the beginning, when the wilderness was slowly giving away to tilled fields, when the modern farm machinery was unknown, when life in the rural sections of the nation was one of deepest toil and deprivation, yet those pioneer farmers found enough from their meagre store to build community churches and support a pastor in keeping with those distant days.

It is the rural community and not the rural church that is undergoing decay. The rural church declines only when its membership is satisfied to see its activity come to an end. Once closed, the doors of the rural church are rarely reopened. Some of the more devout members transfer their religious affiliations to some distant congregation, but the majority are content to let church connections pass out of their lives, while their children grow up in an air of passive paganism.

America needs deep religious conviction, and nowhere is this so intensely apparent as in the rural church. The present day evils of marriage, and divorce, prohibition, flaming youth, dishonesty in high places, are some of the problems that confront the nation, not one of which can be solved through legislation or the threat of a policeman's club. We need the rural church more than we have ever needed it before, but any religion based upon prosperity is but as tinkling symbols and sounding brass; what we must have is an old-fashioned faith that in adversity clings closer to the rugged cross of our forefathers.

THE REAL LIFE OF A MAN

Prov. 23: 7.—The real life of a man is the life within. Mark Twain once put this truth in an interesting way:

"What a wee little part of a person's life are his acts and his words!"

His real life is led in his head and is known to none but himself. All day long and every day, the mill of his brain is grinding; and his thoughts, not those other things, are his history. His acts and his words are merely the visible, thin crust of his world, with its scattered snowy summits and its vacant wastes of water—and they are so trifling a part of his bulk, a mere skin enveloping it. The mass of him is hidden—and his volcanic fires that toss and boil, and never rest, night nor day. These are his life and they are not written and cannot be written. Every day would make a whole book of 80,000 words—365 books a year. Biographies are but the clothes and buttons of the man—the biography of the man himself cannot be written."

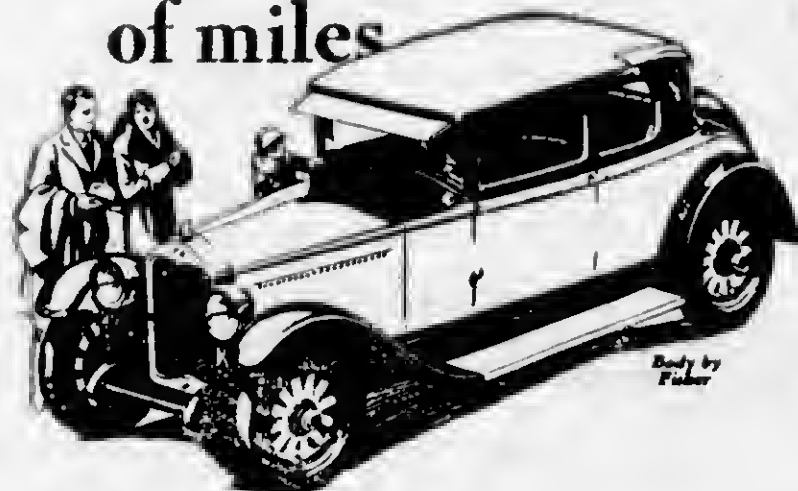

FRESHENING BREEZES

A race between a motor and a locomotive with a grade crossing as the goal may possess its elements of excitement, but it is not conducive to longevity and the practice should be discouraged, even though arrest may be necessary in order to drive common sense into foolish people.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE PROBLEM

Every year thousands of acres throughout the United States are devastated of spruce to provide Christmas trees for the kiddies of the nation, and the people of Michigan are among the worst violators.

Now it is not the intention of this newspaper to urge that the Christmas trees be taken away from the kiddies, but it does suggest that some common sense be used in the method of cutting and distributing them.

Perhaps the most important objection to the present method of cutting Christmas trees is that persons employed in that business will select a tract and will cut everything in sight, completely denuding the ground. This may be the quickest way to get a supply of trees, but eventually it will prove to be very expensive. The proper way to cut Christmas trees is to get a place where the spruce trees are especially thick and then to cut so as to thin them out. By using this method of cutting you will get your Christmas trees and will be practicing the best kind of forestry by giving the remaining trees sufficient space in which to grow. Another evil of the Christmas tree business is that every year, especially in Michigan, thousands of trees are cut that are never used. In the face of the fact that our spruce resources are growing exceptionally low this leak should be stopped as soon as possible.

If Michigan eventually adopts a reforestation policy of any magnitude it may be possible for the forestry department to supply all the Christmas trees needed in this state, and perhaps some for exportation, from the thinnings of the young forests. A substantial reforestation program will solve the Christmas tree problem, as spruce trees, like certain vegetables, have to be planted close together and thinned later. Until such policy can be adopted, however, we should exercise the greatest care in cutting our Christmas trees and cut them in such a way that the forest will not be injured.

SUBSCRIBER SENDS IN FREAK FIELD MOUSE

One of our friends sent in a dead mouse last week by R. F. D. carrier, with a request to know what breed of mice it belonged to. Blest if we know unless it might be what is commonly called an ordinary field mouse. It had a small, short, thick set body, gray in color, short front feet and long back feet, with a tail over five inches long, built somewhat like a kangaroo. Looks different than the ordinary field mouse we have seen. Possibly nature so made it to jump instead of run, using its long tail for a balancing pole.

W.N.U. SERVICE

"What's this, all about, Guthrie—this racket in there?" stormed Rawdon, heatedly.

As the bewildered Farrel waited for Guthrie's answer, his eyes widened as he saw the groping fingers of the factor of Elkwan, who leaned against the gun-rack, huddled close on the butt of his automatic.

Then with a crash the door of the bedroom was thrown back, and a giant figure, shreds of cloth hanging from naked shoulders and arms, awayed, head lowered, in the doorway. Burning with fever, the wild eyes above the grinning mouth glared with the ferocity of a mad beast at Rawdon, who instinctively recoiled from the diabolic countenance thrust toward him. Gripping the door jamb for support, the great muscles of his arms flexed. Laughing McDonald shook the room with a roar: "Give 'em the steel, Canadians! Steel for their gas! Give 'em—!" With a gasp, a hoarse rattle of the deep throat, a choking cough, the massive frame pitched headlong to the floor.

On her knees beside the man whose pulse she could not feel, sobbed Joan Quarrier. Gripping the relaxed hand of the friend he had failed to save, Guthrie listened for a heart beat. There was none. Laughing McDonald had joined the silent battalions.

"He's gone!" he asked the girl, while the policemen, dumb in their surprise, gaped at the two figures with their dead.

She nodded. "Gentlemen," Guthrie turned his face to his guests. "You are too late. Your man has escaped."

"Stun back!" From the open door two slit-like eyes in a face black with menace glittered over a rifle barrel held loosely, shoulder high. In undershirt and socks, his waist belted in bandages, stood Etienne Savanne, skulking knife dangling from a wrist thong, at the summons of his chief.

"Hand up! Quick!" His eyes shifting to doubt from the savage features of Savanne to the man still kneeling, dazed, beside the body, Farrel demanded: "What's this? A hold-up?"

"It's all right, Etienne. Drop your gun," ordered Guthrie in a tired voice, getting to his feet. "There's no trouble here."

"Oh, yes, there is!" objected Rawdon, recovering his nerve. "What do you mean, Major Guthrie, by secreting a man wanted for murder? There's some real trouble ahead for you, as an accessory!"

"Shut up, Rawdon!" snapped Farrel. "I'm in command here. And the older man fumbled in an inside pocket and produced an oilskin envelope.

Numb with bitterness, Guthrie, aided by Etienne, carried the shell of Craig Galbraith into the bedroom littered with the debris of his unconscious frenzy.

"Come here, will you, Guthrie?" called Farrel, who held a photograph in his hand.

"Is that Laughing McDonald?" Guthrie apathetically took the photograph and went to the lamp. It was the likeness of a large man in Canadian uniform, the patched face hopelessly disfigured by wounds. As he looked at the Canadian soldier, into the listless eyes of the man who had given his all for friendship, and in vain, crept a doubt—perplexity, then cold assurance. Guthrie handed the photograph to Joan Quarrier.

For an instant she examined the likeness, then with a note of triumph in her voice, returned it to Guthrie with: "It looks like him, but this man has no lobe on his left ear and his hair—look at the thin hair! His—our man's—is thick."

Guthrie nodded. "This is the man you are after, Farrel?"

"Yes, and he's the man in that room."

"You didn't tell me his real name." "His real name is Carmichael—Jack Carmichael. You ought to know, major; he must have been a friend of yours to take the chances with the law that you have in hiding him."

"All right," said Guthrie coldly, "my chances I took, I'll answer for. Now look at this photograph. You see that this man, besides losing half his face—poor devil—has no lobe on his left ear. That's clear, is it?"

"Yes, I noticed that."

"All right. Now look at his hair—is it thick or thin?"

"Thin."

"All right. Now in his description, what scars does he carry?"

Farrel read from the paper he took from the envelope in his pocket:

"Scars: Little finger on right hand, missing; lobe of left ear, missing;

etc.; shell wound on knee."

"Come in here. Taking a candle,

Guthrie led the two policemen into the bedroom. "There's the little finger on both hands. Get that?" Joan heard Guthrie say. "Ears both whole, aren't they? See any scars on his knees?"

"No!"

"Now, Inspector Farrel, look at that head of hair!—Does that look thin to you?—No, quite the contrary. It couldn't be thicker. Now I'll ask you to notice this bayonet thrust. He got it in a raid in the Ypres salient."

That's what gave him his first V. C.

I was with him. Has your man a slash across the collar bone like this?"

"Not!—Are you satisfied, Farrel?"

For a space, the trembling girl, brilled—elated, listened for a reply.

"Then there came in the low voice of Farrel a reluctant "Yes."

The three men returned to the living room, victory in the eyes of the factor of Elkwan. After the toll, the anxiety, the despair, the memory of Craig Galbraith was clean of stain.

Excusable as Guthrie had thought the act, in the light of circumstances, it was good to know he had not fled a hunted man. Craig had not been the only Canadian to come home to his

Calvary. Laughing McDonald, of the Ghost, was not wanted in Halifax.

CHAPTER XV

"Etienne," said Guthrie to the half-breed, who lingered for a heart-beat in the room, knife still hanging from wrist thong, hostile eyes on the policemen, "you help Miss Quarrier and Old Anne, while I show these gentlemen their heads. I'll be back directly."

With a backward glance at Joan, Rawdon reluctantly followed the others from the house.

In the trade-room Guthrie told the story of Craig Galbraith.

"He made the trench raid a work of art, Farrel, V. C., Croix de Guerre, Legion of Honor, he had them all. There wasn't a Hun headquarters that didn't know his name. They offered a king's ransom for him dead or alive."

"They warned me at Moose that it would be suicide for us to go to that schooner," replied the older man.

"It would have been, Farrel."

"What was he doing with the Lewis guns?"

"I don't know. Of course, I thought he was the man wanted and figured that he didn't intend to be taken. But he was weird with a pistol. He'd shoot with either hand, from any angle. And his strength—you saw him and can judge."

"Well," said Farrel with a sigh,

"I'm glad it turned out as it did. If the description had tallied with him, you were in bad for concealing him from us, although I understand how you felt—in had with your people, too."

"Yes," said Guthrie, quietly. "It took some hard thinking to decide what to do when you heard him break loose."

"What to do?" demanded Rawdon with a sneer. "What could you do?"

Guthrie's glance in the direction of the speaker brought the blood to Raw-don's face.

"Shoot you through the head, Raw-don, if I had been the only one involved—or rather, the ears, to insure getting your brain."

"You would—would you?" Purpling with rage, the policeman straightened to his feet. "You were trying to hide a crook from the officers of the law—or thought you were."

With a crash Guthrie's chair hit the floor behind him. "Mention that man over there again—and you'll never leave—"

"Hold on here!" Roughly pushing his subordinate behind him, Farrel faced the man whose mouth curled in contempt of the patent fear in the eyes of the younger policeman. "I won't have a fight here, major! You're nervous—get yourself in hand!"

"It's all right, Farrel. He's safe enough here," said Guthrie quietly,

"but he'll have to watch his step. Understand, Rawdon?"

Turning his back on the victim of his over-raw nerves, Guthrie threw back a good-night to Inspector Farrel and returned to the watchers.

Guthrie crossed the white clearing, stung by regret at his loss of self-control, his deliberate humiliation of the man whose manner with Joan

Quarrier at the supper table was eloquent of the gossip at Albany. But, harassed as he was by anxiety for the safety of Galbraith, at the veiled insult in the incoherent Rawdon's frank admiration of the girl, who stanchly stimulated interest in his attentions, while her ears strained for the dreaded sounds which would betray them,

Guthrie's command of himself had been too sorely taxed. The strain over his raw nerves had sought the panacea offered. During his short stay at Elkwan, Constable Rawdon of the government police was not apt to press his attentions on Joan Quarrier.

CHAPTER XVI

What could be done, Etienne, and Old Anne, under the dictation of the nurse, had done for the dead. In the morning, protected by a cache of logs, he would be buried in the snow until the spring would admit of the digging of a grave.

"You need air and change from this place," Guthrie said to Joan. "The stars are out; put on your coat and let's walk. I have much to say to you."

"It would be good. I think I'd like to walk on the river ice," she agreed. And with shot as escort, they crossed the clearing.

"How low the stars seem, almost crowding down on us, as you told me that morning on our way to Albany."

"How long ago it seems—so much has happened," he said.

"To you, Mr. Farrel—and to me," she answered cryptically.

"You never told me why you stayed at Albany," he began after a silence.

She did not meet his eyes, but looked far to the east where the moon, albed in half, like a mummoth cheese, by the roof of Akimiski, bathed the indigo barrens with silver.

"Is it a secret?" he pressed.

"I was needed there."

"And now, because of my bringing you into this, you can't go back."

"They will gladly have me back—they need me."

"But so do I, Healer of Wounds, I need you. Won't you listen—believe what I say?" His voice broke with emotion he could not control.

She stopped. They had reached the river trail and were alone—out of sight of the post buildings.

"Hence, I beg of you, never call me that again."

"Why, I'm sorry—I didn't know," he faltered, puzzled by her mood. "It means so much to me—a badge of honor, an accolade."

"Yes, at first, but it has come to mean to me—"

He waited, watching the light touch her sober face.

"It has come to mean to me," she went on, "something humiliating—hateful."

"Why, my dear child!" he gasped in astonishment. "Humiliating? I'm proud—so proud, to love the woman who has been a healer of wounds."

"Oh, but you don't understand—can't see! And how am I to tell you?"

"If, after what we've been through together," he said passionately, "if, knowing that you are all my world—"

all I have left to cling to, to fight for, you can't be frank with me—"

"You tell me that you care for me," she broke in bitterly, "then why is she there—in your room, where you can see her?—If you've forgotten—as you say."

He raised his mitten to his forehead as if dazed, then turned a face tense with candor. "Is she still—there?"

"Still there? Don't you know that the three likenesses are in your room, now?"

He smiled as one smiles at the caprice of a child. "It is so long since I'd noticed them, I had forgotten."

Then, dimly at first, in a moment he saw—"Healer of Wounds!" he murmured. "Oh, you think there's a scar, a wound unhealed—the memory of her, that I can't forget?" he cried. "Ethel! You think you're healing the wounds Ethel left—a substitute. Is that it?"

She would not meet his smiling eyes. "Long before I met you," he went on, "she had become a shadow. I had come to see her as she was—the shallowness, the hardness of her. Then there came sailing across the strait a girl with eyes that never wavered—a heart all gold, and hair," he laughed at the anti-climax, "that the wind loved to play with. Like the soldier she was, she forgot self in the work at hand. With those clear eyes, saw the truth. And when I left her that night on the shore of the Albany—I loved her."

With a catch in the throat, Joan Quarrier lifted her face to the moonlight. The sensitive mouth quivered; low-clouded eyes, fiercely questioning.

"You cared for me, you say, but each morning you looked at the lovely creature you had lost—and felt—just a bit sorry for her, for yourself, eh, Major Guthrie?"

He hardly recognized the voice, so hoarse, so bitter was the note on which she finished.

Hopelessly he shook his head. As if to himself, he muttered in protest: "They were there with those of the family, untouched, because unthought of. I was away—hardly slept in the room after leaving you at Albany, up the coast, inland after Soule, on the island. Do you think I would have

He waited, watching the light touch her sober face.

"It has come to mean to me," she went on, "something humiliating—hateful."

"Why, my dear child!" he gasped in astonishment. "Humiliating? I'm proud—so proud, to love the woman who has been a healer of wounds."

"Oh, but you don't understand—can't see! And how am I to tell you?"

"If, after what we've been through together," he said passionately, "if, knowing that you are all my world—"

all I have left to cling to, to fight for, you can't be frank with me—"

"You tell me that you care for me," she broke in bitterly, "then why is she there—in your room, where you can see her?—If you've forgotten—as you say."

He raised his mitten to his forehead as if dazed, then turned a face tense with candor. "Is she still—there?"

"Still there? Don't you know that the three likenesses are in your room, now?"

He smiled as one smiles at the caprice of a child. "It is so long since I'd noticed them, I had forgotten."

Then, dimly at first, in a moment he saw—"Healer of Wounds!" he murmured. "Oh, you think there's a scar, a wound unhealed—the memory of her, that I can't forget?" he cried. "Ethel! You think you're healing the wounds Ethel left—a substitute. Is that it?"

She would not meet his smiling eyes. "Long before I met you," he went on, "she had become a shadow. I had come to see her as she was—the shallowness, the hardness of her. Then turned to you in my need—asked you to come up here—with all it meant—if I had not loved you?" he pleaded.

But to her overmastering pride, Joan Quarrier was obdurate.
"Let us walk," she said, mechanically, and started on.

They walked a mile up the river trail, and turning, faced the pulsing aurora. The atching air had tured the color to her cheeks, the shadows left her amber eyes. They vied in naming the colors in the intermittent glow of the northern lights, identified stars, for the moment forgot themselves in the stimulation of keen air and leaping pulses.

As they neared the post, her moccasins slipped on the ice-littered trail. With a swift movement he caught her, for an instant the weight of her in his arms, straightened, still holding her; then, as her head fell back and he caught the fragrance of her hair, crushed his lips to it. Slowly her dark head turned, and there on the ice of the Elkwa, he held her, trembling, meeting his wild mood with a revelation of tenderness—of passion, unguessed.

"Why, oh, why," he asked, "did you torture me so long?"
"Because, Oh, Lord of Elkwan and half of Aklinski," she answered, "you tortured me with those photographs."
"Do you believe—that I forgot their existence?"
"Yes—but oh, I couldn't be second best—her substitute. I wanted to be first—wanted to be everything to you—all. And yet you needed me so—I knew it that night at Albany."

"Tim I loved you?"
"And, stupid, that you needed me."
"And that is why you stayed at Albany—because you thought I needed you?"
"No, prince of blindmen, because I loved you." And she tenderly kissed the clasp which crossed his chest. "You made me love you the night you told me of the coming of Ninda, to Elkwan."

"Add I made your brother hate me," he laughed.
"Have I noted for his injuries to you?"

"I love him for those injuries. He didn't know how he helped. But you mustn't stand here in the cold with your hood off. You'll freeze your face!" Guthrie suddenly became serious.

"Not with you, hungry man!" she laughed.

"Good-night, oh much-needed lady," he said in the living room.
"Good-night, Sir Philip Sydney. All in a few hours I have seen your eyes cold as the ice out there—and I've seen them—well, as they look now, dearest man-with-the-scar," and she kissed him and went to her room.

The following morning, when the police dog-team had left for Seal Cove, the nervous Ungawas led by the protesting Shot drew the rude coffin of Craig Galbraith to the post cemetery. There, beside the snow-drifted cross marking Ninda's grave, they built a cache of logs over the rough box of spruce slabs, and against it, rested the spruce cross which would be set in the spring when the frost left the ground.

As Garth and Etienne crossed to the trade-house, the half-breed stopped, shading his eyes with a mitten.

"See something?"

"Ah-hah!"

"Can't be the police team coming back?"

"No, not see long team—seer dog, I think."

"From Albany—a packet from Cameron. I wonder what's happened."

Twenty minutes later Guthrie was opening the mail bag which the dog driver from Albany had handed him.

"As soon as Etienne rounds to," wrote Cameron, "you bring Miss Joan down the coast—she's needed. The company is locating a permanent post on the island in the summer, and want you to handle it. You have made a big stroke with Moose and Mootreal, and if you care to stay in the trade, ought to go far. I trust by now you are open to congratulations."

But the dispatch of the mail-team to Elkwan was due to the special orders from Montreal headquarters which accompanied a letter addressed in typewriting to Major Garth Guthrie. Curious of the reason prompting the unknown writer to the haste and expense of an express packet down the Mississippi and up the coast in mid-winter, Garth opened the letter in the handwriting of his brother, which ran:

"Dear Old Garth:
"If you will accept my deep apologies, I will be a happy man. I have learned that Quarrier had personal reasons for wishing to injure you. At the time I believed him—I thought you had cut loose from us, were unfair to Ethel. But I have received a long letter from Fort Albany, from Quarrier's sister, which is corroborated by Cameron, the factor, which clears the situation. This Miss Quarrier seems to be a most unusual woman, and Clara—you know Clara—well, she has a surprise.

"The Hudson's Bay people have told me of your marked success this winter, for which my congratulations. A Guthrie has a nose for business. Best wishes, my boy, but if you will come back to us, greater opportunities await you here. By the way, you may be interested to hear that Ethel married Sir Hubert Quayle, president of the Quayle Mines, last week. Clara is furious. She sends her best love.

"Affectionately,

"CHARLES."

Hurrying to his quarters with Shot at his heels, Garth thrust the letter into Joan's hand. He watched her color deepen as her dark eyes lit with her joy for him.

"Oh, I'm so glad—so glad!" she cried. "They want you back, Garth, want you with them."

"Shall I take Ethel down now?" They ought not to be in there—her photographs—a married woman," he teased.

She shrugged her shoulders. "They are decorative, and your walls are bare. Why not leave them there?"

"Bravo, Healer of Wounds! Spoken like a soldier," and he took her in his arms, as the letter fluttered, neglected, to the floor.

"Cameron writes they are sending me next year to take the new post on the island. Is it Montreal in the spring—or our honeymoon on Aklinski?"

She rose and went to his open arms. "The island—The Land across the Water—in sight of which I met that very black sheep, Garth Guthrie—let's spend the summer there, Mr. Exile—alone."

For a space man and girl stood, lost in their happiness, then a wistful whine, the protest of two hairy paws, in silent demurrer to his heartless exclusion, waked them.

On his hind feet, nose to her shoulder, she impulsively drew the dog to her. "What would this family be without our Shotty?" And Garth's long arms circled girl and albatross, the two living things he held most dear.

Present-Day Industrial Needs Demand the Movement of Freight at Express Service Speed of Former Years.

WITH the war-time expansion in America, the greater post-war costs of materials and supplies and the higher wage levels, etc., the industrialist, the distributor and the consuming public, now require a more expedited service for freight than at any time, anywhere.

THIS means that the speed expected of the railroads in handling of all freight now is almost the former standard of express service provided in before-the-war days. The exigencies of the conflict showed the Nation, first, the urgency of speed and, secondly, the benefits that accrue. The accelerated movement of the war days was continued in the readjustment period and business men soon realized their economic advantage. Tremendous outlays for improvements and betterments gave these an added incentive in the days that followed the close of the war. New records are being made annually and the good that flows from these is reflected in the greater prosperity that every class that makes up our society now enjoys.

THE railroad traffic unit—the ton of freight—is traveling more miles each day than ever.

THE additional mileage made by each ton of freight per diem means that the manufacturer can utilize his plant to greater advantage by clearing his shipping room regularly and carrying a smaller inventory in his stock room. The distributor at destination can likewise carry on business with a smaller inventory inasmuch as he is always certain of regular deliveries. The manufacturer puts through his bills of lading at the bank several days earlier than before and so his capital is turned over oftener.

ALL of these conditions mean benefits to every stratum of society.

THE railroad worker is paid higher wages for his services, since the railroads are doing more work, and their unit of cost makes this possible.

THE consumer of commodities finds that prices are kept down to a lower level than would otherwise obtain.

THE business man, who ventures into modern business, can carry on with a smaller capital.

ALL, therefore, share in the benefits of the accelerated freight service.

NOWHERE else under heaven's blue canopy is this so apparent.

NOWHERE in America are these conditions more applicable than in the territory served by the Michigan Railroad Association, the industrial area which is making the greatest forward strides on this continent.

HOW TO PREPARE CAR FOR WINTER SHIPMENTS

Thousands of Bushels of Potatoes
Lost by Freezing in Improperly Equipped Cars

Protection against freezing of potatoes in transit according to W. S. Jensen, superintendent of perishable inspection service of the Merchants Dispatch, Inc., can best be served by loading in standard cars that have been properly prepared and sufficiently pre-heated.

The type of refrigerator cars constructed so as to offer the maximum efficiency in retaining the heat and keeping out the cold is found in M. D. T. cars, which conform to or exceed the requirements of the United States standard refrigerator car.

Given such a car, the most economical way of insuring against transit freezing is to first apply good building paper to those parts of the car where freezing could be most apt to occur. These points are at the intersection of the car floor and floor racks with the bunker bulkheads; intersection of floor racks with side walls and door sills. Care must be taken to see that the paper covering the lower opening of the bunker bulkheads and the lower part of the sidewalls overlap with the rack so that an air space is formed between the floor and floor racks.

If the car is to travel to destinations with ventilators closed it is desirable to also cover the top opening of the bunker bulkheads. Papering of doors on the inside is essential and easily done after loading has been completed.

In addition to papering the floor racks it is advisable to spread a thick layer of straw or hay over the floor racks. Recently a promising substitute for the use of paper and straw on the floor racks is being offered in the form of paper-felt carpeting.

The second, and of equal, if not more important step is pre-heating. The length of time the stove should be kept burning in the car depends upon the severity of the weather and the factors previously mentioned. Merely raising the inside air temperature is not enough. The heating should be continued until the car itself has become thoroughly warm.

It is seldom that freezing will extend beyond the potatoes in the floor layer of sacks near the car walls. This can be practically avoided by stowing the floor layer of sacks so that they do not come in contact with car walls.

Intelligent application of paper and pre-heating, as practiced by experienced loaders, is the cheapest insurance against transit freezing.

A very interesting demonstration of papering and pre-heating an M. D. T. car located on the Michigan Central tracks was given by representatives of the Merchants Dispatch, Inc., during the time of the potato show at Gaylord.

Balanced Ration Helps

A slight change in the ration of eight dairy cows reported recently made a difference of more than $40 a month in net profits from them. The change consisted in adding a portion of a high protein concentrate to the ration, which brought immediate results in the increased yield of milk. No matter how good a cow may be if she does not receive a good balanced ration suitable for her needs she cannot give a profitable yield of milk and butterfat.

Good Roads Facts

The first completely hard-surfaced through state highway in Virginia has been finished and is now available for motor traffic.

In the belief that unrestricted billboard advertising on highways is a menace to motorists, a campaign is under way in Tennessee to clear the roads of that state of the sign danger.

DIPPING IMPROVES HEALTH AND WOOL

Dipping sheep immediately following shearing to control ticks, lice and scab reduces the feed cost and increases the quantity and quality of the wool.

"The operation is simple, effective and inexpensive," says H. S. Curtis, animal husbandman at the North Carolina State college. "A sheep that is constantly harassed by ticks, lice or scab, cannot do as well either for itself or for the lamb. If the flock is large, a dipping tank is needed, but for the small flock any vessel large enough to immerse a full-grown animal, is sufficient. Purchase a sufficient quantity of a standard sheep dip and mix it according to directions on the package. Cheap concoctions injure the wool growth and hurt the quality of the fleece."

Professor Curtis warns against the use of such materials as a lime-and-sulphur dip, kerosene emulsions, or anything of such nature. These may be effective but they are likely to be injurious.

Every good sheep grower dips his flock, states Professor Curtis. This should be done preferably ten days to two weeks following shearing. The flock has then passed any danger of cold or pneumonia resulting from having the wool removed. The weather has usually warmed and the dip is more effective after the wool has been clipped.

There are certain precautions to be observed, he states. Do not dip on a cold, rainy day. Wait until the middle of the forenoon and quit in time that the last sheep will be dry before night. Do not permit the lambs to nurse before the mother dries thoroughly. If the animal does not have scab, immersion for one minute is sufficient. In case there is scab present, break the scab before dipping and immerse for two minutes, dipping the head under at alternate periods.

Shipping Suggestions for Hogs in Summer

During the hot weather season haul or drive your hogs into the shipping stations in ample time to allow them to become rested and cool before loading.

Fasten upon a clean car bedded with sand.

Wet down the bedding and interior of the car before loading.

Give only a light grain feeding before shipping.

Load not more than one hour before the train is to depart.

Load carefully and avoid excitement.

Load not to exceed 10,000 pounds in a standard 36-foot car.

Have cars dropped at every available point immediately after the train stops. Notify agents of this when signing contract.

Suspend ice bags from the car roof—using gunny sacks whenever possible. Six bags to a car is enough.

Grinding Ear Corn for Growing Pigs Is Waste

The labor and expense of grinding ear corn into corn-and-cob meal for growing pigs will be wasted. In fact, it has been shown by feeding trials at the Iowa experiment station that pigs made larger and more economical gains on ear corn than on corn-and-cob meal. The latter contains too much hard fibrous material which the pig's digestive tract apparently cannot utilize very well. Larger and cheaper gains will be secured by feeding skim milk or buttermilk in addition to ear corn on clover pasture. Where this is not available, a mixture of equal parts of tankage and linseed meal is an excellent supplement to corn and pasture. This mixture may be self-fed with shelled corn, free choice, in separate compartments of a self-feeder.—H. J. Brunt, Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Time to Build House for All Live Stock

The farmer who plans to build a barn knows it is an advantage to build it in the early summer so that good storage room may be provided for hay and grain for winter feeding. But it is different with the hog house, poultry house, or machine shed, which can be built in the fall or early winter to good advantage, says H. B. White of the farm buildings section at University farm, Minnesota State university. "A great many such buildings need to be repaired or remodeled now if they are to be satisfactory," he says. "Get a list of plans from your county agent or write your experiment station for plans suited to your locality. Get them as soon as possible. Repair, remodel, or build at once."

LOSSES OF HOGS IN HOT WEATHER

Losses of hogs in transit due to hot weather were reduced materially the past summer, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from a number of markets. Most of the losses heretofore have been caused by overloading and lack of provision for keeping the hogs cool in transit. Apparently much more care was exercised in loading and handling all live stock during the hot weather last summer, and for that reason death losses in shipment were reduced to a very small percentage.

During a period of six days of variable weather, with temperatures as high as 100 degrees, stock arriving at the South St. Paul market showed small death loss, considering the size of the pens. Only 5 sheep, 41 calves, 5 cattle and 108 hogs were dead upon arrival at the chutes during the six market days in question, whereas in previous years, there have been losses as high as 500 head of hogs in one day.

At the Kansas City market it was estimated that the losses of hogs from overheating in transit were about 15 per cent less during July and August than in the same months a year ago. The small loss in hogs is rather remarkable, says the report from this market, in view of the fact that weights were unusually heavy last summer and it is evident that heavy hogs suffer from the heat more than lighter ones.

Many shippers are using wet sand for bedding hog cars and also ice bags suspended from the car roof, practices that have long been urged by the department. More attention is also being paid to loading so that hogs have plenty of room to move around and lie down. All of these measures have a tendency to reduce hog losses in hot weather.

Creep Will Prove Big Advantage to the Pigs

A creep will prove a great advantage to pig raisers after they become two or three weeks old. This creep consists of a hole about 8 inches wide and 16 inches high or large enough for the pigs to get through into another pen but small enough to keep the sows back. It should always be high enough so the pigs do not have to crawl under as this may weaken the backs of some.

At first a little corn should be put in the pen. As the pigs grow older prepare a slop made of ground corn, two parts; ground oats, one part; and middlings, one part, mixed with skim milk or buttermilk. This should be fed twice a day, not to exceed the amount the pigs will clean up satisfactorily.

Pigs cored for in this manner can be weaned when six to eight weeks old without losing weight or suffering a set-back in growth.—A. C. Allen, Assistant Extension Livestock Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Soy Bean Pasture May Result in Soft Pork

Soy beans growers will be interested in a new report on experimental work for the production of pork with soy beans as the basis of the ration. It is found that first-class pork can be made on mature soy bean pasture by supplementing such pasture with shelled corn and a mineral mixture. Whole soy beans fed with corn in dry lots in proportion of one pound of beans to three pounds of shelled corn did not make firm pork, when fed to 180-pound hogs.

Pigs kept on soy bean pasture for eight or ten weeks with shelled corn and mineral supplement gained forty to seventy-five pounds made firm pork if they were later fed on corn and tankage for an additional gain of 125 pounds.

Summer Shade for Hogs

During the summer hogs like shade. If a shed is made that turns water, their bed gets too dusty. A cheap shade may be made by using sweet clover stems. This will keep the sun out and yet permit rain to settle the dust. Fence posts may be used for supports with a few old rails wired to the posts about four feet from the ground. It is easy to get coarse sweet clover stem to put over the top. Some use wet straw which stays put quite well.

HUNTING CLUBS BUY UP LAND

MICHIGAN SPORTSMEN CHOOSE THEIR FAVORITE SITES

Thousands of Acres in Luce, Chippewa and Mackinac Counties
Are Recently Purchased

Reports from all sections of upper Michigan, show a marked increase in deer. The one buck law has been the chief factor in saving the deer, though many attribute the increase to weather conditions, that prevailed during the last open season and which sent deer to cover, much earlier than usual and lessening the kill.

Many hunters have availed themselves of the opportunity during the present year and have bought their own lands, for those who have watched the annual increase of hunters feel that the public hunting grounds will scarcely accommodate the increased numbers.

During the past year upwards of 200,000 acres of choice hunting lands have changed, 10,000 from adjoining Luce, Schoolcraft and Mackinac counties.

Joseph W. Fordney of Saginaw, long since known as the most hospitable land owner in this section, has added several tracts to his timbered lands to the west of the Tahquamenon river in Luce county.

S. C. Stearns and a group of friends who were amongst the first Detroiters to establish a club on the Two Heart, have purchased additional acreage.

The most interesting step toward conservation is noted in the title passing into the hands of prominent Detroiters covering 6,000 acres north of Newberry on the Two Heart. Most of this land is in the hard wood belt and is densely covered. The new owners do not propose to remove any timber, but to conserve it and the trout streams for their own use. Conservation officers estimate that this tract alone has yielded several hundred deer annually.

Lansing parties have purchased 20,000 acres in Garfield township and adjoining. This tract centers at Nautawaway on Lake Michigan and plans call for large development.

Biddle point to the east and several thousand acres have been acquired by parties of Flat Rock.

The Brooks-Shepherd Land company have acquired 12,000 acres on Brevoort and Lake Michigan. This tract is located on either side of M-12, now U. S. 2 and has long since been admired by tourists who pass through it. It is located about 18 miles northwest of St. Ignace and adjoins the Warner-Straits tract now in process of development.

L. E. Tolderman of Detroit, has acquired 6,000 acres on the Whitefish section, with five miles on Tahquamenon Bay and backed by two banks of hardwoods. Naomikong river and lake are on this tract, both known for their angling sport. This tract was purchased primarily as a game preserve.

Other Detroiters have purchased Albany Island in this county. Also five thousand acres of mainland. Elaborate plans for this development were recently announced in local papers.

Not a few acres have changed hands on Drummond Island for small club purposes, while the Sheldrake section has shown some changes in ownership involving approximately 25,000 acres. A tract of 6,800 acres near Emerson has passed into the hands of down state interests.

The above transaction appear to be but the beginning of game cover lands going into private game preserves and clubs. A Soo party representing out of state owners, is negotiating the sale of 37,000 acres which is to be grouped with holdings of a large lumber company along with minor tracts. The buyers propose to have a tract of 64,000 acres which is equivalent to 100 square miles. This land is well located and accessible. Plans call for the establishing of a restricted game preserve of 16,000 acres in the heart of this vast tract. Club lands will radiate from this center in all directions and will be privately owned. The interest of the buyers is that the restricted reserve will do to this section what the Turtle Lake club has done toward the re-establishment of deer in the surrounding counties. It is believed that the numerous streams through this preserve will afford favorite fish nurseries and a study of western methods of trout raising will be followed.—Soo News.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS by B. C. Mellencamp

B. O. Hagerman, formerly county agent of this county, now agricultural agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been secured to give an illustrated discussion on soil and farm crop practices that are profitable to use in Northern Michigan. He has made public many new methods of soil and crop management that are paying dividends on the Howard City farm which is owned by the Pennsylvania system and under his management. You will be particularly interested in the success he has had with rye, and vetch, soybeans and other crops and building up the fertility of a worn out light sandy farm to a productive point where yields are remarkable.

Mr. Hagerman has many slides showing actual crops and practices that are being used throughout the state. The following four meetings will be held:

Tuesday p. m. December 13th at 7:30 standard time, Charlevoix court house.

Tuesday p. m., December 13th at 7:30 standard time, East Jordan Armory.

Wednesday p. m., December 14th at 1:30 standard time, Boyne Falls town hall.

Wednesday p. m., December 14th at 8:00 fast time, Boyne City Library.

You should be vitally interested in these meetings. Mark down the dates on your calendar right now and by all means attend.

AT THE MOVIES

Interest in "Bad Men"—especially those of the days of the lawless West immediately after the close of the Civil War—is at a high peak at present because of the promised appearance at the Palace Theatre, beginning Saturday and Sunday, of the mighty Western motion picture, "3 Bad Men," which John Ford recently completed for Fox Film Corporation in the heart of the Jackson Hole Country. This story revolves about Three Bad Men and a Girl, and the research scholars of the Fox organization unearthed an amazing mass of romantic literature about vigilantes, stage coach robbers, horse thieves, gamblers and murderers. All of this was placed before Tom Sarschi, J. Farrell Macdonald and Frank Campeau, the three bad men of the picture, and they have patterned their characterizations after the details of some of the most noted desperadoes the West ever took to a hanging.

Now that his name is the newest among featured comedians on long-term contract, Paramount is winking no time in putting William Austin to work.

Austin's latest role is that of Banning-Green in "Honeymoon Hate," Florence Vidor's new Paramount starring production, which will be seen at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Austin was assigned the new part following his sensational success as Professor Spangle in Bebe Daniels' "Swim Girl Swim."

The role of Banning-Green is not unlike that of Spangle. It calls for an eccentric characterization, an Englishman seeking the hand of the impetuous American heiress, Gail Grant, played by Miss Vidor, who goes to Venice and marries an Italian prince to tame him.

NEW RATE EFFECTIVE DEC. 1

LONG DISTANCE PHONE RATES GIVEN SLASH

Cut Covers the Entire System and Means a Substantial Savings to All Users

New reductions on long distance telephone rates from here to points outside Michigan 400 miles or more distant, were announced late last week by C. L. Johnson, manager here for the Michigan Bell Telephone company. The new rates will become effective December 1, in conformity with recent announcement of the Bell system rate reduction on long haul messages.

This is the second system-wide reduction made in a little more than a year, the first becoming effective October 1, 1926, with a saving to telephone users of the United States amounting to $3,000,000 annually. Annual saving to telephone users by the new reduction will amount to $1,500,000, it is anticipated.

The announcement follows closely upon an address by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, before the convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities commissioners at Dallas, Texas, in which he said that the fundamental policy of the company was to furnish the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety.

Station-to-station rates on long distance calls between points 400 miles or more apart are effected by the new schedule and the greater the distance, the greater the reduction shown. For instance the basic station-to-station rate for three minutes from Charlevoix to Los Angeles is reduced from $8.40 to $7.00. Other sample reductions follow: To Denver, Colo., $4.25, compared with the present rate of $4.85; Kansas City, Mo., reduced from $3.05 to $2.80; Miami, Florida, reduced from $6.05 to $5.25; Newark, N. J., reduced from $3.00 to $2.80; New Orleans, La., reduced from $4.95 to $4.25; Providence, R. I., reduced from $3.45 to $3.25.

These reductions are quoted on day station-to-station calls. Evening rates, effective between 7 and 8:30 p. m., will be reduced to a level about half way between the night rates, effective from 8:30 to 4:30 a. m., and the new day rates. The night rates will remain at approximately their present levels. Evening rates are considerable lower than day rates and night rates are still lower.

The reduction to be made effective on long haul messages December 1 is the result of the use of the latest improved devices and methods developed by the American Telephone & Telegraph company and the Bell telephone laboratories which have effected economies applying especially to longer circuits, it is stated. An important factor, also, is the steady growth of the country's net work of long distance cables, which permits carrying greater numbers of circuits on single pole lines and makes the circuits practically proof against storm damage.

The pastor exchanges the afternoon service with Dr. Mattson of the Congregational church speaking at Ironton while Dr. Mattson will speak at Eastport.

The Ladies' Aid are meeting today with Mrs. Sam Hamilton on Belvedere avenue.

The Ladies' Aid of the Baptist church will hold their annual Christmas Sale day Saturday, December 10, at the Charlevoix Hardware.—Adv. 49-t1.

SANTA'S FIRST VISIT HERE WAS A NEAR RIOT

Children Swamped Beloved Benefactor As He Alighted From Car

Charlevoix children had a big treat last Saturday when on his first visit of the season at Charlevoix Santa Claus appeared at the Mrs. Bridge Shop.

In fact, their anticipation had reached such a height by the time Old St. Nick arrived, that the party turned into a near riot when the eager young folks swarmed over their beloved benefactor in such numbers that he had to beat a hasty retreat or he would have been a piece of candy. Candy was given each child and they are still talking about Santa's arrival.

Another interesting feature at the Mrs. Bridge Shop is the mail box in front of the store for the children to drop their letters to Santa Claus. According to advance reports, Old Santa will need a fleet of truck to bring presents enough to fill all orders. Nothing short of a Cadillac car has been asked for to date.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY AT H. BROCK HOME

Friends Present Fine Gifts to Newly Wedded Couple

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Brock was the scene of a delightful party last Friday, December 2nd, when friends from Charlevoix gathered to partake of a bounteous repast at the noon hour.

The guests were royally entertained with old fashioned songs and charades in the afternoon. A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Brock of a handsome casserole and a fine console set by Mrs. P. D. Campbell in behalf of the company, to show their high esteem and good wishes.

Those present were the Mesdames Ada Shockley and Harley Ochs, Mother and sister of Mrs. Brock; Louise Elston, N. A. Shores, O. A. Wilbur, P. D. Campbell, Sr., Henry Cooper, Henry Jacobs, John Burns, Harry Widdifield, Bernard Mattson, W. H. Miller, H. S. Harsha, and Miss Isabel Hines.

MISS LARSON RESIGNS POSITION AT HOSPITAL

Will Leave Charlevoix Thursday For Western States

Miss Bertha S. Larson, superintendent at the Charlevoix hospital for the past four years, resigned her position at a meeting of the hospital board Monday evening, the resignation to take effect immediately.

Thursday morning she will leave for the West on account of poor health. Citizens of Charlevoix and northern Michigan, as well as the hospital board greatly regret Miss Larson's departure. Her efficient management of the hospital, together with her skill as a nurse has given the institution an enviable place in Northern Michigan. Her position at the hospital and the place she held in the hearts of her many friends will be hard to fill.

COUNTY IS READY FOR SNOW BATTLE

Pleety of Plow Equipment and 17,000 Feet New Fence

With five truck plows, the state owned rotary, the county owned 10-ton Holt with its push-plow equipment and 27,000 feet of snow fence, Charlevoix county is ready to battle the winter's snowy blasts to a standstill.

The 27,000 feet of snow fence above mentioned does not include board fence owned by the county and used on county roads, and of the 27,000 feet the county owns 8,000 feet which was purchased new this fall. Nearly all fence has been put up and the remainder will be in place by the end of this week. Some work has been done by the truck plows, but as yet none of the heavy equipment has been called into use.

PETOSKEY PHYSICIAN RETURNS FROM ABROAD

Charlevoix friends of Dr. J. Reycraft of Petoskey will be pleased to know that he has returned from an eight months vacation spent in Europe and has resumed his practice in his home city. Dr. John says he spent a greater portion of his time while abroad looking up new things in surgery, giving special attention and study to eye trouble. During his long residence in northern Michigan, he has made numerous close friends in this vicinity.

ASSN. OF COMMERCE BANQUET AT HOTEL CHARLEVOIX

Members Hear Interesting Reports of Committee on Activities During Past Year

Members of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce as well as many others interested in the work of this organization, were present at the annual meeting and banquet at the Hotel Charlevoix last Wednesday evening.

An excellent four-course dinner served by the hotel management opened the evening's activities and was the source of much favorable comment. After dinner Archie Livingston, acting as chairman, called the meeting to order. Harker Kirby sang several negro melodies which brought heavy rounds of applause from his listeners. Reports from the various committees, headed by F. E. Cartier of the advertising and publicity committees, followed. Other chairmen who reported were Clarence Wood of the fish and game committee; P. D. Campbell of aviation; A. F. Bridge of the industrial; W. Gordon Parker of tennis; Ray Hamilton of yachting; W. E. Parmelee of beaches and playgrounds; R. F. Sloan of the road committee and D. T. McHugh of the winter sports committee.

P. D. Campbell reporting on aviation, stated that his committee had taken steps to obtain a suitable landing place for aeroplanes in Charlevoix.

W. Gordon Parker's report on tennis was very interesting. Last summer Charlevoix staged one of the most outstanding tennis tournaments ever held in the state. Mr. Parker suggested building two cement courts on the school grounds for the use of local players and to develop more interest in the game, and at the same time provide auxiliary courts for use in case of rain on the clay courts while a tournament was in progress. W. E. Parmelee, reporting for the beaches and playgrounds committee, recommended that Ferry avenue be opened to the shore of Lake Charlevoix to give home people access to that lake and at the same time take care of the overflow of bathers from Lake Michigan.

R. F. Sloan gave a very interesting report on roads. He stated that the 1928 program called for concrete from Traverse City to Kewadin on U. S. 31 and that the concrete between Traverse City and Honor had been completed. The end of the year 1928 will see concrete from Cadillac to Grand Rapids. He suggested concrete for the lake shore drive from Ironton south to East Jordan.

D. T. McHugh's report on winter sports was the center of interest. He briefly outlined plans for the coming winter. Through Robert Bridge and Archie Livingston, members of the city council, he was assured of any reasonable financial support from that body, and a resolution pledging the Association, of Commerce support of the city council in that matter was read and adopted. With the financial obstacle surmounted, it was suggested the committee go ahead with their arrangements and expenses would be taken care of. A complete program for the winter will be found in another column in this issue.

Many others gave interesting talks, including Mayor Arthur Bergeon, who assured the audience that the city council would give their solid backing to any work sponsored by the association.

The report of Secretary-Treasurer Robert Bridge gave out some interesting facts and is printed in detail below:

PASSENGER BUS IN COLLISION SATURDAY

Nine Injured in Accident on Curve Near Petoskey

Passengers of Fowler's Charlevoix-Petoskey bus escaped injury last Saturday morning when the vehicle, driven by Lawrence Supernaw, was rammed by a Petoskey Portland Cement company truck on the double curve near Petoskey.

According to reports the truck hugged the inside of the curve allowing no room for the bus to pass. Supernaw headed for the ditch to avoid collision and the truck rammed into them amidstships. The bus did not overturn, no one was injured and the damage amounted to a broken running board, fender, hub and universal joint on the bus.

Mr. Fowler stated that the cement company through their insurance representative assumed all responsibility and damages resulting from the smash. This is the first accident experienced by the bus line since they started operation.

TO RETIRE FROM ACTIVE SERVICE

OLUF NORDRUM REWARDED FOR YEARS OF SERVICE

Has Helped in Growth of Booth Fisheries Company in His 35 Years With Concern

Beginning January 1, 1928, Oluf Nordrum will be retired from active service with the Booth Fisheries Company, in whose employ he has served nearly 35 years. Allen Campbell, for many years with the company, will be appointed resident manager.

Mr. Nordrum, a graduate of Ferris Institute commercial department, class of 1891, came to Petoskey August 15, 1891 and entered the employ of Ralph Connable & Sons as bookkeeper. He very soon gained the confidence of Ralph Connable Sr., and Ralph Connable Jr., and became the former's private accountant.

In the early year 1893 the A. Booth Packing Company became interested in the Connable concern and the Connable Fishing Co. was organized with branches at Petoskey, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Grand Marais and Chicago. A fishing station was also opened on Lake of the Woods, where pound nets were operated in charge of Captain Albert Miller of Petoskey.

The Charlevoix station consisted of a piece of land and an ice house situated about a half mile north of the Pere Marquette depot. This land is still held by the company. Operations were carried on at the Pere Marquette dock for a number of years. Headquarters for this section were established at Charlevoix in 1907 and about the same time a station was opened on McCann's dock at St. James. This latter station has now become one of the big fishing centers on the Great Lakes. The company later acquired the Donlevy property at St. James, where its business is now carried on.

Mr. Nordrum has been called upon several times for special duties away from Charlevoix. In 1905 he visited various of the company's branches in the United States and Canada, while in 1906 he spent three months in the smelt producing centers at Richibucto, Port Elgin, Loggville, Dalhousie and other points on the Merimichi river. In 1909 he made another extended trip to various branches in the United States and Canada.

In 1920 Mr. Nordrum received a call to the head office and was appointed manager of the producing department. He served in this capacity four years and then returned to Charlevoix to again resume the office of district manager.

Mr. Nordrum's activities have not been wholly confined to the Booth Fisheries Company. He has served Charlevoix in various civic capacities and is at present a member of the school board. For his faithful and conscientious services he will be retired on a pension and will only act as what might be called a "pinch hitter." The Courier along with other Charlevoix friends extend to Mr. Nordrum congratulations on his excellent record and just reward.

Do It Now--Shop Early

It is never too late to learn that it is never too early to do your Christmas shopping. It is not too late to learn that the early Christmas shopping has already begun.

There is only one excuse for putting off the holiday buying until the eleventh hour and that excuse is a financial shortage. Even this excuse is no longer being accepted by the credit departments of many stores.

The blessings of early Christmas buying are so many that it is difficult to understand why there are still people who do their shopping on Christmas eve. Depleted stocks, tired clerks, crowded stores and the necessity for haste are only a part of the arguments against the last minute rush.

Every merchant is as desirous of giving service and a good selection of stock as every customer is desirous of obtaining them and that is why many inducements in the way of credit sales, deposit purchases and Christmas storage are offered at this time of the year. There is only a certain amount of Christmas buying to be done, whether early or late, so the merchants have no other thought in urging early shopping than to make it as comfortable, convenient and satisfactory as possible.

GOVERNMENT LIGHTERS LAY IN FOR WINTER

Greys Reef and Manitou Shoals Tied Up in Round Lake

Contrary to previous reports, the U. S. government lightships, Greys Reef and Manitou Shoals, will lay up for the winter in Charlevoix.

Both ships heavily covered with ice, put in here Saturday after weathering out the 70-mile gale which struck this region last Thursday and Friday. Their orders were to leave their anchorage at midnight December 7th, but in face of unfavorable weather reports and a low barometer, Captains Stewart and Navarro decided to stay at anchor until the storm subsided. Except for a severe tossing, they were none the worse off. In fact, both skippers spoke lightly of their experience, stating it was only a part of their every day duty.

YOUTHFUL ROB- BERS ARRESTED

CAUGHT ENTERING MYERS' STORE SATURDAY NIGHT

Confess to Series of Robberies Which Puzzled Officers Through- out Summer

The arrest last Saturday night of Harold Newman and "Bill" Brown, local high school students, cleared up the identity of robbers whose depredations have been going on since last May.

The boys were caught entering the Fred Myers' store at about midnight Saturday, thus culminating a vigil of twelve nights by Sheriff Dave Vaughan, Deputy Sheriff, Charles Marshall, and Hugh Brady, special deputy. Brady was watching from the O. E. Wilbur freight office and saw the pair as they entered the store. He immediately called Deputy Sheriff Marshall and the arrest followed.

After being taken to the county jail the boys were questioned. Bit by bit an amazing story was unraveled covering their activities throughout the summer. According to officers, the story told by Newman reads something like a novel. It was revealed that he and Brown were members of a detective agency, which included two other local lads. Their apparent aim was to catch the robbers who had been operating in Charlevoix during the summer. They held regular meetings from time to time and discussed plans whereby the captured might be accomplished. Unknown to two of the detectives, the other two were the robbers. After each meeting the two guilty ones would accompany the others home and then later pull off another job.

Newman worked for a long time alone before he took Brown into his confidence. Throughout the fall months they worked together, and on one night in particular they each pulled off a robbery in different places. However, it appears that Newman was the master mind of the combination, for on different occasions he entered stores alone, and stated on such jobs he received a larger percentage of the loot than his accomplice, depending upon the difficulty of the certain robbery. Some paid less than others, etc.

According to their confession, they had entered around fifteen business places. They used the Methodist church as a base of operations, Newman having access to the church basement on account of doing janitor work there. In fact, they left their coats in the church basement the night they were arrested and later claimed that at times part of the loot was cached there. Other articles stolen were found at their homes and some was buried in the ground near the old cement plant.

At a hearing in Justice Cooper's court Tuesday afternoon, bonds were set at $1,000 each, and with a special session of circuit court to convene before Judge Parm C. Gilbert Friday the boys were held in custody until that time.

THOUSANDS PAID OUT IN XMAS CLUB FUNDS

Local Banks Putting on Extensive Campaign Again This Year

Several thousand dollars in Christmas savings club money was paid out last week by the Charlevoix State Savings Bank, and the Charlevoix County Bank and those maintaining clubs at their banks.

The idea of systematic saving has proven very popular with people of Charlevoix and vicinity for a number of years past and both banks are this year putting on extensive advertising campaigns to further educate the public along this line of thrift. Numberless matters of home finance are taken care of through these clubs and just before the Christmas season ready money is a very important item. Read their advertisements in this week's issue of the Courier.

URNS OVER BIG TIMBER TRACTS

A. C. BELDING INTERESTED IN UPPER PENINSULA DEALS

Private Parties Buying Up Choice Hunting Localities in Up- State Game Cover

Last week's issue of the Courier carried an article under the heading "Hunting Clubs Buy Up Land." Since publishing the article referred to, which was taken from the Soo News, we find that one of our local real estate operators, A. C. Belding, has figured prominently in turning over some of the big deals mentioned.

The 6,000 acre tract of heavily wooded timber north of Newberry mentioned in the former article was the Charlevoix Lumber Co. property. This tract was sold by Mr. Belding to Detroit parties, who plan using the tract as a hunting and fishing club.

Another large deal in which Mr. Belding figured is the sale to Detroit parties of a 6,000-acre tract in the Whitefish section with five miles on Tahquamenon Bay and backed by two banks of hardwood. Naomikong river and lake are on this tract, both noted for their angling sport. This tract was purchased primarily as a game preserve.

Mr. Belding is also interested with a Soo party representing out of state owners of 37,000 acres which is to be grouped with holdings of a large lumber company along with minor tracts in Schoolcraft county. Mr. Belding stated that in addition to the 37,000 acres above mentioned, an additional 97,000 acres was involved in the deal.

Sounds like a lot of acres, but it is just a sample of the way private interests are amassing up the good hunting territory of the state. It appears to the average person that if the state does not step in and protect the public by purchasing game cover and establishing public hunting grounds, anyone will have to own his own "forty" if he wants to hunt in future years.

NEW FORD CREATES MUCH INTEREST HERE

Tudor Model Shown at Northern Auto Company Sunday

A tudor sedan of the family of new Fords that were given their first official showing in the cities of the country last Friday, was brought into Charlevoix Saturday night by Joseph Foster, local manager of the Northern Auto Company, for showing the following day.

As the coming of the new car had been heralded, there was a crowd at the Northern Auto Company's big plant here to look it over. Those who saw it, and that included about everyone in the city interested in automobiles, say it looks better than the pictures showed it. All day Sunday and Monday morning hundreds of interested ones were taken for a short ride about the city, to prove some of the claims made for the pretty little new machine.

Mr. Harker Kirby and Mrs. A. C. Belding of Charlevoix are assisting the Barnard choir in their concert "Sowing and Reaping," on Thursday evening of this week. Refreshments will be served. Everyone come! Admission 35c.—Adv. 50-t1.

ANNOUNCE WINTER SPORTS PROGRAM

FLAG RAISING DECEMBER 25TH MARKS SEASON'S OPENING

Program Each Day From December 25 to February 1—Carnival Week February 1-13

Given assurance at the annual meeting of the Association of Commerce last Wednesday of financial backing by the city council, D. T. McHugh, chairman of the winter sports committee, has completed plans for the most ambitious winter sports program ever attempted in Michigan.

The official opening of the winter sports season will be at 2:30 the afternoon of December 25th, when after a ski and snowshoe hike from Memorial Park to Mt. McSaubia, members of the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club will raise the Club's flag over the new ski and toboggan slides. The flag is the same size as the American flag used by the merchants on Bridge street. Mounted on a background of white is a black circle with a white Polar bear in the center. The flag raising ceremony will be followed by an afternoon of sports.

December 25th to January 1st has been designated College Week and a full afternoon and evening program of events for the visiting college students has been completed. From January 1st to February 1st a varied program of events will be staged either afternoon or evening of each day. The program will be governed by the number of out-of-town visitors here for entertainment. Every Thursday afternoon after the holidays has been declared an official holiday in Charlevoix and all business places will be closed so that merchants and their employees may join in the fun.

Charlevoix's third annual winter sports carnival is scheduled from February 1st to 13th inclusive. A full program every day and evening is in the making. Nothing as extensive along this line has ever been attempted in Michigan. Winners of each competitive event will be rewarded with substantial prizes. Crowds estimated at over three thousand saw the program last winter and this number will be far eclipsed at the coming carnival.

Programs covering each day's activities will be posted every week in advance. Events from one Sunday to the following Sunday will be printed on cards and posted in conspicuous places throughout the city and mailed to every prospective out-of-town visitor. Other forms of publicity are also being arranged.

The Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club plans a membership drive which will be launched at once. A membership in the club costs $2 yearly and entitles the holder admittance to any and all events sponsored by the club. According to present plans, non-members will be charged a small amount, for admittance to all competitive events. Fall in line and get your membership at either of the local banks or at D. T. McHugh's office.

The new ski and toboggan slides will be ready for use by December 25th. They are built along the same lines as those at Lake Placid, N. Y. A regulation hockey rink will also be constructed by this time, with a half mile racing track around the outside. Courses for ski and snow shoe races are being laid out, marked with ribbons. All competitive events along this line will be governed by rules set forth by the club. The committee announces everything will be ready for the opening day.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held last Friday at the home of Mrs. Oluf Nordrum, was well attended and a very enjoyable occasion. Mrs. Coulter, Mrs. Novak and Mrs. Stewart were the committee in charge.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, showing the accomplishments of the year. Among these were the pledging of twenty active members, seven extension members and thirteen honorary members, making a total of forty new members for the year; three public meetings were held at which the cause of prohibition was brought before the people; representatives attended circuit court during liquor trials; the residential portion of the town was organized and canvassed for the Red Cross drive for Mississippi flood relief; an essay contest was held in the schools; about $200.00 was received and disbursed by the treasurer. State and district dues were paid on 140 members.

The flower mission and relief department reported many visits to the sick, also the distribution of flowers, fruit, cards and sometimes more substantial relief such as a gift of money to National W. C. T. U. flood sufferers, and money, linen, etc., sent to the Brown Home for Aged Women.

The Sunday school department reported one silver medal contest also the sponsoring of the National Prohibition Guards in four local Sunday schools with quarterly temperance programs.

The program consisted of the singing of Christmas hymns, a solo by Miss Eva Adams, instrumental numbers by Mrs. A. J. Stelter and Ibsen Nordrum, a reading by Mrs. Stewart and a talk by Mrs. Clara Ball, president of the fourth district W. C. T. U. and consequently in touch with the big things being accomplished by the organization as a whole.

Mrs. Ball reported on the recent state and national conventions which she attended. She said that all the great national organizations of women are standing for prohibition and law enforcement, and so are all newspapers except a few of the big dailies.

"The Building of the Wall of Defense," showing in pagentry the increase in membership during the year, was one of high lights of the national convention. About 70,000 new women had enrolled, though the net gain will be only about 50,000 due to deaths and other causes.

The members of the W. C. T. U. have no intention of abating their efforts and adopted an educational policy for the year with the slogan "Prohibition is the Best Method."

The Michigan state convention was held at the first M. E. church of Battle Creek, Rev. Quinton Walker pastor, while the sanitarium was the headquarters of the official board and Dr. Kellogg extended many courtesies. The Michigan women brought their bricks home from the national meeting and built their own wall showing 1860 new members enrolled between January 16 and May 8.

There are several changes in the state officers and Mrs. Stella B. Robin of Big Rapids now heads the list as president.

The next regular meeting of the local union will be held January 13, 1928, with Mrs. B. M. Nife, at which time the new president will preside for the first time.

"City Gone Wild" Thrilling Story of Gangster Warfare

Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture "The City Gone Wild" coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday is described as an underworld melodrama, the story of a gangster and police war in an American metropolis.

The part affords Meighan an opportunity for a powerful characterization as a criminal lawyer who turns prosecuting attorney because of the love of a beautiful girl.

James Cruze, director of "Old Ironsides," "The Covered Wagon" and other spectacular productions, directed.

Extra! Blonde Esther Ralston New Brunette!

Imagine beautiful, blonde Esther Ralston as an exotic brunette. Imagine her as a small time actress who suddenly, through a complete transformation of appearance and personality, blossoms out as the toast of Broadway. Imagine her falling in love with a handsome young man, only to find out that he loves the unique Russian that she has become. Imagine her feelings as she wonders whether he really loves her for herself alone or whether it is only affection for what seems to float on the surface. Imagine what happens when the theatrical manager, who has made this Miss Nobody from nowhere a Miss Somebody from Somewhere, threatens to tell Esther's sweetheart who she is and where she came from. Imagine—well, any of a hundred things and you have some slight idea of what is in store for the people of Charlevoix when they see Paramount's new Esther Ralston starring vehicle "The Spotlight" at the Palace next Wednesday and Thursday.

Making Others Happy Will Bring Happiness

AUNT ELIZA had lived alone for many years; her finances had dwindled, and her health as well.

It was Christmas Eve and as Aunt Eliza returned from town with a few little things that her scant purse could buy, her heart was a little heavy, for the winter was before her and her strength was falling fast.

"I'm glad I got that knife for crippled Jim; he so enjoys cutting out those animals. Life is worth while so long as we can give others pleasure, and there is always some one that we can help. I'll read to blind Jana tomorrow and that will help her and me pass away the day. Tonight I must try to think of some way that I can earn money. Sister would help me if she knew, so would the church ladies, but I simply can't tell anyone. Well, the only way to be happy is to make some one else happy, so I'll take Jimmy's knife to him. God has never forsaken me." All this was going through Aunt Eliza's mind.

As she opened the door she stood face to face with her only sister. She was over come with joy.

"Oh, Eliza, all the children want for Christmas is you, and they sent me for you. We have a nice home next to ours, for you. We will start tonight so we can get there for dinner tomorrow. You shall never feel lonely again."

Eliza continues to believe that making others happy brings happiness.—Emily Burks Adams.

CHRISTMAS TREES

THE only kind of trees that interest us at this time of year are Christmas trees. I wonder if you know that a Christmas tree may be a hemlock or a spruce, a fir, pine, cedar, or perhaps some other evergreen, as an arbor vitae. But the ones named are the most popular. Can you tell the difference?

A spruce Christmas tree has stiff needles, sharp as pins, that stand out all ways.

A hemlock Christmas tree has flat needles that lie on the twigs as if they were parted, just as hair is parted. These hemlock needles are whitish underneath.

The fir Christmas tree has needles that are parted very much like the hemlock, only each separate needle seems to be parted on its under side, too. Very likely your tree will be one of these three.

The pine is too well known for much description. It has two forms of leaves—the primary, small and scale-like, and the secondary—long and in clusters of various numbers. There are many species, from a few feet high to over a hundred.

The cedar is of an old family. It is the well-known Cedar of Lebanon. It is of slow growth, very hard wood, and much used in manufacturing lead pencils. All are fragrant, and very popular for Christmas trees.—Frank Herbert Sweet.

Christmas Team Work—and It Was for Keeps

IT HADN'T been a good Christmas season for the little maiden lady in her little Economy store. Economy was an apt name for it—only the strictest economy prevailed there.

The next day was the last before Christmas, she reasoned, and a lot of her cheap toys were not sold.

The little maiden lady made a resolution. She had always wanted to be rich that she might bestow fine presents upon all the boys and girls. She liked boys and girls, but somehow they always treated her distantly when she made her timid overtures. It was very evident she was never going to be rich—she would do something now; so she made a big sign and put it in her window.

"A Christmas toy for each of the first fifty children who come in at four o'clock the day before Christmas."

Miss Watkins didn't think there were fifty in the whole town, but she was mistaken. At four o'clock the next day they came trooping in—in such numbers she never knew how many toys she gave away.

It was all exciting and very thrilling. It was the most fun she had ever had. The "Thankyous" and the "Merry Christmases" were all so genuine and overwhelming, and right in the midst of it who should appear but the kind-faced, white-haired gentleman who kept the small candy shop across the street, and he invited them all over to partake of his wares. He looked like Santa Claus himself with his round rosy cheeks, shining blue eyes, and white hair curling over his fur collar.

When everything was quiet once more and Miss Watkins sat with folded hands thinking about the Christmas joy the simple giving had brought to her, Santa Claus from across the street again appeared:

"Pretty good team work we made of it, didn't we, Miss Watkins?" he chuckled.

And Miss Watkins uttered a surprised "Yes, indeed!"

Santa Claus chuckled again and put his hands on the surprised lady's shoulders:

"Don't you think we could team it together the rest of our lives?"

And Miss Watkins looked up and blushing stammered:

"Yes, indeed!"—Florence Harris Wells.

The Pine Tree and a Christmas Inspiration

THE creaking, crunching snow under foot, as well as the crisp, frosty air bespoke a temperature some degrees below zero. However, native mid-westerners looked for, anticipated and expected a quantity of snow and cold weather for the Christmas holidays. Their expectations were usually right with an added cold stretch long before the holidays, and long after them.

The hard lines of the massive, bulky, stone Central Administration building of the college was delightfully contrasted against the dead white, fluffy, fairy-like snow all about it. This building, as did four others, faced a huge stretch of campus, with groupings of trees scattered pleasingly about to break the wide expanse.

Trees, heavily hung with the almost artificial-looking cottony webbing formed an artistic group across the road and in front of the building. In the center of the group stood a well formed, tall, perfect specimen of a long needled pine. It was angled out to be the proud possessor of many colored lights distributed about generously among its branches. Deserving of praise was this awesome tree, and its surroundings.

Silhouetted against the sky, forming a background for the proud pine tree stood the campanile, the pride of every student on the campus. In the dull, afterglow of the winter twilight the chimneys were extending the Christmas carols.

At the foot of the narrow winding staircase of iron which leads to the belfry of the campanile, upon close inspection could be seen a maid and young man—not the first time, nor would it be the last time the campanile should witness such a sight. The meeting had been planned in view of their separation on the morrow when both would go to their homes. Moved by the sight of the proud pine, its symbolism, and the chimneys, they bade each other farewell in fond embrace, carrying away with them the spirit of the proud pine tree in their hearts.—Eleanor B. King.

Christmas carols will, of course, add beauty to the holiday season. Also they will bring about an increase in communal singing.

Flowers for Christmas

When flowers are at a premium, why not give a few bulbs or a potted plant as a Christmas present to the woman who likes flowers?

Her Faith Reborn

Katherine Edelman

(The story of a woman who had lost the greatest thing in life—faith in her fellowmen—and how it came back to her at Christmas time.)

HULDA POTTSFIELD was very unhappy. For two months she had fretted herself because a sum of money, which she had invested had been lost. She had entrusted it to an old friend of her girlhood in a nearby city and when the news came that the money was lost Hulda made up her mind then and there that all humbug was alike—eager and ready to cheat even its own friends if there was a chance. She grew more bitter and sullen each day and withdrew herself almost entirely from the circle of friends that she had known so long. She never stopped to think that even without this amount she could still live in comparative ease; that there was nothing in reason she would have to deny herself as the income she still had was quite large. Blindly she shut her eyes to all this and would not at-joy of earlier days, but years had passed over his grave in a distant land.

There were other pictures looking down upon her with young and happy faces, but they were pictures of children who had blossomed other homes, placed about to keep company with her dream children, and reminding her now again that she had none.

So the star might have known that there was reason for pensiveness as it tried to penetrate the gathering gloom and the mystery. But whether it learned the secret or not, it witnessed a light in the dim room. For she had taken from a portfolio her most precious possession, and she was smiling upon it. It was an old valentine, the last that she had received from him who had never returned. It was inscribed "To My Valentine." Upon it sat Cupid, in a wreath of forget-me-nots, holding a high pyramid of large roses over a large, circular spider web, with two hearts entangled in it!

The star must have recognized that it was shining upon the deathlessness of love, and helping it to share the Christmas fellowship and cheer.—Christopher G. Hazard.

Provided Breakfast for Old Santa Claus

"DO YOU think?" inquired small David of his father, "that Santa is coming 'bout this time?"

"Why, not quite so early, son. A little later, perhaps. Still, if you listen carefully, perhaps you can hear his bells."

Small David stood on tip-toe near the window and cocked his pink ears. "I think," he said slowly, "I think I hear 'em!"

The family rather forgot small David in the next half hour. There was much to do. But finally father looked up. "Where's the boy?" he asked.

David had disappeared. They scurried about hunting for him in every room. No David. Then some one heard a faint noise on the front porch. Father stepped out to see what it was.

A small, square figure in very short pants was bending over something. "Son," called father, "what are you doing out here?"

"S-s-sh!" warned small David. Father stepped nearer.

"See," said small David reaching up on tip-toe to whisper. "See, I brought out a bowl of breakfast food for Santa Claus. He might get hungry."

Father gathered up his son, amused and pleased.

"That's the very first time I ever knew of any one thinking about Santa's comfort. Bless you, boy! That's the right holiday spirit."

Next morning small David found a note pinned to his stocking:

THANK YOU FOR MY BOWL OF BREAKFAST FOOD!
—SANTA CLAUS.

His Christmas Dream and It All Came True

HE WAS such a beautiful little darling that his mother looked at him and forgot what she was going to say, when she was about to give him a lecture about pulling the cat's tail. And when he went with her to the hospital with a basket of flowers, and passed up and down the wards with a smile and a Christmas flower for every sufferer, they felt as though an angel had appeared again.

It was in his cozy room at home that he had a dream house. There he had day dreams, as well as night dreams. There he entertained "Mr. Bethlehem," and "Betty Boshuckle," and her brother "David." On the chimney shelf was a lunch for Santa Claus, and near it was a letter that registered a few of his hopes. He preferred chocolate elephants rather than chocolate horses, as they amounted to more. He conferred with his white rabbit mascot about the chipmunk skin that served as a rug for his garage, huilt for the coming automobile. There must have been a radio in the room, it was so full of happy thoughts and sweet, faint sounds. "Listen," he said to Mr. Bethlehem, "I hear them singing." "Davy," he cried, "he's most here. Look, Betty, look there's the star!"

And it was so. That very night brought all that imagination had visioned, and the darkness fled before the glorious light of Christmas morning.—Christopher G. Hazard.

The Lonely Old Lady's Christmas Valentine

THE lonely old lady sat in the twilight as the evening star looked in through the window and wondered why she seemed so sad. The star was bright enough that Christmas Eve to guide anyone to gladness, but she who sat there did not appear to know it. There were yet a few sparks amid the ashes of the hearth fire, and warmth had not wholly departed from the room; there were points of light in the maze of memories that kept the past alive, and at heart the silent thinker was not cold; but darkness was creeping over solitude, and time was registering age, and the old lady was lonely.

There was a picture on the wall of one who had been the strength and

Christmas Courage

by Florence Harris Wells

TOM WALTON was lonesome. It was Christmas Eve and he had no near relatives on earth. Seeing a light in the office of his friend, Doctor Barnes, he sauntered in. He had scarcely entered when the Doctor began to exclaim over him: "What had he been drinking?"

"Nothing," Tom declared, taking it as a joke.

Well, what had he been eating? "Nothing unusual," Tom tried bantering a little, but the doctor persisted.

"You certainly have smelled something out of the ordinary?"

Then Tom remembered that that morning he had received a letter from a friend of his in India with a pressed flower in it. In fact, he had the letter in his pocket and showed it to the doctor, saying:

"Yes, that flower has a peculiar odor. I thought of it this morning. But how in the dickens could you tell?"

But the doctor was all business. He called the flower by a long, botanical name; while in suppressed excitement he told Tom of its strange death-bearing odor that within twenty-four hours from the time it was inhaled meant death. A sharp pain in the heart would be the only warning. The doctor slumped in his chair, head bowed in his hands, unable to meet Tom's horror-stricken eyes.

Tom staggered out into the night as though condemned to the guillotine. His mind refused to act. His limbs seemed paralyzed. It was as though already the shadow of death was gathering about him. Only one thought registered. He must get to his room and bed before the end came. His feet dragged as if chains were upon them. He felt like a man in a nightmare unable to get where he wished to go—but it wasn't a nightmare, he groaned. With the thought his innate courage began to assert itself. His was no coward. If death lay in wait for him just around the corner, as it were, he would at least die game—not like a sniveling coward. He faced about and entered a cabaret. Alone in the gay throng he collected his wits and made his plans.

He had money, but no relatives. He would close his life with a good deed. He would give his money because it was Christmas time and the season for giving. But it must be no mere gift. Some one must receive with this gift something more than its material value. Gifts and Christmas brought Margaret to mind. She was the only person in the world of his own kind and kin that he knew of, and she was only a second or third cousin so far removed that if Margaret, too, had not been an orphan, they would not have recognized the slight blood tie.

They had spent their Christmas together until this year. But the old aunt, who was Margaret's aunt, not his, had passed away early in the year and at their last meeting Margaret had told him her aunt's last expressed wish was that she should marry her aunt's stepson, who had been her encouraged lover since childhood. He was middle-aged and well-to-do and Margaret had promised to give him her answer on Christmas Eve.

She really didn't love him, she concluded to Tom, but the man she thought she loved didn't pay much attention to her; so she would settle her heart and life that Christmas Eve.

That was tonight. He yet had time perhaps to do this big Christmas-giving before his life ended.

Margaret lived and worked in a tiny village not far from the city. She had no money except what she earned. Tom felt sure it was the eternal pinching and scraping that was influencing her to make her life easier in the only way that offered. He would give her all he had. It was enough to keep her from worrying about her immediate wants for some time and save her from sacrificing her soul and body to a loveless marriage. Perhaps in the meantime the other chap might wake up and realize what a peach of a girl Margaret is.

"What an idiot he must be," Tom uttered to himself, "not to grab up a girl like Margaret when he has the chance."

His thoughts ran through his mind as the slow moving train advanced toward the village. For the time being his errand and not what its outcome might be outweighed the gloom of the impending doom that hung over his own life. His thoughts were on another's trouble rather than his own. He wondered if perchance she might already be married. People did such things on Christmas Eve, and it was late fall when he last talked with Margaret. With the thought came a tightening about the muscles of his heart. It was the first warning, Tom knew.

The train fairly crawled. It was an hour late. Tom remembered it was always an hour or so late on Christmas Eve. It had been so every year, he recalled. He was surprised that he hadn't thought of that before. In the maze of his harassed brain he hoped the deadly odor would not take effect too soon. He had too much to do first.

At last the train drew in at the station. There was no taxi. There never were taxis at Smithville; but other years Margaret had met him. He stepped out, almost expecting to see her laughing a welcoming Merry Christmas at him. He almost felt disappointed, and again that queer little sensation about his heart, recalling to him the importance of losing no time.

Without reason, from force of habit, Tom went directly to the old house of Margaret's aunt. The house was in total darkness but Tom gave the old-fashioned bell a vigorous pull and its ring seemed to solemnly re-echo on the chilly wintry air—not at all like a Christmas chime came the unsolicited thought to Tom. The house was dark, it might be empty, but Tom was going to be sure. Again and again he pulled down the bell. Ages it seemed to Tom before a light appeared and big, burly, Peter Kline, arrayed in night apparel, threw wide open the door.

"Is some one sick or dying this night that you rouse such a hullabaloo at a man's door?"

He lowered the lamp and peered at Tom.

"So it's you? I'll be gol-darned. You're white as a sheet. What's ails you? Come in! Come in!"

He fairly pushed Tom in, banging the door behind them.

All the time Tom had been asking for Margaret, but Peter apparently heard nothing until they were in the cozy living room where embers still glowed in the old-fashioned fireplace.

"Is it Margaret you're seeking? Glad enough I am that you've come to at last. Married to me, did you say? Certainly not. I married the Widow Stone at Thanksgiving. I'm not the sort of man that wants to marry a girl who loves some one else. Margaret lives over at Neighbor Lewis'. Some one's up." Peter unceremoniously ushered Tom out into the night.

Tom never knew quite how he got across the street to the Lawless', but it was Margaret herself who opened the door. Neither did he know how it came about that Margaret was in his arms.

It was later when they got their breath and senses that Tom remembered his real mission, and the fullness of the love he had been so slow in realizing broke upon him. The stab at his heart woke him completely from his dream and he poured out to Margaret the tragedy that hung over them.

He hadn't thought what Margaret would do, but he was entirely unprepared for the burst of gay laughter at the end of his recital in which she had listened apparently so sympathetically.

"Listen, Tom," and she reached for the evening paper. "I read this just before you came in and was interested because he was your friend. Doctor Barnes was this afternoon declared by prominent specialists to be insane. For some time he has been obsessed by the idea that his friends as well as his patients for various and sundry reasons had but twenty-four hours to live, etc.—No use reading it all, Tom. That's enough. I didn't laugh when I read it, but now I feel like shouting because it brought me you."

"And it brought me you," Tom returned, inwardly rejoicing that he hadn't allowed Fate to make a coward of him. The thought of what it would have meant if he had followed his impulse and gone to bed swept over him for a minute; then he clasped Margaret to him.

"Isn't it a Merry Christmas, though?" He exalted from sheer joy of living.

"A most merry one!" Margaret laughed up at him triumphantly.

The Town's Christmas —an Enjoyable Affair

IT WAS the town's idea. Of course you may say how absurd that statement is, that a town cannot have an idea because a town is not a person.

But when many people in a town all have the same public spirited feelings and interest in others, you can almost say that the town itself is different from other towns—more generous, more thoughtful—just as you will speak of a person.

So the town lined its streets with Christmas trees and lighted them with twinkling lights.

And the town invited all the parents and all the children from the surrounding countryside to come to the town any night during the week from Christmas to New Year's when a concert of Christmas music was given by the village band, and when hot soup and biscuits were served to every stranger.

And the town never enjoyed itself as much before.—Mary Graham Bonner.

The City of Been

In Holland the story of the city of Been is told every Christmas. This wonderful place was famous for its magnificence and beauty, and also for its wickedness and shamelessness. One day the whole city was swallowed up by the sea. It is said that every Christmas Eve the bells of the churches of the submerged city are heard to ring again.

Christmas Eve

Christmas Eve refers to the evening of December 24. This word "eve" in general means the evening before, from the Jewish mode of reckoning this day as beginning at sunset.

A MESSAGE of GOOD WILL By ALBERT ASH ALLEN

HARK! Now the bells, on Christmas Day,
Bring back the joy of happy times—
Some spirit, which had gone away,
Now hovers in these merry chimes;
With peace on earth, good will to men—
Thus is the message heard again.

Hark! Now the bells, on frosty air,
Ring hope and comfort, love and peace—
The Spirit of the Christ is there
To bid the worldly tumult cease;
With peace on earth, good will to men—
Thus is the carol heard again.

Hark! Now the bells o'er vale and hill Reach to the islands of the sea
In one sweet voice of "Peace, be still, and let thy burden rest on Me,"
Thus peace on earth, good will to men
Is, in the echo, heard again!

BOHN LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON

TAKES UP HIS OFFICIAL DUTIES AT NATION'S CAPITOL

Newspaper Reporters Gather Data on Some of His Early Day Experiences

According to the Newberry News, Congressman F. P. Bohn left last week for Washington, where he took up his official duties at the opening of congress, December 5.

In a friendly chat with a representative of the News prior to departure he ruminated some of his experience when he first came to the upper peninsula from Walton, Ind., a young physician, just graduated from college, with a brand new sheepskin tucked away in his traveling bag. He was a few days short of being 24 years old when he got off the train at Seney in July 1890, and hung out his shingle as a practicing physician. There was no roads from settlement to camp, trips of 48 hours were common events. He rode horseback or walked, drove dog teams or snowshoed.

"The exposure and exertion were terrific," he said, "but the hardest thing of all was that you had no help. Sometimes one would give anything for a consultation or a nurse, but there was nothing to do but go ahead and do the thing that seemed right. It was remarkable how many bad cases got well, too. It was the best school in the world in which to learn self reliance, but a mighty hard one."

He told of journeying 60 miles one time to see a lumberjack in one of the camps. The man had a fractured leg. Dr. Bohn put it in a plaster cast, told him how long to leave it and how to care for it and did not see his patient again until a decade later when, one day, while riding on a South Shore train, the fellow came up and introduced himself. He had made a perfect recovery.

It is the belief of Dr. Bohn that the biggest asset of the north country is its attraction to the tourist. He believes this attraction is of more value than the lumbering, farming or the mines. Conservation should be of chief interest here. Not only of the fish and game, but also of the forests. In his talks with people from all over the country, he has discovered that when they are planning a vacation trip and seeking a real rest and recreation they want to view nature in the rough, unspoiled by the hands of man. Our magnificent forests, our sparkling lakes and streams, and our deer and other wild game in their natural habitat, is the attraction that is drawing thousands of visitors to the upper peninsula every year. Our Tahquamenon river trip alone, will draw thousands of visitors to Newberry as soon as it becomes generally known that a dozen or more deer may be seen feeding along the shores of the river any day one cares to make the trip. This feature alone is of as much interest as the scenic beauties.

Dr. Bohn talked of his home town. He is proud of it and expects to always make Newberry his home. Newberry is known throughout the state, he said for its friendliness and spirit of co-operation. Factional fights are almost unknown, and to this spirit of co-operation he attributes much of our material progress and prosperity. Without this spirit, our splendid school system, our community building and other public improvements would have been impossible.

It is the belief of the congressman that local taxes have reached their peak this year. With our building program completed, taxes should generally decrease.

"Tell my friends that my office is open to them at all times when they come to Washington. I want them to come and see me," were his parting words.

Dr. Bohn will return to Newberry for the Christmas holidays, after which Mrs. Bohn and daughter Marvel, will return with him to Washington.—Newberry News.

WHY SOME PEOPLE GO TO CHURCH

Some go to church just for a walk.

Some to stare and laugh and talk.

Some go there to meet a friend.

Some their idle time to spend.

Some for general observation.

Some for private speculation.

Some to seek or find a lover.

Some a courtship to discover.

Some go there to use their eyes.

And newest fashions criticize.

Some to show their own smart dress.

Some their neighbors to assess.

Some to scan a robe or bonnet.

Some to price the trimming on it.

Some to learn the latest news.

That friend at home they may amuse.

Some to gossip false and true.

Safe within the sheltering pew.

Some go there to please the squire.

Some his daughter to admire.

Some persons go to fawn.

Some to lounge and some to yawn.

Some to claim the parish doles.

Some for bread and some for coals.

Some because it's thought genteel.

Some to vaunt their pious zeal.

Some to show how sweet they sing.

Some how loud their voices ring.

Some the preacher go to hear.

His style of voice to praise or jeer.

Some their sins to varnish o'er.

Some to sit and doze and nod.

But few to kneel and worship God.

COMMUNITY XMAS TREE SATURDAY

CHRISTMAS CAROLS AND SHORT PROGRAM AT 5 O'CLOCK

Charlevoix's Needy Families Will Be Provided With Baskets—
Donations in Order

Plans have been arranged for a community Christmas tree in Charlevoix. Through the suggestion of Mayor Arthur Burgeon a committee composed of Charles Hamlin, Oscar Nelson and Jos. Foster have worked out details of the program and have solicited the business street for donations towards a fund to be used to provide Christmas baskets for needy families in the city.

The time for the community tree is Saturday afternoon, December 24, at 5 o'clock. The place is the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets. Mayor Burgeon will open the program with a short address of welcome. Christmas carols will be sung by the united choirs of all Charlevoix churches. Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church will give a short address on the significance of the occasion.

Immediately following the program Santa Claus will arrive with his reindeer and sleigh load of candy and nuts for the children. A special invitation is extended to farmers and their families to attend the program. The tree will be beautifully illuminated with colored electric lights and the children will certainly want to see Santa Claus and his reindeer.

In reference to the fund for Christmas baskets to be given to Charlevoix's needy families, we might say that it has been impossible for the committee to reach everyone who might have a donation. Anyone wishing to help the cause may notify any member of the above named committee or leave their donations at the Northern Auto company. Also if anyone knows of any needy family, leave their name with the committee. What is Christmas without giving? Get in line with others and make Christmas in Charlevoix happy for everyone.

MEN'S CLUB ORGAN- IZED MONDAY NIGHT

Officers Elected and Plans For Winter Discussed

Over fifty men were in attendance at the first meeting of the Community Men's Club, held Monday evening in the dining room of the Methodist church.

All present enjoyed an excellent "feed" served at 6:15. As the first meeting was more or less one of organization, the following officers were elected to direct the club's activities for the coming winter: President, Harker Kirby; treasurer, Clarence Meggison; sec., Martin Block. A. C. Belding, George Roderick and Frank F. Bird were named as members of the refreshments committee, and O. P. North, Dr. F. F. McMillan and Horace Fowler members of the entertainment committee. Harker Kirby was named as a committee of one to organize a men's chorus.

It was decided to hold the annual Community Father and Son banquet February 13th. Programs will be arranged and announced in advance each week. It is also planned to have special speakers on different meeting nights throughout the winter. During the course of the evening, Rev. John Lockyer gave a very interesting address on "That Boy of Yours." Miller's orchestra furnished excellent music Monday evening and as we understand it will play on meeting nights during the winter.

Notice to Tax Payers

I will be at the Charlevoix Bank on Saturday, December 24 and Saturday, December 31 and at the Norwood Town Hall on Tuesday, January 3rd, to collect taxes for Norwood township. Edd Gregory, treasurer.—Adv. 51-t2

The Christmas Spirit In Our Community

The spirit of Christmas is more than the spirit of giving. It is more than a mere exchange of material things. It is a matter of spiritual values, a sort of glorified combination of the realization that "the gift without the giver is bare," the resolution to "do unto others as you would have them do unto you" and the desire for "peace on earth, good will to men." Especially should this be true of the Christmas spirit in our community.

When we have planned for gifts that we are to give to members of our families and our friends, we must not forget that there is another which should receive a gift from us. It is our community. Our gift to our community should be one of good citizenship, by having an active interest in affairs of government by aiding the board of education and the teachers in maintaining the highest ing our churches, by centering all of our trading activities here, by taking pride in the appearance of our homes, our yards, our streets and our parks, by being an active proponent, and not an obstructionist, of any movement which will make our town a better place in which to live—in short, by building up our community in every possible way. For the one best gift to our community is co-operation.

And when we have given this to our community, let us not forget the gift as soon as the holiday season is over. Instead let us carry over the Christmas spirit into every day of the year so that each succeeding Christmas will be a happier one for all of us because each of us has done his share in giving our community all the good things of life.

WARM RECEPTION DUE BANDIT HERE

COUNTY BANKS UNITE UNDER VIGILANTE SYSTEM

Rifles, Revolvers and Ammunition Received Here for Distribution to Special Deputies

Another step in the vigilante plan of bank protection in Charlevoix county was completed last Friday. A consignment of weapons, which included seven Springfield army rifles, a like number of 45-calibre revolvers and a large quantity of ammunition was received at the Charlevoix State Savings bank for distribution to other banking institutions in the county.

The system of protection adopted by the two Charlevoix banks should prove very effective. Part of the weapons above mentioned will be given to men sworn in as special deputies.

ties. They have been chosen so that their strategic location to the banks forms a complete circle around the two institutions, blocking the escape of bandits from any direction. Secret alarms will be run from the banks to the vigilante's place of business, so that in case of robbery he may be notified. A wide-spread system of alarms will be worked out with the telephone company which enable the sheriff and the county protective committee of bankers to spread a net of vigilantes in all counties surrounding in less than thirty minutes.

The Charlevoix County Bankers' Federation at a meeting held last June, also voted to equip the sheriff of the county with bullet proof vests and bullet proof glass for his automobile. Gas bombs and high explosive bombs will also be used in the protection scheme.

A reward of $1,000 will be offered by the county federation for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of any bandit robbing or (Continued on page two)

VALUABLE CANINES POISONED LAST WEEK

Efforts Are Being Made to Apprehend Guilty Party

Several Charlevoix dog owners are desirous of learning the identity of the unscrupulous person responsible for the wholesale poisoning of a number of valuable dogs last Wednesday.

George Smith lost a registered thorough-bred German Police dog, Lyle Kowalski a valuable fox hound, DeForest Wood a heagle hound. Inasmuch as the dogs died the same day and were owned by people residing on the north side, would lead one to believe they all got their poison from the same source.

In our estimation the dog poisoner is about the lowest bit of humanity at large. He should be apprehended and punished and it is our hope that the dog owners who lost valuable animals will be successful in their efforts to arrest the guilty one.

To enjoy a Merry Christmas you must have extra funds. To do this join the Christmas Club at the Bank on the Corner.—Adv. 51-t1.

FIRST VISITORS COME NEXT WEEK

MISS JOAN STUART HEADS
PARTY FROM CHICAGO

South Side Athletic Field Is Chosen
As New Site of Skating and Hockey Rink

Charlevoix will entertain her first group of winter visitors over the New Year's week end. The party, which is headed by Miss Joan Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Chicago Club summer residents, have made reservations for four rooms with J. J. Hallett.

Miss Stuart and her party are making the trip north over the Pennsylvania railway and will be met in Petoskey Saturday morning, December 31, and brought to Charlevoix by auto. According to letters received, they will spend Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Charlevoix for winter sports. Plans for their entertainment have already been completed by the winter sports committee.

Work on Charlevoix's new hockey rink started Wednesday morning. Owing to lack of sufficient space on the school grounds for a regulation rink, the athletic field behind the south side school house has been chosen for the new site. Skaters were greatly hindered during races last winter in making the corners on the narrow rink at the school grounds. This difficulty is another reason for choosing the new location. Plans now call for a regulation hockey rink 70 by 170 feet in dimensions with a 30-foot racing track around the outside. A penalty pit will be constructed on one side and will also serve as a judge's stand during racing events and for referees and timers during hockey games.

The new location should be very suitable. The school house may be used as a rest room during programs. Lighting arrangements can be easily handled running extensions over to the rink from Bridge street. Water for icing purposes is also accessible. It is also announced that the Bridge street coasting hill will be iced the latter part of this week so as to be ready for the season's opening.

Membership to the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club are being solicited at this time. Your $2.00 membership fee entitles you admission to all events sponsored by the Club this winter. RELEASED UNDER $300.00 BOND EACH the long series of robberies electrified the crowded court room and showed that their work had assumed more than an amateur stage.

In holding the two boys over for sentence at the February term of court Judge Gilbert spoke in the following manner. If I were to sentence you boys at this time I would be too harsh. Your testimony has shown that you stole for money only and found stealing the easiest way to obtain money.

John Pesek, who was found guilty by a jury at the October term of court on a liquor law charge, and who was bound over under $300 bond to appear December 17, was on that date sentenced to pay a fine of $400 on or before the first day of the May term of court. This was Pesek's second conviction on the same charge.

The case against William A. Lewis, another liquor law violator, found guilty last fall, was continued until the first day of the May term of court. He was ordered to furnish bonds in the sum of $500 for his appearance at that time.

In other words, we are going to use the same weapons he uses as well as a few more."

STATE AVERAGE RUNS
FIVE CENTS EACH

Michigan Ranks 16th in Sale of Tuberculosis Seals

Residents of the state of Michigan paid on an average of five cents each in 1926 to help fight tuberculosis and thus aid in the promotion of public health. Michigan, which has the seventh largest income of any state in the union, ranked sixteenth in the United States in the per capita sale of Christmas seals during 1926.

While the Christmas seal sale last year fell below that of 1925 in that way preventing the entire program of anti-tuberculosis work planned for 1927 from being carried out, it is hoped that enough money will be obtained from the seal sale this year to carry on an especially intensive campaign for the early diagnosis of tuberculosis, as well as continue the preventive work being done against the disease in this state. The state quota is $250,000 this year.

Although the per capita average for the state as a whole was five cents, many counties fell below this figure. Washtenaw county with a per capita sale of $10.54 ranked first in the state.

The per capita sale in Charlevoix county was .0253 in 1926.

CONGRESSMAN BOHN
GIVEN APPOINTMENT

Eleventh District Congressman Given Important Place

Dr. Frank P. Bohn of Newberry, newly elected congressman from the eleventh district of Michigan, has been named to membership on the house committee on post offices and post roads. The committee has to do with legislation relative to postal affairs, including post roads.

The "baby congressman" from Michigan is 61 years of age, according to a revelation he made in his autobiography appearing in the new congressional directory just off the press. He was born in Hancock county, Indiana, July 14, 1866 and was graduated from the Medical College of Indiana in 1890. He moved to the upper peninsula of Michigan the same year. He was a member of the Michigan State Senate from 1923 to 1926. He is married and has one daughter.

AT THE MOVIES

Dix Romantic Mexican Don in "Gay Defender"

From the cool patio, center of his hacienda, a Spanish don ruled a sun-drenched California rancho. Screens and peaceful, life flowed smoothly under his gentle guidance.

There was, however, one irritation for the old aristocrat. He could not get his nephew and heir to shoulder the responsibilities that were his. "You are but an indolent guitar player," the old man exploded. But his words drew only shrugs and lazy smiles from the youth. Life was too pleasant—why should he worry about administration of the rancho's affairs?

Such is a sketch of the plot of the "Gay Defender" Richard Dix' new Paramount starring picture which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Dix portrays the youth, a character drawn from early California history and based on the colorful exploits of the Mexican bandit, Joaquin Murrieta. Thelma Todd is the American girl, and Fred Kohler "wolf of the screen" the villainous American.

Gregory, LaCava, director of "Womanhandled," "Let's Get Married" and several other of Dix's most successful pictures, held the megaphone on "The Gay Defender" an original screen story by Grover Jones. Ray S. Harris, Sam Mintz and Kenneth Rainsbeck adapted it for the screen.

WANT REVIVAL OF CURFEW

Some people in Charlevoix think the curfew should be revived. With the coming of the auto, the movie and other attractions the allotted time seemed too short to enjoy them all and the public curfew as well as the home rules were practically suspended.

The results have not been good, and it is suggested that the Parent-Teacher Association and the woman's organizations of the town make a study of the situation and recommend what should be done to keep our children and young people from the streets and public places at night. Nature hasn't changed her laws and requires the same amount of sleep as of old. School children cannot do good work and keep late hours. Parents find it difficult to keep their young people satisfied and happy at home when "everybody else" is going somewhere.

The whole community is grieved when our young people go wrong and any plan that will lessen the opportunities for wrong doing will surely meet with the approval of all.

Gifts for the Outdoor Folks

The ever increasing gain made each year in the popularity of outdoor sports, places gifts of items to be used in these healthful pastimes well in the lead when it comes to buying at Christmas time. Charlevoix's Winter Sports program will go over big if those who participate equip themselves with goods from this hardware.

WHITEFISH SEASON BETTER THAN USUAL

Local Commercial Fishermen Bringing in Heavy Lifts

With exceptionally good lifts of whitefish during the past week or more, Charlevoix commercial fishermen are partially making up for poor mackinaw trout fishing this fall.

Eight boats operating out of Charlevoix and as many more from St. James, have been making heavy lifts on the whitefish spawning grounds off the Fox Islands. They have had over a week of excellent fishing and the run is still on. Lifts of over two tons have been brought in by several boats operating out of this port.

Local government fish hatchery officials will likely welcome the heavy lifts on whitefish, providing at the same time a large amount of spawn.

REALTORS SEEK STATE MEETING

Hope to Bring Convention into North in 1929

The regular monthly meeting of the Tri-County Real Estate board held in Charlevoix Monday evening was well attended in spite of snowy roads.

It was reported by Earl A. Young that at the last state convention held in Jackson to which he was a delegate, that if Northern Michigan would yield to Pontiac this year, that the north would have the convention in 1929. This would bring about 1500 men into the northern part of the state and would be of untold advertising benefit to this section.

It's so easy to have the much needed funds to care for your holiday wants if you join the Christmas Club at the Bank on the Corner.—Adv. 51-11

BAPTIST CHURCH

Christmas should mean far more than the giving and receiving of gifts. It should be a time of contemplation—a recognition of what the great gift has and does mean to the world, and every gift, given or received, should be symbolic of the "Good Will" His birth has brought to earth. It should inspire a larger degree of unselfishness as we are led to share our good with others, helping us to get away from the sordid and material and live for a time in the altruistic. In this then we delight, not only to wish you all a "Merry Christmas" but to contribute something that shall make joy in your world.

An effort will be made to make all our services—which will be held at the usual times—conform to the Christian spirit.

Our invitation is genuinely cordial that you meet with us and share the pleasure this Christmas Day will bring.

"Joy to the world—the Lord is come, Let earth receive her King."

Cherry Pruning Demonstrations
Plans have been completed to conduct two Cherry Pruning demonstrations on Thursday, December 29th, for both the beginners and those having mature trees.

The first demonstration will be held on the farm of John Nohle, located on the Advance road, about five and one half miles north of East Jordan or one mile south of Advance, at ten o'clock a. m. fast time on Thursday, December 29th. This meeting is one of particular interest to the new cherry growers.

The second demonstration will be conducted at the Eveline Orchards on Thursday afternoon, December 29th at two o'clock fast time.

H. A. Cardinell, fruit specialist of the Michigan State college, will be present at both meetings and demonstrate the proper systems to use in pruning both the young and mature trees. He is one of the foremost authorities on pruning and has assisted a great many new fruit growers in getting the right start that, many times is the difference between success and failure.

About two years ago he conducted a demonstration at Eveline Orchards and explained the new system of pruning. As a result of his visit they pruned their trees with the suggested plan and now have two years results to show the success they have enjoyed and this is the reason we are holding the demonstration there.

Be sure and come, see the results and judge for yourself. Mark the dates now for December 29th.

COUNTY NORMAL NOTES

The normal class were pleasantly surprised Friday afternoon when Miss Blige served light refreshments to the members of the class, the occasion being her birthday.

The normal class attended a lecture given at the court house Tuesday, December 13. The talk was on agriculture, given by O. B. Hagerman, formerly our county agent, now traveling with the Pennsylvania railway.

Friday afternoon, the children of the training room are given a Christmas program, consisting of songs, recitations and a play entitled "Christmas at Ketter Corner" given by the members of the sixth grade.

DOINGS AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

BIG HOTEL AT ELMIRA DESTROYED BY FIRE

East Jordan Visited by Strange Hobo—Traverse City Out After Heating Contracts

The Hotel Ostego, one of the oldest buildings in Elmira, burned Wednesday forenoon of last week.

For a time it was feared the town hall, a church and the store building owned by Tony Lyk, all situated on the opposite side of the street, would go, and Mancelona was called on for help. The local fire company had the chemical engine loaded on a truck and all ready to start, when word came that the Elmira fire fighters had the fire under control and the danger of a bad conflagration was past.

The hotel was owned and operated by Mrs. Addie Wickett, and was nicely furnished besides having her own private household goods within it. But little was saved from the front of the house but her piano. Mrs. Wickett places the loss at somewhere near $10,000, and had but $3,000 insurance on building and contents.

The fire started in the garret where the furnace chimney went up. The seriousness of the fire was not at first realized, the smoke appearing to come from the furnace.—Mancelonn Herald.

Strange Hobo at East Jordan
East Jordan was visited last Saturday by a hobo. Not the common garden variety, but rather the self-styled "King of Jewish Hobos"—one Joseph Leon Lazarowitz. He claims to have started on the road at 14 years of age and is now aged 22 years. He claims to have been in seven foreign countries and visited 45 states in the U. S. All of which being duly recorded. The Herald wonders of what use he is to his brethren.—East Jordan Herald.

After Heating Contracts
Traverse City's municipal electric power plant is making plans to go after some of the heating and cooking business in that city and is just now drafting a new rate schedule to be known as the "heating and cooking" rate which will be very low in order to attract business. Traverse plans to install more machinery, including a new steam power plant, if the increase in business demands.

Out of One Scrape Into Another
After he had been released from an assault and battery charge because his opponent decided not to testify, Henry Bush, 61, of Onaway, landed in more trouble. Someone tipped the state police that Bush had a couple of nice beaver skins and on a raid they found three beaver skins and 31 skunk hides. He was hauled before Justice Roberts and fined $100 and the skins were confiscated. The beaver season is closed until 1930 and possession of skins is illegal.

Bad Fire at Onaway
Fire destroyed the Onaway post office, a theatre, and a grocery and damaged other buildings throughout a two-block section of the Onaway business district. The Onaway volunteer fire department was unable to curb the flames. Their origin was a mystery.

You will say it's the best Christmas ever if you receive a nice big check from the Christmas Savings Club at the Bank on the Corner.—Adv 51-1.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT "DAD'S-NIGHT"

Fine Program and Great Interest
At Last P. T. A. Meeting

The regular meeting of the P. T. A. was held Wednesday evening, December 24, and "Dad's Night" certainly called forth the record attendance of the year.

With Dr. F. F. McMillan as chairman, the meeting was opened with assembly singing, led by Harker Kirby. Following the regular business session a play, "Forest Conservation," was presented by the high school history class, and the students of the fourth grade gave a dramatization of Dickens' "Christmas Carol."

The musical part of the program consisted of a duet played on the guitar and mouth organ by Mr. Kirby and Mr. Churcott, respectively. "Christmas Eve Waltz," guitar solo and a group of three songs by Mr. Kirby. Talks were then given by Dr. F. F. McMillan on his "Experiences as a Parent and Teacher," and by Dr. B. C. Mattson and Mr. North on their "Experiences As a Boy." In response to requests and suggestions at this meeting, Mr. Kirby agreed to organize and conduct a guitar and mandolin club for those in this community who are or may be interested.

The picture which is to be rewarded to the room having the largest attendance at the P. T. A., was retained by Miss Wilson's room, this being two consecutive months that same room attained this honor.

JOHN BOSS, SR., A PIONEER RESIDENT

Died at Home of His Son, Sunday, December 11

Charlevoix county has lost another of its pioneer residents in the death of John Boss, Sr., which occurred at his home south of Charlevoix on Sunday, December 11.

Deceased was born in the Netherlands in 1851, and came to the United States in 1880, locating at Jamestown, Michigan. In the year 1886 he moved to this community, where he lived up to the time of his death, which took place at the home of his son, Fred.

Mr. Boss had been in poor health for about a year. He was a member of the South Barnard Reformed church, of which he was a recognized leader and worker.

Surviving are seven children, Mrs. Walter DeGroot, of Central Lake, Ed., Lawrence, John and Fred of Charlevoix, Frank of Ellsworth, and Miss Alice Boss of Grand Rapids, also 21 grand children and one great grand child.

Funeral services were held from the Atwood Dutch Reformed church, conducted by Mr. Anthony Clark and Rev. Rooseboom.

We shall also participate in the community exercises on Saturday evening around the tree on Bridge street. All church singers are asked to be present to join in the singing of Christmas carols at 5 o'clock Saturday evening at the corner of Bridge and Clinton.

We extend to all our church people and to the community Christmas greetings and wishes for a merry and happy Christmas inspired by the spirit of the Christ Child.

FIVE ICE LINES ARE LEGAL NOW

BAN LIFTED ON SPEARING IN SOUTHERN COUNTIES

Ice Lines Should Not Be Misinterpreted for Set Lines Which Are Illegal

Ice fishermen who find a keen pleasure in the use of the shanty and spear or the tipup variety of ice lines are to have their innings this winter, following the recent action of the conservation commission in rescinding the order which prohibited the use of the spear or of more than one ice line in the territory south of the north line of town 20 north.

This action throws ice fishing back on the basis of several winters ago but there is still some confusion among devotees of the winter sport as to just what the law will permit them to do.

Fishing with five ice lines will be legal throughout the state this winter during December, January, February and March. These lines may be of the tipup variety but the fisherman must remain on the ice where he can watch them, as the law prohibits the use of the set lines of any kind. Ice fishermen who put out their tipups and then go to the house for dinner are likely to run foul of this provision of the law.

Black bass, both large and small-mouth varieties and brook, rainbow and German-brown trout are protected from ice fishermen, however, and may not be taken on ice lines. The season on bass does not close until Jan. 1, but they may not be taken on ice lines during December for all that.

On Jan. 1 the spear will make its re-appearance on the inland lakes of the state south of town 20. The use of the fish prod will be permitted, under the new status of the ice fishing law, either from the open ice or from a shanty during January and February.

Stream trout, black bass and wall-eyed pike are protected, however, from the spear. Pounding, stamping on the ice or making any other unnecessary vibration for the purpose of driving fish also is banned by the law. Ice fishermen also will do well to note that although the season for the use of five ice lines opens this month and continues until the end of March, the spear is permitted only during January and February.

BEAVER ISLAND HERO FLIES SOUTH SOON

Capt. Donnellan Wants to Visit Many Cities in South America

Capt. Joseph F. Donnellan, 28, British war ace, has announced plans to leave Chicago, New Year's day on an 18,000 mile flight to South America. Most of the capitals of South America will be visited during the trip, which is backed by the Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

Capt. Donnellan is from St. Joseph, Michigan. He was cited for bravery in the winter of 1926 for flying from Charlevoix, Mich., with food for starving residents of Beaver Island.

During the war he served with the British air force. In 1926 he made 18 trips to the isolated island and once almost lost his life when his plane was blown over the ice.

Capt. Donnellan plans to complete the trip in 30 days. If there is any doubt in your mind about the captain's flying ability, ask any resident of Beaver Island.

ISLAND MAIL BOAT STILL MAKING RUN

Two Weeks of Stormy Weather Has Made Trip Hazardous

In spite of over two weeks of stormy weather, the Beaver Island mail steamer James B. Stafford is still maintaining a somewhat irregular schedule.

A large quantity of Christmas mail, which otherwise might have accumulated in the local postoffice during the weeks previous to the holidays has been delivered on time. Captain Chambers will probably continue making trips to the island as long as the harbors here and at St. James are clear of ice.

The matter of aeroplane mail service to St. James is still "up in the air" with no contract assured at this time.

PILGRIM CIRCLE HAVE CO-OPERATIVE DINNER

Meet at Stevenson Home Last Wednesday Afternoon

The members of the Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Ladies' Aid, with a few invited guests, were delightfully entertained on Wednesday, December 14th, by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stevenson, at their home on State street.

The ladies gathered at one o'clock for a bounteous co-operative dinner, the last course of which was a wonderful birthday cake decorated with candles in honor of Mrs. Henrietta Cooper, whose birthday anniversary occurred that day.

The afternoon was spent in making plans for the next year's work and the circle adjourned to meet January 11th with Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Saltonstall.

MERCHANTS GIVING OUT BEAUTIFUL CALENDARS

With the new year, 1928, close at hand, Charlevoix merchants are distributing calendars to their patrons. This method of extending their best wishes for the new year has been followed out for a great number of years, and is a very popular one. To make any special mention of one would be slighting others. We have heard very favorable comment generally and have no doubt the gifts are received with appreciation by those to whom they have been given.

WEATHER HINDER- ED OPENING DAY

NUMEROUS EVENTS NECES-SARILY CALLED OFF

Chicago Radio Station Broadcasts
Names of Stuart Party Coming Here Saturday

The weather man did not look favorably on Charlevoix's winter sports opening last Monday and on this account parts of the program scheduled for the day could not be carried out.

However, members of the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club raised the Club's flag over the new ski and toboggan slides at Mt. McSaubia with elaborate ceremonies. The dog race in the afternoon was carried off on scheduled time. Foster's fleet-footed canine carried off the prize offered by the Charlevoix Hardware company. Too much temper, eliminated two of the other entrants when they locked in combat before finishing the race.

Soft weather made it impossible to have the new hockey rink ready for use Monday evening. A large number of local and out-of-town hockey fans who came here that evening to see the game between Petoskey and Charlevoix were disappointed on this account. With the thermometer well above freezing point nothing could be accomplished by icing the Municipal hill on Bridge street and this part of the program was also called off. All was not lost however. With conditions adverse for sports of any kind, the various committees turned out with a will and completed numerous jobs of getting things ready for future programs.

It has been learned since last week that Mr. and Mrs. Corson Ellis will chaperon the Juan Stuart party coming here Saturday from Chicago. Other names are not available at this time, but it is known there will be ten people. Several local radio listeners tuned in on a Chicago station Monday evening to hear the Lake Charlevoix winter sports program being broadcasted as part of the daily news events sent from that station. Names of the Stuart party were given at that time. Everything is in readiness here for their entertainment.

MISS BESSIE MURPHY MARRIED IN DETROIT

Mrs. Will Hartwell of 208 W. Huribut avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Bessie Murphy to Mr. Stanley Fox of Pontiac. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Stanley Jones at the Congregational church, Highland Park, Saturday afternoon, December 24th, at 4:30. The former Miss Murphy is a graduate of Charlevoix high school, class of '27. She has many Charlevoix friends who will extend their best wishes. The couple will make their home in Pontiac.

AGED PIONEER SETTLER DIED LAST SATURDAY

Mrs. Mary Spear Buried in Cemetery
Near Lowell, Michigan

Mrs. Mary Spear, age 84 years, died last Saturday, December 24, at the home of her son, H. L. Francisco of Marion township.

Mrs. Spear, who was born in 1853, was one of Michigan's early pioneers. She resided in Grand Rapids when it was only a village and attended school there when only one teacher was needed for all the children in the town. Thus she has seen Michigan grow from a wilderness to its present prosperity as one of the country's leading states.

She was an ardent worker in the Methodist church for over 60 years. Surviving are her son, H. L. Francisco, two grandchildren, Grace and Levi, also one great-grandchild.

Funeral services were held Monday from the home with Rev. B. G. Mattson officiating. Interment in Alton cemetery near Lowell, Michigan.

COMMUNITY TREE A HAPPY EVENT

HUNDREDS HERE ATTEND PRO-GRAM SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Over Forty Christmas Dinner Baskets Were Distributed to City's Needy Families

The Community Christmas tree last Saturday evening at the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets was the occasion of a very happy gathering of people. The faces of the children and grown-ups as well, manifested the spirit of Christmas. Hundreds were present, country and city folks alike.

The program was opened with prayer by Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church. Several beautiful Christmas carols were then sang by combined choirs of the various churches, led by Mrs. A. J. Stelter. Archie L. Livingston accompanied them on the cornet. Words of the carols were thrown on the side of the Central Drug store building with a stereopticon picture machine operated from the window in an upper story of the Charlevoix county bank so that the gathering might join in the singing. Joseph Foster made a few remarks and Rev. Geo. Pye of the Church of God closed the program with prayer.

Santa's popularity with the children was clearly demonstrated by their excitement during the few moments before his arrival on the scene. Sacks of candy and nuts distributed from the "Jolly Old Fellow's" heavily laden sack made it a happy moment for the kiddies. The children were not by far the only ones made happy. On Christmas day over forty well-filled dinner baskets were distributed among needy families. Charlevoix merchants gave freely to make this Christmas a pleasant one to those in want. The committee in charge should be highly commended for their efforts as well as those who donated.

In all Charlevoix churches and schools the Christmas spirit was prevalent over the entire week end.

FERRY SCHEDULE TO BE SPEEDED UP

Hourly Boats Will Connect the Two Michigan Peninsulas

Hourly service instead of the one boat every hour and a half will be maintained on the state ferry line between the upper and lower peninsulas across the Straits of Mackinac when a third boat is added next summer, it has been announced. The contract for the new ship to cost $325,000, has been awarded to the Great Lakes Engineering company, of River Rouge.

The new boat will be similar in design to those now used, except, that it will have a capacity for 60 cars instead of 50. It will be of steel construction and will be able to plow through at least eight inches of ice.

The new three-decker is to be delivered June 1, thus augmenting the service before the annual summer rush to the northern peninsula. The two boats now in use were bought from the government and reconstructed.

Officials also said the proposal to shorten the route at least a third by running the ships from Mackinac City directly to the upper peninsula to a point four miles from St. Ignace, the present terminal, is still to be decided. The objection to this plan is that a half mile dock and expensive break-water would have to be built.

LOCAL MEN ADDRESS BOYNE CITY MEETING

Robert Bridge and D. T. McHugh on Program Tuesday Evening

Robert Bridge, president of the local Association of Commerce, and D. T. McHugh, chairman of the winter sports committee, addressed the Boyne City Men's Progressive Club at the Wolverine Hotel, Boyne City, on Tuesday evening of this week.

Mr. Bridge brought out in his talk the manner in which the Charlevoix city council has given the local Association of Commerce their full cooperation in any and all of their activities. Mr. McHugh talked on winter sports, bringing out Charlevoix's progress in the past few years along this line.

The Boyne City Men's Progressive Club is successor to the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, which was abandoned some time ago. It is a live organization with a membership well over the hundred mark including Boyne City business and professional men and farmers from that vicinity.

JARDINE HOME SCENE OF ANNIVERSARY REMINDER

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Jardine on Mason street was the setting for a very enjoyable party last Monday evening when 12 of their Ironton friends and former neighbors dropped in to help them celebrate their 32nd wedding anniversary. The visitors brought well-filled pot luck baskets and the feast was greatly enjoyed. An evening of visiting followed and upon leaving the guests presented Mr. and Mrs. Jardine with a beautiful tray as a token of their esteem.

WEDDING SOLEMNIZED WEDNESDAY EVENING

Oliver Nowland and Fred Christensen
Wed at M. E. Parsonage

Charlevoix friends will be surprised to hear of the marriage of Oliver Nowland of this city and Fred Christensen of Chicago, which occurred last Wednesday evening, December 21st, at the Methodist parsonage in this city.

After the marriage vows were solemnized by Rev. John Lockyer and congratulations extended, the couple returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Eekinger, who attended them at the ceremony. Here an evening of cards were enjoyed, followed by a delicious luncheon served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen will reside at 304 May street.

XMAS SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

FINS PROGRAMS GIVEN AT CON-GREGATIONAL CHURCH

Mrs. Margaret Stuart of Chicago Generously Provided Gifts for Ironton Church

The Congregational church observance of the Christmas season began last Friday night, December 23, with a program of unusual interest, prepared by a committee of the church and Sunday school of which Mrs. George Kelderhouse was the efficient chairman. All the children participating in the program acquitted themselves with credit and the large audience which taxed the capacity of the church auditorium greatly enjoyed the entertainment.

The Sunday morning service was enriched by a group of fine musical numbers. "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger was sung by Gilbert Saltontall, soloist, and the choir. A quartette, rendered an ancient Christmas role of rare beauty and the hymn, "Silent Night, Holy Night" arranged by Camp, was sung by a men's chorus. The offertory number was a group of Christmas carols played by the organist, Mrs. Stelter and Gilbert Saltontall on the saxophone. Dr. Mattson's sermon on "The Overcrowded Inn" was heard with marked attention and interest.

The Ironton community church observed Christmas on Friday night with an entertainment prepared by the school children under the direction of Cecil Ogden, teacher of the village school, assisted by Mrs. L. E. Brown. Then followed the generous distribution of gifts in which all families were kindly remembered, both children and grown-ups. The larger part of the gifts were provided through the generous thoughtfulness of Mrs. Margaret Stuart of Chicago.

Wouldn't you like to have Santa hand you a check for $50.00 today? Join the Christmas Club at the Bank on the Corner and see what happens next Christmas.—Adv. 52-11.

MICHIGAN AND ITS OUT-DOOR LIFE

RECREATIONAL RESOURCES AND VACATION APPEALS

Will Be a Predominant Feature at 6th National Out-Door Life
Exposition

Michigan's out-door life, recreational resources, and vacation appeals will be a predominant feature of the sixth National Out-Door Life exposition at Chicago next May as the result of a conference at Lansing last week when the Michigan Conservation Commission and representatives of the three tourist associations of the state discussed a collaborative exhibition program.

Space controlled by the three tourist bodies, including two booths leased by the conservation commission, will give Michigan an entire aisle, running virtually the complete length of the coliseum, at which the exposition will be held, flanked on both sides with Michigan exhibits. The aisle will be named "Michigan Avenue." By virtue of the side wall which backs one side of the aisle Michigan will have a dominant position in the coliseum.

William H. Loutit, Executive chairman of the conservation commission, stated that the commission will lease two booths at the exposition and will stage a comprehensive exhibit of live specimens of Michigan's out-door life, including birds, fish and game. The conservation commission's booth will be in charge of P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks. The state commission will cooperate with the tourist associations by supplying additional specimens of wild life to be used in the association's exhibits.

Governor Fred Green was present at the conference in Lansing and expressed his approval of the plans.

The out-of-doors appeal will be accentuated throughout the Michigan exhibits, and will include not only wild life but the recreational appeals concomitant with Michigan's enormous shoreline on the Great Lakes and the thousands of inland lakes, rivers, streams, state parks and forests with the Michigan National Forest.

Among those present at the Lansing meeting were George Hogarth, acting director of the conservation commission; T. F. Marston, secretary-treasurer, East Michigan Tourist Association, Bay City; George E. Bishop, secretary-manager, Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, Marquette; Hugh J. Gray, secretary-manager, Michigan Tourist and Resort Association, Grand Rapids; Milo E. Westbrook, Chicago, representing the exposition, and representatives of the chamber of commerce of St. Joseph, Benton Harbor and Muskegon.

The three tourist associations control enough booths along the proposed "Michigan Avenue" at the coliseum to take care of the needs of individual enterprises in their respective sections which desire space for exhibition purposes, at the exposition. Those enterprises desiring exposition space are urged to get into communication with the tourist organization in their territory as soon as possible as all reservations must be made before January 5, 1928.

THE NATION'S PROBLEMS

President Coolidge, in his annual message to congress called attention to the many important problems confronting the nation, including tax revision, farm relief, flood control, railroad consolidation, shipping legislation and a variety of other items which must reach a satisfactory solution if the country continues unabated its recent years of prosperity.

The message of the president is a document of importance. It presents not only to congress, but to the people, a view of their domestic affairs which every tax payer should study. The 70th congress will have many problems, but 1928 is a presidential year and it will be interesting to watch how much of politics will enter into discussion of public questions. A free discussion of political questions is a good thing, but when you try to mix politics with legislation you invariably get bad results. The house of representatives has made a really splendid record during the past few years in this matter. The house goes about its business in expert fashion and the result is that whereas years ago this body was damned by newspapers and people alike, it is today regarded as the most efficient parliamentary mechanism in the world. The efficiency of the senate is not less, but politics will intervene and unnecessary speeches will cause delay all along the line. Let us hope that 1928 and its political possibilities will be forgotten in the interest of our citizens.

MICHIGAN'S WAR ON THE CRIMINAL

"If there are any loopholes in our present criminal code, I promise you that the next session of the legislature will see them plugged tighter than ever," said Governor Fred W. Green in a recent address before the Rotary Club at Grand Rapids. The governor was moved to his statement following the report that New York attorneys were on the way to Michigan to test the constitutionality of that section of the law which automatically sentences to life criminals convicted of a fourth offense.

Governor Green is headed in the right direction. Society is entitled to that kind of protection. For years we were informed that a crime wave was rampant in this state, but of late months it seems to have receded in no uncertain way. The criminal who who has already undergone three convictions, is going to hesitate before subjecting himself to a possible lifetime behind the bars. Most of the more hardened ones have already left the state, and they will continue their absence just as long as they are convinced that this present war against the criminal is not merely a passing fancy. The governor is to be congratulated upon the prompt manner in which he accepted the challenge hurled against decency in Michigan.

GOOD FOR THOSE WHO MAKE IT

Business is usually good for those who make it good. Possibilities for attracting trade and turning a dollar always exist. It's a question of the merchant himself. Conditions are many times worse than at others. Yet many institutions grow and grow and keep on growing. Weather doesn't interfere with them. Hard times do not interfere with them. Nothing will stop them. It's all in the business itself.

And it is much the same way with money. Take some people and put them down in the Garden of Eden and they will starve to death. Others can go into a desert and become fat and rich. It's the person.—Grand Rapids (Min.) Herald-Review.

DEFINES FARM AID PLANS

Gradual tariff adjustment, to equalize more nearly the benefits of the protective tariff system as between agriculture and the manufacturing industry; the creation of a federal farm board to assist in the stabilization of farm prices and production; a comprehensive land utilization policy to be administered through an endowed "National Agricultural Foundation"; a revision of state and local tax systems; strengthening of the rural banking system; and revision of railroad rates on farm products and development of waterway systems are among the chief recommendations of the business men's commission on agriculture. The commission rejects legislation of the McNary-Haugen type as injurious to the long run interests of agriculture, and as setting a dangerous precedent.

The findings and recommendations of the commission, which are made public by the commission's headquarters in New York, are the result of a year's study of agricultural conditions and trends. The commission was created about a year ago by the National Industrial Conference Board and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, jointly, but its findings are its own and were arrived at independently of either the conference board or the national chamber.—Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record.

THE MOTORIST'S RESPONSIBILITY

In a recent decision handed down by the United States supreme court, complete responsibility for automobile accidents at grade crossings rests with the individual and not the railroad. In face of the "Cross Crossings Carefully" campaigns carried on by the railroads for several years, grade crossing accidents continued to increase until the annual toll assumed alarming proportions. Every railroad deplors a grade crossing accident, and this in spite of the fact that statistics revealed that 95 per cent of such accidents were the result of careless driving and could have been avoided. Now that every automobile driver knows it is his duty when approaching tracks to stop, look and listen, to proceed only when he knows there is no danger, it is probable that accidents of this nature will immediately decrease. Human nature seems difficult of understanding when it takes a decision from the highest tribunal of the land to prevent man from rushing headlong into self-destruction.

A STANDARD OF CONDUCT

The supreme court of the United States has defined a standard of conduct for motorists and others to follow for their own safety when crossing railway tracks. It is contained in the following extract from a recent decision of that court:

"When a man goes upon a railroad track he knows that he goes to a place where he will be killed if a train comes upon him before he is clear of the track. He knows that he must stop for the train, not the train stop for him. In such circumstances it seems to us that if a driver cannot be sure otherwise whether a train is dangerously near he must stop and get out of his vehicle, although obviously he will not often be required to do more than to stop and look. It seems to us that if he relies upon not hearing the train or any signal and takes no further precaution he does so at his own risk."

The decision in this case was that the railroad was not responsible for and should not have to pay damages for the death of a motorist that was caused by his failure to follow this standard of conduct.

Such a conclusion is logical. Railway tracks are the nation's great highways of commerce and travel, and it is imperative that trains run on them at high speed and on schedule. Since these trains obviously cannot be stopped at highway crossings to let motorists and others get out of the way, it is therefore necessary for those who cross the tracks to be on the lookout for their own safety. The decision of the supreme court leaves no room for doubt on that part.

THE REAL TEST

The test which now confronts America is prosperity. There is nothing more likely to reveal the soul of a people. History is littered with stories of nations destroyed by their own wealth. It is true that we have accumulated a small but blinding fringe of extravagance and waste, nourished and idleness, and another undesirable class who seek to live without work.

A successful people are always a mark for the vicious and the criminal. But these are conspicuous mainly by contrast. The great mass of our people, whatever their possessions, are conscientious and industrious, seeking to serve humanity. They know that the doctrine of ease is the doctrine of surrender and decay. To this effort which built this country, they are giving increased effort to maintain it. The heart of the Nation is sound.—Calvin Coolidge.

HIGH-HANDED OFFICIALS

There is a question that should be discussed very frankly by our tax-paying public. There is a tendency among certain public men who are in office to resent questions from their constituents, and if any demand is made for prompt attention in matters of legislation, charges of propaganda and of undue influence are circulated widely, as in the case of Governor Fred W. Green, who went to Washington to protest in matters of tax legislation in which the state of Michigan is vitally interested.

This is not as it should be. Our senators and representatives represent people. They are not demi-gods. Many of them are just politicians. It is tiresome to have the news columns filled with attacks of senators and congressmen on individuals or associations who may make perfectly proper demands on their representatives. There are would-be autocrats in some departments in Washington today whose particular place in the scheme of things should be definitely determined. Our business associations might well watch a certain few in congress and in the departments who take a high hand towards the people. The average congressman and senator is easily approachable, and the greater part of official Washington is equally so. The others should be taught lessons in common courtesy.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

"It would be entirely wrong to assume that our present position has been secured as a result of accident. It has come from a carefully thought out policy, which has been for the most part consistently followed."

"We have always held very strongly to the theory that in our country, at least, more could be accomplished for human welfare through the encouragement of private initiative than through government action. We have sought to establish a system under which the people would control the government and not the government control the people. If economic freedom vanishes, political freedom becomes nothing but a shadow."

"It has therefore been our wish that the people of the country should own and conduct all gainful occupations not directly connected with government service. When the government once enters a business it must occupy the field alone. No one can compete with it. The result is a paralyzing monopoly."—President Calvin Coolidge.

ANOTHER ARGUMENT GONE

One by one the old standard arguments against prohibition are being answered or set aside.

For instance, a tearful appeal used to be made in behalf of the hotel business. It was said that to eliminate the bar and the revenue arising from it, would be to destroy the hotel business because it was booze that kept the hotel going.

And this argument had some little weight among those who were looking for a straw to cling to. And it has been completely answered by actual developments in the hotel business. Nearly every city has new hotels. That's true in Grand Rapids, Lansing and Detroit and every place you go there are ample hotel facilities as an evidence of the fact that the hotel business since prohibition, has been financially successful.

Down at Chicago the Stevens hotel was opened up last June at a cost of $27,000,000. It is 29 stories high and extends for a full block in length. It has 3,000 outside rooms. While it has no barroom, it has a library of 25,000 volumes.

Last year in the United States 840 hotels were built, representing an investment of over four hundred million dollars.

Prohibition has injured no legitimate industry.

SHOULD PLANT MORE SPRUCE TREES

The spruce is one of the most beautiful trees to be found in America. Winter or summer, its graceful boughs are covered with deep green needles. The spruce grows straight and tall and it is seldom that you will find a gnarled or unsightly member of its family. Besides being a beautiful adornment to any landscape, spruce also is extremely valuable for a number of uses if planted in the proper place.

Spruce trees planted along the highways and railroads at strategic points make splendid snow fences as well as beautifying the right of way. For the farm they provide a splendid windbreak for buildings during the winter as well as shelter for farm animals during the late fall months. Spruce grows fast, is hardy and needs little attention.

A few years from now spruce trees will be extremely valuable, not only for pulpwood, but also for logs, and the man who has large merchantable spruce for sale will be fortunate.

AFTER THE TALK

"Back-to-the-Farm," a movement much heard of during the past few years, has died down of late and in its place has grown the realization of yesterday's propaganda. For the result of boys' and girls' club work being done in the state is a foundation for future homes that becomes an iron bulwark in comparison with former talk.

Farm people realize that "Back to the Farm" is only a cure. Keep on the Farm is the prevention of that cure. Ownership is the key and club work in the door of interest which pushes the good things of farm life before the boys and girls. Owning a calf, or a pig, or a few chickens, raising them, and converting them into money speaks strongly to the boys and girls, and engrains into their systems a liking for farm life. Coupled with this is the scientific, business idea of doing it all. With such a beginning, city life becomes "alright for the other fellow, but not for me."

A prominent Michigan lawyer was telling recently that his young daughter, who was at college, asked him to help her in the preparation of a thesis on liberty, with particular regard to liberty as it is understood in the United States. He said he agreed, with a certain amount of pleasure, because he was fully aware of the fact, as he thought, that he could write an enthusiastic volume with practically no preparation. He was speedily disillusioned, and at the end of a month, was fully conscious of the fact that if he attempted to dilate on the theoretical question of liberty he would have little difficulty, but when he came to apply his theoretical liberty to present day conditions and to show how our governments today—federal and state—conserve the sacred liberty of ours, he was stumped. He said he found more restraints, more prohibitions, more inhibitions, more trick laws than it seemed possible for the brain of man to conceive. His definition of liberty seemed only a dream when he found so many difficulties in applying present laws to his theory.

When he thought of political liberty he wondered how he could reconcile the power of the bosses and other things with the theory. When he thought of personal liberty he remembered the million laws on the statute books, and the million unwritten rules of our various communities throughout the nation. When he thought of social liberty he realized that the greatest tyranny existed in practice. When he thought of religious liberty he remembered that religion is an issue of the 1928 campaign, and what he thought of economic liberty he remembered the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Commerce Commission and the Sherman Anti-trust law and the unions and the unionistic supporters and—well by that time he quit. He sadly informed his daughter that his mind was not agile enough to cope with the subject and she must confine herself to a discussion of theoretical liberty and read the enthusiastic comments of writers on the constitution.

YOUTHFUL CHECK FORGER CAUGHT AT HARBOR SPRINGS

Boat Population Increases at the Soo —Martin Fox Farm Has Heavy Fire Loss

A cheek forger, known only to the police by description given Chief Harter by a Petoskey store clerk, was apprehended one evening last week as he was entering a local theatre. The young man, who confesses his name is Clarence Franklin Brown and his age just short of 19 years, has admitted cashing two forged checks and one check on his own account, which had no funds to its credit.

In one instance he paid an Indian friend, Francis Shemosky, twenty-five cents for making a purchase, using one of the forged checks. Shemosky says he did not know the check was no good and that he did not ask Brown the reason for his not wanting to go into a Petoskey store.

Brown admits writing a check on his own alleged account for $5.21, and forging two others. One was signed by J. Lester in favor of Lena Kableman for $10.50 and endorsed over to Brown, and the other signed by Lee Bosma in favor of Gordon Marshall, in the sum of $16.75. All persons named in the forged documents are well known and respected residents of the section north of Harbor Springs where Brown resides with his father, Joseph Brown.

Both father and son have promised to work during the winter and make up the sums secured through the forgeries. Brown is held under $200 bond, which the father hopes to be able to secure.—Petoskey Evening News.

Buck Deer and Auto Meet

A bold buck deer, enraged by what it apparently thought was an attempt to attack its mate, turned on an automobile driven by John Larson, Jr., on a road near White Cloud and fought it until John, startled by the sudden appearance of the animal out of the mist, jerked the machine to a sudden stop and hot water spouted out of the radiator. Aroused by the winter the buck whistled and dug his fore feet into the radiator, looked to see if the doe was out of sight and then trotted off.

Boat Population at the Soo

Twenty-two freighters are now docked at the Soo for the winter, having been prevented from continuing the trips south by the ice jams in St. Mary's river. Some of the grain may be unloaded into railroad cars during the winter should the owners need the product badly enough to pay the extra freight charges.

Martin Fox Farm Loses Pelts

Fire partially destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Martin on the Harbor Springs-Petoskey boulevard. An alarm was turned in at Harbor Springs and the firemen made the run to the scene using chemicals, as there is no winter protection at that place. The fire had gained considerable headway before the arrival of the fire truck and before the flames were brought under control the upper story of the residence was practically destroyed. Mr. Martin and Mrs. Martin are owners and managers of the Ethel Fox Farm and the former states there were fox hides stored in the house amounting to several hundreds of dollars. Besides the loss of the hides, there was a loss of bedding, clothing, furniture, etc.—Petoskey Evening News.

NEW CHEVROLET PROMISED JAN. 1

President Knudsen Says It Will Be Finest Low Priced Car

A new model Chevrolet will be placed on the market January 1, President W. S. Knudsen of the Chevrolet Motor company announced last week.

"It will be the most spectacular low priced automobile of all time," he said.

Delivery of the new models to dealers started December 15, Knudsen stated. Production at the various assembly plants throughout the United States are being rushed to make available cars for the boulevards and highways immediately after the first of the year.

"All the resources of General Motors have been employed for months to design and build the car," Knudsen's announcement asserted.

Without disclosing the specifications, he said beauty, easier handling and smoother riding qualities were among the features of the new car.

On New Year's day, more than 5,500 newspapers, and at least that many dealers, from Bangor to San Diego and from Miami to Vancouver will announce the specifications, he said.

Adolphe Menjou's New Picture Best of Lot

Proclaimed as a sensational climax to his long, unbroken record of great pictures, Adolphe Menjou's latest Paramount production "Serenade" with Kathryn Carver as lending woman, comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

Ernest Vajda, the famous Hungarian playwright, developed the story of "Serenade" from a situation suggested by Menjou himself. H. D'Abadie D'Arrest, who directed Menjou's last two hits "A Gentleman of Paris" and "Service for Ladies" was at the megaphone.

BAPTIST CHURCH

We have had a good Christmas time and our friends have sent us tokens of good will, and reminders of their love. And we have found real joy in reciprocating—have proven perhaps—that there is more abiding pleasure in what we gave than in what we received. May the pleasant things of the 1927 yuletide remain in memory among the happy periods of life, but now we are saying: "Good Bye" to 1927 and stepping over the threshold of 1928. Is it not a good time to make new resolutions? What will they be? Some of them will be in relation to our business affairs—some of them will have to do with our domestic or family affairs—and may it be that some of them will concern our spiritual outlook. May we suggest the following:

1. I will have a definite place in mind and reverence for the Creator. I will meet Him face to face some day.

2. I will make a definite place in my residing for the personal of His word. I will know what He says to me.

3. As I want to be of service to my fellowmen I will consider seriously whether His church is not the best medium through which I can render that service; and if it is, I will identify myself with its work.

4. As I see my acquaintances passing to the beyond I will have my own passing in mind and try to live so that when the call comes I can go in confident hope.

The pastor will preach both morning and evening on popular and timely themes. And the public is invited to attend.

The Bible school will meet at noon with classes for all.

The B. Y. P. U. will meet at 6 p. m. and invite all young people to share their good times with them.

The pastor will conduct preaching service in the school house at Eastport at 2:30.

We are rejoicing in the financial success of the past year. All of its obligations met and the New Year bidding us to even greater victories. "Come with us and we will do these good."

DR. L. W. McMILLAN TO ADDRESS MEN'S MEETING

The next meeting of the Community Men's Club will be held at the Methodist church on Monday evening, January 2. Rumors are abroad about an oyster supper at 6:15. Dr. L. W. McMillan of Onaway, is scheduled to speak on "Philippines With a Camera." The speaker spent quite a length of time on the Philippines and his talk will be illustrated with stereopticon views.

CHURCH OF GOD

G. H. Pye, Minister

"Christmas at the Church of God" Christmas eve at the Church of God chapel on Huribut avenue was the occasion of a very happy gathering of people. The real Christmas spirit was manifested in the very actions and faces of children and grown-ups as well as in the evergreen wreaths, gay colors, sparkling stars, etc., which graced the room and the beautiful tree, occupying the most prominent place on the platform and serving as the center of attraction to all.

The speaking and singing by the children was all very well rendered, notwithstanding the fact that their homes are widely scattered and practicing together was nearly impossible. Much credit is due Mrs. Pye, as well as the committee for the pleasing decorations and the success of the program.

The children's part of the program was followed by a stereopticon picture and lecture on "The First Christmas" and was very interesting to look at as well as instructive to listen to. The gifts were distributed and snacks of nuts and candy given to all. The decorations, music, pictures and atmosphere of the whole place gave a feeling of real Christmas and a sense of the presence of the Christ Child himself. The fact that 100 sacks were passed out gives some idea of the size of the crowd.

The next day, Sunday, was no less important in respect to the presence of Him who so long ago was born in Bethlehem and still lives today in the hearts of men. Mr. Pye's subject was Christmas and every one, feeling that Christmas is only a time for giving and receiving or possessed of that pessimistic idea that there is too much inequality in social life, that some unjustly receive too much and others too little should have been present to catch the inspiration of that message.

Mr. Pye preached another exceptionally good sermon at night and we regret that the whole town did not hear it. This is the first number in a series of sermons on the subject of Christ to be preached on the Sunday evenings now following and every person is invited to come and hear them, especially any who might be confused or in doubt as to the Divinity of Christ, His mission and the full meaning of His relation to mankind.

If you miss these, you will miss something really worth while.

Charlevoix residents are requested to save all Christmas trees and put them in a place where they may be collected. AGED RESIDENT DIED SATURDAY

MRS. MARGARET STEWART WAS LOVED BY ALL

Coming From Canada, Mrs. Stewart Lived in Charlevoix Over Forty-seven Years

Death came last Saturday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock to Mrs. Margaret Stewart at the home of her son, Edward Stewart, on Bridge street, thus bringing to end a beautiful life.

Retiring in her nature, unserving in her duties to her household and limited in her resources for leisure and social amenities, the general public could never know her real worth, but for those who overcame the obstacles there was unfailing inspiration in the riches of her mind and affections which made her friendship invaluable.

Margaret Sherman was born at Holland Landing, Ontario, Canada, December 7, 1839 and was 88 years and 17 days of age at the time of her death. Her early years were spent at Holland Landing. In the year 1856 she was united in marriage to Alexander Stewart, at Oxbridge, Canada. Twenty-four years after their marriage the couple came to Charlevoix, making their home here continuously since that time. Mrs. Stewart resided with her son, Edward A. Stewart, after the death of her husband, which occurred in 1907.

Mrs. Stewart was the mother of three children, two of whom survive her, viz: Edward A. Stewart and Mrs. W. J. Stevenson of Charlevoix. One child died in infancy. A sister, Clara Sherman, who resides with her nephew, Robert H. Sherman of Eveline township, also survives, besides a number of grandchildren. Mrs. Stewart's exemplary life has as a reward the true love and affection of her children and she goes hence with that feeling still lingering in their memory. Her many friends will also mourn her passing, for a life devoted to being kind to others and making them happy is not without friends.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the home on Bridge street. Rev. John Lockyer, pastor of the Methodist church of which Mrs. Stewart had been a member for 47 years, officiated. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

METHODIST CHURCH John E. Lockyer, Minister

On Sunday we begin a new year; what better way to start out than by a Sacramental service. At 10:30 therefore we shall hold communion and consecrate ourselves anew to Him and His work in the world.

And at 7:00 p. m., a service that will long be remembered is to be held in honor of the departing year and the entrance of the New Year. It will be a candlelight service with twelve persons representing the months of 1927 and 1928. The messages of the seasons will be given in song and story with fitting color illumination.

The Sunday school starts out with graded lessons for the primary and junior departments. This will be a more up to date method of instruction and we ask your sympathetic cooperation.

CHEBOYGAN EDITOR CHANGES PAPER'S NAME

The Cheboygan Democrat, a weekly paper published at Cheboygan for many years by Al H. Weber, has changed its name to the Cheboygan Observer. The name was suggested by a Michigan newspaper man because of the popular department Editor Weber has so long carried under the title of "Observations." The Democrat was established 48 years ago by Forsythe and Bunnell. The first edition under the new name appears in Christmas decorations.

Christmas Giving Is the Year's Opportunity

ROSE stamped a sturdy Oxford: "Don't you dare say again you have to give at Christmas!"

Ellie Marsh grinned at his sister.

"All right. Where's the fun?" Rose sat down and explained: "If you'd seen Joey and Betty Boggs last Christmas in their play suits, that I couldn't have given any other time of year, without Mrs. Boggs thinking it was charity! And what luck it was I could give Cousin Eleanor a vase for her car, when she's always taking me out in it!"

"Hm—m. I might give old Bobby Greer something for his car. He's saved me a lot of dull hours on the train. I never could think of a way to do him such a favor."

Rose smiled a little triumphantly and went on: "Then there are the girls at school that I would lose touch with if there were no Christmas. They appreciate my little gifts and appreciate Christmas cards. I can tell you."

"Well, if you're so clever, tell me how to make it up to my stenographer for keeping her late so many evenings."

"Bessie? Why, she'd be delighted if you'd get her a new typewriter. That would eliminate overtime and she could keep up her night school work."

"Tip-top! And I'm going to give the kid that coddled for me last summer the club he needs to round out his golf set. Then—Well, first, let's see that 'opportunity list' you were showing me."—Frances Grinstead. (© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

The Mistletoe Bough; Seventy-six Species

OUR grandmother used to sing the old English ballad about the mistletoe that hung on the castle wall and the "baron's retainers," who so blithely kept the Christmas holiday and the young bride who, weary of dancing, cried, "Tarry a moment, I'll hide, I'll hide!" We youngsters listened breathlessly and saucer-eyed as the story progressed and the lovely lady crept into the chest with the secret lock that went "snap" after she was inside—the joyful company seeing her never again. We were thrilled to our very souls! And then the tragic ending when her skeleton was found fifty years afterward, was almost more than our young, tender hearts could bear and, after each shudder, we wept copiously. It is said that this quaint ballad was based upon a true story.

The mistletoe, lovely emblem of Yule, figured in song and story long before Christianity existed. English people, in particular, have woven many romantic myths centering in this interesting plant whose misty beauty and manner of growth lend themselves fittingly as themes for tales and legends. England is the true home of the mistletoe. In fact, its very name comes from the Anglo-Saxon, mistletoe, in which "mist" means twig and "toe," probably, mist, in the sense of fog, or gloom, because of the plant's prominence in the dark season of the year. There are 76 species of mistletoe, our favorite Christmas decoration, and every one is parasitical.—Frances Marshall Morgan.

HAVE YOUR 1928 AUTO PLATES ON JANUARY 1

It looks right now that the person who has figured he would operate his auto after January first on his old 1927 license will be strictly up against it. At least we draw our conclusions from the following from Chas. T. McCutcheon of Boyne City, who has charge of auto license plate sales for Charlevoix county. In reply to an inquiry made by Mr. McCutcheon to the secretary of state, he received the following answer: "This office does not contemplate extending the time for the use of 1927 license plates further than December 31, 1927." The communication was signed by S. A. Shultz, Deputy Secretary of State.

WINTER VISITORS ENJOYED SOJOURN

HAD FINE TRIP IN SPITE OF ADVERSE CONDITIONS

Praised Charlevoix Preparations for Winter Program—Will Return in February

In spite of adverse weather conditions for sports Charlevoix's first contingent of winter visitors before leaving Monday afternoon stated they had a wonderful trip, enjoyed their stay in Charlevoix and promised to return again in February.

Headed by Miss Joan Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Chicago Club summer resorters, the party included Miss Emily Otis, daughter of Joseph E. Otis, banking partner of Vice President Charles Dawes; Mr. Adlai Stevenson, grandson of former United States Vice President Adlai T. Stevenson; Miss Louise Tyler, Mr. Phil Louderback, Mr. Clymer Bowen and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Ellis, all prominent in Chicago society.

Making the trip north over the Pennsylvania railway in a special car, the party arrived in Petoskey at 5:45 and were guests of Chalmers Curtis of that city for breakfast. Later they motored to the J. J. Hallett residence in this city where they had previously made reservations for accommodations.

Saturday forenoon the party skied from terraces on the Belvedere Club grounds. In the afternoon they visited the Stuart farm at Ironton and spent some time skating on South Arm. Sunday's severe blizzard kept the winter visitors indoors most of the day with the exception of a short skiing expedition out at the Belvedere golf course. Monday morning four members of the group visited the Otis farm near Harbor Springs, while the others went with D. T. McHugh to Mt. McSamba for a skiing trip. The snow Sunday afternoon and evening helped conditions greatly and at this time the party had their first real opportunity for sports. They were very enthusiastic over the new ski and toboggan slides and predicted success for the future programs. Incidentally several of the group have wintered at Lake Placid and know winter sports.

FISH TUGS BREAK OUT OF ICE-LOCKED HARBOR

Freeze-up Threatened Loss of Thousands in Net Equipment

Sudden descent of the mercury Sunday night and the subsequent freezing of Round Lake caused feverish activity among commercial fishermen the following morning, Monday.

With their boats ice-locked in the harbor, local fishermen faced the possibility of losing thousands of dollars in nets now set on the whitefish spawning grounds in Lake Michigan. Chas. Henderickson, Jr., with his steam tug, Charles Franks, pulled away from her mooring at the foot of Antrim St. Monday morning and after a couple hour's work succeeded in breaking loose the Lucille II. and several other of the smaller fishing craft in the harbor. The boats pulled into the channel between Round Lake and Lake Michigan, where ice conditions will not likely hinder their coming and going into the big lake for some time.

Again Tuesday morning the tug Venus broke a channel across Round Lake. The tug, still ice-locked, was pulled out into the channel. It is likely that when the wind blows so that nets now out may be brought in, fishing operations out of Charlevoix will close for the year.

LOCAL COUPLE MARRIED HERE MONDAY EVENING

Miss Ruth Craia, daughter of E. W. Craia, and Miles Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Russell, both of Charlevoix, were united in marriage Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Rev. John E. Lockyer performed the ceremony at the Methodist parsonage. The young couple will reside in Charlevoix.

Awarded Fine Prize By Michigan Tuberculosis Association

The Walloon Lake school of Charlevoix county was awarded a thermometer as a prize by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association for selling $3.00 worth of tuberculosis Christmas seals. A Christmas seal button was awarded to Lewis Lourie for selling the most number of seals.

The children in the schools were divided into two teams, and the competition in the seal-selling was quite keen. Team number one won in the contest.

CLASSES START MONDAY EVENING

WILL HOLD MEETINGS WEEKLY FOR TWELVE WEEKS

Valuable Courses Offered to Those Enrolling in Teachers Training Classes

The organization meeting of the community teachers' training classes will be held at the Congregational church next Monday evening at seven o'clock, dismissing in time for the lecture course number. Subsequent meetings will be held weekly and continue for twelve weeks.

A course in "Child Psychology" will be taught by Mrs. B. G. Mattson from 7 to 8 p. m., and a course on "Teaching Values of the Old Testament" by Wm. C. Palmer from 8 to 9 p. m. These courses will be of special value to mothers and Sunday school teachers, but everyone will be welcome to participate. Young people, who in future are likely to be Sunday school teachers, are urged to enroll because there is a great need of trained teachers. Many of the larger churches use no others in their schools and offer salaries to those qualified.

At the first meeting the courses and requirements will be explained, the first lessons assigned and opportunity given to enroll and secure books. The instructors have the necessary qualifications and have been approved by the International Council of Religious Education, so that any who wish may work for credits towards an international teachers training diploma. As the instructors are donating their services there will be no enrollment fee.

No obligation attaches to those taking the course to be Sunday school teachers. The local churches belonging to the county Sunday school association are represented on the committee in charge of the classes. Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall, Mrs. Barker Kirby, Mrs. Geo. Pye, Wm. C. Palmer, committee.

TIME EXTENDED ON AUTOMOBILE LICENSES

According to Sheriff Dave Vaughan residents of Charlevoix will be given until Saturday, January 14, to obtain their 1928 automobile licenses. However, this is no general state order, and will apply only to residents of Charlevoix county. The time extension is given on account of the extremely icy and almost impassible condition of the roads, which have made it almost impossible for auto owners to drive their cars at all. Many who were desirous of obtaining their licenses were unable to do so on this account. But Saturday, January 14, will be the last day, says Mr. Vaughan.

WINTER COSTUME BALL WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

A brilliant affair of the New Year's week end was the winter costume dance given under the auspices of the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club at the Odd Fellows hall Monday evening. A large number of local and out-of-town people attended, enjoying the evening's entertainment. Wexstaff's orchestra furnished excellent music.

NEW CHEVROLET IS A WONDER

LINE KNOWN AS "BIGGER AND BETTER" CHEVROLETS

Has Many New Features That Will Place Car in Front Ranks of Season's Output

Surpassing all of its former achievements as a leader in the building of low cost transportation, the Chevrolet Motor company announces the most distinctive low priced automobile of all time.

The announcement of a complete new line of Chevrolet cars follows immediately on the close of Chevrolet's greatest year when its volume of one million units made it the world's largest builder of automobiles, and presages a year of unexampled activity for the organization that has been the pioneer volume producer of gear shift motor cars.

Known as the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet, the new car that goes on display throughout the United States not only succeeds the "Most Beautiful Chevrolet" but incorporates all the advantages that made the latter so popular and in addition embodies a host of refinements that combine to produce what General Motors officials believe will be the sensation of the automobile industry in 1928.

A quick picture of the new car that seems destined to write a new chapter into the history of the automobile business may be had by noting the following highlights of the 1928 Chevrolet:

Extended wheelbase, greater speed and power, four wheel brakes, longer roomier Fisher bodies, new Duco colors, thermostat cooling, shock absorbing springs, motor enclosure, and indirectly lighted instrument panel and other advantages built in as a result of lessons learned through 13 years of constant progress.

The "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet owes its outstanding virtues to the manifold facilities at the disposal of the Chevrolet Motor company, including the General Motors proving ground, the General Motors research laboratory, the Chevrolet experimental laboratory, the Chevrolet engineering department and the skill and resources of the Fisher Body corporation.

Seven passenger cars, including five closed and two open types, comprise the line. Every driving requirement is cared for in the make up and appointments of the various body types.

Beauty in appearance, performance in driving and economy in operation are the keynotes of the car that owes its every detail to the withering tests of days, weeks and months under all types of weather, road and driving conditions.

Every detail has been proved true in exhaustive tests. As a result, the new line achieves to a degree hitherto unexampled in the low priced field a standard of smartness, advanced performance, striking combinations, completeness of equipment and minute attention to style, comfort and luxury.

In anticipation of the demand of these bigger and better cars, Chevrolet factories are running day and night on capacity production. Shipments are leaving daily for all parts of the world, so that Chevrolet dealers may make prompt delivery on all models.

The Baptist ladies will serve supper Wednesday evening, January 11, from 5:00 until all are served. P. 25c. Adv. 1-11.

THIRD NUMBER LECTURE COURSE

CHARLES ROSS TAGGART WILL ENTERTAIN HERE

Program of Dialect Reading, Piano-logs and Pantomimic Sketches of High Standard

Charles Ross Taggart, jocular humorist and entertainer, known as the "Old Country Fiddler," will be heard at the Palace Theater on the local Lyceum course Monday evening, January 9, in clever dialect readings, piano-logs and pantomimic sketches for violin and piano.

Charles R. Taggart

His inimitable New England dialect readings, in which he uses with exceptional dexterity his famous "fiddle," as well as his pantomimic sketches keep his audiences convulsed with laughter.

Many of these "Old Country Fiddler" stories have been reproduced by the Victor Talking Machine company.

Mr. Taggart has appeared for more than fifteen years before representative Lyceum audiences, and many commendatory letters have been received by him, and also by the Redpath Bureau, under whose management he will appear here. Edward J. Wheeler, former editor of The Literary Digest, said: "I remember your evening's entertainment very well. I ask for no better enjoyment than another evening spent in the same way."

J. Frank Hanly, ex-governor of Indiana, wrote: "Taggart is really inimitable."

HOCKEY RINK WILL BE COMPLETED THIS WEEK

Heavy Snow-fall Needed for Ski and Toboggan Slides

Last week's mild weather threw a wrench into the cogs of Charlevoix's winter sports activities. Little or nothing could be done at the ski and toboggan slides and another heavy snowfall is necessary to put them in good shape.

It is hoped to have the new hockey rink and race track at the south side athletic field completed by the end of the present week. Local carpenters donated their services to construct the enclosure, which is now completed. More than an ordinary length of time has been necessary to ice the rink on account of the ground being unlevel. With its completion, however, a series of hockey games will be scheduled at once.

More than 8,000,000,000 square yards of woven goods are made in a year in this country.

DEATH DUE TO PARALYTIC STROKE

E. E. Folander Stricken Suddenly on December 23rd

E. E. Folander, who lived on the Charlevoix-Petoskey road near Burgess, died very suddenly from a paralytic stroke in Flint, Friday, December 23rd.

The news of his death came as a shock to his wife, who alone survives him. He had been home for three weeks, leaving here Monday, December 19, to resume his work as inspector in the Buick plant in Flint, a position he had held for some five years.

Deceased was born in Frankfort, Indiana, November 14, 1862, being 65 years of age at time of death. For 20 years he was employed by the C. P. R. railroad as conductor. He had been a resident of Charlevoix county for the past eight years.

The remains were brought here December 28 and taken to See's undertaking parlors, where the funeral was held the following day, December 29, conducted by Rev. E. G. Mattson of the Congregational church. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

PHONE COMPANY ADDS LOCAL LINE

ABOUT $50,000 IS TO BE SPENT HERE DURING PRESENT YEAR

Additional Toll Circuits Planned for Nearby Resorts—Big One to Bay City

Supplementing the additional telephone facilities which the Michigan Bell Telephone company supplied last spring at Petoskey at a cost of more than $78,000, still more equipment, representing an investment of approximately $45,000, is now being installed, according to C. L. Johnson, manager here for the company. He expects that this new equipment will be placed in service before the annual migration of vacation residents and tourists to this section next spring and summer.

Included in the plans now under way for the extension of telephone facilities are provisions for new long distance circuits and for additional central office equipment.

Three new circuits will be built from Petoskey to Bay City, where connection will be made with the circuits of the Bny City-Saginaw-Detroit cable, and thence to other state and inter-state cables and the transcontinental lines. In addition to the Bay City lines, additional toll circuits will be erected to Sault Ste. Marie, St. Ignace, Grand Rapids, Chicago, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix and Mancelona, the cost of which will be more than $50,000.

Close to $25,000 will be expended between now and spring for additional central office equipment here. Last year more than $100,000 was spent to provide additional outside plant facilities throughout the city, which means that during the past two years, and including the present program, the Michigan Bell Telephone company has increased its investment in Petoskey more than a quarter of a million dollars.

During the year the company plans improvements in Michigan totalling more than $27,000,000. The five year program ending with 1932 will cost the company somewhere near $120,000,000. — Petoskey Evening News

MEN'S CLUB ENJOYED FINE MEETING MONDAY

The meeting of the Community Men's Club at the Methodist church Monday evening was well attended, with all present attesting the merits of the oyster supper served. In the absence of Dr. L. W. McMillan of Onaway, who was unable to be present to address the meeting, Rev. John Lockyer spoke on the subject, "Over a New Road." Harker Kirby pleased the assemblage with several vocal and instrumental musical numbers and Miller's orchestra played several fine selections. Another fine meeting is in prospect for next Monday evening.

SURVEY INDICATES AN IMPROVEMENT THIS YEAR

Past Years on Poultry and Dairy Products Was The Highest on Record

When the farmers of the United States checked up their accounts for 1927, they found a better balance than the year before. Practically no branch of agriculture suffered severe price depressions and virtually all along the line they were closer to a common level of economic well-being than in any year since 1920.

These were the general conclusions drawn from an exhaustive survey of the 1927 agricultural situation just completed by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute of Chicago. Income from poultry and dairy products was the highest on record in the last crop year, but all other groups are below their peaks. Income from meat animals has shown consistent growth since 1921-1922.

The total gross income of the 1926-27 crop year was $12,080,000,000, but due chiefly to the decline in cotton, this represented a loss of around $600,000,000 from the preceding year. Otherwise, it was the largest since 1920-21, and costs of production considered, it was more profitable than last year. The 1927-28 crop year probably will show a full recovery to the 1925-26 level, the institute's survey indicates.

The outlook for 1928 appears favorable. Agricultural income should continue the recovery which started in 1922 and which reached the peak profitable than that year. The 1927-28 crop year probably will show a full recovery to the 1925-26 level, the institute's survey indicates.

The institute's survey gives the following reasons for the belief that 1928 will see agriculture a little further along in its recovery to complete health:

1. That farmers will not plant an excessive acreage in the leading crops.
2. That domestic demand for foods and for cotton and woolen goods will be well sustained.
3. That there will be no marked loss in our foreign markets compared with 1927.

Referring to the individual products, the survey says that beef cattle prices are likely to stay on a rather lofty plane through the year. Export demand for hog products probably will broaden by summer, and hog prices are likely to recover somewhat from the low point of 1927. The 1928 wool clip should bring more than the last one, but the lamb crop may sell for less.

The dairy outlook is as good as last year although it may not be starting the new year in a stronger position than last year and some gain in income from these products seems probable.

Wheat prices in the last three years have been high enough to stimulate both domestic and world acreage. A generally favorable season would lead to a huge world crop and a price depression. This year the partial failure in Australia and Russia and the field damage to the crop of western and central Europe saved the situation. Corn and oats production will be larger in 1928, unless there is another unfavorable season or growers voluntarily reduce acreage to avoid lower prices.

No increase is needed to cover feeding requirements. Prices for these grains in the next five months probably will be higher than in the same period of 1927. Cotton acreage probably will be increased, but there will be a smaller carry-over. Potato prices in the first half of 1928 will remain lower than in 1927 the survey indicates. Thereafter the new crop will control. A large apple crop and lower prices are probable in 1928 but total income may be greater.

The relationship between prices of farm products and industrial products changed to the farmer's advantage during 1927. The index number of prices at the farm November 15, 1927 was 138, or 38 per cent above pre-war against 130 a year previous. The purchasing power of a unit of farm products in terms of wholesale prices of industrial goods on October 15, 1927 was 92 compared with 81 a year previous.

The year 1927 was an excellent exemplification of the value of the (Continued on page six)

MICHIGAN'S HIGHWAY PROBLEM

The validating of the three-cent gas tax by the state supreme court will go a long way in clearing up the muddled highway program inherited by Governor Fred W. Green when he took office last January. No one will deny that it took courage to face the situation from a business standpoint and insist that the state first liquidate its highway indebtedness before plunging into additional expenditures for highway purposes. The problem was no more his than it was that of every tax payer in Michigan. It was only good business judgment to insist on knowing where the money was coming from before assuming further obligations for the state.

Under the decision of the court Michigan is now assured of a rational highway program. The additional revenue secured will permit payment of outstanding obligations in addition to taking care of our constantly growing traffic demands. The governor has indicated his willingness to submit future legislation to a referendum of the people. His opposition to referendum on the present law was to prevent a suspension of road building for more than a year, which would have been a serious mistake. He has no desire to build up a surplus in excess of that needed to carry on a sensible road building program; he believes the next legislature should reduce the weight tax on automobiles to that point where the combined tax will not be too burdensome on the automobile owners. The gas tax is a fair tax; the most equitable and easiest to pay that we have. Those who use the highways must pay most. Nothing could be fairer. But best of all—future highway building will be paid for as we go along—and like the man who pays cash, we can secure lower contracts from the builders.

WASTE OF TAXPAYERS' FUNDS

Waste is undoubtedly going on in many developments of American life at the present time.

The National Industrial Conference Board has unearthed one of these developments in its survey of methods practiced annually by local governments in the use of taxpayers' funds.

There are, it appears, about three-quarters of a million separate local taxing and spending units in the United States which operate independently and each year collect and spend more and more of the tax payers' money.

In 1913 these units spent, of the people's money, $1,844,000,000. By 1925 the amount spent had risen to $5,820,000,000. In 1913 the expenditures amounted to $19.10 for each capita of population. By 1925 this had risen to $50.52 per capita.

Tax collectors are necessary for the maintenance of all governments.

either in small or large communities. But the position of the tax collector and spender is expected to be one of trust, and it should be especially his business to see that every dollar is well, and not extravagantly spent and there is no waste. But the Industrial Conference Board finds that over $500,000,000 each year is mispent by these local governments—more than one-tenth of the total of such annual expenditures.—The Beebe Review.

CHILDREN AND THE HOME

Home was once a haven of refuge where the family gathered each night around the sitting room table to read, to discuss matters of mutual interest, to plan for the future, to confer over finance, a religion, matrimony and amusement. These conferences, with their mutual confidences, tied the family circle into an unbroken whole, one for all and all for one.

Home today seems little more than a dressing room, to which we rush to change our costume and make-up for our act on the stage of life. It has ceased to be a harbor and has become a place of embarkation for some other port.

The telephone, the radio, the phonograph, the moving pictures and the cheap automobile have done much to destroy the home, that greatest of all institutions of civilization. Parents have little opportunity for contact with their children and in consequence little chance to influence them.

Success in parenthood consists not in making children do, but in making them want to do. No longer are children made good through fear. They are made good because they want to be good. To want to be good, the good must be made as interesting, as interesting as the opposing bad.

Here lies the problem of home. Let us not wonder why children go out so much, but what have we done to make home as interesting as the places to which they go. Let us not quarrel because they are never at home, but studiously ponder the problem of what to do to make home interesting for them.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

Capital is condensed labor. It is nothing until labor takes hold of it. The living laborer sets free the condensed labor and makes it assume some form of utility or beauty. Capital and labor are one, and they will draw nearer to each other as the world advances in intellect and goodness.—David Swing.

Add Statistics. If all the men who have not broken a single one of the tens of thousands of laws now in the statute books of the country in the last two years were gathered together in one telephone booth, the telephone booth would still be empty.

COMMUNICATION

Gold Bricks

As I look over the pages of a recent issue of a farm paper I noticed several familiar seed and nursery companies' advertising, whom I know were in the habit of sending out inferior or worthless trees, seeds and plants. As I counted them I found about fifteen in this class, and about fourteen whom are reliable, and about nine which were unknown to me. These companies are always keeping within the law, yet the former mentioned are causing the loss of thousands of dollars annually to those who purchase from them. When a farmer buys seeds they are so old they will not grow. It may mean the loss of his crop, or if the seeds are full of noxious weed seeds, he may have a life job trying to exterminate them.

A pretty awindle carried on by some of this class of seed companies is to get the children to peddle their seeds and as people like to help children, they buy seeds which often prove worthless. One of the tricks of unprincipled nursery companies is to give a new name to some old variety, so they can charge an extra price for it. It is seldom the new varieties prove worth the price, but it is well to experiment in a small way. The fruit trees have proved a profitable source for the dishonest nursery, as it is often years before the purchaser finds out he has been cheated. I have an apple tree bought at least 15 years ago. It is not yet large enough to bear an apple because it is a price root graft while next to it is one of the same variety, which had no better care, and it is large enough to bear several bushels of apples. This is a whole root graft from a reliable company. Besides, the nursery which sells worthless trees at a low price, there are those who charge a big price for trees that may prove untrue to name, claiming extra quality. The only safe way is to purchase only from those having an established reputation for quality stock and square dealing.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

PROPER TIME TO HARVEST APPLES

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many factors enter into the determination of the best time to harvest different varieties of apples. The susceptibility to storage rot, or to internal breakdown in storage is an important factor in determining when to pick any variety. Susceptibility to water core while on the tree, the amount of red color which has developed, the size of the fruit, and the tendency to drop are all important considerations. The time of picking may well be varied somewhat with the type of storage to be used.

During the last four years investigations have been carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture relative to the changes which occur in apples as they ripen on the tree, as well as to the behavior of the fruit while being held in storage following picking. These studies form the basis of Department Bulletin No. 1448-D, which discusses several ways of determining the best time for picking a number of varieties of apples for storage.

Wide variations in storage quality occur in the same variety when grown under the different climatic conditions prevailing in different parts of the United States. The period certain varieties will keep in good condition in storage may be greatly reduced by leaving the fruit on the tree too long, whereas with other varieties there is much danger of picking the fruit too early. The different tests for time of picking and the best time for picking different varieties of various commercial apples are discussed in this bulletin. Only those varieties are included which have been studied sufficiently for the authors of the bulletin to feel fairly certain of the dependability of their observations and tests and of the recommendations made.

The discussion takes up such varieties as the Arkansas Black, Baldwin, Ben Davis, Delicious, Esopus, Spitzenberg, Gano and Black Ben, Grimes Golden, Jonathan, King David, McIntosh, Northern Spy, Rome Beauty, Stark, Winesap, and Yellow Newtown.

Use Weeds in Orchards for Useful Cover Crop

Weeds make nearly as good cover crops for orchards as such crops as millet, buckwheat or soy beans, according to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Cover crops in general have a beneficial effect on the soil, but, unless the soil seriously lacks humus and nitrogen, it often takes many years for such crops to have much effect on the trees. Experiments indicate that on good fruit soils, as much as twenty years may pass without showing any effect from cover crops.

However, because the trees continually deplete the fertility of the soil and because cultivation itself tends to lower the humus and nitrogen supply, cover crops should be grown to maintain the fertility of the soil.

The principal purpose of cover crops is to return organic matter, humus and nitrogen to the soil. Although any one crop is not a large influence, the continued practice is an aid to the growth and production of trees.

Because the value of a cover crop depends largely on the amount of vegetation it produces to be turned back to the soil and because it is somewhat expensive to seed a crop, it is often much cheaper and nearly as effective to rely on the weeds which grow if cultivation is stopped in early summer so they can develop.

Examine Every Beehive

Examine every hive in bee yard to see that queens are laying. Sometimes a queen is crowded out of laying space by not having super room. If you find your colonies in this condition, put on a super with full sheets of foundation—so that the bees will have plenty of room to store the goldenrod and aster honey. If you find a weak hive, unite these weak colonies with strong ones, as it is too expensive to carry a weak hive through the winter.

STATE WILL CARRY ITS OWN INSURANCE

Michigan will commence to carry its own fire insurance as from July 1, the beginning of the next fiscal year, Gov. Fred W. Green announced last week in Lansing. The state has over $40,000,000 of property not covered by insurance. The various departments will be assessed for premiums according to the extent and character of the property in its charge.

MICHIGAN BELL FORECASTS ERA OF PROSPERITY

BACKS BELIEF IN STATE WITH PLANS TO ADD $27,000,000 TO PLANT IN 1928

ALL SECTIONS BENEFIT FROM YEAR'S PROGRAM

President Foraker Announces Outstanding Industrial Projects For 12 Months

Outstanding among the industrial expansion projects scheduled for Michigan during 1928 is the program of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, which will involve the expenditure of $27,000,000 for new plants throughout the state. This is indicated in an announcement of the utility company's plans for the year, by Burch Foraker, president. The announcement gives further evidence of the confidence of the Michigan Bell in the future of Detroit and of the state as a whole by adding that it is planned to expend approximately the same amount for additional facilities in 1929 and that during the five-year period ending with 1932 the company will add facilities totaling more than $120,000,000 to its plant.

The 1928 program contemplates large additions to the long distance cables and open wire toll circuits, installation of new central offices, and the construction of much new outside plant apparatus, and considerable building activity.

These expenditures are made necessary, it is shown, in order to keep up with the growing service requirements of the state and its cities and because of the increasing usage of long distance service by firms in every branch of manufacturing and merchandising in their effort to keep abreast of modern high speed methods of buying, selling and handling business.

The Michigan Bell's plans for 1928 carry a reasonable provision for the future, as careful studies made by the company in territory served, forecast a continuing increase of Michigan's population and industry. A report of a survey recently completed by the company in Detroit indicated a belief that that city will have a population of 8,000,000 by 1945, with corresponding growth likely for the remainder of the state. Similar telephone surveys made in other cities of the state, such as Grand Rapids, Flint, Ann Arbor, Pontiac, Jackson, Kalamazoo and Lansing, show steady increase of population. Another factor that enters into the extension of telephone plant is the growing use of the telephone per 100 of the population. Business firms in general also are placing greater dependence on telephonic communication, with a consequent increase in the number of instruments installed for their service. The result is that, on January 1, 1927, Michigan had 15.6 telephones per 100 population, compared with 12.7 per 100 in 1921, and an anticipated 19.6 on January 1, 1933.

The addition of $27,000,000 to the telephone plant of the Michigan Bell the coming year will bring the company's investment per telephone line in service up to $221.44, an increase from $209.62 in 1927 and from $155.69 in 1920, it is declared.

The announcement for 1928 anticipates a net gain of 42,000 telephones by the company, with an increase of approximately 228,000 by the end of 1932. During 1927, there was a net gain of approximately 40,000 telephones. However, 139,000 telephones were installed, while there were 99,000 discontinuances during the year. It is forecast that the company will have 537,000 telephones in service at the close of 1928. Other telephone companies in the state, the lines of which connect with those of the Michigan Bell, serve approximately 127,000 telephones, making a total of more than 700,000 in service in Michigan at the end of 1927.

It is estimated that 97,000 new telephone instruments must be purchased by the Michigan Bell for its 1928 requirements for new installations and replacements. Other major items of material to be purchased for the year's program include: 3,078,000,000 conductor feet of copper wire in cable, 805,000 pounds of bare copper wire, 590,000 pounds of galvanized iron wire, 5,370,000 feet of steel strand wire, 98,000,000 conductor feet of insulated wire, 2,084,000 duct feet of clay conduit, 29,000 crossarms and 49,000 poles. During 1927, in the Detroit territory alone, the company installed two million feet of wire in cable, or 378,788 miles; and did surface trenching for underground conduit to approximate a ditch five feet deep and 50 miles long. Twenty thousand poles were set, sufficient to form a forest that would completely cover the area of the city of Highland Park.

The following major items will be included in the 1928 telephone plant expansion program:

Central office equipment...$6,837,000
Subscribers' telephone equipment...$5,356,000
Exchange cable, conduit, poles, and wire...$8,529,000
Long distance cable, conduit, poles and wire...$2,115,000
Lead and buildings...$4,180,000

Among the principal expenditures planned at various telephone exchanges the coming year are: Bay City, $100,000; Birmingham, $250,000; Flint, $1,856,000; Harbors Springs, $80,000; Marquette, $25,000; Mt. Clemens, $46,000; Pontiac, $461,000; Port Huron, $637,000; Rochester, $13,000; Saginaw, $168,000; Traverse City, $52,000; Dearborn, $32,000; Calumet, $10,000; Escanaba, $55,000; Gladstone, $14,000; Houghton, $38,000; Cadillac, $7,550; Iron River, $47,000; Ironwood, $50,000; Ishpeming, $22,000; Menominee, $19,000; Norway, $10,000; St. Ignace, $17,000; Ann Arbor, $140,000; Battle Creek, $128,000; Belleville, $10,000; Benton Harbor, $100,000; Big Rapids, $20,000; Charlotte, $27,000; Easton Rapids, $32,000; Grand Haven, $10,000; Grand Rapids, $597,000; Hastings, $10,000; Hillsdale, $12,000; Holland, $80,000; Howell, $20,000; Ionia, $15,000; Jackson, $975,000; Kalamazoo, $120,000; Lansing, $127,000; Marshall, $8,000; Monroe, $20,000; Niles, $20,000; Northville, $10,000; Plymouth, $15,000; Portland, $8,000; St. Joseph, $55,000; Wayne, $31,000; Ypsilanti, $15,000. These figures do not include toll and long distance plant expenditures outside of these cities or building and land costs.

The $3,900,000 building program for 1928 will include the completion late in the year of the 12-story addition to the Bell Telephone building, 1365 Cass avenue, Detroit. The enlarged structure will provide room for several telephone central offices, in addition to the two dial offices now located there; the toll and long distance central offices; the general offices of the company; new in the building, and the division, engineering and other offices at present located in leased quarters. The offices of the building department will remain in leased quarters, as there will be insufficient room to accommodate them in the enlarged Bell structure.

At present practically all of the Detroit toll and long distance switchboard and testing equipment is located in the building at the corner of Washington boulevard and Clifford street, but eventually will be replaced by equipment in the Bell Telephone building, with considerable additions to care for the increasing volume of long distance traffic to and from the city.

The Columbia central office building, on Selden near Woodward avenue, Detroit, will be completed during 1928 and installation of equipment will begin. New buildings also will include structures at Flint, Jackson, Pontiac, Traverse City and Grand Rapids, all of which, excepting that Pontiac structure, are under construction. Ground will be broken for the proposed dial central office building at Pontiac early in the year. Hogarth and Fairmont central offices, being installed in the new structure lately completed at Northlawn avenue and Plymouth road, Detroit, will be placed in service early in the year. The five-year program for the period ending in 1932 lists 26 new manual central offices, including several replacements of existing equipment, outside the Detroit area. In addition, installation of dial central office equipment is scheduled during 1928 at Flint, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Pontiac.

Expansion of the Michigan Bell's long distance cable plant, permitting the carrying of greater numbers of circuits over the most used routes and giving added protection against possible interference by storm and other agencies, is one of the principal items noted in the 1928 plans. Approximately $2,115,000 will be expended for additional cable and open wire circuits between the principal centers of the state and connecting the smaller points with those centers, making it possible to handle the increasing volume of messages and to furnish even faster inter-city service. In this connection, it is announced, new long distance equipment now being installed at Detroit, which will be completed early in 1928, will result in an improved high speed service to points throughout Michigan and to all larger cities through the country. This new equipment will make it possible, in most cases, to put through a call nearly as rapidly as local Detroit and suburban calls are now handled, when the calling party gives the operator the number of the telephone desired at the distant point.

During the past fall the long distance cable north from Detroit was extended to Saginaw and Bay City, the total cost from Detroit being more than $2,000,000. This cable connects Royal Oak, Birmingham, Pontiac, Flint, Saginaw and Bay City with Detroit and, to the south, via Toledo, with the New York-Chicago-St. Louis cables that carry the transcontinental circuits. The Detroit-Saginaw cable also connects at Detroit with the international submarine cable circuits to Canada and the east and with the Detroit-Port Huron and the trans-Michigan cables. The latter, which will be completed across the state during 1928, will cost approximately $2,500,000, and is routed through Dearborn, Plymouth, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids and intermediate points, and will connect by means of another cable with Lansing. The final stretch of the trans-Michigan cable, connecting Jackson with Kalamazoo, is scheduled for construction in 1928 at a cost of $494,000. The Kalamazoo-Grand Rapids section was placed in operation late the past fall.

Other toll cable projects planned for 1928 include: Detroit-Royal Oak (third cable), $200,000; Toledo-Detroit (second cable), $700,000; Orr's Junction-Port Huron section of Detroit-Port Huron cable, with spur to New Baltimore, $279,000; Niles-Kalamazoo, half of which will be built in 1928 at a cost of $75,000; an additional Mackinac Straits submarine cable, $45,000. The five-year telephone plan contemplates a $5,000,000 long distance cable construction program, including, in addition to the projects listed above, the following: Jackson-Lansing cable, $537,000; Grand Rapids-Marquette, $136,000; Benton Harbor-South Haven, $373,000; Flint-Flushing Junction, $139,000; Marquette-Grand Haven, $273,000; Marquette-Ishpeming, $129,000; Lansing-Owosso, $435,000; Kalamazoo-Colonia, $392,000; Flushing Junction-Owosso, $210,000; Grandville-Holland, $260,000; Dearborn-Plymouth, $84,000; Plymouth-Ann Arbor, $105,000; Ann Arbor-Jackson, $234,000; Pontiac-Flint (second cable), $336,000; Detroit-Mt. Clemens, (second cable) $221,000. The foregoing does not comprise all of the long distance plant projects of the company, however, as it is planned to construct open wire circuits during 1928 at a cost of $330,000, while during the five-year period the figure will reach $1,000,000.

At the end of 1927 the numbers of telephones in the larger exchanges served by the Michigan Bell were as follows: Bay City, 7600; Birmingham, 2800; Bad Axe, 720; Cadillac, 1575; Cheboygan, 880; Charlevoix, 315; Fenton, 710; Flint, 20,100; Harbors Springs, 520; Holly, 485; Lapeer, 1060; Manistee, 1385; Marine City, 550; Midland, 980; Mt. Horticultural Notes

Grape pruning should be done before extensive growth is under way in the spring.

Clean up and burn all dead and dying limbs in the orchard to prevent shot hole borers.

The farm orchard needs spraying just as badly as the commercial orchard. Today a commercial orchard owner wouldn't think of growing fruit without spraying.

THE WISE FRIEND

Once upon a time—and not very long ago—there was a brother and sister who had a friend. A very special friend he was, who told them stories about men who flew through the skies over far-flung spaces of the earth; of boys and girls who had thrilling and mysterious adventures; of others who had most unusual situations confront them, yet managed to come through their tests with steadfast and courageous hearts; of wild animals in deep jungles—how they lived, hunted, and died. Such a host of things did their good friend tell them of, and how interestingly he told them!

Came the time when their friend moved away to another town. Brother and sister were saddened by his going, for they knew they would miss his cheery smile and the wonderful stories and amusing anecdotes he was so fond of telling them. Then one day the postman brought them a letter from their friend, in which he told them he was sending them The Youth's Companion so that they would not forget him, and that in it they would find just the sort of stories they had so much enjoyed hearing him tell.

And sure enough, a day or two later the magazine arrived, and brother and sister found that it truly did have just such wonderful stories of adventure and sport and mystery, and just such jokes as they loved so well. And every time that a new number of The Youth's Companion arrived, they wrote a note to their friend and told him how much pleasure the magazine gave them.

Nils Asther Featured In "Adventure Mad"

Nils Asther, the young Swedish actor who created a sensation as Kit Sorrell in "Sorrell and Sen," has featured a role in the Paramount picture "Adventure Mad" which is being shown at the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. This thrilling drama of love and sacrifice was produced in Germany by Ufa productions, the same company that made "Variety," "Metropolis" and "The Last Waltz."

Asther will be remembered for his role opposite the Duncan Sisters in "Topsy and Eva."

Sensational Crimes Made Into Extraordinary Film

Combining the last word in thrills with the last laugh in merriment, the picturization of Ralph Spence's famous mystery-comedy, "The Gorilla," is coming to town next Saturday and Sunday. It will be shown at the Palace Theatre.

This is the show that rocked Broadway for a year. In its film form it has been changed somewhat, it is reported by First National Pictures, in order to offer a new mystery tangle to those who may have seen the stage presentation. That a great many have seen it is due to the fact that during the last two years eight stage companies toured this country and Great Britain, scoring a sensational success everywhere. Weird and novel settings and exceptional lighting effects are said to make the screen version of "The Gorilla" even more spooky than it was on the stage. Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey, as the two celebrated sleuths, Mulligan and Garrity, who hear all, see all and know nothing, provide the comedy. The supporting cast is all-star, headed by Alice Day, petite leading lady.

DEAR OLD MICHIGAN

Oh, the sun is shining brightly
On the hills of California,
Most every place we roam;
Where the South sea waves are splashing
Then react to swish again,
But there's no place quite so cheery
As my dear old Michigan.
Take me back where oaks and maples,
Tower beside the stately pine;
Where the landscape's rolling prairies
Fairly live and sing and shine;
Where our wish comes true so often,
That we're prone to wish again;
Take me back where life's worth living;
Back to dear old Michigan.
Where the sun rays dance like fairies,
On the dunes along the shore;
Where the song bird trills his warble,
Through the tree-tops o're and o're;
Where the lakes are broad and peaceful,
Where we fish and fish again;
Best old place this side of Heaven,
Take me back to Michigan.
For there's something bright and cheery
In that home in Michigan,
And we never can grow weary
Of the home in Michigan.
There's a subtle warmth of feeling
Makes us long and wish again
For the richer joy of living
In our dear old Michigan.

"MAGNETIC MICHIGAN" PROPOSED SLOGAN

State Stands at Head in Nation's Leading Industries

"Magnetic Michigan" is proposed as a state slogan for Michigan by the Michigan Property Owner, which, in its January issue soon to be off the press, carried a cover design of the slogan and an article pointing out the major reasons why Michigan's magnatism is based upon fact.

The Property Owner points out that Michigan is among the nation's leading industrial states, third in exports, first in the per capita income of its people, home of more multimillionaires than any other state except one, also more than 38 other states combined, and home of the world's most rapidly growing industrial cities. While these facts pertain particularly to southern Michigan, northern Michigan is just as attractive as a place to play as southern Michigan is as a place to work, with more recreational lands and more water, particularly on the three largest of the Great Lakes, than any other equally large amount of land in America. The magazine proposes the use of its cover design as an automobile radiator shield and for other emblems intended to help Michigan's advertising "stick" in the minds of people outside its borders.

THIS IS HOW THEY GET THEIR BUSINESS

The advertising manager of a large mail order house, according to the Kodak Salesman, expressed himself as follows: "We have a bureau whose duty is to read each week the county newspapers from all over the country. There is not a paper of any consequence in our trade territory, that our bureau doesn't get. This bureau looks over these newspapers and when we find a town where the merchants are not advertising in a local paper, we immediately flood that territory with our literature. It always brings results far in excess of the same effort put forth in territory where the local merchants use their local papers."

COASTERS ENJOYED HILL LAST MONDAY EVENING

Charlevoix coasting fans had their first opportunity to enjoy their favorite sport Monday evening following the icing of Bridge street hill that afternoon. Several pairs of big bobs were out and the hill took on the appearance of former winters. The track was not in the best shape and cannot be expected so until more snow is available to bank up the sides. These conditions will be overcome, however, with more favorable weather conditions.

TAXES GROWING MORE DELINQUENT

Amount This Year Near Billion Mark, Says Fuller

Delinquent taxes on Michigan real property reached their high mark in 1926 when estates valued at $950,467,988 failed to meet their imposts, O. B. Fuller, auditor general, has announced.

The property involved is one-seventh of the state's total valuation. It is divided as follows: 761,201 city and village lots valued at $798,070,260, and 8,275,445 acres, most of it out-over country but including a considerable percentage of farm lands, valued at $162,397,738.

The bulk of the lots concerned are situated in Wayne county, thus indicating a probability that real estate speculators and small parcel buyers experienced difficulties in that year. The lots on which taxes were not paid adjoining Detroit and surrounding districts was 256,960 and their value was $551,039,739.

Wayne's delinquencies were greater by $150,000,000 than the entire remainder of the state.

Lands revert to the state if the taxes are not paid for five years. This raises in the cut-over sections the problem that would be caused if sufficient acreage reverted to the state to reduce county tax receipts below the costs of administration.

Consolidation of counties was seen as a possible solution.

SHOULD MARK SPOT OF LOCAL INTEREST

Tourists Always Interested in History of Community

Michigan communities in the tourist and resort business should follow the example of Marquette and Chippewa counties in the upper peninsula in marking spots within those counties of historical interest. The Michigan Property Owner suggests editorially in its January issue, soon to be off the press.

Each of the two upper peninsula counties have marked a dozen or more sites connected with civic, political or industrial history of the county, a story in the Property Owner states, as an additional feature of interest to tourists who come through their communities each summer. There are many spots of great historical interest throughout the state and in the regions principally devoted to the resort business few of these have been marked or, if marked, no attempt is made to draw them to the attention of the tourist or make them available through good roads and road markings. History, Indian lore and geology interest a high class of tourists, the editorial points out, and if Michigan communities will develop these attractions as New England has, many tourists who merely drive through to look at the scenery will stop for a week, a month, a season or become permanent summer residents.

versified farming. While hog prices slumped, the cow and the hen balanced the losses that may have accrued to some farmers through the sow. That 1928 will be a good year for this type of farming is indicated by the results of the institute's survey, which indicates a good year through the cow and the hen, and prospects that after the first half of 1928 the sow will help increase the profits of the diversified farmer. Farmers who milked a few good cows, fattened some hogs, kept a flock of poultry and raised an abundance of good alfalfa have improved their financial condition in the past two years. Each year sees a more uniform spreading of agricultural prosperity because of the increasing acceptance of the idea of balancing the production of the average farm through greater and more universal dependence upon marketing crops through the cow, sow and hen rather than in the form of crops.

Virtually all the lending business forecasters and bankers indicate that general business will improve in 1928, states the survey. A moderate recession occurred in 1927, but it is believed to be near the lowest point and the tendency will be toward increased activity, more complete employment and bigger industrial payrolls. Basic conditions appear healthy. Commodity prices are low, inventories small and credit cheap.

Taking all the business and farm conditions into consideration, the outlook for the farmer in 1928 is considered good.

BAPTIST CHURCH

At a recent meeting an expert was defined as "a man who knows more and more about less and less until he comes to know everything about nothing and nothing about anything."

At the same meeting a state secretary said his state had some Swedish work which was all in English. We fear many professed christians are as lucid with their christian experience. Paul's cry was "to know Him and the power of His resurrection."

Is it worth while to try to serve two masters? Is it not better to make Him the sole object of our devotion and thus have a real testimony to give the world a real reason for the hope that is within us?

This church will give a hearty welcome to any who wish worship with us in any of our services which are held at the usual hours.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Announcements for Sunday and the coming week.

Sunday morning worship at 10:30 with sermon on "The Turn of the Year," a survey of Christianity's assets in the modern world. All members of the church and any others not attached to other churches are invited to hear this frank discussion of a vital question.

The annual meeting of the Charlevoix Congregational church for reports of the year, election of officers and transaction of other business will be held on Tuesday evening, January 10.

The mid-week service is held on Thursdays at 7:30.

The third Sunday in January, January 15, will be observed by the celebration of the communion.

FERTILIZER PROBLEM IN GROWING PEACHES

What fertilizers, if any, should be used on peach trees, is a question that has confronted most growers, whether they own a few trees or many thousands. If a commercial fertilizer should be applied, when should it be put on, and in what quantities should it be used to secure the most profitable results?

The West Virginia agricultural experiment station conducted three experiments, extending over a number of years, having to do with these fertilizer problems. Actual conditions prevailed and several hundred Elberta trees were used in the tests. The results have been summarized in a circular compiled by H. L. Crane, associate horticulturist, from which are drawn the following paragraphs:

To all three experiments nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium applied alone, as well as in various combinations, were tried out in varying amounts over a period of years. Cover crops of soy beans and crimson clover, as well as applications of 150 pounds of stable manure, were tried in comparison with commercial fertilizers in the last experiment, the idea being to see if it would be possible to secure sufficient nitrogen by means of the legumes, and in addition to supply the much-needed organic matter.

In all experiments clean cultivation was given during the summer, and in late summer or early fall a cover crop of rye was usually sown; however, in most cases, the growth of this cover was small and very little additional organic matter was added to the soil by it.

According to chemical analyses, peach trees in their growth and fruit production remove large quantities of lime from the soil, and this might be a limiting factor in production the same as are moisture and nitrogen. In other experiments, an application of caustic lime was made once every three years at the rate of 1,000 pounds per acre. In the Elberta experiment a single application of ground limestone, at the rate of two and one-half tons per acre, was made to one-third of the record trees at the time the experiment was started.

Ventilated Barrels or Boxes Best for Apples

Apple scald does much damage, and is particularly serious on the Grimes, Rome Beauty, York Imperial, Arkansas, Winesap, Staygreen, Whelan, those Island Greening, but will attack almost any variety. Last fall, visiting several large apple ranches, writes a correspondent in Successful Farming, I saw hundreds of boxes of the fruit thrown out because it had been damaged by scald.

Large apples, and those forced late in the fall by heavy rains, are, according to Wisconsin apple growers, more susceptible to scald than other fruit. Apples scarred and russeted by powdery mildew, and such as are picked green are also more susceptible. The holding of apples in closed packing sheds or in unrefrigerated cars is frequently the cause of scald in storage. The fruit scalds less in boxes, or ventilated barrels than it does in the usual commercial barrels. Many of the northwestern apple growers use barrels with 15 holes, three-fourths of an inch by 4 inches in size, cut in the staves, and these receptacles have been found very satisfactory. The room in which the boxes or barrels are stored must also be thoroughly ventilated. Correct ventilation and the use of oiled wrappers (not waxed) will almost entirely prevent scald. Experienced growers say that the oil in wrappers should be approximately 15 per cent of their weight.

BUY TREES AT HOME FOR BEST RESULTS

It is not uncommon to hear complaints about the unsatisfactory results of setting out trees that have been purchased through agents, and this we have found to be the case, especially with trees that have been shipped from a distance.

Our experience has been that it is best to patronize the home nurseryman, if he is reliable and sells stock at a reasonable price. It is true that many people appreciate something that comes from a distance more than that which is purchased at home, but when it comes to buying trees one should allow his better judgment to overrule. If the trees purchased near home do not turn out to be as represented, the buyer can go direct to the nurseryman, state the grievance, and generally get satisfaction, provided your home man is an honorable dealer, who advertises what he has and sells what he advertises.

We have always made a practice of getting our supply of trees as near home as possible; they are then apt to be better adapted to the soil and the climate, and not so likely to be damaged by long railroad journeys and much handling in transfer. It is generally possible to make a trip to the home nursery in a car and return in a day. A person may be able to gain considerable information about trees, and besides, make a personal selection of stock, rejecting the inferior or undesirable trees. The nurseryman will gladly show any prospective customer about, and give all the information possible, as it advertises his business.

Announcing The VICTORY SIX BY DODGE BROTHERS

The Victory is radically new, radically different and thoroughly original—is literally years ahead of its time in many vital features.

It compares with no other car or class, because NO car, either here or abroad, provides features that are comparable. To enjoy these advantages you must buy THIS car, for elsewhere they simply do not exist.

Revolutionary New Principles of Design

1. For the first time since the invention of the automobile, the chassis and body of The Victory are a single integral unit—the wide, deep Victory chassis frame, flush with the lines of the body, replaces the customary body sills. (Heretofore, the body was mounted on a sill and both in turn mounted on the chassis.)

2. For the first time in history, battleship construction (i. e., double steel walls) is here applied to the motor car.

Spectacular Performance

The results of these, and other basic innovations are astonishing in their effect on every phase of motor car value; beauty, comfort, safety, strength and most impressive and important of all—performance itself.

With chassis and body a single unit, there are 330 fewer parts—175 pounds less weight—and an extremely low center of gravity.

The results are greater motor efficiency—increased power—quicker pick-up—reduced fuel consumption—greater stability and flexibility in relation to load—an easier car to handle—a faster car to drive!

Drive over cobbles and await the usual discomfort—it will never occur! The Victory is the smoothest riding car, for its type, ever built.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION DECIDE TO MAKE THURSDAY AFTERNOONS A HOLIDAY

Series of Bargain Days Planned to Bring Crowds Into City—Thursday, January 12th, First Big Gala Event

Concerted support of Charlevoix's winter sports programs for the months of January and February was the keynote of a "Booster Meeting" of the Charlevoix Business Men's Association held in the dining room of the Hotel Charlevoix Wednesday evening.

All Stores Will Close Thursday Afternoon

The first move in this direction was to make every Thursday afternoon a holiday in Charlevoix with all business places closing promptly at 1:00 o'clock p. m. throughout the months of January and February, thus giving store owners and their employees an opportunity to join in the events.

Series of Bargain Days for Each Week.

In conjunction with the "Back Winters Sports" move, plans were laid for a series of Bargain Days with special sales to be carried out each week during the two months above mentioned. Through these special sales it is hoped to attract people to Charlevoix from surrounding towns and country communities. This action is a direct reply to the statement and belief of many that Charlevoix merchants offer no inducements to attract trade to their stores. They are ready to prove to the buying public that nothing is to be gained by driving to other towns in search of bargains.

Thursday, January 12th, First Big Event

Thursday, January 12th, is the first Big Bargain Day. In order to reach the public with their special inducements, this extra addition, filled to the brim with bargains from every store in Charlevoix, has been published so that it might reach everyone before Thursday. Stores will be open until 1:00 p. m. and then everything closes for winter sports. Subsequent Bargain Days will be announced in the Courier's regular edition after this week.

Special Program of Events for Every Thursday Afternoon—

Being Arranged

The weather man may, for the time being, make conditions adverse, but he cannot dampen the ardor with which Charlevoix is boosting her winter sports program. The same old spirit which has put Charlevoix in the lead as a summer resort, will also make her the center of Northern Michigan in winter sports.

Business Men Put Over Last Needed Touch

A meeting of the Charlevoix Business Men's Association Wednesday evening put over the last needed touch. It assured the full cooperation of business men of the city. Local merchants have seen the first results—the Stuart party which spent the New Year's week end here. They have also sensed the necessity of making winter sports a community affair as well as entertainment for outsiders and therefore have designated each Thursday afternoon a holiday so everyone may participate in and enjoy the events. A comprehensive plan of street and store decorations will be followed out to make the city reflect winter sports in appearance as well as actions.

Charlevoix Slides and Rink Best in North

Headed by D. T. McHugh, chairman, the winter sports committees have made great progress. The new ski slide constructed at Mt. McSaubia has no parallel in Northern Michigan and the toboggan slide is probably the fastest in this region. They are completed and need only another good snow storm to put them in shape. Without question, Charlevoix's new hockey rink is on a par with any to be found in the state. Arrangements of a hockey schedule has been placed in the capable hands of O. P. North, high school principal, and will be announced later.

Thursday Afternoon Programs to Change Weekly

In an adjoining column is the program for Thursday afternoon, January 12th. Programs on this half holiday will be changed weekly and announced in this paper.

JOHN JOLIFFE WAS AN EARLY PIONEER

HIS DEATH THURSDAY ENDED
LONG, USEFUL LIFE

Mr. Joliffe Was One of First Homesteaders in Atwood District, Antrim County

The death of John Joliffe, which occurred at his home in this city Thursday morning, January 5th, brought to a close the long and active life of one of Banks township's early homesteaders.

Born at Cornwell, England, September 19, 1837, John Joliffe reached the advanced age of 90 years, 3 months and 17 days. In 1842, when a lad 5 years old, he came to the United States with his parents, who settled in Wisconsin, 40 miles west of Milwaukee. Mr. Joliffe lived in Wisconsin 27 years, and there, in 1869 was married to Miss Mary Bluet, also a former resident of Cornwell, England. Five years later the couple moved to what is now Banks township, Antrim county, Michigan, where they took up a homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. Joliffe lived on the old homestead 31 years, and in 1895 purchased a home and moved to Charlevoix, leaving the management of the farm to their son. Mrs. Joliffe died in January, 1919. Mr. Joliffe later married Mrs. Mariah Cummings, now deceased, and in 1921 married Mrs. Mary Mosher of St. Ignace, who survives him. Other survivors are four sons and one daughter, viz: Ethan of Atwood, John of Portland, Oregon; Cyrus of Painesville, Ohio; Sidney of Portland, Oregon, and Mrs. Robert Stafford of Charlevoix.

Funeral services were held from the Methodist Episcopal church in Charlevoix, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, January 7th, with Rev. John E. Lockyer officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Thus the old pioneers are passing away one by one. Mr. Joliffe settled on his homestead when the country was a vast wilderness. His indomitable perseverance carried him through the early struggles of life and upon moving to Charlevoix he was the owner of one of the largest and best equipped farms in the Atwood district. Mr. Joliffe's was a unique character, possessing an individuality which won him many friends among whom he was well and favorably known. He was always in line with works of progress and reform and especially active in the cause of religion. He was of kindly disposition, a good neighbor and a generous friend, always ready to help in time of need. As a family they were singularly united, all working together for one common end, the founding of homes. Charlevoix mourns Mr. Joliffe's death.

TWO MILLION CHRISTMAS TREES WERE USED

Approximately two million Christmas trees went from Northern Michigan forests to decorate homes at Christmas time. E. C. Mandenberg, head of the state Christmas tree inspection work, estimated. Returns from the sales netted northern land owners a total of about $300,000, Mandenberg added. Over half the trees used were sold in the state, while the remainder were sold in Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. Detroit alone used 200,000 of the trees. For the first time in history the Michigan tree industry got the lead away from New England and Canadian tree sellers.

WOMAN'S HOSPITAL AUXILIARY MEETS

Election of Officers and Needed Activities Planned

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Charlevoix Hospital met in the council rooms Friday evening of last week an elected new officers and formulated working plans that will place the organization back on its former footing.

Those chosen to head the organization for the coming year were: Mrs. C. N. Bridge, president; Mrs. Archie Livingston, vice president; Mrs. Henry Partridge, secretary, and Mrs. Allan Campbell, treasurer.

Another meeting is planned for on Saturday evening of this week, at the council rooms, when an effort will be made to increase its membership, the plan, we understand, being to put across a real drive for members.

A live, earnest working auxiliary is a real necessity in any community where a hospital is located. Numerous matters leading to the success of a hospital can be attended to by an organization of this kind. No matter what effort is put forth by the board in charge of hospital affairs, the seeming final touch comes as a rule from the woman's auxiliary.

LEWIS BLOCK WAS SOLD LAST WEEK

TRANSFER INVOLVES FOUR BUSINESS BUILDINGS

Deal Gives Birnkant Interests Additional Holdings in Bridge Street Property

The largest transfer of Bridge street business property in recent years was completed last Thursday, when Michael Birnkant, member of the firm of Birnkant & Birnkant, Detroit attorneys, purchased what is known as the Lewis block in this city.

The deal involved four buildings, two on Bridge street and two on the alley intersecting Bridge street near the postoffice. One of the former two buildings is occupied by M. A. Levinson & Co. on the first floor, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company offices, R. J. Lewis' private office and Mrs. Selma Pearl on the second floor. The postoffice takes up the first floor in the second building, with the offices of Dr. Frank H. Wilkinson, Dr. F. F. McMillan and Bell Louise Flewelling in the second floor. The other two buildings are occupied by the Charlevoix Courier and First Church of Christ Scientist in one and the Troy Laundry in the other. Earl A. Young, who represented Mr. Lewis in the deal, stated the consideration was in the neighborhood of $50,000.

This is the second parcel of Bridge street property purchased by the Birnkant interests in the past year. Their other holding is the former See block, rebuilt last spring and now occupied by the Mrs. Bridge Shop and the White House Bakery.

The Lewis block, formerly known as VanPelt Place, was once owned by "Uncle" George H. VanPelt, well known concrete road and fireproof hotel advocate, who, incidentally, is one of Charlevoix's great boosters.

ADVERTISING WILL ALWAYS SELL YOUR WARES

A party on the train with Mr. Wrigley of the Wrigley gum fame, engaged him in conversation. The line of thought gradually led to the gum business, it's success, etc. This statement and question was asked Mr. Wrigley: "You have advertised your goods and gotten them so well known that the child from the earliest school age to the octogenarian all know Wrigley's gum. Why do you continue to expend such vast sums in advertising?" Mr. Wrigley replied: "This is a beautiful coach we are riding in and a very fine train, but it is the engine which pulls it. To my business advertising is the engine which pulls it. The goods are right, but without the engine they won't move."

Party at Hamlin Home
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hamlin and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Poole entertained, at the Hamlin home on Nettleton street, Sunday evening with dinner and bridge. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn See and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Westaff.

NEW GYM OPENS SATURDAY NIGHT

MARKS FIRST HOME BASKETBALL GAME OF SEASON

Indoor Baseball, Volley Ball and Music by School Band Included in Program

Charlevoix's new high school gymnasium will be opened to the public for the first time on Saturday evening of this week, when the Red and White quintet takes on Kalkaska high school in the opening home game of the season.

Other features of the opening night program are a volley ball game between two teams composed of high school girls, and an indoor baseball game between two Charlevoix men's teams. In addition the Charlevoix high school student band will entertain with musical selections.

Work has been rushed to get the gymnasium ready for the opening night, and while not fully completed it is now available. Some idea of the dimensions of the new gym may be gained by the following figures. The interior floor is 56 feet in width by 95 feet in length and the basketball court is 42 feet wide and 85 feet long. Both basketball and indoor baseball courts have been marked out.

Other equipment includes drinking fountains and sanitary cuspidors on the end walls. Enough bleachers have been ordered for the main floor to seat 240 spectators and it is expected they will be available for the opening night. Balconies on three sides of the room equipped with three rows of opera chairs will accommodate 340 people. The large stage will accommodate many more and there is plenty of standing room in addition to seats. Fifteen large ceiling lights illuminate the playing floor in addition to a series of hidden lights beneath the balconies.

The gym has five separate exits so that a large crowd may leave the room in short time. One set of shower baths for boys have been installed and ready for use, but otherwise the basement is not completed. However, the contractors have stated that unless unseen obstacles prevent, the entire structure will be finished by the end of February.

BAY SHORE WOMAN DIED LAST FRIDAY

Was Very Well Known to People of This Region

Mrs. Elizabeth Burnett, wife of Frank C. Burnett, Bay Shore store proprietor, died at her home there at about 6:30 o'clock last Friday evening. Mrs. Burnett, who was born in Southern Michigan on July 29, 1865, had been confined to her bed with an attack of high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries since last March.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnett were well known throughout that section, their store having been in operation at Bay Shore for many years.

The funeral was held at 1:30 o'clock Monday from the Bay Shore Presbyterian church with Rev. G. A. Weaver, Petoskey, in charge. Burial was in Greenwood.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Burnett leaves two sons and one daughter: Arthur and Hugh Burnett, of Bay Shore, and Mrs. F. O. Long, of Jackson, and one son, Mr. J. L. Hudson, of Adrian.

STATE MAY BE FOR HOOVER

CANDIDACY LOOKED UPON FAVORABLY BY MANY

Development of Sentiment in State One of Outstanding Political Movements

Announcement will be made within a few days of the committee in Michigan sponsoring the candidacy of Herbert Hoover for president. The authority for this statement is J. Walter Drake, who resigned as assistant secretary of commerce several weeks ago and who has taken an active interest in the Hoover candidacy in this state since his retirement from his position as Mr. Hoover's assistant.

The development of Hoover sentiment in Michigan is one of the outstanding political movements of the history of Michigan Republican politics. This sentiment found widespread expression in definite form as soon as it became known that President Coolidge would not become the Republican standard bearer in 1928.

Before associating himself with the Coolidge administration at Washington an assistant secretary of commerce under Mr. Hoover, Mr. Drake was chairman of the board of the Hupp Motor Car company of Detroit. When interviewed he said:

"Among Michigan Republicans the sentiment for Herbert Hoover is pronounced and unmistakable. The able and loyal support which Mr. Hoover has given to the wise policies of President Coolidge, his splendid ability and remarkably wide experience have, I believe, convinced the Republicans of this state that since Mr. Coolidge has conclusively indicated that he will not accept re-nomination, Mr. Hoover is the logical man to succeed him."

"Mr. Hoover's wonderful constructive ability and his remarkable achievements in the greatest relief projects of our time, give him universal recognition as a national leader. His character and ability make an irresistible appeal to the men and women of America. Throughout Michigan I find great numbers of people who hold the belief that it would be politically wise and economically good business to insure the continuance of the constructive Republican program by nominating Mr. Hoover and electing him to the Presidency. This view is not confined to Michigan, but is widespread throughout the nation."

"The public endorsement of Mr. Hoover for the presidency by such prominent leaders as Governor Fred W. Green, James E. Davidson of Bay City and Miss Binn M. West of Port Huron, the two members from Michigan of the Republican National committee, Senator James Couzens and Henry Ford and numerous other men of business and political standing, is strong evidence of the trend of public sentiment."

"Within the next few days we propose to announce a Hoover statewide committee composed of representative Republicans from each congressional district in the state, which will act in conjunction with such committees as may be set up in other states in a national movement for Mr. Hoover's nomination."

Special Sunday Chicken dinners will be served at the Coulter Farm, north of the city on the Charlevoix-East Jordan road, each Sunday from now on. Please phone 77 and make reservations not later than 6:00 p. m. Saturdays. Price 75c.—Adv. 2-11.

BAD FIRE LOSS NARROWLY AVERTED

Ellsworth Warehouse Threatened by Bad Blaze

Fire broke out in the Ellsworth Produce Co.'s warehouse at about 4:20 p. m. Wednesday afternoon, supposedly from a stove in the basement. Considerable damage was done to the roof, grain chutes and power transmissions and it is thought a few bushels of potatoes were drenched by water.

About a car load of feed was carried from the building by volunteer help from farmers and towns people. The local fire brigade did excellent work with the double-tank chemical, regardless of the high wind, and succeeded in extinguishing a blaze that for a time spread rapidly.

The East Jordan fire department responded at once to an emergency call, when phoned in, Chief Maples, Jack La Londe and Leo La Londe came, making the trip with their chemical in fourteen minutes, however it was not necessary to use their chemical.

The new double-tank chemical being so constructed, as to permit the recharging of one tank while the other is doing duty, without question saved Ellsworth another disastrous fire.—Ellsworth Tradesman.

MANY ATTENDED FIRST MEETING

INTEREST SHOWN IN TEACHER TRAINING CLASSES

Object of Classes Is to Train Sunday School Teachers Like School Teachers

Nearly fifty were present at the organization meeting of the community teacher training classes on Monday evening and a large number enrolled for study so that the supply of standard text books secured was completely exhausted.

A few copies of the unabridged edition of "The Pupil" are still available and a rush order was sent for more of the other books which should be here the last of the week. Those studying "The Pupil" were asked to keep in mind some particular children they do the reading; also to list any books or articles they may have relating to the subject matter. Chapters 1 and 2 were assigned for study this week. Discussion, "What Idea of God Do You Want Your Children to Have?"

The first lesson from "The Worker and His Bible" will be chapters 1 and 2. The class should write names of old and new testament books in note books and memorize same.

The classes will convene again next Monday evening at the Congregational church. Mrs. Mattson will instruct from 7 to 8 and Mr. Palmer from 8 to 9. Those who are working for credits should keep up their note books and spend at least one hour a week in preparation for each course taken. The object of the teacher training course is to give Sunday school teachers an opportunity to be as well prepared for their work as the public school teachers are for theirs.

Any others wishing to enroll may do so this week and the books should be secured in time to prepare for the first lesson. Consult some member of the committee, composed of Mrs. Selma Pearl, Mrs. W. C. Palmer.

MISSIONARY SOCIETIES MET WITH MRS. JACOBS

National Field Secretary Was Guest During Afternoon

The Missionary Societies of the Methodist Episcopal church met with Mrs. H. B. Jacobs on Wednesday, January 4th, and had as their guest Miss Ruth Whenton, national field secretary of the Home Missionary Society, who is now working in the Michigan conference and on the Grand Traverse district.

She gave an inspirational talk on the work being done in the various schools, colleges and settlements—giving a clearer vision of what the local society is helping to do. Mrs. Jacobs added much to the pleasure of the afternoon by the delicious refreshments served. Miss Whenton spoke at the church in the evening.

The Congregational Ladies' Aid will serve a Public Supper Wednesday, February 8th.—Adv. 2-11.

New Gym Should Be Community Center for Real, Keen Enjoyment and Fun

Charlevoix high school's basketball team will appear before local fans on Saturday evening of this week in the first home game of the season, which, at the same time, will be the opening of the new gymnasium.

Just what showing they will make still remains to be seen. The boys have had but one week of practice and have played one game so far, that at Ellsworth. They will get under fire again at Pellston on Friday evening of this week, one night before the opening home game. However, Coach Bucken stated that his men are in good condition and will give any team in this section a run for their money. The following men will likely be called into the opening game: Bill Novak, Joe Smith, Dick Marshall, Robert McNail, Max Novak, John Williams, Edwin Kling, Roy Kelderhouse and Bill Supersnw.

Due to the late start in opening the season it has been necessary to bunch the games in order to complete the schedule. On this account an average of two games each week will be played from now until the district tournament in March. However, the 1928-29 schedule is now being arranged to spread the games out from Thanksgiving time through-out the entire winter.

The Charlevoix high school athletic association has spent in the neighborhood of $400 this year for football and basketball material. Over $100 has been spent in equipment for the gymnasium, which includes new backboards, volley ball and net, indoor baseball bats and balls, volley balls and extra basket balls and hand balls. In addition new suits have been purchased for the team and they will be used when the boys play the opening game here. The new shirts are red and white checked with Charlevoix in script letters across the front. The trunks are red, made in the zipper style with white belts.

These purchases added to the running expenses have placed a financial burden upon the association. However, Charlevoix citizens can help them out of this situation. Let's get the basketball habit this year. Attend the opening game and all those after. The new gymnasium has no par in Northern Michigan and should be the great get-together place of the community for keen enjoyment. Admission charges will be reduced as low as possible after the association gets on its feet. You have wanted a new gym, so now get out and enjoy it.

MOTOR ICEBOAT ACCIDENT FATAL

East Jordan Man Dies of Injuries Received Monday

Earl Blair, of East Jordan, died here at 7:30 o'clock this morning (Tuesday) from injuries he received at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon while ice boating from East Jordan to Charlevoix. Mr. Blair worked for the Northern Auto company at East Jordan summers. He is 32 years old and is survived by his wife and two children.

The machine on which the victim was riding was known as a motor driven ice sled. A heavy motor drove an airplane propeller and it is believed that when one runner caught in the ice and the sled tipped that the propeller caught Mr. Blair in the back inflicting the wounds which caused death. It is also believed he suffered internal injuries from the crash.

The outfit was in charge of Samuel Ulvrund, 24, owner.

Mr. Blair was brought to Petoskey hospital where everything possible was done to save his life. The funeral will probably be held from the home in East Jordan with burial there.—Petoskey Evening News.

Notice of Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Charlevoix Masonic Building Association will be held in the Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening, January 17th. All Masons and their families are cordially invited. Supper at 6:30. Business meeting and entertainment will follow. D. S. Payton, Secretary.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

TWO years ago Dodge Brothers embarked upon a program designed to place it and its Dealer Organization in a position on January 1, 1928, second to none in the industry.

The astonishing results of this great achievement are now known to the world.

It is doubtful if industrial annals can cite, over a similar period, an achievement so outstanding.

A smart, swift, low-priced and immensely popular quality Four has replaced its famous predecessor.

The Senior Six, outstanding in performance, quality and luxurious appointment, has been created.

Graham Brothers Trucks and Motor Coaches (formerly exclusively Fours) have been supplemented by sixes. Fifty new types have been added. The capacities are broadened to range from one-half ton to two-ton, all resulting in the most complete and capable line of work cars known, and with prices ranging from $670 to $4290.

Then Thursday came The Victory—a Six for $1045 and up—the most spectacular engineering achievement of the decade.

These accomplishments, one following the other in steady progression, have now provided Dodge Brothers Dealers throughout the world with the most diversified and comprehensive line of passenger and commercial vehicles ever manufactured and sold by a single organization.

For every need and purse there is now a Dodge Brothers vehicle built dependably and in full recognition of the progressive ideals of today and tomorrow.

RESULTS OF THE PRIMARY

Jamestown (N. D.) Sun says: "There was more than a little element of political hysteria in the addition of the direct primary to our political machinery. At a time when there was a feeling current that somehow the common and garden voter was not having a fair show in the naming of candidates for public office, the direct primary was suggested as the great corrective. With printed ballots in every home and ballot boxes in every dooryard, it was expected that there would be a fine, big, concerted uprising of the citizenship of the country for the selection and election of the best men. It was also argued that the direct primary was to open the way for the able, honest, yet poor man, to make his way into public life at a minimum of expense. Unhappily, all these rosy forecasts have gone by the board. The man with his individual ballot in hand and away from his opportunity to counsel with his fellow party men has simply refused to participate in primaries and elections and we have a steadily decreasing total of actual voters. Public officers in many instances now represent the minority and not majority of party men or voters at large. The direct primary has also introduced a discussion of personalities rather than principles, and while independence in voting is hailed as a cardinal virtue it is an unfortunate fact that the vociferous independent voters seems more inclined to exercise his powers in vocal declarations at the corner grocery store rather than the voting booth. It is being made plainer all the time that we are suffering from lack of party cohesion. As for the opportunities of the poor man, he is now more effectually barred than ever. Instead of one election, he is obliged to go through two—one for the nomination and then one for the election, and we have examples on hand of the expenses involved."

THE SMALL TOWN

Minneapolis Journal says: "The importance of instilling in the child's mind a spirit of loyalty to his own home town, no matter how small it may be, was stressed by Dr. Edward A. Steiner of Grinnell College when he spoke recently to the Northwest Iowa Teachers' Association at Sioux City. We are glad to see somebody swinging a cudgel in defense of the small town. It is high time. The sneers of the vaudevillians, the joke-smiths on the humorous periodicals, the Menckens and Nathans and Sinclair Lewises, the professional smart alecks and urban wisecrackers generally, have all, of late years, had a tendency to make the youngster a little ashamed of his home town. If he believes all he hears and reads, he is likely to reach maturity with a sneaking idea that there is something shameful about being born and reared in a community where citizens go to bed of night and to church on Sunday. So when he travels from Gopher Prairie, Minnesota, to Chicago, he is tempted to register as from Minneapolis; and when he goes on to New York he is tempted to register as from New York. When, and if he reaches Europe, he is from New York. But why? Why not from Gopher Prairie, and proud of it, wherever he goes? What is there to be ashamed of in 'small town stuff'? Small town stuff! The stuff of nearly all our presidents, nearly all our senators and Supreme Court justices, nearly all of our important writers and painters and sculptors and musicians, present or past. The stuff of nearly every big name in New York and Chicago today. So why not be proud, rather than embarrassed by the fact of small town birth or rearing?"

HIGHEST STANDARD OF LIVING

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, in his annual report, states that living standards in the United States during the fiscal year remain higher than anywhere else in the world and are higher than at any other time in world history. This is an interesting declaration from a man who has a peculiar knowledge of conditions throughout the country. No one can doubt Mr. Hoover's tremendous accomplishments, but business men know more about the effectiveness of the new department of commerce than the general public. Any statement by Mr. Hoover naturally warrants close attention. "The high prosperity," says Mr. Hoover, "of the year did not represent merely an upward swing in the business cycle, but was the result of general and permanent progress. There were, to be sure, a few aspects of American business which were less satisfactory, as, for example, the coal and textile industries, the relatively low price of cotton with its depressing effect upon the farmers of large regions of the south, and some continued depression in agriculture in the Mid-West, although improvement is taking place since the fiscal year in both sections."

Foreign underwriting by Americans during the fiscal year, according to the secretary, exceeded that of any corresponding period in American history. The total for the year was one billion eight hundred fifty million dollars. Banking showed a sound but uneventful growth, railroads developed increased efficiency and the year showed the maintenance of a relatively large building construction program, and a steady level of prices. The value of American exports during the fiscal year 1926-1927 was greater than that of any other fiscal year since 1920-1921, and, when account is taken of the much lower price level as compared with the war year's trade, was the largest in our history.

THE PUBLIC SHOULD KEEP A LIST

It is wholly constant for congress and state legislatures to enact laws relating to railroad regulation respecting rates and service, but when it comes to the detail of railway operation, that is something which should be left to the management. This refers particularly to legislation concerning number of men in a train crew, pilots on light engines, number of cars in a freight train and similar matters which have to do only with economy of operation, and in no way concern the safety of employees or the public.

The public is constantly seeking lower rates, and at the same time remains passive while legislators are passing full crew laws and similar laws which compel the employment of more men than needed and which increase operating costs and rates.

The labor lobbyist, for the purpose of intimidation, keep record of those who vote for and against their bills, and do not hesitate to warn those who refuse to take their program, of the consequences at the next election.

Men of moral stamina resent such practices. Any well informed observer knows that the so-called labor vote is not "delivered" like so much chattel by any lobbyist or brand of lobbyists, and that the lobbyist rarely controls more than his own vote.

The public should give closer attention to the conduct of its public servants and when it finds a legislator bidding for any class vote by betraying the public welfare, it should at future elections effectively express its disapproval.

If the public will do this, there will be fewer demagogues in our legislatures, and more real constructive purpose in our legislation.—From the Warrentown (Va.) Democrat.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

It would be quite out of the question for us to enter into a detailed discussion of what particular things might be done for government by industry and by those who represent it or what the particular needs of the government may be. It seems to me quite worth while, however, that one of the first things we should take into account is this: that if the government is to abandon the theory that the function of government is political rather than economic, inject itself into business, and branch out into the fields now occupied by private industrial enterprise; that process is just as dangerous to the government as it is to industry. The government under which this structure has been built is just as much endangered by the injection of government into it. We therefore have upon our shoulders a tremendous responsibility running to the government as well as a responsibility to industry, and we must ever keep in mind that if the destruction of that government structure is brought about by the eating in of government into industrial enterprise, the inevitable consequences must be the construction of both the government and the industries which it absorbs.—G. E. Turner.

FARM FIRES COSTLY

Fires on farms and in rural communities took a toll of approximately $5,000 lives, and wiped out $150,000,000 worth of property last year. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine declares that all of this waste is "essentially needless and could be prevented to a very large extent by the elimination of carelessness and the adoption of effective and recommend-

VALUES

We are living in a time of great material prosperity, of wealth, of luxury, of ever broadening diffusion of knowledge, of constantly multiplying devices that minister to our comfort, our pleasure and our entertainment. But potent and desirable as these things may be, they do not in themselves constitute real success. They become but its cheap and sordid counterfeit if achieved through any sacrifice of those spiritual values that are the true glory of a nation.—George B. Cortelyou.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

by B. C. Mellenkamp

See the European Corn Borer

The European corn borer, a pest that has done more damage to agriculture than any other recent insect is steadily gaining ground in Michigan and many other states. It is now in some twenty-eight counties in Michigan and is approaching Charlevoix from two directions. We may expect its appearance no doubt in two, or three years. We should not be unduly alarmed at present, for the pest has not reached this county, but we should know all about this corn borer, its life history, what damage it does, how to combat it, and what preventative measures can be used.

In order to answer these questions and give a thoroughly up-to-date discussion on the borer and what to do about it, a series of four meetings will be held in Charlevoix county on Friday and Saturday, January 20 and 21. Following are the meetings:

First Meeting—Court house in Charlevoix, on Friday afternoon, January 20, at 2:30 fast time.

Second Meeting—Boyer Falls town hall, on Friday evening, January 20, at 8:30 fast time.

Third Meeting—Boyer City Library, on Saturday afternoon, January 21, at 2:30 fast time.

Fourth Meeting—East Jordan high school gymnasium on Saturday evening, January 21, at 8:30 fast time.

T. S. Tolles, extension specialist, corn borer work, will be the speaker. He is equipped with a motion picture machine with reels on the corn borer life, history and control measures. He also has charts, riker mounts and other material, and will be prepared to give the latest information on this dreaded infestation.

In the future Charlevoix county will be more interested in the corn borer than at present and these few meetings are for the purpose of giving information that will permit every farmer to see for himself the necessity of knowing all the facts pertaining to the corn borer. This is your opportunity. Make your plans now for attending.

"Better Chick" Campaign in Charlevoix County

The poultry raisers will be interested to learn that a "Better Chicks" campaign will be started in Charlevoix county this month. It will be carried on by a group of leaders who will attend four meetings, where instructions will be given by a poultry specialist on all phases of chick rearing, and who will then carry the information back to their respective community and give the work to at least five other persons.

It is expected that at least seventy-five people should be reached in this manner and receive more benefit and value from the meetings than if they were public, in addition there will be approximately fifteen leaders scattered in all sections of the county who would have all the information available and could assist their neighbors with their poultry problems.

The organization meeting will be held in the Boyne City library on Wednesday afternoon, January 18th, at 2:00 fast time. A cordial invitation is extended to all poultry raisers in the county to attend this meeting and assist in organizing the campaign. Be sure to have a representative from your community present. January 18th is the date, Boyne City is the place.

AT THE MOVIES

Rogers in Big Special Production

The outstanding cast chosen for any feature production was engaged by Sam E. Rork, producer of "A Texas Steer," starring Will Rogers, and coming next Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theatre.

"Sam Rork engaged some real actors for the acting parts; I'm just supposed to act natural and foolish like a congressman," explained Rogers recently.

Louise Fazenda, star comic of Hollywood, has a role of "Ma" Brander, wife of Congressman Brander of Texas. Rogers is the cattleman - congressman. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Ann Rork have the juvenile leads around which the romance is developed.

Lilyan Tashman and Sam Hardy have the comedy "heavy" roles, and George Marion, Sr., is in the role of Fishback, negro politician—the role, incidentally, which he created thirty or more years ago when Charles Hoyt first engaged "A Texas Steer."

Bud Jaimison, Arthur Hoyt, Mack Swain, Lucien Littlefield and William Orlamond have the other big roles.

Richard Wallace, who directed "McFadden's Flat" and "The American Beauty" recently, directed "A Texas Steer." It is a Sam E. Rork production for First National Pictures.

GREAT INTEREST IN NEW VICTORY SIX

Classy New Model is Met With Public Approval

Telegraphic reports received from dealers from all parts of the United States and Canada, according to word received by Benjamin Brown of this city, local Dodge Brothers dealer from E. G. Wilmer, president of the Dodge Brothers, Inc., indicate the tremendous interest and generous public approval being accorded Dodge Brothers new Victory Six.

The first public announcement of this new six cylinder car by Dodge Brothers, Inc., was the radio program released by arrangement with the National Broadcasting company over a specially connected network of forty-three stations blanketing the entire country from coast to coast. The pictures and news stories in the daily papers on January 5 and the newspaper, magazine and outdoor advertising have played their part in attracting the attention responsible for the unusual interest in the advanced features of design embodied in this new popular priced six.

"Three features are being most widely discussed by the thousands of visitors who have been thronging dealers' display rooms all day and late into the evening ever since the formal announcement, the telegrams indicate," says Mr. Brown. "One of these is the combination of the chassis and body in an integral unit achieving lower body height without any sacrifice of headroom, and with substantial lowering of the center gravity. Another is the double wall or 'Battleship' construction of the steel body, and the third is the appearance of the car, which is described as extremely attractive.

"A reputation for dependability and honest value extending back over the entire thirteen year period since the first Dodge Brothers car was announced naturally heightened the interest in the new popular priced Victory Six announced by Dodge Brothers, Inc."

WEATHER MAN STILL HOLDS WINTER SPORTS

Adverse Conditions Fail to Halt Activities, However

While at the present time winter sports talk has been supplemented by stories of the first robbing, first snake and crow "yarns" there has been no halt in plans for activities after the weather man looks upon us more favorably.

Three programs have necessarily been postponed on account of the unseasonable weather, but committees are going ahead with their work. Advertising gained has been far-reaching and shows even brighter prospects for the future. Two motion picture concerns will visit Charlevoix, one before the carnival and one during carnival week. Several radio stations have been furnished with programs and they will be broadcasted at the proper time.

LAKE CHARLEVOIX ICE FINE FOR ICE BOATING

This Exciting Sport Will Be Added to Winter Program

Ice boating promises to be a popular sport on Lake Charlevoix this winter. The entire surface of the lake is almost like a pane of glass from Charlevoix to Boyne City.

The first ice boat was put on the lake last Sunday by Bert Beaudoin, who, with a number of friends tried out the sailing that day. We understand two other ice boats will be put in commission soon, one by Ray Hamilton and the other by Mr. Shaw of Boyne City. It is also probable that the boat owned by Robert Morse will be put in use. In event all these ice boats are available, a series of races will be added to the winter sports program, and winter visitors coming to Charlevoix will be given the privilege of using them.

DEATH CLAIMED GEORGE AGER TUESDAY, JAN. 10

His Death Marks Passing of Another Pioneer Resident

Charlevoix citizens and residents of the Barnard district today mourn the death of George Ager, who passed away at his home in this city at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, January 10th. Mr. Ager had been in poor health for nearly two years and during that time was stricken with paralytic strokes three different times, the last resulting in his death. During these two years of illness, Mr. Ager was partially crippled and for the last six months was totally blind. But in spite of his suffering he was constantly cheerful, a spirit which won the hearts of all who knew him.

Deceased was born in New York state in the year 1852 and was 75 years, one month and 17 days old at the time of death. At the age of 14, he came to Charlevoix with his parents and settled on a farm near Barnard, where he resided until eight years ago, at that time coming to Charlevoix to make his home. He was united in marriage to Miss Jennie Willis in 1882. To this union were born six children, four of whom survive, viz: William and Henry of Charlevoix, Edward of East Jordan, George of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Ed. Heise of Charlevoix. A son, Hubert, died 22 years ago.

Funeral services will be held from the home 1100 State street, at 1:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. John E. Lockyer of the Methodist church officiating. Interment at Brookside.

CENTRAL LAKE'S NEW SCHOOL COMPLETED

Occupied by Students for First Time January 9

The Central Lake students are to occupy their new school building commencing with the opening of school following the Christmas vacation.

The old building was totally destroyed by fire some time ago and teaching has been carried on under the greatest difficulties. The classes being held in store rooms, churches and in private homes. There was a great deal of confusion and annoyance and the progress of the pupils was retarded by these adverse conditions.

On January 9 the teachers and pupils will enter the new building to pursue their duties and under the new and favorable environment, modern conveniences and comforts, they will, no doubt, find their work less irksome and by far more profitable. It is always pleasant to work under favorable conditions and they will doubtless find their work much easier than it has been for the past few months.—Central Lake Torch.

SURVEY U S-31 FROM PETOSKEY-ALANSON

Projected Route Would be Straighter, Cut Out R. R. Crossings

A preliminary survey will be begun Jan. 3 for a new route for US 31 to follow from Petoskey north to Alanson. This new route is to run parallel to the present road but is to be laid so as to eliminate the extremely crooked condition of the road that existed between Conway and Oden previously. This new thoroughfare will also take care of two railroad crossings that are located directly north of Petoskey.

H. V. Brightman of the highway department of Lansing, is to have charge of the survey party and the plans will be made from the district office here. Mr. Brightman, accompanied by H. G. Oaks, resident engineer, and A. L. Burrage have covered the proposed route and given it a preliminary examination.—Cadillac Evening News.

PARTY AT WEXTAFF HOME LAST WEDNESDAY EVENING

A number of the younger crowd met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wextaff Wednesday evening for an impromptu party. Those present were the Misses Lila Hoise, Marinn Bartlett, Irene McCann, Dorothy Withers, Noble Turpin and Norma Steinel of Boyne City, Messrs. George Higman, Pete Scott, Versal Seymour, Gerald Rodrick, Dean Davenport, Louis Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hamlin.

DO NOT HAVE TO FOLLOW EXACT ROUTING

In building a road on the petition of electors, a township highway commissioner is not bound to construct the road in exact accordance with the petition, but may use his discretion regarding the practicability and cost of the road, the Michigan supreme court ruled.

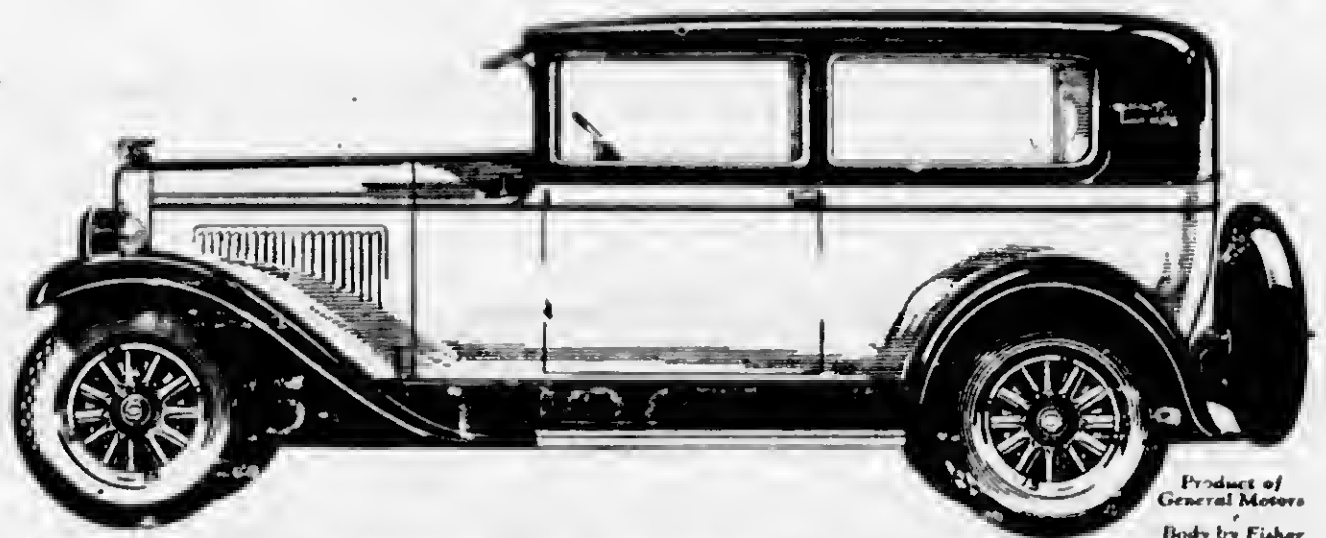

The treasury department has called in a lot of money experts to devise ways and means of making the dollar bill last longer. Just put them in a Scotchman's pocketbook and they will last a while.

One gas station to every 500 people in the state of Michigan is what a recent report from the office of the secretary of state shows. At present there are 9,494 filling stations in the state. Assuming the population to be in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 it allows something like one family in every 100 supporting itself wholly or partially through the sale of gasoline.

BRADY'S BOATS WINNING HONOR

COPPED H. PAUL PRIGG TROPHY
AT MIAMI RACES

M. Roy Brady Carrying Laurels of Home Town Into the Sunny South

Once a Charlevoix booster—always a Charlevoix booster. And to prove this saying we find that M. Roy Brady, who, with his wife, have been spending the winter in Florida, is carrying the laurels of his home town to the sunny south.

Outboard motor boat racing is one of Brady's hobbies. During the summer season of 1927, Roy took in most of the regattas in northern Michigan and with very few exceptions placed in the money. A good share of the credit for Charlevoix's successful regatta is due to the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Brady. And last, but not least, Charlevoix will always be known to the speed boat world as the home of Miss Charlevoix, holder of the world's record of 64.512 miles per hour for 725 class hydroplanes.

Not satisfied with honors won at home, Roy has invaded Florida with his Brady's Boats and on Sunday, January 8th, walked off with the H. Paul Prigg trophy in the stock class C race held by the South Florida Boat Racing Association at Miami, Florida. Brady also placed third in the class C free-for-all, and according to the Miami Daily News and Metropolis, has been making them "step" up and down the entire coast.

Brady writes interestingly of his southern trip and we will quote his letter in part:

"I told you when I left Charlevoix I would write if anything of importance happened while I was down here—so here I am. We have seen a lot of this state already, having driven about 3,000 miles since arriving in Florida. Have been to a number of regattas, but the best I could get was 2nd and 3rd's. But now I have a different story. We've pepped up Brady's Boats until at the first race in 1928 of the South Florida Boat Racing association regatta, we copped the wonderful H. Paul Prigg trophy—which is sure some cup. It is now being engraved and will then be sent to the New York Motor Boat Show for display, after which it will be sent home for me. I shall surely have it on display when I get home. My name and town will be on it they said—good advertising!

They had a most delightful banquet for the racing folks and officials at the Miramar Hotel and the trophies were presented there. They called on each one of us for a word or two of acceptance. I started in by saying that I was really very much surprised at being able to take this trophy, as I had not come down to Florida with the idea of racing and had only brought a fishing boat with me for use through the winter. You should have heard them yell. Those boys all wanted to know just how fast I'd go if I had brought a racing boat.

Well, anyway, we're bringing the H. Paul Prigg trophy with us to Michigan and sending a paper with the account of the final day's races.

Very truly yours,
M. Roy Brady."

SHERIFF VAUGHAN RAIDS MOONSHINE JOINT

Picks up Still, Mash and Quantity of Liquor

Sheriff Dave Vaughan and his deputies successfully raided the home of Jay VanCamp of Evangeline township, just north of Boyne City, last Thursday night, and took possession of a still, a barrel of mash and a quantity of moonshine liquor.

VanCamp was away from home at the time of the raid, but according to the sheriff, is an old offender whom county officials have been after for some time. He has never been arrested for bootlegging, and the sheriff is in hopes of soon picking him up.

Two Boyne City boys were also placed under arrest and released under bond, the offense being the charge of breaking into Heaton & Hooper's garage at Boyne City and driving away an automobile they did not own. Both offenders are seventeen years old.

BIG WAREHOUSE BURNS AT ELLSWORTH

Had Been Recently Reopened by Owner M. R. Nelson

The warehouse owned by M. R. Nelson, operated under the name of the Ellsworth Produce Co., located just south of the depot in that village, was burned to the ground on Friday evening, January 6.

The plant had been operated by the Chatterton interests for a number of years, and was finally closed down. Early last fall, Mr. Nelson, its owner, reopened the plant.

A fire was discovered the previous Wednesday, caused from an overheated stove. This was thought to have been extinguished. Thursday morning smoke was discovered issuing from the building, but was soon under control. Friday morning it again got a good start, and all effort to save the building failed, despite the best efforts of the local fire department and aid from East Jordan.

According to latest information, the building contained several carloads of potatoes and a quantity of feed. Mr. Nelson estimates his loss at approximately from five to seven thousand dollars, fully covered by insurance.

With the Final Payment Just Received, This County Got $19,228.14 in 1927

Charlevoix county's share of the balance of the 1927 weight and gasoline tax payment to the counties amounted to $9,921.65. This amount has been received by County Treasurer Flanders and was deposited in the county road fund January 14, making the total receipts for 1927 amount to $19,228.14.

The total payment due the counties, payable January 1, amounted to $2,781,829.77. Of this total $2,000,000 is weight tax money and the balance gas tax money, the prorated part of $2,418,371.89 for the period between September 5 and December 31.

The $2,781,829.77 distributed Tuesday by the highway department is apportioned on a basis of seven-eighths to the counties according to the amount of tax collected and one-eighth divided equally among the counties. This division gave Charlevoix county $5,732.14 on the basis of collections and $4,189.60 as its equal share.

The new three-cent gasoline tax added $781,829.77 to the amount returned to the counties for the year. Under the old highway finance system the counties would have been given a flat $6,000,000 but with the gas tax the total due the counties for the year was $6,781,829.77. Of this amount $4,000,000 had been paid prior to December 31, 1927, leaving the balance sent out Tuesday. Under the plan of distribution used in the payments just made each county gets $4,189.60, as its equal share of one-eighth of the money and the other sum as its share computed on the amount of collections in the counties.

Frank D. Fitzgerald, business manager of the state highway department, asserted Tuesday that about $50,000 in state rewards have been denied counties during the year because the law has not been complied with. These disputed amounts may come before the state administrative board in the future as Mr. Fitzgerald declares they are moral obligations on the part of the state but that he had no authority to make payments which are not legal.

About $11,800 in state rewards due townships have accumulated now and will be paid April 1. Payments of $1,000,000 from the weight and gas tax will be made to counties February 1 and April 1, it was announced. The weight tax payments are to be made quarterly covering amounts collected during the period for which the payments are made.

Receipts a Tidy Sum
Receipts by the auditor general's department during 1927 amounted to $100,115,393, while disbursements in the same period were $100,023,821, according to a report by O. B. Fuller, auditor general. There were 8,275,456 acres and 761,203 lots of land returned as delinquent for unpaid 1926 taxes.

Held Township Offices During Residence in Hayes—Burgess Was Named for Him

Eugene Harrison Burgess, aged resident of Hayes township, died last Thursday, January 12th, after a long and useful life.

Deceased was born in Kenosha, Wisconsin, March 27, 1860, the son of Daniel and Sylvia Burgess. He was 77 years, 9 months and 15 days of age at time of death. Mr. Burgess prepared himself to teach and taught school two years in Wisconsin before coming to Michigan about 57 years ago. Upon coming to this state he located in the lumbering business on the shores of Little Traverse Bay, where for several years the business was continued. Thirty-eight years ago, Mr. Burgess, with a partner, Moses Cooper, moved their lumbering business to the shores of Oyster Bay, a part of Lake Charlevoix, where they continued operations until about seven years ago.

During his residence there Mr. Burgess has served his township at different times as supervisor, clerk and treasurer, being re-elected several times to each office. The village and postoffice at Burgess was named for him and his father. He was baptized and united with the Charlevoix Baptist church March 21, 1895 and was made deacon November 6, 1899. His membership and official service in this church has been greatly appreciated and held in high esteem. For years he taught the bible class in the church school and in the Burgess neighborhood school. He was a versatile leader and as teacher was greatly enjoyed by these large classes.

Mr. Burgess had one sister and two brothers who have passed away. His only remaining relatives are some nephews and nieces living in Chicago and Milwaukee. For many years he had made his home with the family of his former partner and they cared for him through his long

RECORD CROWD M. B. A. MEETING

CHARLEVOIX MASONS TURN OUT EN MASSE TUESDAY

Annual Meeting of Building Association Set a Record for Attendance and Interest

Attendance at the annual meeting of the Masonic Building Association, held in the Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening, was the largest in the history of the association, which is evidence that Charlevoix Masons are standing as a unit and by this action have been able to build and pay for one of the finest temples in northern Michigan.

The meeting opened with an excellent supper served by the ladies of the Eastern Star, which again proved their ability to not only handle a record crowd, but to fully satisfy the inner man, as was evidenced by the satisfied look upon the faces of those leaving the dining room.

After the supper hour Chairman Oluf Nordrum presided at the business meeting held in the lodge room. Reports of the financial condition of the association were made by Secretary-treasurer, D. S. Payton, who has served in this capacity ever since its organization. According to his figures, the association will cancel all its indebtedness with the next five years.

Following these reports came the election of a chairman, three trustees and one member of the auditing committee. Mr. Nordrum was the unanimous choice for chairman to succeed himself, as were A. L. Fitch, H. R. Fowler and D. S. Payton as trustees, and A. J. Usher as a member of the auditing committee.

After the business meeting members greatly enjoyed themselves the remainder of the evening, some at cards and others in dancing. The attendance was gratifying and the interest manifested by each member in the accomplishments of the association was such that the closing chapter of a long and tedious struggle to finance and pay for a home for themselves may terminate before the estimated time.

Mrs. Miller's condition became serious earlier in the week but she was not believed in critical condition until yesterday when she began sinking noticeably. Her mother, Mrs. Peter Collier of Chicago, arrived early this week to be with her.

Mrs. Miller was active and popular in church, fraternal and social circles. She was an active worker in the First Presbyterian church, Sunday school and Ladies' Aid. For some time she was a teacher in the Sunday school. She also was active in Beulah chapter, order of Eastern Stars, Queen Esther shrine, Order White Shrine of Jerusalem, and a member of several clubs.

JUDGE PROBATE ANNUAL REPORT

REVIEW OF WORK DONE DURING FISCAL YEAR

Probate Judge S. A. Correll Believes The Public Should Know of Work Handled

Judge of Probate S. A. Correll submits for publication the following report of the activities of his office for the year 1927, reporting in detail all cases handled and the disposition of the same. Citizens of the county are interested in the work of the various county officials, and Judge Correll's report will be read with interest.

Thirty intestate estates begun during the year.

Fifteen testate estates.

Seven estates in which the short method was taken by determining heirs.

Four guardians were appointed for minors and three for mentally incompetent persons.

Eight adult afflicted persons were sent to the hospital for treatment and seven afflicted children to the same University Hospital at Ann Arbor. Besides committing these fifteen persons the past year, several persons that had been previously committed were returned for further treatment. One epileptic admitted to Wahjamega and one feeble minded placed on the waiting list for admittance when she could be received on account of the crowded condition of the institution.

Seven children have been adopted into homes in this county during the year.

One proceeding known as the determination of survivorship.

Twelve petitions filed to admit patients to the State Hospital for the Insane at Traverse City; two petitions were dismissed and ten patients were admitted as insane. This is above the average number for the past fifteen years.

Inheritance tax determined in three estates and the amount collected was $572.88. Under the law as now amended a husband or wife is exempt $30,000 and children are exempt $5,000. Formerly the first class were exempt only $5,000 and the second class were exempt only $2,000. That accounts for the small amount as compared with former years.

In all 96 new cases begun during the year.

Claims against the estates begun the previous year were heard in about 20 cases.

Final accounts filed and estates closed in some 30 cases of former years.

The juvenile division of the probate work is as follows:

Two girls were brought before the court as delinquents. One was sent to the Girl's Training School and one placed on probation. Nine boys on charges of delinquency, three were sent to the Boy's Vocational School; two were on probation from the Vocational School and were returned for violation of their probation. The other cases were for offenses of a minor nature and were placed on probation and the terms of probation have not been violated. In short the measures taken by the court to correct the tendencies to wrong doing have been successful.

This report in regard to the juvenile division of the court does not include juvenile offenders in which the court waived jurisdiction and they were dealt with in courts of general criminal jurisdiction.

Petitions filed for relief of dependent children. Relief was granted in six cases. This relief reached six families and in the families were 20 children.

FINE IMPROVEMENT AT CAMPBELL'S BOOT SHOP

A recent improvement on Bridge street will be noticed at Campbell's Boot Shop, where the owner has greatly enhanced the appearance of his display window by the construction of a hack ground carrying out the French window effect. Polar Bear Day Program Thursday Afternoon, Jan. 19

Weather conditions have made it impossible to have the ice rinks ready for skating in time for the Thursday afternoon holiday this week, but Charlevoix will have winter sports nevertheless.

According to present plans an afternoon of sports will be held at Mt. McSaub. The program will start at 2:30 with a free-for-all ski race over a course laid out and marked through the hills and ravines near the ski and toboggan slide sites. This contest is open to all and a prize will be awarded the winner. At 3 o'clock ski-joring will be inaugurated at Charlevoix. It is planned to have a ski-joring race around a track in the clearing below the slides. If you have never seen this thrilling sport, be on hand Thursday afternoon.

Weather conditions permitting, Bridge street hill will be iced in time for coasting Thursday night. There is now plenty of snow at the mountain for the events above listed and all town people are urged to turn out and enjoy the fun.

AT THE MOVIES

The pick of the rodeo stars of the Western states can be seen in "Gun Gospel," Ken Maynard's latest First National picture, which is scheduled to be shown at the Palace Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

The story of "Gun Gospel" calls for several spectacular and sensational chases, and to do this Charles R. Rogers, the producer, and Harry J. Brown, the director, secured some of the cleverest riders in the west to go with them on location to Lone Pine. The majority of these men are prize winners for trick riding, roping, steer bulldogging and other feats to be seen at western rodeos. However, with Maynard a winner of the national rodeo in Chicago, in competition with over two hundred men from the ranges of the United States, it became almost a competitive question of horsemanship when the picture was being taken. That is, until Maynard began a few of the special stunts, such as riding underneath the horse, and riding six horses. From then on the competition ceased.

Clara Bow Gives Lesson On How to Get Your Man

How to free a man one loves from a loveless betrothal of seventeen years standing is shown in "Get Your Man," Paramount's latest starring vehicle for Clara Bow, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

In the picture, Clara is a young American girl who has fallen in love with a French youth, Charles Rogers, who was engaged to another girl when five years of age under the French custom in which parents choose the mates of their children.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Monday, January 16th, was the eighth anniversary of national prohibition, and on the previous Friday afternoon, the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union began the celebration of the event when they gathered in large numbers at the home of Mrs. A. J. Hamilton for their monthly meeting.

The assigned topic was "Victory" and the leader, Mrs. Altonstall, quoted the preamble to the constitution and asked how better we could "insure domestic tranquility" and "promote the general welfare" than by abstaining from the use of intoxicating liquors which have been the cause of so much sorrow and trouble and destruction.

A brief sketch was given of the wonderful story of the intense campaign of the temperance organizations and the steady growth of prohibition areas, state, country and municipal, throughout the land. No amendment was ever so thoroughly considered. For more than half a century the political, social, educational and economic aspects of the liquor question were discussed by the press, the pulpit, the platform and the people themselves. Temperance was taught in the public schools and in the Sunday schools. Pledge signing, moral suasion, high license and various other means were tried out in the end it was seen that nothing short of national prohibition would suffice.

Few factors probably count so much in the agitation against prohibition as the constant effort in certain quarters, to discredit prohibitionists as fanatical reformers, fired with an unreasonable and unreasoning passion for interfering with the legitimate and personal habits of other people.

A reading by Mrs. Harsha entitled "A Personal View of Prohibition" refuted this argument completely by describing many instances of prohibition days which were so typical that they recalled many experiences of those present. The early advocates of the cause preached temperance by precept and example, but owing to the nature of the thing against which they fought they soon learned that to preach sobriety while the allurements and pitfalls of the traffic were permitted to exist under license of the state, was not only in many respects futile but in every respect inconsistent. They were and are, criticized as narrow minded and fanatical, but the practical logic of the prohibitionist is irresistible—if alcoholic liquor is a good and legitimate commodity, the traffic in it ought to be as free as in any other good thing; if it is evil and dangerous it ought not to be licensed, protected nor upheld by the state.

It is the moderate and fair minded people who ultimately are going to decide the issue. There are fanatics among the "drys" just as there are "fanatics among the wets." It has never been observed that "wetness" predisposes, or determines, anybody toward tolerance or consideration for others. Only forgetfulness of the nature of the thing which the prohibitionists are fighting and its incredible power for corruption and destruction, combined with some lapse from the moral vision and purpose of the pioneers, can occasion a reversal of what this nation has done, imperfectly it is true, but with the hope of carrying on to triumph.

At any rate the women of the Union believe that "Prohibition is the Best Method." They consider the warfare upon the liquor traffic has been an expression of intelligent, clear minded, conscientious devotion to the common weal, and they intend to keep right on with their educational work, their political work and use every means at their command to strengthen the law and bring about its observance.

UNION MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Rev. Herman Burns Gave Fine Talk on Prohibition

The union "Victory" meeting held last Sunday evening at the Methodist church to celebrate the eighth anniversary of national prohibition, was largely attended by the people of the community as well as the members of the W. C. T. U. under whose auspices it was held.

Rev. Lockyer presided. The program consisted of congregational singing accompanied by Mrs. Stetler, pianist, Mrs. Belding, organist, and the M. E. orchestra; a solo by Mr. Barker Kirby; an anthem by the M. E. choir; scripture reading by Rev. Pye; and prayer by Rev. Mattson, who also read a call from the president of the Anti-Saloon League that met that day in every where commemorating the adoption of the amendment.

The speaker, Rev. Herman Burns, was well prepared with statistics and personal reminiscences, to prove that prohibition, in spite of defective observance, is a blessing to the country. His audience was with him from the start. The speaker gave a brief history of the growth of the temperance movement and described an early temperance society whose members were pledged not to get drunk on Sundays! Later the pledge was made to include holidays as well as Sundays!

Two helps to enforcement were suggested. One, the use of the referendum in case an officer neglects to do his duty. The other a change in the law making the buyer equally guilty with the seller.

LOOKING FORWARD TO THE NEW—BACKWARD ON THE OLD YEAR

January was named for the Roman god Janus, who had two faces and looked two ways—forward and backward. So January 1 is the day for looking two ways—backward into the year which has just ended and forward into the year which lies before us.

It is well for us, as citizens of this community, to look back, to review the events of the past year. Well may we take pride in such achievements as we have helped accomplish. It is well, too, for us to consider our mistakes, our shortcomings, our failures to do the things we should have done; but it is not well for us to brood over those failures, nor to dwell too long in regarding with pride our achievements.

Better it is for us to look forward into the new year, to the new opportunities which lie before us and which we, profiting by the mistakes of the past, may do our share in seizing and turning to the advantage of our community.

For if there is one New Year's resolution which we should make, it is the resolution that we will co-operate during the coming year in making our community better. Modern conditions have substituted co-operative effort for individualism as the best answer to economic questions and to the philosophical problem of obtaining the greatest good for the greatest number. But co-operative effort is composed of individual efforts, and if the greatest good for the greatest number in our community is to be attained, it can only be done by the individual assuming his share of the co-operative effort.

This community can be made a

THE CORRUPTION OF POWER

We give too little attention to the corrupting influence of power used for power's sake. A special interest may develop on this basis more perilous than any other special interest. Public service in an earlier day was only the incidental occupation of otherwise occupied citizens. They stepped into public place, stepped out again and took their places in civil life. We have been passing laws for the past thirty years which have tended to destroy political parties as agencies of public opinion, and have put politics entirely on the basis of office-holding and office-seeking. This has been the effect of the direct primary laws. It has made the pains and penalties of securing nominations to public office so great that citizens who know the conditions in advance, and who have something else worth while to do, will not enter the field where hordes of hally-hoo or both, are the keys to advancement. However worthy the original purposes behind the enactment of the laws to break down political parties, they have given us professionalized politics, corrupt politics, demagogic politics, and a greatly lowered level of public life.

The public official who betrays his trust the ally of the revolutionary who seeks to overturn free government. The yellow official puts in the mouth of the red revolutionary his most effective arguments. True, the thoughtful man will perceive that corrupt officialdom is no fault of our form of government. The Christian religion is not to be judged by Judases. These scandals to the logical observer argue not for such increase of the power of government as is advocated by most radicals. That men will use public power corruptly is surely no argument in favor of putting the government into even wider fields of activity, including the control of business enterprises. It would seem rather to justify the Jeffersonian dictum: "That government is best which governs least."

Is popular government a failure? This is a question that is being asked throughout the world. Russia, Italy, Poland and other European nations have concluded that it is, and have set up dictatorships. We know from the record of history that dictatorships are failures.

Popular government cannot be a failure unless the people themselves are failures. Indifference is the chief foe of free government. "Eternal vigilance," said Patrick Henry, "is the price of liberty." It is the price of good government, through the loss of which comes tyranny. Most people can find within themselves a cause of the abuses which exist in government, especially in their own local government, because they will realize that they have done very little to ward off the evils which have come upon them; that they have, perhaps, let some personal prejudice, on a minor matter determine their action on public affairs, rather than the higher things which really count.—From the National Republic.

Many of our people are wearing out their automobile seat cushions much faster than the upholstery of their living room chairs.

These badly mauled youths who apparently have been the victims of assault and battery, are perhaps merely football players.

Many parents who can't control one or two children, blame the teacher if she is not able to handle 40 or 50 of them.

The boys who complain because they can't walk to school this fall, were apparently able to run bases all summer.

LOCALS TAKE OPENING TILT

SMOTHERED KALKASKA SATURDAY NIGHT 23 TO 6

Came Next Tuesday Night With Fast East Jordan Quint Promises Plenty of Action

Before a crowd of enthusiastic spectators estimated to number between four and five hundred, Charlevoix's Red and White basketball quintet opened the home season in the new gymnasium here by smothering Kalkaska high school 23 to 6.

Starting a strong offensive in the opening moments of the game, the local squad, led by Bill Novak, forward, and John Williams, guard, took a comfortable lead and held it to the final whistle. Kalkaska was completely outclassed during the first two periods and the half ended with the locals on the long end of a 17 to 1 score. During the second half Coach Buchen used every member of his reserve squad. Numerous substitutions account for the smaller score during this period, when only six points were made.

All members of the team showed a good brand of basketball and fans were greatly impressed by the strong scoring combination Coach Buchen has uncovered in the two Novak brothers and John Williams as guard. These three men carried off the offense and accounted for most of the scoring. Williams is a good floor man, shoots baskets with accuracy and is a strong guard, while the two Novaks are an unbeatable scoring combination. Supt. Will Burkett of Gaylord refereed.

In the opening games of the Saturday night program, the 9th grade boys' indoor baseball team defeated a combination of 7th and 8th grade boys 6 to 4. The volley ball contest between girls' teams of the upper and lower high school classes ended in a tie with each team winning one set. The high school band, under the leadership of John TerWee, played during intermissions. The boys are showing improvement in every appearance and won a hearty applause after each number.

The local basketball squad plays two out-of-town games this week, taking on Kalkaska Friday night and Mancelona the following night. On Tuesday evening of next week, January 24th, the Red and White play East Jordan here in what promises to be one of the fastest home games of the season. The East Jordan basketball team has been making an excellent showing and have a long list of wins to their credit. According to O. P. North, manager of the Athletic Association, admission to the game Tuesday evening will be reduced in the hope that everyone in Charlevoix will turn out to help the locals win this important game.

HORTON LAW IS HAVING EFFECT

great that there is no reason why that type should be worth any more than it has been.

Mr. Lovejoy expects that the development of state forests and game preserves will go ahead with the development of private hunting clubs, for the benefit of those hunters who can not afford private hunting grounds and those who hunt so little they have no desire to do so. The conservation department already has under its control approximately a million acres of wild lands, and more hundreds of thousands of acres are on their way back to state ownership for non-payment of taxes. Approximately a third of Michigan's wild lands now have little or no value for hunting purposes, Mr. Lovejoy says, but with the present efficient system of fire protection and the establishment of game refuges to restock the country, the time will come when there will be few forests that will not be good for hunting purposes.

DENNIS SAYS IT PAYS TO BE SICK

Our good friend George A. Dennis, who lives on M-31 just south of the city, called us up on Thursday of last week and informed us he had been ill in bed with a severe cold for over a week. Geo. said it was the old fashioned gripe, and did not talk long as he was rather wobbly on his pins. However, he stated, during his enforced illness farm activities did not stop, as one of his prize brood sows gave birth to a litter of 18 pigs.

ARGO MILLING COMPANY INSTALLS NEW FEED MILL

Looking forward to speeding up their grinding at the Charlevoix plant, the Argo Milling Company has recently installed a "Dreadnaught" feed mill. The new machine is electrically operated, permits speedier work and does a better job of grinding than was before possible. In fact, the new equipment is the latest in grinding machinery and promises farmers the best of service obtainable.

Official sanction takes the form of an order authorizing the extension. Amendment of the permit provides for the following: "Freight service via U. S. 31 to Traverse City, returning from that point via U. S. 31 to Atwood, thence via county roads to Ellsworth, East Jordan and Charlevoix, thence via U. S. 31 to Petoskey, also via U. Mr. Campbell contemplates the inauguration of a daily service during the summer months, and will probably double his present equipment.

EMMET COUNTY MAY HAVE AIRPORT

Supervisors Start Ball Rolling to Get Action

Realizing that the airplane is to become one of the big factors in traveling at no distant time, the Emmet County Board of Supervisors, in regular session last week, set in motion what they hope will be the machinery that will give the county at least one first class airport. Following a motion by one of the supervisors, a committee of three to represent the county was named, and at the same time an effort will be made to secure the co-operation of all cities and villages in the county to put the proposition across.

It is not the idea of the board to select any site at the present time, but to first get a functioning organization which will prepare definite plans on which to work.

CARL WEIL PURCHASES SCHOENBERG RESIDENCE

One of Charlevoix's most beautiful and spacious summer homes changed ownership the early part of this week, when Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weil of Chicago, for many years summer resorters here, purchased the Colonel Schoenberg residence on Michigan avenue. Local real estate dealers predict this deal will greatly stabilize north side resort property for the reason that it lends an aspect of permanency. Since the death of the head of the Schoenberg family, the disposition of this large summer residence has been a matter of local conjecture.

WILL HAVE DISTINCTIVE UNIFORMS

CONSERVATION OFFICERS TO HAVE FORMAL DRESS

State Commission Believes Their Work Will Be More Effective if Presence is Known

State conservation officers may soon rival Royal Mounted Police in the favor of writers whose text treats of romance in the great outdoors—they are to appear in natty, distinctive uniforms in the near future. The innovation is the result of an investigation by Director Hogarth of New York's warden system where the uniform is now in vogue.

The Conservation Commission endorsed the proposed new dress at its January meeting, Friday, January 6, when the assertion of New York's conservation executive that adoption of the uniform has produced a marked betterment in service in that state was submitted by the director's investigator, P. S. Lovejoy.

In favor of the formal dress it is cited that its effect has been to bring New York the highest federal rating in 43 state-game-law services in number of arrests, percentage of convictions and amount of fines collected. Further, that the uniform carries with it a sense of law and order and an influence effective in both town and forest districts, that inspiring urge on the wearer was prompt and obvious and that consciousness of the uniform induced in them respect for the service which they represented. It is planned to select a uniform for Michigan that will be distinctive but not so conspicuous as to interfere in the detection of violators. According to the New York officials, "the uniform itself gets more information than a dozen mere wardens—people recognize the uniform and even though they don't know the man they will pass along information while it is hot." Governor Green has expressed approval of a uniform dress for conservation officers.

T. L. PEARL TAKES OVER PRIEST PROPERTY

Will Move Barber Shop Equipment There Within Short Time

Charlevoix has fairly hummed with Bridge street real estate transactions during the past few weeks. The latest deal was put through last Saturday when T. L. Pearl purchased the Priest building at the corner of Bridge and Mason streets.

Mr. Pearl now has a crew at work making necessary changes for the installation of his barber shop equipment into the new location. A walk has been built leading into what was formerly the gallery, which portion will be used for the barber shop. The Charlevoix Ice & Coal Company have leased the front of the building and Mrs. Pauline Hamlin will operate a beauty parlor in the room between the coal office and barber shop.

Idle ISLAND
By ETHEL HUESTON

COPYRIGHT 1927 by THE DOBBS-MERRILL CO.

Ethel Hueston, who contributed to a happier world with "Prudence of the Parsonage" and similar stories, has turned her attention to an entirely different locality and cast of characters—a summer island off the coast of Maine with its typical natives and visitors.

When Gay Deane, broken down from the heat of New York, rents the Lone Pine cottage on Idle Island, she reveals in the little dry shivering of the forest, the subtle soft tang of the sea breeze. It was to be her home chest, her treasure house, the Arcadia of her heart's desire.

One day she went exploring. The tide was coming in, nearly full, and she was obliged to make back a step or two to avoid a wetting. But she could not tear herself from the place. The narrow sheltered little beach was lovelier than any picture Gay smiled at it, in very love of its beauty. And as she stood she saw the incoming waves bore freight—a barrel—no, a sack—

Gay watched it curiously and felt the little thrill of excitement that always comes with thought of treasure borne by the sea. "Treasure trove," she whispered, "pirate's prize. Finders keepers."

Now it swept far forward on the waves. "Oh, an old blanket," she thought, with keen disappointment. Then it receded again, sucked back by the outgoing water. But caught full at last by the surge, it leapt, it swept in close to shore. "Oh, I do believe it is a sea chest wrapped in rugs or something," she cried aloud joyously. "Oh, I believe it is!"

What the object proved to be—another barrel, chest or sack—forms the beginning of a mystery and a set of circumstances that influenced the whole subsequent life of Gay Deane. It resulted in problems, adventures and romance.

CHAPTER I

It might have been a tall, straight, slim young boy who stood alone, far up in the bow of the white steamer as she nosed from Island to Island in her run up Casco Bay; boylike the feet planted squarely in sturdy English walking boots, the hands thrust deep into the pockets of smartly tailored knickerbockers; boylike the set of the straight shoulders in the wide-sleeved jacket with the soft silk man-of-war collar and the showing at the throat; boylike most of all the sleek bobbed head in jaunty leather hat. But all the boyish cast of Gay Deane was given the lie by the softness of her slender face, the delicacy of her throat as it curved into the mannikin collar, the dark weariness of her grave eyes, the tired drooping of her thin red lips.

The rest that Gay Deane came seeking in the Northland, she had earned indeed. Years of wilful slavery to paint brushes and palette, dogged persistence at her easel in the face of physical exhaustion, led inevitably to relinquishment of hopes, ambitions and plans, and Gay Deane was obliged to turn the key at last upon her pretty studio in Greenwich Village and go in search of receding rest among the cooling breezes along the pine-grilled coast of the North.

Her slender sturdy foot was first upon the gangplank, and it was she who led the stream of eager tourists ashore, making her way with impatiently quick assurance to the head car of a line of waiting taxis. Her brisk gesture of hand to ride brought up a tall, fair, freckled lad, who came with slow but willing gait, an anything roll to his locomotion that was almost noteworthy.

"I want to look at cottages," she said briskly.

"Well—all right," he assented slowly, in the soft New England drawl that curiously harmonized with his walk. Gay thought. He cranked the car and slid into the driver's seat. Gay swung up beside him.

"Now, I'll tell you exactly what I want," she began, "and you can take me to it. A small cottage, preferably, off by itself somewhere, with trees around it, and near the water. Quiet, very quiet. I am going to sleep for two weeks. If I can't find a cottage, I will take a suite of rooms in a private house. With an old couple, if possible, deaf and dumb and a bit crippled. If you have them. No hotel, no boarding house, no summer colony. Now, there it is. First choice, small, quiet, furnished cottage. I don't care if it is only a shed, if it is quiet, and cool, and alone."

"Well, now, that ought to be easy," he said slowly. "How many are there of you?"

"One. Me. Just myself, no more."

"You don't want a house all by yourself?"

All of outraged New England convention spoke in his slow low voice.

"Oh, yes, I do. Not a very big house, but a house."

"But you can't stay nights in a house by yourself?"

Gay cut in briskly: "Now, the chances are that I know what I want better than you do. All you have to do is to find it." Then, as she noticed that his eyes fell and a slow flush rose in his fair face at her rebuke, she smiled pleasantly: "I have lived alone for eight years. In New York, too, that den of depravity. I fancy there is no more rampant danger here than there."

"Another one of them nutty New Yorkers," the boy thought, but his impassive face did not betray him. He drove slowly from house to house, descending on their various virtues, decrying their obvious faults, specifying the number of rooms, the condition of the plumbing and the amount of rent.

Gay was difficult to suit. While her own notion of what she wanted was indelible enough, she was quick to detect what she did not want. One cottage was too close to neighbors, one was in a swampy marsh, one looked cockroachy.

"I never heard tell of any cockroaches there," she said thoughtfully. "Seems like folks would have mentioned it."

But Gay waved him on.

"There's the Lone Pine," he reflected at last, hard pressed for further resources. "But it's off by itself on the hill, and at the edge of the woods. You'd be afraid there. But it's high and it looks out to sea."

"The Lone Pine," she repeated, and her voice warmed. "I feel the vibration of a responsive chord. Lead me to it."

He stopped the car at last in a narrow lane. A grassy slope rose steeply beyond a small orchard, and crowning the hill, seeming a growth of the rocks themselves like a giant mushroom, a small cottage showed in the fringe of a little wood.

Gay breathed a rapturous "Ah!" She got out without a word, and the lad followed her through the orchard.

"I will have it," she said, looking up with joy in her eyes. "I will have it if I have to commit murder. Those brches are going to smother my sleep. Those rocks shall be my anchorage. Murder, arson, theft—what are these to me? The Lone Pine will give me sleep."

"Well, now," he said deprecatingly, with a sidelong look at her flushing face.

The cottage was built of weather-stained shingle and natural rock, and stood on a ledge where the grassy slope dwindled to solid stone. Before its door stood one twisted, craggy pine, and behind it, so that lured it stood in its very portal, the little far-east of breeze and pine rustled and silvered in the sea breeze.

The doors of the cottage were closed and their knocking produced no sound.

"A Darling Fireplace," Gay Exulted.

swer. The lad was loath to accept this inadmission. He knocked and knocked, frowning dissatisfaction at the unfriendly silence.

"Oh, there's nobody here," Gay protested. "Our pounding would have awakened them—the druids by this time."

"She must be here," he insisted. "She's always here. Auntanny!" he called. "Auntanny!"

Gay laughed at his persistence. "If she's here, she's deaf," she said, and walked around the cottage, from window to window, peering in. And the more her spying showed her, the more warily she wanted it.

The lower floor of the cottage consisted of one large room, the small kitchen being no more than a glasse in porch adjoining. It was lined throughout with pine, darkly stained. Windows opened on the four sides of it, to the forest, to the orchard slope and the valley, to the quiet bay, and to the full Atlantic and the farther islands. The room was charged with air, with occasional bright splashes of color on the walls or in the upholstery. The fireplace was wide and high, built of island stone, with corner benches of the dark pine.

"A darling fireplace," Gay exulted. "Round that lot. Folks mostly thought he wasted a lot of time on it," the boy touched pleasantly.

"Come here," Gay called to him. And directing his eyes to a bright corner of the room she said, "Look! Do you see that wide soft couch, with that wicker robe, and the fat cushions? I shall be sound asleep there in twenty minutes. Do you suppose folks would be surprised if I should break the door down and go right in and fall asleep?"

"Well, yes, I rather think maybe they would."

"Now! Take me to its Guardian Angel. But it is mine already. If he—that is the Guardian Angel—wishes to rent it, well and good. Otherwise I shall simply throttle him, and burn his remains in my fireplace. Lead on, MacDuff."

The boy eyed her warily as she marched before him down the grassy slope and through the orchard.

But he reassured her about the eutage. He said the Captain would surely rent it, because it was for rent. Naturally, that settled it. If Gay wanted it, it was hers. And Gay wanted it.

The house to which he took her was but a short distance up the same lane. "If you make the deal with the Captain you'll get it cheaper," he cautioned her. "But they may try to wish you off on Miss Alice, 'cause she's the administrator, and she holds out for more money. You ask for the Captain and stick to it. You'd better go to the kitchen door, miss. If you go to the front door they'll think you're company."

Gay nodded back at him, smiling, and crossed a velvet lawn to the kitchen door which was opened to her touch by a little old man, very gray, very frail, very gentle. If he felt surprise at sight of the boyish girl in khaki gray and red leather on his step he gave no sign, but in a soft and gentle voice he greeted her.

"May I speak to the Captain?" she began brightly.

"Well, now, I guess you can, seeing 'a'm the Captain myself," he said solemnly, and stepped out discreetly to the porch, making as if to close the door behind him.

But his attempted secrecy failed. The closing door was suddenly arrested.

A firm hand appeared in the aperture, and closed upon his arm. The Captain looked back with gentle impatience.

"Lady wishes to consult with me personally," he protested mildly.

"Now, Gramp, you wouldn't keep the lady standing," remonstrated a firm voice from within. And the door opened, the Captain was drawn back to the kitchen.

"Come right in, miss, and do excuse our looks, won't you? But it is right in the middle of cleaning and—"

Gay, lightly shielded away the need for apology, as soon down on the edge of a little, light chair beside the stove, while the Captain returned to his own big kitchen by the window between two criss and a huge dog, who curled his thick lips over his teeth in resentment at this intrusion in his kitchen. The three women culled at once to their work in different parts of the room, and the Captain tilted his pipe.

At Gay's eager inquiry he admitted his ownership of the Lone Pine, agreed that it was for rent, and said of course she could have it. Gay beamed upon him joyously, beamed at the unconscious backs of the three women, who, for all their immersion in their household tasks, had missed not so much as a syllable of talk, nor a thread of fringe on Gay's smart knickerbockers.

Suddenly a sharp knock on the kitchen door, which immediately opened from without, and before either face or form appeared, a brisk voice called with a great assumption of good cheer:

"Good morning, all!"

The words were followed by a woman, elderly, but tall and straight, with a face which had carefully schooled its every line to digged optimism.

"Good morning, all," she repeated, on her full appearance, and added, rather sternly, "Good morning, John."

Then she turned to Gay with elaborate affability. "Good morning. I saw you looking at the Lone Pine, and then as you came on here I knew you wanted it, so I came right over. How lucky you are—the dear little cottage! And cheap, my dear, dirt cheap. Do you want it for the entire season?"

"Well, yes, I think so," Gay turned doubtfully toward the Captain, who had acknowledged ownership. "But it seems to be occupied."

"Oh, no," he denied promptly, and for all his slowness, and his gentleness, he was deft in the insertion of his opinion. "Not yet. But I never worry about that cottage, not that one. It always rents. Popular, the Lone Pine. Well built, snug—like a boat, something like a boat, but of course a boat now—"

The oratorical voice cut in upon him. "A most desirable cottage. Only fifty dollars a month, my dear, fifty dollars."

"I don't want more'n forty-five," said the Captain gently. "Now, Alice, she-don't want to pay fifty a month. 'Tain't with fifty a month. We never got fifty for it yet. The young lady—"

"John. Fifty dollars. I am the administrator." The voice was low and firm.

"It ain't with it, Miss, I assure you. It ain't," he persisted. "I built it—me and Rand, that is—"

"John."

"Whose cottage is it, anyway?" Gay put in curiously.

"Oh, it's all in the family as you might say," the Captain explained. "I get the rent, but she collects it. She's the administrator. My sister, Miss Andover, Miss Alice Andover."

"The administrator," she amended grandly, trying vainly to frown her brother's late silence. "The cottage has been thoroughly renovated, and modern improvements installed. It is well furnished, as you know. I saw you looking in the windows. It has electric lights, fireplace, bath—only fifty a month. My dear, think of the view. Think of—of the fireplace. My dear, it will break your heart to leave the place. Perhaps you can stay through September. Glorious in September, glorious."

Regardless of the mooted five dollars, Gay's mind was made up. She wanted the Lone Pine. She knew that she could never rent until she felt the pillows in its window couch beneath her head. She explained that she had left her bags at the hotel in the city, and asked if the cottage could be ready for her arrival on the first hour the next morning. The administrator, torn between glowing at Gay, and glowering at her brother, assured her that all would be in readiness.

"Oh, my dear, it is a happy summer before you," she crowed. And then, with one of her swift changes from soft to severe, she "led" to the Captain. "John, you ought down and tell Auntanny—"

At Gay's start the Captain shook with somnolent chuckles, and the administrator lapsed into a severe smile. "It ain't a tree, child, it ain't a tree," he explained. "It's our house. Down in the orchard. We name all our houses for trees, or such. We've got an Acorn, and a Cherry Stone, and a Persimmon Peach."

"John! Go to. Auntanny."

John reached beneath his big rocker and pulled out a dusty battered cap, turned it aside down to empty it of two kittens asleep therein.

"I can't go now, Alice," he objected. "Not just this minute. I got to go right up to Mrs. Wiloughby's cottage and fix that leaky roof of hers."

His eyes strayed to the clock on the kitchen wall. It was two-thirty. "Goshu'mighty, I promised Mrs. Wiloughby I'd be there at one, sharp. Good-by, miss. You'll like that cottage, but it ain't with more'n forty-five."

"John Wallace. Tell Auntanny—" "Looks like rain, miss—think I should fix that roof yesterday, or day before. Seems like there's so many things to do that I just natural ly don't get at any of 'em. Good-by, miss. I'll come and see you."

As the door closed beneath the gentle, frail, dignified little figure, the strong voice called in his wake:

"John—Auntanny—" "S'pos was an attractive woman, administrator, rather, Miss Andover, just-

THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD

No matter how much money or how little you are planning to invest in a motor car—SEE THE NEW VICTORY SIX FIRST!

Nowhere in the world—at ANY price—is there a car like it. Greater expenditure will not duplicate it. It introduces more features that are new and different and better than any other motor car in history.

The Victory body and chassis, for example, are a single integral unit. Body sills are eliminated. The wide, deep Victory chassis frame, flush with the body lines, eliminates the customary overhang of a wide body on a narrow frame—lowers the over-all height and the all-important center of gravity.

Major body parts are reduced to 8—a triumph in simplification! 175 pounds of superfluous weight are cast off!

Double steel walls (battleship construction) are introduced, for the first time, in closed car design—another safety factor of the first order!

The car's power, pick-up, absence of sideway at high speed, and incredible smoothness over rough roads astound everyone who takes the wheel!

And the Victory lines are superb! Low, smart and individual—with appointments and color effects that vie in smartness with the costliest.

CHAPTER II

Returning to the island on the early morning steamer, Gay was the only passenger to leave the boat at Evening.

green pier, where she found no line of cars, no group of unburied drivers, to receive her. While with her two hands she carried her heavy bags through the orchard and up the long grassy slope to the Lone Pine, Gay's heart sang a soft little song of contentment.

"I shall sleep," she thought, "Oh, idle, idle little island, how I shall sleep!"

As she stood at last beneath the craggy pine, fumbling in her bag for the keys, it was the pride of possession which thrilled in her pulses. This was her summer heritage, the reward of ten years of constant labor; it was hers.

Even with her hand on the knob, Gay realized that it was not she who opened the door of the cottage; that it opened to her, instead, from within. And as she stepped back, startled, she was confronted suddenly by a woman not Mrs. Andover, not one of the three quiet figures from the Captain's kitchen, but one she had never seen before.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she cried. "I didn't know there was anybody here."

The woman did not speak for a moment, but stood peering up, near-sightedly, into Gay's face—a small woman, short and slight, and a soft flush gave her face a pleasant gleeful look, although as Gay learned later, she was very old, older even than Alice Andover. But for all her smallness and her pinkness, there was something impressively determined, something indomitable about her that was striking.

"Are you the Captain's wife?" Gay asked, as the woman stared at her, smiling faintly, puzzled.

"No, I'm not," she disclaimed quickly, half laughing. "I'm just Auntalmiry. Come in." She still stared closely. "This light is bad," she added apologetically. "And my best glasses are broken. I can't seem to place you—'Faint Mary Grover, is it?'"

"I am Gay Delane—the new tenant."

The soft little figure became rigid. "The new tenant," she repeated. "Oh, they didn't tell you!"

"Tell me! Of course they didn't tell me. They were afraid to tell me. The cowards!" But she said this in the most amiable and cheerful tone imaginable. "I wish Alice Andover'd tell me. I'd like to hear her. I told her, with my own lips, that I wanted to stay here myself this summer."

"Oh, I beg your pardon. She must have forgotten it. I'll run right up and tell them—"

When Gay stooped to lift her bags, Auntalmiry insisted that she leave them. "You'll be right back," she said confidently. "They'll send me word. Alice Andover never misses a chance to send somebody word. Just leave the bags; you'll be right back."

Gay trudged rather crossly up the pleasant lane to the Captain's door. The disarray of her plans annoyed her, and her tired nerves resented the postponement of rest. She found the Captain in the kitchen in his favorite chair by the window, fondling the largest cat, while the dog snuggled jealously beneath the table.

"Captain," Gay began curtly, "where is Mrs. Andover? The Lone Pine is not for rent. That woman—Auntalmiry—is going to stay there herself."

"You don't say so," he ejaculated. "Well, think of that now. What are you going to do about it?"

"What am I going to do about it?" she repeated, indignantly. "Nothing! What have I got to do about it? I won't take back my money."

"I don't think you can do that," he said cautiously. "I don't think so."

"Well, I think so. Renting a cottage that isn't for rent! Whoever heard of such a thing? Of course I can take it back."

He shook his silvered head doubtfully. "You have rented the cottage," he said. "It is yours. If an outsider comes in on you—why, you'll have to take measures to get her out."

Gay stared at him. "But she was there first! I am the interloper!"

"Then I don't think Alice will refund the rent. I don't think so."

"Oh, if she is like that!" Gay said scornfully. "She doesn't look so dishonest."

"Disheveled! My sister, Miss Alice Andover? Dear, dear, what have you such a notion as that? She's honest as the day—but she's a very good administrator, very good indeed."

"If she is like that," Gay said, "you will get the money back for me. You are her brother. You were a witness to the transaction. You go and get it for me."

roof—train of rain. LOOKS LIKE RAIN, think?"

"You fixed that roof yesterday," Gay said furiously.

"No, indeed, I didn't get around to it," he stammered. "Seems like I just can't get around to the things I got to do. There's Mrs. Willoughby's roof, and Miss Nixon's porch. Seems like I can't begin to get around to things any more. And I'd like to get a little work done on my boat if I could find time," he finished pitifully.

"Well then," she said bluntly, "unable to be very severe with one so laugh-like, just come along with me to get my things back from Mrs. Andover, and then you can hurry right along and get ever so many things done. It's early."

He sighed but put on his cap with discerning meekness, and they set out together.

"That's her cottage down there," he said, pointing off to the left. "It isn't far. You go right down through that little gate, and see Miss Andover. Be firm with her, miss, you be firm. You hold out for your rights."

And with incredible celerity, before Gay could catch and hold him, he had shuffled away out of sight around the cottage, and there was nothing for her to do but go on alone. Her indignation rose again as she cut down the pretty, green-bordered clunder path to Mrs. Andover's door, but she was met with great friendliness by that affable and efficient woman, who took both her hands in genial greeting.

"My dear, how sweet or you-to-be so neighborly. How charming! You are a real acquisition to our summer colony."

"Mrs. Andover, excuse me, but that cottage you rented me is not for rent. Auntalmiry is keeping it herself this summer. So if you will kindly refund—"

"Mrs. Andover's affability froze upon her face. 'My dear, do you mean to tell me that that creature had the brazen effrontery, the unmitigated audacity, the—the—to stay there after John told her I had rented that cottage?'"

"John didn't tell her. She didn't know it. The cottage was not ready for me as you promised—"

"John didn't—John—John Wallace—Didn't you hear me tell him to tell her to—"

"Oh, yes, you told him. And that was the end of it. And as she is the original tenant, I have had all my trouble and worry for nothing."

And then, with reluctance, with infinite delicacy, sparing Auntalmiry in every way possible, Mrs. Andover explained the situation. The little old woman in the cottage was not a tenant. She just lived there. She paid no rent, she had no money, and the cottage stood idle all winter without her. Much better for the house to be occupied, much better for Auntalmiry who needed housing—

"Oh, please," interrupted Gay, "let her stay then. Don't turn the thing out on my account—"

"I Don't Think You Can Do That," He Said Cautiously.

And then Mrs. Andover grew really whispering in her rehabilitation.

"Turn her out! What kind of people do you think we are? Do we look like the sort to turn anybody out? We just want her to move down into her own house, the Apple Tree."

"Oh, then she isn't so poor, if she has a house of her own."

But Auntalmiry did not own the Apple Tree. Auntalmiry did not own anything. Mrs. Andover said it was the Estate, the Estate which owned the land, the Estate which had built the little Apple Tree exclusively for Auntalmiry, for her very own, furnished it for her, maintained it for her.

The Apple Tree was a dear little cottage, well built, charmingly located. Mrs. Andover said, rather petulantly, that it was the niper of the two cottages, and the only reason Auntalmiry preferred the Lone Pine was simple and pure perversity. The Lone Pine was too big for her. It was more inaccessible away up on the bluffs, it was further from the shops and from her friends, but she preferred it "for her Christmas party."

And then Alice Andover's voice sank to a whisper. "If she says anything about a Christmas party, you tell her John and I say she can't have a Christmas party this year. Tell her it is too expensive in the first place, and it wears her all out in the second place, and it's just nonsense anyhow. Tell her John and I say so."

But when Gay suggested that of course, she, herself, Mrs. Andover, was going down with her to give these explanations to Auntalmiry, the administrator was regretful, but firm.

"I can't," she said. "I wish I could, but I can't. I—I am expecting guests to dinner." She looked at her watch. "Good heavens, it is after eleven, and the potatoes not so much as peeled. You see how it is. I wish I could, but I can't. You tell her. She'll understand. Just tell her you have rented the cottage, and paid the rent, and tell her we insist—John and I both insist—that she give up the Lone Pine immediately. Tell her if she doesn't—we'll—we'll burn the Apple Tree to the ground, and sell the Lone Pine over her head."

So Gay Delane, alone, unaided by the lamplike Captain, unsupported by the efficient administrator, broke the news to the indomitable little old woman on the hill. As she repeated, very modestly, almost diffidently, the dire threats of Alice Andover, Auntalmiry broke into laughter so hearty it seemed impossible it could have emanated from so small a source.

"My dear," she gasped, wiping her eyes, "I wish they would. I'd like to see it. Why, I'd have the law on them." She fell into helpless laughter again. "I'm a sort of a common-law wife, my dear. If you keep me long enough, you can't get shut of me. Such talk. Alice Andover! Indeed! Why didn't they come and tell me all these high doings?"

"The Captain had to fix Miss Nixon's porch, and Mrs. Andover is peeling potatoes for a company dinner, and—"

"The Captain's been fixing that porch for four years, and never get foot on it yet. And as for Alice Andover, my dear, she never peels a potato in her life. She's aristocratic. Peeling potatoes. My dear, Alice Andover wouldn't know a potato with the skin on if she saw it."

"But Mrs. Miss—"

"Auntalmiry, dear, just call me Auntalmiry. I'm not proud."

"Auntalmiry," Gay said appealingly. "See how I am fixed. I have paid fifty dollars rent—"

"Fifty dollars! For this shack? My dear, they robbed you. They never got more than forty for it in the world. Last year, they only got thirty-five. Poor child, poor dear, they robbed you."

"And see! They have my fifty dollars, you have my house. I have nothing—"

"My dear, I'll go. I'll go right away. We'll show them they can't get away with this sort of thing with us. I won't take me long to pack up. I haven't got much."

While Auntalmiry bustled about, putting her things together, Gay, having removed her cap and gloves, set her bags in a corner out of the way and went to the wide couch. She was very tired. The window corner tempted her.

"I'll lie down, if you don't mind," she said. "It will keep me out of your way. I may go to sleep."

She stretched herself out on the couch, luxuriously, and closed her eyes. The lids were dark, darkly veined. The lips, in relaxation, drooped with weariness.

For two hours Auntalmiry slipped softly about the house, gathering together her modest belongings, packing baskets, bags and bundles. And for two hours Gay slept without stirring, meaning faintly now and then. At one o'clock, Auntalmiry prepared dinner for two, with a great pot of strong hot tea, and set the little table.

"Then, with a light touch, she awakened Gay."

"Come and eat, dearie," she said gently. "You can rest better on a full stomach."

Gay smiled at her, yawning, stretching luxuriously. "You are a darling," she said. "I wasn't a bit hungry, and now I am." She stood up shaking herself.

Auntalmiry watched her strewedly. "You didn't begin to rest any too soon," she said significantly.

"No. Almost too late, in fact. So far, I am too tired to enjoy resting, but after a while, a week, or a month, how I shall revel in it."

She curled the tips of her shoes, hoisily, about the legs of the chair at the table, and although she was not hungry, the tea she slipped with relish. And as they ate, Auntalmiry desecrated at great length on the outrageousness of fifty dollars a month for that rock-pile, told her to look out for the draughty window on the ocean side, and enlarged on the condition of the kitchen.

She recommended Laimy Lane for lobsters, and promised to send him up for orders. And in Auntalmiry's suggestion Gay saw out for Auntalmiry's things, and trudged off down the hill, heavily laden, and Auntalmiry, hastily catching up an armful of coats and dresses, tripped after him.

Gay waved them away and turned back, yawning, into the "prolly cottage, turned again, gratefully, to the wide couch in the shadowy corner, stretched herself out upon it, and closed her eyes.

The afternoon waned. A boy from the Pier grocery store brought her basket of groceries, and left it on the kitchen table without disturbing her.

Dusk crept out of the forest and darkened the windows. Once Gay stirred, restfully, sensed presence in her sleep, seemed to feel the gaze of human eyes upon her in the silence.

She stirred, and found the light to be rising. In the shadowy, dying light she seemed to see a small figure crouching near her, and a small face, yellow and wrinkled like parchment, with pinched features and stanting almond-shaped eyes fastened hypnotically upon her eyes. Beneath one eye a small crescent-bowed scar shone in the yellow parchment. It was the scarred and wrinkled face of a little old Chinaman. Even in her sleep, Gay knew it could not be, and smiled faintly at her foolish fancy.

"It is a dream," she thought mistily. "Dream on."

She closed her eyes again.

The little yellow face receded into the dusk, the small figure faded noisily into the shadows, and there was not the slightest sound from the small, swift moving feet as he stepped over the sill of the window on the forest side, and padded away among the trees.

Hours after, when they awakened from her sleep, the house was still and dark. The greatness of her relaxation pleased her.

"I shall go on like this for weeks," she thought blissfully, "smelling sweet scents of sea and woods, hearing strange noises of ghostly breaths and phantom footsteps, feeling the touch of furry fingers— Oh, good heavens, I wonder where the matches are!"

Roused by this rude thought from the sweet fantasy of dreams, she got up from the couch, and felt about her with outstretched groping hands. De- elding, logically, to follow the wait- on! she came to the kitchen door, knowing she would find matches over the kitchen gas stove, she crept along the wall to the left, working her way.

Hand following hand, until she found them at last, struck two together, hurriedly, and was glad to have the full light of electricity flooding the room. Doors and windows stood open to the night as when Auntalmiry left in the afternoon. But on consulting her watch, Gay was amazed to find it was the hour of midnight.

"Well, I slept," she said philosophically.

On the kitchen table she found her basket of groceries, and feeling somewhat refreshed she took a real interest in unpacking its contents and arranging them neatly on shelves in the little wall cupboard. Carefully she closed and locked the doors and windows.

She opened a can of prepared soup and heated it, made toast, opened a jar of pickles.

For the first time since she left New York, she was sufficiently rested to feel a mental reaction to her environment.

She arranged her modest supper on a tray, and took it to the wall-seat by the window which looked down over the bay. The wringing, wringing lines of many little colored lights in the black showed where boats rode out the night at anchor. Intermittently the black was unclouded, turned to white mist, by the shining rays of a lighthouse searchlight.

"Nice," she said to herself. "I like it. I'm glad I came. Auntalmiry is a dear, the Captain is a lunk, and that administrator person who tries to be so very busy is a kind, sweet, generous fraud."

Remembering then that she had not yet so much as seen the upper story of her new home, she left the tray in the window, and cup of soup in her hand, went up at once to explore, switching on the lights of the stairway from the lowest step. She found it modest enough above the stairs, but clean and fresh, all to her liking. There was a large closet on the landing, and to the left, a nicely appointed bathroom. The bedroom was large and cheerfully bright in furnishing, a bed, an old bureau, a commode and two small chairs matching.

Her natural energy somewhat restored by the long sleep, Gay carried her bags upstairs and unpacked them, folding the little silken garments away into drawers that smelled sweetly of cedar. She had brought with her nothing but the sheerest necessities for wearing. Her weariness had been so great that her only desire, her only thought, had been to escape, escape from work, escape from the city, find rest.

Gay Delane, not a New Yorker by birth, had become one by labor. Work was her daily bread. She counted accomplishment in coin or in success his great reward. With Gay Delane there was no interest as to one's position, from whence one came, nor from what family line had sprung.

The only point of curiosity to her was this: "What is he doing? What has he done?"

The death of both parents in quick succession had thrown her upon her own resources at the age of seventeen. The last of the family funds, the insurance, all had gone into a final year of practical preparation for life-work. In which, with the inconspicuously blended driving of necessity and desire, she had studied stenography, and at the same time continued her classes in art under the best teachers obtainable.

"I've got to work—but I am going to paint," she said.

From the strictly clerical work she had been obliged to accept at first, bread-and-butter work she called it, she had gradually worked away from it, getting into things more to her taste and her talent, and at last, when she was able, abandoning it altogether. Black and white copies of style figures, fashion pages, hack work of illustration, all glist to Gay's and always, through the formative years, she kept some hours, mostly at night and on Sunday, for more advanced study.

For the definite business of earning a living, she had a remunerative connection with the advertising house of Barnum and Morey, for whom she did conventional paintings in bright colors at their order. The work not only paid very well, but was varied in type, usually interesting, and exercised the artistic virtues of a quick eye and finger for striking color effects. But always, besides this, she kept on, studying better things, painting to all her hours of leisure the things her heart desired.

From the day she had entered upon the study of stenography, in her seventeenth year, Gay had never allowed herself time for a full and complete vacation, sufficient to give both soul and body recuperation. She said she hadn't time, there was too much to learn, too much to do. Even her one memorable trip abroad, although it continued over a year, had afforded her no rest, for in addition to her studies she had taken with her also a contract for a series of pictures for the Sunday Magazine, so that she returned to New York at last after with zeal, aflame with ambition, and far less rested than when she went.

GRAND RAPIDS ASKS STATE TENNIS MEET

WEST MICHIGAN EVENT MAY GO TO BATTLE CREEK

Local Club Will Inaugurate Charlevoix Riviera Championships Next Season

Archie L. Livingston, representing the Charlevoix Tennis Club at a meeting of the Western Michigan Tennis Association in Grand Rapids last Tuesday, returned with the information that Charlevoix would next summer inaugurate the Charlevoix Riviera championships which will hereafter be an annual event in this city.

Tennis interest in Charlevoix has grown by leaps and bounds during the past few years. The Western Michigan championships held last season at The Inn courts, was one of the outstanding events of the state. It is generally felt throughout all tennis centers of Michigan that no matter what title a tournament here may be held under it will draw the same high talent as has formerly been represented here.

The following account of the Grand Rapids meeting, taken from the Grand Rapids Press, issue of Wednesday, January 11, throws light on tennis events for the coming season:

"Holding of the Michigan State closed tennis tournament, to determine the champion among Wolverine residents, may be the feature tennis event on the Grand Rapids card in 1928 as the result of action taken by directors of the Western Michigan Tennis association at a luncheon meeting here Tuesday.

It was decided unanimously to back Saginaw's bid for the regular Michigan state championships, open to all amateurs regardless of residence, thereby removing from the local field the big state meet held in this city so successfully for the past two seasons. Tuesday's action is in accord with an agreement to rotate the state tourney about the leading Michigan tennis centers.

Battle Creek was given the Western Michigan championships tentatively, the award being contingent upon the development of a strong tournament organization in that city within the next few weeks. In case such cannot be accomplished the district tourney held at Charlevoix for the past two years and prior to that a distinct Grand Rapids event, probably will be returned here. But that possibility is considered remote as the Battle Creek tennis interest in the past has developed to an encouraging pitch.

Charlevoix, to make up for its loss of the district tourney, will inaugurate the Charlevoix Riviera championships, to be held annually. These events, Archie Livingston, Charlevoix banker and tennis enthusiast, is confident will develop the same interest among northern Michigan residents and resorters as did the Western Michigan the past two summers. The Charlevoix Tennis Club will endeavor to attract equally as good talent as was presented there in former years.

North Michigan will have two sanctioned tournaments next summer inasmuch as the Bay View Tennis club has become affiliated with the district body here and will hold the Bay View Resort tournament, probably the week following the tournament at Charlevoix.

In addition to the district meet already mentioned, Muskegon Country club also will sponsor the annual Muskegon Resorts tournament, always an active four-day affair.

Tentative dates for all of these tournaments are being worked out by the board of directors, to be submitted for approval at the annual meeting of the Western Lawn Tennis association in Chicago next month. After that possible conflicts with other tourneys in the middle west will be avoided and the approved schedule outlined for the 1928 season."

SURPRISE PARTY AT CHRISTANSEN HOME

Tuesday evening fifteen friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Christiansen for an evening of enjoyment and sociability. The evening was spent in visiting and playing cards, after which a pot luck supper was served. Congratulations were extended the newly weds, and the evening passed all too quickly.

DEATH COMES TO FORMER LOCAL MAN

Henry Kaufman Passes Unexpectedly
After Week's Illness

Henry Kaufman, father of Mrs. I. M. Reihartz, died unexpectedly at about ten o'clock this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reihartz on east Mitchell street, with whom he had lived for the past three years. Mr. Kaufman had been ill for the past week, but it was thought he was recovering until yesterday, when he became worse suddenly.

Mr. Kaufman, who was 64 years of age lived for a number of years at Charlevoix, and previous to that at Bay City. After making Petoskey his home he became a member of Petoskey lodge B. P. O. Elks, and became well and favorably known among the people here.

He is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. W. B. Sunshine, of Cleveland, and Mrs. S. S. Sauts, of New York City. The former is expected to arrive Saturday morning, but Mrs. Sauts, because of illness in her family, will be unable to make the trip.

The funeral will be held here at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and burial will be made here in the Jewish cemetery.—Petoskey Evening News, Jan. 20.

LOCALS DROP FAST ONE TO E. J. HIGH

SHOWED BETTER FORM THAN IN EARLIER GAMES

Outplayed Visiting Team During Second Half—Gaylord Coming
Here Friday Night

Charlevoix high school basketball team lost a double header Tuesday evening to East Jordan first and second squads. The local varsity made their best showing so far this season and had the experienced East Jordan outfit on the run during the second half.

Charlevoix and East Jordan second teams opened the evening's ball. Getting off to an early lead, the fast, scrappy East Jordan reserves held their advantage by superior passing and team work, and the final whistle found them with a 3-point margin over the local boys. The game was fast from start to finish, especially during the second period. Billy Supernaw and Ted Browe led the scoring for Charlevoix, with 4 and 3 points, respectively. The final count was 11 to 8.

The second game between the Charlevoix and East Jordan varsity squads was a whirlwind of action from start to finish, with both teams battling every second. The visitors counted first and if the score was any indication it would appear as if Charlevoix was completely snowed under. This, however, was not entirely the case inasmuch as the local boys were in possession of the ball as much as East Jordan but just couldn't make their shots count. Failure to make points left them trailing the visitors 3 to 1 at the end of the half.

At the beginning of the second half Charlevoix took the offensive and it looked for a time as though they would overcome the big lead against them. Play during this period was so fast it could hardly be followed and fans were in an uproar every minute. Dick Marshall garnered 3 points, John Williams one and Bill Novak one during the second half and as the score will show, Charlevoix made two points to East Jordan's one during the last two periods. The final score was East Jordan 18, Charlevoix 11.

What promises to be another hotly contested game will be played in the home gym Friday evening, when the Red and White takes on the fast Gaylord quintet. With the local boys showing better at every appearance, fans are looking for a win.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET POSTPONED

The date of the approaching Father and Son banquet has been changed from Monday evening, February 13, at the Methodist church, to Wednesday evening, February 15, in the new high school gymnasium. The large amount of work in preparation of the event, coming on Monday as first suggested, is the cause of the date change. Fathers who do not have sons are urged to pick up some young fellow as a companion for the evening. The ticket sale will be on this week.

NEW CAMP WILL OPEN IN JUNE

FORMER D'OOGIE FARM IS SITE OF KAMP KAIRPHREE

Spacious Lodge, Athletic Field and Many Other Improvements
Are Completed

Opening its first season on Lake Charlevoix in June, 1928, Kamp Kairphree may be known as one of the permanent institutions of Charlevoix county. The camp was first founded in 1922 on the shores of Lake Huron, fourteen miles north of Alpena, with Mr. and Mrs. George Swain of Ann Arbor as directors.

Kamp Kairphree is now located on what is known as "Shore Acres Farm" (formerly the D'Oogie farm) on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix. It is seven miles from Charlevoix and 11 miles from Boyne City. The tract comprises 161 acres with over a half mile frontage on the lake.

A fine athletic field is maintained with baseball diamond, tennis court, volley ball court, etc. Around it runs a practice track for the use of those just learning to ride horses. Saddle horses are kept at the farm. An excellent bathing beach is available on Lake Charlevoix, where a dock has been constructed and equipped with accessories for this sport.

The campers occupy tents pitched along a natural terrace facing the lake. On a second terrace, back of the tents and some twenty-five feet above them, is the lodge, the center of the social life of the camp. The new lodge is a commodious structure of one story. At one end is a large dining room, back of which is the kitchen; at the other end is an equally large living room, and opening from it at the back the office and a store room. Along the front of both large rooms, on the lake side, runs a great porch ten feet wide and ninety feet long with a wonderful outlook over the lake.

Among the camp activities are swimming, boating and canoeing, hiking, horseback riding, dramatics, arts and crafts, aesthetic and natural dancing, music, rifle and nature study, archery, rifle practice and scholastic tutoring. A small store is maintained for the convenience of campers and the camp table is supplied with products from the camp farm.

We feel the directors of Kamp Kairphree could not have chosen a better site for their camp than on beautiful Lake Charlevoix, and predict that greater degrees of success will reward their good judgment.

ROUND LAKE FISH SHANTIES DISAPPEARED

Disaster so overwhelming it is hard to conceive befell Charlevoix's diminutive fishing village last Thursday evening.

Friday morning, following the heavy snow storm Thursday afternoon and the stiff nor'wester that night, owners of shanties on Round Lake were mystified when they discovered that ice, shanties and all had mysteriously disappeared. Not even a trace was left. From all appearances they were just naturally swallowed in the dark of the night.

To date no theory has been offered to shed light upon the tragedy, but it is safe to say there will be an unusual activity in rebuilding the village.

WHO SHALL BE THE CANDIDATES?

QUESTION OFTEN ASKED AS CITY PRIMARY APPROACHES

Politics Will Occupy a Prominent Place in 1928—Entire City
Ticket to Be Elected

Politics will occupy a prominent place in 1928. It is presidential year and we shall have not only a president to select and elect, but the full membership of the house of representatives, one-third of the senate and many governors and state legislators. And the man who is interested in the nation and its stability will have a nervous time. Politics may be the science of government, but it is also the plaything of practical men. Every voter should give earnest thought to the political situation, and should not concentrate his attention solely on the presidency, but should take an intelligent interest and an active part in the selection of congressmen and senators, governors and even supervisors and aldermen. Business is inextricably tied up with politics and you have a definite interest therein because it may reflect at the end of the year in your balance sheet.

You should also have a substantial interest in politics because you are a patriotic citizen. This interest should not be confined to national, state and county politics, but in your own city affairs. The time for the annual spring city election is not far away. Candidates for various city offices must have their petitions on file with the city clerk not later than 4:00 p. m., Tuesday, January 31, the fifth Tuesday preceding the annual spring city primary.

At this primary an entire city ticket is to be nominated. Leading the list is the city mayor, followed by the clerk and treasurer, one justice of the peace, full term, one to fill a vacancy, and one member of the park commission. Then there are the various ward officers, such as supervisor, alderman and constable. In the first ward, Robert Bridge competes his two year term, as does Ernest Howe in the second and Gies C. Geiken in the third. Supervisors are to be elected in each three wards.

In some instances, we understand, present incumbents will again be candidates to succeed themselves, but without doubt, there will be a contest for each official place.

The success of Charlevoix, in every way you may look at it, depends upon the character and ability of the men you select for office. The city council is but a board of directors in whose hands the affairs of the city rest, as is also the board of supervisors, who handle county affairs. In making a selection of these men who will handle your financial affairs during the coming year, every precaution should be taken.

So and so may be a good fellow, a good scout to go out with or meet in a social way, but how about his judgment in business or financial affairs? What does he know about handling the finances or directing the business of a three million dollar corporation like the City of Charlevoix?

The selection of city officials is no trifling matter and should be given time and earnest thought by every citizen of Charlevoix.

Admission to the Charlevoix-Gaylord basketball game here Friday night will be: adults, 35; high school students, 25; grade children, 10c.—Adv. 4-t.

NEW MAP FEATURES PLACES TO VISIT

Interesting Where-to-go Directory
Now Being Printed

The many thousands of inquiries received this spring in response to the big newspaper advertising program of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association will be answered by sending a copy of the new 1928 West Michigan Vacation Directory, which Secretary Hugh J. Gray states will very shortly go to press.

One of the interesting features included in this new Michigan Vacation Directory will be up-to-date county maps showing the transportation lines, motor roads, lakes, rivers, golf clubs, parks, scenic tours and other recreational attractions, the playground of a nation. These maps will also display the names and location of those hotels and resorts which are members of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association. Real estate developers who are association members will have their projects shown on these interesting where-to-go, what-to-see maps in red.

According to Secretary Gray, the new 1928 Michigan directory will be seen and influence the vacation plans of more than 200,000 people.

CARNIVAL ONLY ONE WEEK AWAY

SOMETHING DOING EACH AFTERNOON AND EVENING

Many Out-of-town Visitors Have Made Reservations—Programs to Be Posted

One week from today (Wednesday) is the opening day of Charlevoix's third annual winter sports carnival, and from February 1 to 13 inclusive will be launched the most ambitious program of winter entertainment ever attempted in Northern Michigan.

While we are not in a position at this time to announce events as they will be scheduled, there will be some special feature every afternoon and evening throughout the entire thirteen-day period. According to D. T. McHugh, winter sports director, it has been decided to hold competitive events beginning at 4 o'clock each day with the exception of Thursdays. This arrangement has been adopted to allow school children to compete after school hours. Thursday afternoon programs will begin at 2 o'clock. Posters covering events during the carnival will be placed in conspicuous places throughout the city so that everyone will know beforehand what is scheduled for each day and evening.

Reservations for accommodations for two parties have been made at the present time. Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Remis of St. Louis, Mo., will head one party and John Knight of Kalamazoo has completed arrangements here for his group. Others expected here during carnival week are the Ayres Real party from Winnetka, Ill.; George Hemingway and party from Oak Park, Ill., and others from Chicago and Detroit who have not made final arrangements at this time.

Arrangements have been made to furnish guides for visiting parties at any time. Competent persons will be available to direct skiing, tobogganing, snow-shoeing and fishing parties. Any other information may be had by calling D. T. McHugh or the Association of Commerce.

STATE GRANGE DEMANDS EQUALITY

AGRICULTURE OF STATE STANDS IN BAD WAY

Farm Values Reduced by One-fifth Since 1920 and Are Still on the Decline

The agricultural industry remains in a bad way throughout a large part of the United States in spite of the continuous effort of farmers to secure an improvement in their financial condition. Between the crop years, 1925-26 and 1926-27 there was a decided drop in farm returns. Farm incomes averaged 4.3 per cent on agricultural investments in the year 1925-26 but fell to 2.7 per cent in 1926-27. In striking contrast the average return on corporate investments in the latter of these two years was 12 per cent. Last year the net profits of the corporations exceeded the value of all crops by one billion dollars. Wages of factory workers in the same year exceeded the cash income of farmers by one million dollars per day.

High Taxes Increase Michigan Farm Troubles

Michigan agriculture has borne its full share of recent financial reverses of the industry. The drop in the value of the potato crop alone between 1926 and 1927 cost the farmers of the state about 24 million dollars, an amount approximately equal to the entire property tax levied by the state central government, while an even greater loss was sustained on account of the drop in the value of the bean crop.

Bankruptcies are twice as common among the farmers of the state today as they were in 1922, and are steadily increasing. A larger percentage of Michigan farms were sold for taxes in 1927 than in any other state north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river. One-third of all Michigan farm sales in 1927 were the result of foreclosure of mortgages, bankruptcies, tax sales, and similar evidences of financial distress. Farm land values have been reduced by one-fifth since 1920 and are still falling.

During this same period Michigan farm taxes have reached unheard of heights. While high taxes are not the sole and only cause of financial embarrassments, they are particularly aggravating to Michigan farmers because of the inequitable manner in which they are levied and because they have increased during the period in which farm returns were lowest.

Farm taxes have consumed from 50 to 70 per cent of the rental value of Michigan farms each year since 1920. As a result, more than one-fifth of the entire land area of the state is now delinquent for taxes and the rate of increase in tax delinquency on acre property has been greater in the better farming sections. Enough land is now delinquent for taxes in many of the better counties of the state to form from one to three or more whole townships.

Grange Holds Local School Road Taxes Responsible

The Michigan state Grange recognizes the fact that the great bulk of all farm taxes goes to support local schools and to provide local roads. The Grange has always been the friend of the rural school and has consistently promoted the improvement of highways. However, it recognizes the injustice of our present methods of financing these services.

Increased State Funds for Local Schools Advocated

The public school system of Michigan, is, and always has been, a state system. It has been so recognized repeatedly by the courts, the constitution, the legislature, and the people. However, the cost of maintaining even the minimum of educational service required by the state varies tremendously between districts from $1.24 to $60.00 per thousand, so that an unwarranted tax burden has been placed upon many rural districts through legislative action.

The Michigan State Grange calls upon the state either to relinquish its control over local school affairs or accept the full financial responsibility for its educational measures and to equalize the burdens which necessarily fall upon the local school districts as a consequence of mandatory state laws.

Many school districts are at present in a critical financial condition because of the inability of farmers to pay their taxes on time. For this reason the grange urges the state administrative board to distribute the

Are You Overdoing?

Overwork Throws a Heavy Burden on the Kidneys.

OVERWORK, rich foods and stimulating drinks put extra burdens on our kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, impurities remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning is scanty or burning secretions.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Are endorsed by experts everywhere. Ask your neighbor.

The eighth grade are studying volumes of poems in arithmetic.

The fourth grade have just finished the study of the New England states.

Mrs. Carrie Mathews was ill Thursday evening. We hope she is better.

A number of people had their seats changed because of whispering and quarreling.

Lawrence Send went to Petoskey in the lumber wagon and almost became snow bound.

Clifford Struthers and Clare Chew walk to high school every day. Good luck to those ambitious boys.

The attendance of the chart class is irregular because the little people have such a long way to walk.

Burgess school could not attend Murray school to finish the arithmetic contest because of stormy weather.

Only 16 present Friday, January 20 out of our roll of 32. Stormy weather was responsible for our small attendance.

The 2nd grade are better readers than they were. Anyone that doesn't know his reading lesson has to stand in front of the room.

Miss Farmer got caught in the snow storm and her car is snowed under. She has been making her home at Mrs. Mathews.

The fifth grade pupils are trying to get ahead of one another in all classes. This class is the most alert in preparing their lessons.

The seventh grade are working on their geography booklets. This is real work as all countries of the world are taken up here.

Clifford Short and Carl Raber went fishing and caught a 30 pound Mackinaw trout last week. They had baked and fried and boiled fish all week.

Crant Ferguson went skunk hunting last Tuesday and caught twelve skunks in one tree. He had to chop down the tree because they were in the top branch. This is a new species of skunks known as the flying gnats. He intends to make a fur robe from the hides.

But outraged flesh and violated nerves claimed their revenge at last for the eleven years' defiance. For fully six months before the final June surrender, she had been a prey to quivering nerves that jangled in a jaded body, and when the inevitable forced itself upon her, she accepted it with a certain joy. If she must rest, she would make that rest a sport. If she must go into retirement, the exile should be a luxurious one. Perhaps—who knew?—even on a good little island of idleness might lurk some stimulant for an ardent though flagging spirit. Adventure perhaps, amusement certainly, or even—uh, romance!

Gay, most ardent of free-soul advocates, decried though she did the hampering confines of marriage, turned always sensitive "heart-string" to the strumming fingers of Romance.

Marriage, Gay argued, was not designed for the ambitious worker. For the compunctious, for the self-willed for the fastidious, all very well; perhaps; but marriage and unhappiness, passion for accomplishment, were never inseparable. Gay's first romance, ten days sweet bliss of her ardent young womanhood, joyously promised the full fruition of marriage "when the war is over," but barred with the soldier who did not come back. And Gay's first passion of grief soon subsided into a philosophical reflection that perhaps after all it was better so that she was not domestic, not the type for husband and home life. That experience confirmed her in her determination to live alone. Alone, but not lonely. Free, but not unloved.

Ah, if on the good and idle island should come a fresh awakening for her stifled affections!

"Lumley Lane, for instance," she thought whimsically. "Lumley the lobsterman. A stern and silent nature, bronzed and bearded."

She smiled to herself as she turned the lights and slipped into bed. Her room was steeped in the essence of evergreen. Gay slept, glad for the silence of the idle island.

Next morning she wrote a note to her friend, Nancy Moore, asking to hire her car and asking to her with her maid, her carcases, any many of the pretty useful things of her own house, could add to the charm of her new home.

"It is the Land of Leisure," she wrote, "the Land of Emotion! Let me, it is the Land of the World. Wasted Effort, the Center of Silence. Every one works, but the world amounts to nothing. Every one is intensely busy, but it is the business of passing time. Every one is persistently intent on doing, but it is the doing of nothing at all. Soft, slow, unhurried—"

"Hello!" It was a human voice that boomed out upon the silence like a neighboring foghorn that aroused Gay from the mellow mildness of her picture.

She ran to the door, startled at the sudden vocal crash in the stillness, startled more greatly when she saw the ferocious apparition at her door. An immense man, a monster of a man, with a tuft of brilliant orange-colored beard, and a great shock of brilliant orange-colored hair, and a great round face like a giant orange, with pink-rimmed pale blue eyes.

"Hello," he boomed again, with a broad pink smile of greeting.

"Hello," stammered Gay.

"Lobsters," he shouted. "Auntmily says lobsters."

"Ah, yes," a beaming reminiscent smile for the Lobsterman of her fancy. "You are the Lobsterman?"

"Yes, that's me, Lumley Lane. How many?"

She told him to bring her a lobster twice a week.

"Lobsters," he shouted, "run about fifty or sixty units."

Lumley said his woman would bolt down for her without extra charge. He frowned portentously. "She'll bolt down, that is, long as she's able to do so."

"Expecting?" Gay echoed faintly.

"Yes, increase." His facetious grin was blinding.

"Oh, how nice!"

"Well, yes, unexpected. Very soon married twenty years now. Nothin' doin'." All of a sudden—yup, there you need—she's shocked! He volunteered cheerfully. "She's afraid of dyin'." She says it w'n't according to nature."

"Oh, tell her not to be frightened."

Gay comforted. "It often happens. And is there a hospital on the island?"

"She won't go to no hospital. She says she don't trust these awful nurses, night light. She'd rather die."

"Oh, tell her not to be frightened."

CHAPTER III

At last, after a long time for all the pretty little islands of the North. Every day the Community house on the bay shore through Gay's grassy hill slope was open for bridge and tea, and every Saturday night offered its New England shore dinner, followed by dancing to the strains of a real jazz orchestra with saxophone accompaniment, playing the popular song hits of the season not more than twice removed. There were auto parties, bonfire parties, beach parties, bathing parties. At dusk every line night she could count the silvery trees of half a dozen or more shore parties, where clams were baking, potatoes roasting, or lobsters broiling.

But Gay did not share in the gaiety and the summer holiday life of the island. She received her rest, in freedom from the noxious pressure of an impatient city jogging her elbow. When her eased and palpitant arrived, she installed a studio in one corner of the big bright living room of the Lone Pine, and fell at peace with the world.

Amidst her was her friend, Auntmily, who was ever-ready to help. She was a sort of unwelcome institution, she went with the island. But although Auntmily no longer worked for a living, not as we speak of working for a living, she earned her keep, because she did what she could. Whenever there was fruit in can in the house of a native islander, jelly to make, or jam to make, Auntmily, although not hired for the occasion, was always there, always at work.

For fifty years, she had presided at the arrival of all the small expectant ones around Evergreen. She had sat up with the sick, mended with the sad, went over the dead. She kept everybody's children while mothers went shopping, played bridge, or had more children.

And for all these things, as Auntmily gave in service, she was paid in kind. Winter apples, potatoes, squashes, jellies and canned fruit filled her larder. She had a charge account at the grocery store, but her monthly bills were rendered, not to her, but to the administrator, as was right.

Auntmily had her own bank account, too. It was a small bank account, but like the widow's oil and meal it never diminished, but rather grew a little, curiously, now and then. Its nucleus was her identical bank account of thirty years before, when she was obliged after a severe illness to give up, once and forever, all actively remunerative labor.

No one, however, considered Auntmily an object of charity nor did she so consider herself. She did what she could. She received what she needed.

"Why, it is socialism," Gay cried enthusiastically. "The very principle of socialism, applied, effective and practical!"

But Mrs. Andover drew herself up coldly. "Not by any means," she said sternly. "Such a notion! Socialism is one of those new-fangled notions brought over from Russia or one of those bolshevik countries. We don't hold to such things on our island."

With the familiar and much loved paraphernalia of her profession about her, and with all of her pretty personal possessions to soften the rugged austerity of her surroundings, Gay settled down with comfortable anticipations of long and lovely leisure for leisurely work. Every day she went out for a long walk through the shimmering little forest that backed the cottage, and down to the rocky shore, and as strength returned, her spirit of adventure quickened also. Each day she fared farther, always with greater joy, and dully daring steeper cliffs and rougher walls of rock.

Comprising in all some seven hundred acres, the island had originally been occupied exclusively by three families of sturdy seafaring stock: the Wallaces, the McAnders and the Marlings. The first settler of all was the grandfather of the present Captain. He, always referred to as the first Captain Wallace, had come there with his sons and daughters, his servants and his hounds, and settled down to carry on a wide and prosperous fish and lobster traffic, incidental to his sailing trade. His children had married, cottages sprang up in the woods and the wild growth every year was pushed farther and farther back to make way for gardens, orchards and lawns.

Others came to the island, some for holidays, some in service, and married, and remained. The early teachers of the little public school grew old in labor, and retired to private life, but did not go away. Lobster trappers came for a season, and settled for life. Later, as modern conveniences added comfort to island life, many who were engaged in clerical or professional work in Portland built permanent homes near the ferry landing, and crossed the bay to their work in the morning, and back to their island homes at night.

While many of the later generations of Wallace had gone into professional work and removed to other states, many also remained on the island, where they had married and intermarried, so that fully half the native population was linked up together by ties of blood or marriage, and oftentimes by both, a network so intricate that only the more obvious forms of relationship were given acknowledgment.

The island was three or more miles in length, barely one mile wide, a rugged line of rock fronting the Atlantic along the east, and drifting down gradually to a low low valley slope of emerald green on the bay shore. A motor road led up from the landing beyond the Captain's house, and there at the bend, turned backward along the shore, but leading the other way, into the forest, were only dwindling trails. In the foreground of the forest lay a long row of pretty summer houses, fringing the woods and looking off down the grassy slope to the bay.

The farthest of these houses, built at the last stand, where the forest and the shoreline merged, was the Lone Pine. Beyond all others, farther, higher, alone it stood, aloof, remote. Beyond the Lone Pine, on the peninsula of forest land that ended in sheer rocky cliffs, was but one other building. This was known as the Little Club house.

The Little Club had been a daring social venture for a group of Portland business men in the years when sailing was the foremost summer sport along the coast. In those days, every man of means in the city had his own boat, and the Little Club house was their summer rendezvous.

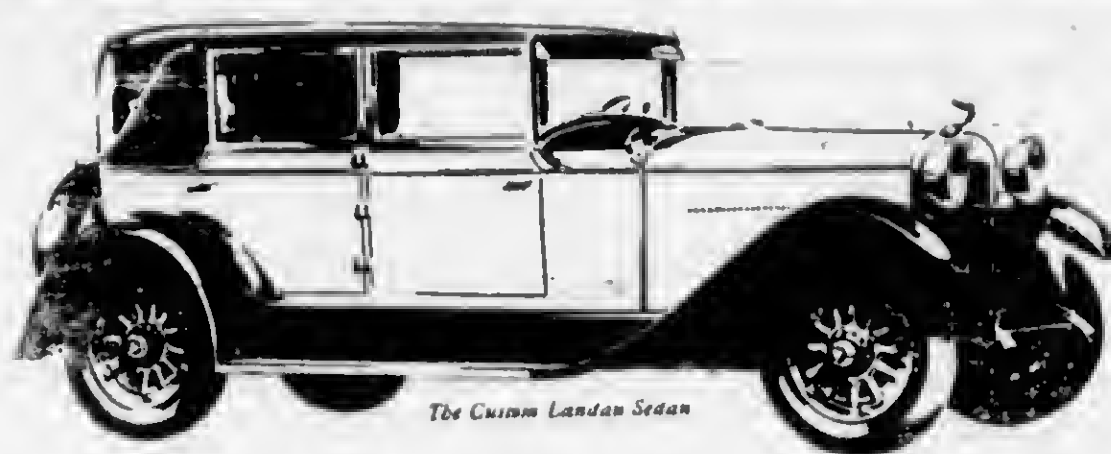

As the men of Portland took up motorboating, the vogue for sailboats passed. Year by year the Little Club house saw less and less of social life, and finally, for a period of seven years, it had been opened but once each summer, when the remnant of the old group came by motor boat for a great week-end orgy of lobster, fish, and, and it was rumored, forbidden brew. For the last three years even this mild burst of diversion had been abandoned, and the famous old Little Club was as dead as the oldest gray pine in the woodland.

She Struggled On Until She Reached the Little Stretch of Sheltered Beach.

The Little Club house was built with the natural rock of the shore as a general base, as indeed were most of the island houses along the coast. A wide piazza crested three sides of the house, and on the north gave it a far view of sea and sky. Gay was not long in discovering this deserted piazza, and sometimes went with her sketching pad, which she carried on all occasions, and sat there, idly drawing in the pleasant shade.

Gay often leaned far out over the piazza railing, trying to see beneath, wishing the distance were less, that she could drop down. And then one day, when her strength had come again, and her most venturesome mood was upon her, she slipped under the railing on the eastern side of the club house, and holding with both hands, now to the wild branches that grew, in the crevices, now to the rough and rugged rocks themselves, slowly, stumbling, falling, splashing herself with water in the lower side of the rocky ledge far out, envying like a bow. It was among the rocks on the left that the old clubhouse stood, but although Gay pulled at the lock, even tugged at it with a stone, it would not yield. Every crack was sealed, and the windows were boarded and barred. "Stingy things," she said crossly. "The way they keep themselves locked up you'd think they were a band of bootleggers."

BUYING ON TIME
The experts in economics are trying to figure out whether or not all of this installment buying is a good thing.

Some of the most noted students of business profoundly say that it is bringing the country to financial ruin. By the time the economists get the question settled our actual experience will determine whether we are sound or ruined.

And installment buying goes merrily on. People buy automobiles on a monthly pay basis so that they get out and they buy radios on the same basis so that they might stay at home.

It would be our opinion that installment purchasing is all right if the installments are met together with all other bills.

In one of the neighboring villages a number of people applied for Christmas charity. In several cases these people confessed to the extremities of poverty so dire that they had lost their automobiles.

WHY IS IT?

Columbus spent $2,150 to discover America.

The world has spent $200,000,000 to discover the North Pole.

We have often wondered why the effort to explore the polar regions of the north or south, with its attendant expense and risk.

Commander Richard E. Byrd, who flew over the North Pole and is to go next to the Antarctic regions, answers the question. He says that he has often wondered what it was all worth and the question so many times asked has been difficult to answer. But the commander justifies the great undertaking by his statement that all great inventions, and discoveries do not come suddenly, but are the result of the sum total of human information. Some remote discovery of a hundred years ago may be at the basis of more startling productions today. The exploration of the polar regions adds to the sum total of human knowledge.

MILK AND LIQUOR

Speaking further of prohibition and drinks, the dairymen report an increased consumption of milk since the Volstead act.

The Illinois Agriculture Association sent out a nation wide questionnaire and 51 leading dairy experts reported that prohibition had greatly increased milk consumption. Some of these men said that it had increased milk consumption 50 per cent and the general summary indicated an opinion of 27 per cent increase.

There is no doubt that prohibition has increased milk production. It is not that the men who drink liquor have turned to the lacteal fluid, but many children and families who did not have sufficient milk before prohibition now have more.

In fact, the real concern of prohibition is not with the present older generation who drank before the amendment and still do. It concerns itself more with those who are to come in future years.

BEEF AND PORK

If beefsteak is high do not blame the butcher. Eat pork.

A carload of western steers sold for 19 cents a pound, live weight, at Kansas City the other day, a record price for the very highest type beef animals.

While ordinary animals bring much lower price, still the general level of beef is high.

There are several good reasons for this condition. Back in 1921 cattle took a very severe slump with great loss to raisers. That discouraged growing and marketing. The short corn crop of 1924 made less feeding and higher prices in 1925. Encouraged by a good corn crop the following year and high prices, so many went into raising of cattle that the 1926 prices were very weak. That in turn led to less feeding and less production for the 1927 markets and the prices which now prevail.

Pork, on the other hand, has declined to a very low point.

These conditions are good illustrations of what the farmer faces. As far as the consumer is concerned, he should take advantage of the circumstances. By eating pork he will help to bring pork up and beef down. That will be a good thing all around.

ABOUT THE WEATHER

The most common topic of conversation is the weather. Solemn people, trivial people, close-mouthed people and gossip all talk about the weather.

The weather is about the oldest, and still the newest thing there is.

The cold north winds blow and the snow drifts and we say that we are having a good old-fashioned winter.

As a matter of fact it's the same old winter that we have every year. Though there is some variation in temperature, if the average for the winter months of the past hundred years was computed there would be little or no variation. We say it is colder this year than before, but this winter's cold is biting us and last winter's is forgotten.

To talk about the weather is harmless and proper. To worry about it is unprofitable.

TAXATION

One continuous problem that confronts this country is the question of local taxation. Budgets continue to grow and assessments to increase in many sections of the country. No one doubts there is an unnecessary spending of the people's money, and taxpayers pay often for inefficiency, to say nothing of the wastefulness that is sometimes called graft. Our great public funds collected from the taxpayers are handled, not by financial experts, but by politicians. In these cases the taxpayer inevitably suffers. In these circumstances the taxpayer should provide his own remedy by demanding a full knowledge of how every dollar is collected and how every dollar is spent, and the reason for the expenditure. This question of local taxation will be a paramount in 1928 as it was in 1927.

WHAT ABOUT IT?

Mrs. Francis Wilson Grayson was a business woman of Long Island.

Her ambition was to fly the Atlantic ocean.

She made several unsuccessful attempts to start.

Her plane, "The Dawn," did finally leave for the mighty effort.

A radio station off Nova Scotia heard one night a feeble message, "Something gone wrong." A lady at Cape Cod said she heard an airplane motor on a certain evening.

The crew of an ocean boat said they heard the motor of a plane and a big splash, but the sea was too rough for anything but the strongest boats.

With Mrs. Grayson was a pilot, a navigator and an engine expert.

And again the question is raised: Is it worth while?

POOR OLD FLORIDA

Florida is having a bad time.

Down Miami way prospects are not bright.

See what has happened.

First the bottom dropped out of things, real estate values crashed and quickly made fortunes were rapidly lost.

Then nature took a hand and sent a hurricane along to do great damage.

Now comes the Florida legislature and makes betting on horse races illegal and many of the people who went to Florida to bet and lose now are enroute to Cuba to bet, drink and lose.

In the meantime Northern Michigan finds business none too brisk, but not so bad.

NO DANGER IN IT

It is estimated that a hundred million dollars worth of Christmas trees were sold this year in the United States.

The number of trees being cut disturbs many people. They wonder how long the supply will last.

Exports in forestry tell us that 30,000 acres of land, properly planted and harvested, will grow all of the Christmas trees used in America. That hundred million goes a considerable distance in making up for some of the revenue lost to the forests as the virgin timber has been cut.

MAKING BUSINESS

An insurance agent in one of the larger cities was asked why he did not solicit business in a certain building. He replied that there were no prospects of business there—the building contained over fifty insurance agencies.

But thinking it over, he thought that he would try. He sold more insurance than he ever thought could be sold in any building. Everyone had overlooked an opportunity. Business is where you make it.

GOOD AND EVIL

The true rule, in determining to embrace or reject anything, is not whether it have any evil in it, but whether it can have more of evil than good. There are few things wholly evil or wholly good. Almost everything, especially of government policy, is an inseparable compound of the two, so that our best judgment of the preponderance between them is continually demanded.—Abraham Lincoln.

Dinner with Westfall's orchestra at American Legion hall, Boyne City, Friday evening.—Adv. 4-11.

RURAL CORRESPONDENCE

(Harry Musselwhite in the Manistee News-Advocate.)

Sir & Editor: Things are quiet out here. Fall work is all done and we have nothing to do except to listen in on the radio and things like that. As you know (because you know everything) we have no social life out here in the sticks—though we did go to an ice cream social last night and an 'oyster supper' the night before that, and a watch party the night before that, and a husking bee the night before that—and oh, yes, we had a barn dance the night before that, but there is really no social life in the country in the winter, though I do remember that we had a big party at the school house the night before the barn dance and the night before that we had a midwinter picnic in the big woods, and roasted weenies and that sort of thing, but I didn't much enjoy it because I was sleepy from the spelling bee the night before that.

So, Sir & Editor, as I say, it is quiet in this midst, though we are working on a new game. We all sit in a circle and figure out land, all at the same time, how much our pigs cost, and how much corn we have fed them, and how much overhead each one carries, and then we compare the cost of raising the stuff with the price we can get at the market, less dock, and the man who loses the least is winner for the evening. We would award a prize to the winner but we haven't anything to buy a prize with. My little daughter Ellie brought a problem like that home from school. It was: "If a farmer takes fifty hogs to market, and the hogs weigh 315 pounds each, and he sells them for 8 1/4 cents a pound, how much will he make?" Now this is the bonhead way that the arithmetics are written. He wouldn't make anything except tracks for the poorhouse, and that is where most of us are going unless prices hump themselves. "What," this same problem, "would he get if hogs sold for 6 3/4 cents a pound?" He would go get a little rat poison.

Sir & Editor, I wish you would quit printing the market quotations. When I compare what the farmer gets for hogs to what the butcher gets for pork I cry myself to sleep. Leave out the Market Page and put in the pictures of bathing beauties. Things are very flat at this writing. Hoping you to be the same I am,

Respy,

Winter Mulch Real Need of Good Strawberry Bed

The successful strawberry grower considers a winter mulch one of the real needs of his strawberry bed. If the plants are on heavy soil they are especially subject to heaving, which is caused by alternate freezing and thawing. In heaving the ground breaks the roots and also leaves air spaces about them. In leaving the top exposed to the drying winds of winter there is danger of the plants becoming so weakened by loss of moisture that they fail to yield a satisfactory crop the next season.

Wheat straw that is free from weed seeds is about as satisfactory a mulch material as can be used, according to agricultural college horticulturists. Oats straw and corn stalks are likely to smother some of the plants.

The mulch should be applied after the ground is well frozen. It should be about three inches deep after it has settled thoroughly.

Orchard Information

PRESSURE TESTER IS OF BIG VALUE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In determining the proper date for picking apples the adherence of the fruit to the tree, the ground color or color of the unblushed portion of the fruit, and the firmness of the flesh are all important considerations, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Under no conditions and with many varieties the time of blushing largely decides the picking date.

These facts have been proved by tests and observations by the department on some of the most important apple varieties at Amherst, Mass.; Ithaca, N. Y.; East Lansing, Mich.; Wooster, Ohio; Council Bluffs, Iowa; Rosslyn, Va., and in commercial orchards at Wenatchee, Wash. The results of the studies have been published in Department Bulletin No. 1164-D, "The Ripening, Storage and Handling of Apples."

The rate of softening of apples as they approach picking maturity varies greatly under different growing conditions. Apples from regions with a long growing season were, on the whole, softer at picking time than those from districts having a shorter growing season. The mechanical pressure tester, a device to determine when certain varieties are becoming too soft on the trees, will probably be of value as a measure of picking maturity.

It was observed that when apples ripen under warm conditions, such as prevail during an early ripening season, the unblushed portion of the fruit is greener when the fruit is in prime picking condition than during normal seasons.

The bulletin contains a great deal of data on changes taking place in apples before picking and during storage, as well as information relative to handling apples.

Peach Borers Destroyed by Paradichlorobenzene

The use of paradichlorobenzene for killing peach borers has come to be a standard practice. There has been some trouble about selecting the proper dose of this long-named chemical, and some damage has resulted from using an overdose. It seems that the use of paradichlorobenzene for killing peach borers has come to be a standard practice. There has been some trouble about selecting the proper dose of this long-named chemical, and some damage has resulted from using an overdose. It seems that the use of paradichlorobenzene for killing peach borers has come to be a standard practice.

It is quickly made by cutting a piece of smooth paper 4 1/8 inches long and 2 3/4 inches wide. Draw a line exactly through the middle and the long way. Mark it 1/4 ounce. Now draw a second line dividing one of these halves equally. Name this line 3/4 ounce.

Roll the paper into a cylinder, lines marking the ounces inside, and paste it into place. Overlap the ends exactly 3/4 of an inch. The cylinder will hold an ounce of paradichlorobenzene, known as PDB by orchardists.

Place the cylinder on any hard surface and fill with PDB to the line indicating the quantity you need. Pour the fine crystals of the chemical into a small, wide-mouthed bottle and gauge the various amounts on it. A 5/16 will be used to cut a mark.

Northern peach growers, Mr. Beach says, will find the gas evolving from the chemical most effective if applied after September 15 and before October 10; in southern Ohio from October 1 to 25.

Use a half to three-fourths ounce of PDB on trees three to five years old, none on younger trees. Mature trees six years old and over may be treated with an ounce.

TAXES

When they come due I don't like them at all.
Taxes are large he they ever so small.
Taxes are debts which I venture to say
No man or no woman is happy to pay.
I grumble about them as most of us do,
For it seems that with taxes I never am through.

But when I reflect on the city I love,
With its sewers below and its pavements above,
And its schools and its parks where the children may play,
I can see what I get for the money I pay,
And I say to myself: "Little joy would be known
If we kept all our money and spent it alone."

I couldn't build streets and I could not fight fire,
Policemen to guard us I never could hire.

A water department I couldn't maintain,
Instead of a city we'd still have a plain.

Then I look at the bill for the taxes they charge,
And I say to myself: "Well, that isn't so large."

I walk through the hospital thronged with the ill
And I find that it shrivels the size of my bill.

As in beauty and splendor my home city grows,
It is easy to see where my tax money goes.

And I say to myself: "If we lived hit and miss
And gave up our taxes, we couldn't do this!"

SIXTY LADIES PRESENT AT ANNUAL LUNCHEON
Meeting Held Last Wednesday at Congregational Church

EARL A. YOUNG UP TO HIS OLD PRANKS
Original Calendar Scheme Is a Nice Piece of Work

Always noted for doing the unusual, Earl A. Young has sprung another one on Charlevoix people and his many out-of-town patrons.

Earl's latest stunt is his new calendar, which is as unique a piece of work as one will see in many travels. The calendar is an outline enlargement of a photograph of his Bridge street office finished in hand coloring. It depicts the airplane view of Boulder Park, the beautiful large stone in front of the office, the sign boards and the sign over the building in its original colors.

Few of the calendars are now out, but it is well worth one's time to look over the one hanging in the Hotel Eaton Rapids, where they had gone to attend the wedding of their daughter and sister, Evelyn.

Morning service at 10:30 Sunday with sermon on "Matthew, the Business Man's Gospel." Immediately after the morning service the annual all-parish canvass will be launched for subscriptions to cover the budget for expenses and benevolences of the church for the year 1928. At the recent annual meeting the past year showed excellent success in all lines of activity. All expenses were met with a balance in the treasury to start the new year. The new budget adopted amounts to $3,500.00. In order to secure this amount all families and individuals associated with the church whether as active members or in an associate capacity will be called upon by courteous canvassers and furnished with pledge cards.

Seven teams of two men each have been appointed to make these calls and as far as possible the entire canvass will be completed during Sunday afternoon, January 29. All out-of-town members will receive personal letters informing them of the plan and the amount of the budget needed and will be asked to send in their subscriptions.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Sloan have invited the terms of canvassers to meet immediately after the morning service at their home where luncheon will be served them by members of the Brewster Circle, after which the round of calls will begin. All our people are earnestly requested to remain at home during the afternoon until they have received their callers and made their subscriptions. Following the canvass the teams will return to the church where a committee will receive and tabulate the returns of the canvass. The spirit of loyalty and hearty co-operation shown by all assures the success of this important annual event.

"FIFTY-FIFTY"

If but 50 per cent of our people were enough interested in government to go to the polls in our last national election, may it not be due in large measure to the fact that leadership is grasped by men of babbling tongues rather than by those of functioning brains? It was not always so in America. It has never been so much as today. And it is due to one of two reasons—to the inability of the leaders to think, or to moral cowardice which persuades them to conceal their thoughts.

Men who are seeking the presidential nomination—as leaders, if you please—who, on vital issues, positively refuse to lend or even think aloud. This means an utter lack of essential qualities; for if they have no ideas or plans they are not fit, and if they have ideas they dare not utter they are unfit. They lack either the mental capacity or the moral qualities for which the mass of the people are waiting—and thus far in vain.

Little wonder that 50 per cent of the people are too cynical or indifferent to vote when the issues that vitally concern millions, the success of our institutions and the good of society are utterly ignored by the very men who aspire to the leadership of the nation.

Let the candidates remove their muffers and their rubber heels, and like statesmen of the days when statesmen were leaders and thinkers, speak out and tell us where they stand on the farm problem; prohibition, immigration, flood relief, tariff, etc., etc.

Then will the presidential campaign mean a real debate to which the public interest will respond.—Cedar County (Neb.) News.

JURIES REFUSE TO CONVICT

In Michigan's new criminal code working out as its framers believed it would? We particularly refer to that section which automatically sentences a person to prison for life upon conviction of a felony for the fourth time. Has the taking away of the prerogative of the sentencing judge to fix the sentence commensurate with the crime and attending circumstances not had the effect of causing juries to render a verdict of not guilty where conviction means a life sentence? A Grand Rapids youth, accused of carrying concealed weapons, which under the statute is considered a felony, was acquitted although the evidence pointed clearly to his guilt. He had previously been convicted three times and a verdict of guilty would have meant spending the rest of his life behind prison walls. The jury evidently believed the punishment in his case would have been altogether too severe. At the January term of the Ionia circuit court an inmate of the Michigan reformatory will be tried on the charge of prison breaking. He was a trusty and while on an errand outside the prison walls made his escape in a prison truck. He is a young man, but has previously been convicted and sent to prison three times. A fourth conviction will mean a life sentence under the present law. Up until the time he ran away he had a good prison record. He was just a homesick boy, who when an opportunity came could not resist the temptation to return to his old familiar haunts. It is easy to say he is possessed of criminal tendencies and should be put away from society for the rest of his life. On the other hand, it may develop there are extenuating circumstances in his crime record that would appeal differently to the sentencing judge. One must admit there has been a lull in the activities of old offenders since the present law went into effect, many of them having left the state, but to have a hard and fast rule to be applied alike in all cases is a matter that is due to meet with a lot of serious discussion.

REVENUE BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

The house of representatives, acting with promptness and dispatch, has passed the new revenue bill and sent it to the senate. Entirely irrespective of whether everyone is satisfied with the bill as turned out, the fact remains that every good citizen should congratulate the lower house for the business-like way in which it has proceeded. Prior to the convening of congress, the ways and means committee met and gave patient attention to those who desired to make representations to it concerning any part of the bill. Immediately after congress was organized the committee formally reported the new bill, and within a week after it was taken up it was passed. The majority and minority leaders of the house, the speaker and the chairman of the ways and means committee and the ranking member of the way and means committee are entitled to the thanks of their countrymen. The new bill carries a larger reduction than the secretary of the treasury recommended. The total reductions in the bill passed by the house would amount to about $289,000,000, as compared with $225,000,000 recommended by the treasury, and about $235,000,000 in the bill as reported by the ways and means committee. The bill in its final form reduces the corporation tax to 11 1/2 per cent from 13 1/2 per cent; the exemption is increased on small corporations with incomes between fifteen thousand and twenty-five thousand, with the graduated tax of from five to nine per cent on incomes between $7,000 and $15,000. Slight decreases were made in the admissions tax and a 50 per cent cut on club dues. The tax on automobiles was repealed completely. The stamp tax on the sale or transfer of stocks was cut in half; the tax on the sale of produce on exchanges was repealed. The changes proposed by the treasury in the taxes on income in the intermediate brackets were not made. The bill is now before the finance committee of the senate, which sat during the recess of congress, which extends from December 22nd to January 4th. It is possible that shortly after the recess the finance committee will report the bill to the senate.

It will be interesting to watch the passage of this bill through the senate. There is no more reason for delay in that body than in the house, except that which is permitted by the rules of the senate including unlimited speaking. The bill should be passed by the senate and become a law in time to permit the treasury to issue the proper blanks for the payments to be made on March 15th. The revision of the 1925-1926 was delayed unduly. The bill was not signed until February 26, 1926, nineteen days before the returns had to be made. Whether this will weigh with the talkative ones in the senate or not, remains to be seen. It must not be assumed that free debate in the senate is a bad thing. Sometimes it results in the killing of bad legislation, but, unfortunately, it often becomes a habit and good legislation is delayed indefinitely.

THAT FIVE PER CENT
Five per cent, when it represents a return on an investment, is very acceptable, but when it represents a surplus of grain production for home consumption that when thrown on the world market keeps down the price of 95 per cent is a source of serious trouble to agriculturists.
There is another very damaging five per cent. It is that portion of automobile drivers who through recklessness or incompetency endanger the lives of the other 95 per cent and of all pedestrians who happen to cross their paths.
An investigator for the national safety council has reported that 95 per cent of the motorists are reasonably careful, and that fatal accidents are largely the result of the carelessness of the remaining five per cent, which includes "drivers who are deaf, blind, or immature age, enfeebled by old age, those who are intoxicated and those that are analogous to the farmer's mule."

In this country it seems probable the percentage of careless drivers is smaller than the national average, but we have room for improvement. There are times when most drivers lapse into carelessness. Those times can be lessened. As the investigator reported, there are a number of drivers who are about the same degree of judgment as would a mule. By recognition of the danger in which they are placing themselves as well as others this number would be decreased.

We wrote an editorial several months ago noting the fewer fatal accidents on the public highways of the country and urging continued progress. Within the next month or so there were some half dozen fatalities, indicative that our thoughts on driving automobiles formed no controlling influence.
However, this is the season of resolutions for the year. Lives and money would be saved if we would all determine to be reasonably careful in driving our cars and to maintain a fair consideration of the rights of others. Let us resolve not to be a part of the destructive five per cent.

STATE GRANGE DEMANDS EQUITY

million dollars appropriated by the Turner bill just as soon as state moneys are available, so that the schools may be kept open.

Farmers Pay for Roads He Cannot Use, and Shares Local Roads With Tourists

Michigan farmers also have been bearing a share of state and local highway costs which is out of all proportion either to the benefits they receive, or their ability to pay. The farmer pays the full cost of his local township roads, amounting to 13 million dollars per year yet these roads, in many parts of the state, are nonnally torn to pieces by the increasing army of tourists and pleasure seekers. In addition, the farmer pays an auto license tax for the privilege of operating his auto for twelve months of the year, although it is frequently the case that there are no passable roads within his reach for long periods of time. Finally, during the balance of the year he is obliged to pay gasoline taxes at a rate-per-mile which is at least 40 per cent higher than that paid by city drivers because of the increased fuel consumption on unimproved highways. Although this excessive burden of gas and license taxes on farmers is the direct result of his own financial inability to improve the condition of his township roads, none of the money so paid is returned to the townships. Instead it is spent upon state and county roads which can serve the farmer only when he is able to reach them. Here, as in other states, the great bulk of the traffic on state roads originates and ends in the cities and towns.

Federal and State Assistance for Township Roads Demanded

The Michigan State Grange now, as always, favors a system of state roads which will serve the entire state, and to this end, it endorses the bill now pending before congress which proposes the grant of additional federal funds for the improvement of rural post roads. The Grange also calls upon the state of Michigan to provide adequate financial assistance to match the federal aid to our township roads so that farmers may have access to the state trunk lines which they now pay for but cannot fully utilize.

This statement issued on January 12, by the special committee of the State Grange on policy and program: George F. Roxburgh, Reed City. C. H. Bramble, Lansing, Mich.

Poultry Yard Ideal for Growing Strawberry Crop

The poultry yard should be an ideal place for growing strawberries. The fact that it has a bad odor is not an indication that lime or other fertilizer is necessary. In fact, an application of lime directly preceding the setting of the plants might do more harm than good, writes K. E. Loree in the Michigan Farmer. The strawberry thrives on soils which are slightly acid, or sour, and for this reason lime is recommended only as it is necessary to favor the growth of some other crop, such as clover, in a rotation.

Poultry manure contains a considerable amount of nitrogen and the other essential elements which are needed by the strawberry plant and you should be able to grow one or more good crops of berries without the use of other fertilizers. I would suggest that you plow or spade the soil deeply, and give it a very thorough preparation before setting the plants.

Aim in Pruning

If the trees have been pruned each year all that is necessary is to prune out interfering and inside shoots. If the trees have not been pruned, then interfering branches, suckers, and long branches should be cut out and shortened. The general aim should be to get the tree to make a firm framework for supporting the fruit and to have the center open as much as possible. If the shoots have grown 18 or more inches, many should be shortened one-half or so.

Satisfactory System of Calf Feeding Developed

The Ottawa (Canada) experimental farm has developed a fairly satisfactory system of calf feeding. For the first feeding they see to it that the calf gets the colostrum milk from its dam. If this is not available then an other fresh cow is used. For the first two weeks the calf receives a daily ration of from eight to twelve pounds of whole milk. This is given three times a day so as to not overload the stomach of the calf.

The amount of milk is slightly increased during the third and fourth weeks. Following that time the calf is gradually shifted to skim milk and is fed a grain mixture plus a calf meal. Only a limited amount of this meal is given at first and the amount gradually increased as the calf increases in size. The calf meal which they use as a substitute for the fat in the milk is made of two parts of finely ground oats, two parts of corn meal, one part of ground flaxseed, one-half of one per cent salt and 1 per cent bone meal. Two parts of all meal may be substituted in place of the flaxseed but it is not so good. This mixture is fed by putting the amount needed for a day's feeding in a pail, pouring scalding water over it and then feeding the mixture the following evening and morning.

Low-Yielding Cows Will Reduce Dairying Profits

It is low-yielding cows that "play hoo" with farm dairying. They eat just about as much as cows that yield a profit, and each one costs just as much in labor, feed and equipment as does a good cow, the one that makes money for her owner. The worst thing about these low yielders is the fact they put milk on the market in competition with the money-making cows, and do this during times of surplus. Thus they increase the supply of milk out of proportion to the demand, which lowers the price of all milk throughout the year whether used on the farm market or for butter, cheese or other dairy products. The menace to dairying is not more good cows, but too many cows of low production.

As she stood in the sandy beach, looking out, her eyes shone with pleasure. She forgot the hard struggle with the rocks, she did not think of her torn and bleeding hands. It was very lovely.

The tide was coming in, nearly full, and she was obliged to move back a step or two to avoid a wetting. But she could not tear herself from the place. And then, as she stood, she saw the incoming waves bore freight—a hard—no, a snarl—no—

Gay watched it curiously and felt the little thrill of excitement that always comes with thought of treasure borne by the sea.

"Treasure trove," she whispered. "Pirate's prize. Finders keepers."

Now it swept far forward on the wave. Then it recoiled again, sucked back by the outgoing water. But caught full at last by the surging tide, it swept close in to shore.

"Oh, I do believe. It is a sea-chest—wrapped in ruins—or something," she cried aloud joyously. "Oh, I believe it is!"

She ran out a few steps, regardless of the water that splashed about her ankles, leaning far forward, ready to catch hold when it came nearer. Suddenly it turned, swung toward her. Gay cried out, faintly. She saw it, plainly. It was the body of a man.

The hands beneath the water showed faintly radiant, the face shone palely. Grating in the sand, surging in the water, it slid up on the shore, swung at her feet, and the receding waves sucked it in joyously.

Still her innate repulsion, tiny thrust out a stiff, resentful, unwilling hand, closed her fingers firmly on the flapping top of the coat, and with the help of the next incoming wave, she drew it high up on the sand beyond the water line.

No hope of resurrection for that unfortunate. Already it was set in the rigidity of death. And over the temple gaped a great dark bullet wound, where the stiff hair, dripping salt water, hung thickly in the blood that had dripped in the edges washed flabby-white.

Gay turned away from it, lastingly recoiling, her natural thought to run quickly far from the terrible sight. But as she turned her eyes fell on the hand that lay lying out on the sand, a long fine hand, a hand that even in death suggested the emotions of life, desire, tenderness, passion, that had tingled in its finger-tips.

Gay's eyes hung to it, spellbound, and then, slowly, swept to the face again. It was a face of a man, a face that had been handsome in life, the head finely shaped, the forehead high, the chin slender and clear-cut. The lips had been delicate and fine before that last grim anxiety had locked them into this hard cast.

Gay shuddered, buried her face in her hands. Then she stood up, suddenly determined, and called for help again and again, her clear high voice ringing and reverberating among the rocks that bound the cove. It was seldom that strollers came through the woods so far, and the cottages were far removed. There was no answer, although she continued to call even when she had ceased to expect response.

And so at last, bravely, she took responsibility to herself, set her lips hard and bent down to draw the body higher on the sand, beyond reach of the tide in its highest point. She lifted the unthought hand and laid it gently back upon the breathless breast, and spread her wispy handkerchief, pitifully, over the pale set face. Then, in a fresh accession of horror, she ran wildly upon the rocks of the cliff, clung over them, struggling feverishly in her haste, and her terror was magnified by her sight, so that she sobbed aloud, fell often in her foolish frenzy, and cut herself, but did not feel the pain.

Out of the rocks, disheveled, soiled, her pale face streaked with tears, she stopped to recompose herself, adjusted her blouse and belt, and tried to wipe the telltale marks of fear from her face. In a semblance of order at last, she ran through the woods, and down the lane to the Captain's house.

The Captain, shocked by her white and frightened face even more than by the incoherent tale she told, extricated himself from the fold of dog and cats with nervous impatience, and brushed against two granddaughters in his haste to get Gay into a chair before she fainted.

"Do tell," he chattered gently, "dear, dear, now, what are things coming to?—Lila, give Miss Gay here some brandy but for P!—up—up—there and—"

"I'll go back with you and show you," Gay proffered quickly.

"No, no, miss, that's what you need, quiet's what you need. Lila, give her some more tea—I'll take the dogs with me. We'll have to work it up over those rocks some way."

He hurried away, an eager, brave, frail little figure.

Naturally, the Captain did not go direct to the cove. He went first to the Pier grocery store to recount the gruesome tale. Then he stopped by the way to pick up the Budlong boys, two drivers from the taxi stand, Mr. Allenby, the weather man, and Lumley. With these reinforcements, he was followed by a troop of a dozen or more small boys shouting directions and calling inquiries, with two or three of the harder native women trudging along at a respectful distance in the rear, they at last began the hard descent over the rocky cliffs and ledges that bordered the cove.

Helping one another as best they could, scrambling each man to keep pace with the man ahead, all alike anxious for the first frightful, hard view, they stumbled over the rocks, grunting, swearing softly in the nasal New England drawl, and reached the cove at last, leaning forward, staring about them.

Then they stood erect, with sheepish grins, and looked the length and breadth of the cove. There were many footprints in the sand, there were scattered logs, bits of driftwood, the wreck of an old boat, there were shells and seaweed and fallen trees. But there was no drenched seawashed body on the sand, no trace of red blood on the clean yellow, no sign of human driftwood from the sea.

CHAPTER IV

Satisfied at last that their eyes did not deceive them, that in very truth there was no body in the cove, the men of the searching party drove together, looked from one to another with sheepish deprecating grins.

"By gar, she done us," roared Lumley Lane with his great guffaw. "The little New Yorker done us right."

Led by the Captain, they tried the foors of the hothouse, of the little club itself, but all were locked secure and silent. They called a few times, loud halloos, but received no answer.

"Was she flim-flamin' Gampt?" asked one of the Budlong boys.

"No," said the Captain, with his usual soft decisiveness. "She was cryin', her face all streaked and white, tremblin' all over. She didn't n'm to flim-flam nobody. She thought she saw something, that's all."

They returned the way they had come, and although the new hung about the Captain's door, hoping for a glimpse of the errant New Yorker who had sent them on their hard chase for the wild goose, the Captain, considerably, left them without and closed the door behind him.

The Captain looked compassionately at Gay. "There wasn't nobody drowned," he said gently. "There wasn't nobody shat. There wasn't nothing but slicks and stones in the cove."

Gay leaped to her feet giddily, and the women fell back, respectfully, to give her room.

"There—wasn't?" she gasped. "But there was! He had dark hair, and long fine hands—oh, nonsense!—I can see him this moment as plainly as—my handkerchief, I spread it over his poor face. Did you bring my handkerchief?"

"You're all tired out, Gay," he said gently. "You work too hard. You seen a hullochman, that's all. It was driftwood rill'n in. Seaweed, maybe. Things like this looks like men under the water. There ain't nobody in the cove, Gay."

Gay brushed past him, her hand on the door.

"Where you goin'?"

"To the cove. To see for myself. I don't believe a word of it," she declared feverishly, with no thought for the rudeness of her words in the shock of her surprise. "You haven't been there 'n' all. You are deceiving me. Of course there is a body in the cove!"

With inoffensive patience, despite his weariness, the Captain set out to follow. After a few hot running steps Gay waited for him to come up to her.

"You needn't go, Captain," she said kindly. "You are tired, and it is such a hard way."

"No, no, it's all right. I'm used to my legs."

They did not speak again until they entered the wood, when the Captain, rather diffidently, broke the silence.

"You oughtn't to live there by yourself, Gay. Women ain't no call to live alone. It ain't accordin' to natur."

They got queer. They got to thinkin' things, they get to seein' things—ghosts an' sech. You better go to the hotel, Gay, for the rest of the summer. I'll let you off on the rest of the house. It ain't accordin' to natur, livin' alone."

Gay made no answer, but she smiled at him, and when they came at last in the precipitous cliffs that girt the cove, she led the way, stumbling, sliding falling, while the Captain grunted and softly swore beneath his breath behind her.

In the cove, at last, she turned with her usual brisk assurance, and fung out a hand toward the spot where the body had lain.

Then her eyes widened, her lips parted and she stared, aghast.

The Captain was right. There was no body on the sand. Except for themselves, the cove was void of life, as it was void of death. Flashes of light came before her eyes, and she and dropped down heavily on a low rock, moaning away great beads of perspiration with his red handkerchief.

Gay pulled herself together. "Somebody took him away while I was gone," she said in a low voice. "I was not fooling you. I left him right here. See, the sand is wet from where he lay."

"It splashed from the surf," he said.

"I put his hand on his breast, and my handkerchief I spread over his face. Captain, do you think I'm crazy?" she demanded indignantly.

"No, Gay, no, I don't think you're crazy," he said stoutly. "But you hadn't ought to live alone. It ain't good for women, makes 'em queer; n't accordin' to natur."

Gay smiled rather wistfully. "I am sorry for all the trouble I have caused you. I am sure you know that I had no desire to deceive you, deliberately. I am very sorry. Will you go on home now, and leave me? I have my sketch pad in my pocket. I am going to draw the face from memory, and perhaps you will recognize it. I want to do it while it is all fresh in my thought."

The Captain demurred, but Gay stood firm against him, and his objections dwindled. He went off at last, a sturdy little figure, for all his frailty and his bent shoulders.

Gay picked out a seat for herself among the rocks and fell at once to work. She could see it all so vividly that her flesh crawled as she reproduced the picture from memory—the small bit of sand below the rocks, the limp body in its drenched clothes, the dark hair, the fine head, the gaping wound, and nothing on the sand, the pale hand, long, slim and powerful, the hand of a gentleman, hand of a scholar, hand that betrayed intensely of feeling. It was the hand that had stirred Gay most deeply, and when it lay before her in her penciled sketch, delicate and strong, she buried her face in her two hands and burst into nervous weeping. But in a moment she controlled herself, shook away her tears crossly, and dabbed at her eyes with the back of her hand, lacking the wispy handkerchief that was gone.

"Is this the quiet good little place they brag about?" she asked herself. "Where they come and steal dead bodies—from under your very eyes?" Both tears and laughter came at the whimsical notion. But in spite of her attempt to be facetious and unconcerned, she was highly nervous and quite unsteady. A sudden clear call, "Hallo there!" from behind, startled her into a frightened scream and she sprang to her feet. Quite beyond power of reason as she was, the call had seemed to come from the valley of death.

Glancing up, she saw on the piazza of the little club a man who leaned over the railing and beckoned to her. He was a stranger, she knew at once, one of the summer people, no native son.

"I beg your pardon," he called pleasantly, "but will you kindly show me the way down? I cannot find the path."

"There is no path. There is no way down."

"But—I beg your pardon—you are down, are you not?"

Gay smiled up at him. "Yes, but I slid right down those steep rocks, and it is hard sliding. I assure you. I am coming up. I will show you the way through the woods and the lane will lead you direct to the landing. I go that way. Wait for me."

He crossed from the piazza to the top of the rocky cliff and waited in assist her, descending with difficulty a few steps to give her a hand when she had gained that height.

"Nice little shack," he said, tapping the corner of the little club as they passed. "Were you sketching it?"

"No, I was sketching—Oh, listen!" Gay stopped short, and turned toward him eagerly. A sudden longing for sympathy, for understanding, the reaction of one of her own kind in her emotional strain, overwhelmed her. In a torrent of words, staring darkly into his interested eyes, Gay told him the whole story: of the body that had come to her on the waves, the wound in the temple, the fine white hands; how she had gone for help, and returned to find it gone.

"By George, what a story," he said thoughtfully. "I suppose the tide carried it out while you were away."

"Well, you see," she admitted faintly, "the tide really couldn't. I pulled the body above the water line. The tide didn't reach him. That's the strangest thing about it."

He put out his hand, deeply interested, for the sketch, and she showed it eagerly, her eyes still fixed upon his sympathetic face.

"Oh, by George, that is fine work," he said warmly. "What a hand! What a face!—oh, nonsense, you could never make up such a figure, of course you saw it. What are you going to do with this?"

"I shall send it to the police department, I think. That boy belongs to sanctuary. Perhaps the police can trace him. Perhaps it will relieve some anxious hearts—though a sad relief it will be."

They walked on together, slowly, the stranger still carrying the sketch, glancing at it often with interested wondering eyes.

"Don't you rather hate to get mixed up in such an affair? There will be an inquest—at least an inquiry, and you will be called as a witness and—"

"Oh, there will be no trouble about it. It is obviously suicide."

"It is obviously murder," he corrected gently. "The poor chap might have shot himself, or might have drowned himself. Not both."

Gay stopped suddenly, shivering again. "True," she said faintly. "I know it. I tried so hard not even to think of murder."

Her face was white.

"I wish you would give this to me," he said persuasively. "Or sell it to me, either, for I can see that your pencil is your profession. I should be glad to buy it. I can make a fine story of it. I am in newspaper work, and I can do wonders with this. I will have it photographed, if you like, and send a copy to the police."

Gay reached out, quickly, and took the pad. "I cannot do that," she said firmly. "I feel responsible for the thing. I feel as though I were led down that hard and painful path on purpose to resolve it—the poor body—swept to my very feet. It seems to make me—his avenger, don't you see? I dare say you think me very childish, but I feel that this has been sent straight to me, and I cannot evade it. I am sorry. But I must do it myself."

Suddenly they had cleared the forest and stood on the brow of the hill. The Lone Pine was directly at hand. "This is my cottage," she said. "Just cross right down the slope to the lane and follow it down to the pier. I am sorry about the drawing, but you see how it is."

"You are quite right, of course. It has been very fascinating—meeting you like this. I wish there was some place we could go for tea—"

"There is a place. There are lots of places. The island is full of tea. But I shan't go, thank. Marcelling off to tea with a Perfect Stranger in the Good Little Island would be even more damning than the discovery of a nonexistent corpse. Even worse, I think, than living alone, which seems the very height of depravity here. It ain't accordin' to natur—it makes women queer. They think that's what is wrong with me, livin' alone."

BIG POINTS IN JUDGING CATTLE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dairy-cattle judging as practiced today is based on the supposition that a correlation exists between producing ability of the dairy cow and her conformation, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The principles of judging commonly used in selecting animals of the approved conformation are outlined in Miscellaneous Circular No. 99-M, just issued by the department. The publication is well illustrated with photographs illustrating various points in dairy cattle judging.

The aim of the circular is to show the dairyman or the prospective dairyman, who has first made his selection and choice from the records of production, by what points of conformation he should be guided in selecting animals for his herd so that they may approach as nearly as possible the type selected by the breed association and followed generally by judges in the show ring. This publication will also serve as a guide for students in dairy husbandry who may wish to compete in judging contests.

Since the most important objective in dairy-cattle judging is to enable one to select more efficiently cows that will be economical producers of milk, it is well first to fix clearly in mind the points that are thought to be most closely associated with milk production and that are therefore the major points, and to leave those of less significance in the background. From the present knowledge of the relation of function to form, these points are dairy temperament, body capacity and mammary system. Of less importance from the production standpoint are general appearance and type, also size and condition. In addition there are what might be called the fancy points, closely associated with type, such as a pretty head, level rump, small horns, straight back, and well-balanced udder. These fancy points are only slightly, if at all, correlated with producing ability. They do, however, add to the beauty of the animal and thus enhance its selling value.

These points and the emphasis to be placed on them in judging animals are discussed in the circular in considerable detail. A copy may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

WIND AND SNOW RAISED HAVOC

CITY WITHOUT LIGHTS WHEN POWER LINES BROKE

Stalled Freight Train Tied Up Railroad Traffic—All Northern Roads Blocked

Power lines weighted heavily with wet snow snapped last Thursday afternoon in a northwest gale which followed the snow storm, leaving this city in darkness for several hours.

One break in the wires was found a short distance south of Ellsworth and another between Central Lake and Bellaire. Nine poles were blown down and many other minor breaks found in the city distributing system. The city's auxiliary steam plant on Ferry avenue furnished power until damaged wires could be mended.

Members of the electric light department suffered from the severe cold Thursday night when trying to locate breaks in power lines. Clarence Bridge, who started south along the Adams lake road encountered deep snow drifts and was forced to abandon his car and walk back to Charlevoix. Jim Davis and Murley Plum went through to Central Lake by the way of Eastport. Unable to locate the trouble they started their return trip at about 7 o'clock, following the snow plow. The plow came north on M-31 as far as Atwood and here Plum and Davis left their car and started for Charlevoix on foot. They proceeded until the cold forced them to seek shelter. Evidently the Bolton family were not entertaining strange visitors in the night and refused to let the two men in. However, they finally found shelter by forcing entrance to the Hilton school and here started a fire and remained until morning. Plum had his hands and forehead frozen.

A south-bound freight train stalled in deep drifts near the Coulter farm south of the city, caused cancellation of all trains on the Pere Marquette railroad Friday, and Charlevoix was without train service until Saturday afternoon. The local basketball team had to cancel their game with Kalkaska Friday night, but by driving to Marquette hill on the Petoskey road, and then walking to cars awaiting them on the other side, the boys reached Petoskey Saturday in time to catch a train for Mancelona to keep their scheduled game that evening.

In spite of the heavy snowfall and high winds which drifted road cuts full to the brim, highway traffic in this county was tied up but a short time. Road crews worked the big plows day and night.

AT THE MOVIES

Unusual Films This Director's Favorite Hobby

Unusual screen stories are the hobby of Joseph Henabery, famous motion picture director. He points to the latest production he directed, "Sailors' Wives," the first National Pictures production coming to the Palace Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, in which Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes are featured.

A screen story, Henabery points out, is told at least four times. The first telling is the original story; the second is the director's continuity or "shooting script," and the third is the version the director evolves with his cast before the camera, and the fourth is what the cutter, director and title writer evolve from the thousands of strips of film used to assemble the picture.

In all of these stages of story telling, Henabery strives to secure novelty and originality. In each, he maintains, there is opportunity to increase these virtues, not through what is professionally termed "treatment."

STATISTICS SHOW THE WOMAN IS PURCHASER

Her Ability As Buyer Determines Country's Prosperity

The American woman's buying power is the basis of all business. National statistics show that $72,000,000,000 went into the pay envelopes of the nation last year, and that women spent more than $52,000,000,000 of that amount for food, clothing, shelter and recreation. Nine out of every ten purchases are made by women. This makes the woman buyer by far the largest purchasing agent in the country.

These are some of the reasons why the general federation of women's clubs is one of the most active participating organizations in the annual observance of Thrift Week, which fell this year on January 17-23. Through the department of the American home, the division of family finance of which Mrs. Edith McClure Patterson of Dayton, Ohio, is chairman, is urging each of the 14,000 member-clubs to observe the week by a study program of thrift and budgeting, an address by an expert on economics or in some other fitting way.

"Woman's ability as a buyer determines in a large measure the country's progress and prosperity," said Mrs. Patterson. "In view of these facts it sometimes seems ludicrous that many merchants, salesmen and advertising agencies still profess to believe that men, not women, are the persons to whom the appeal to dispose of merchandise must be made. The average man seldom buys more than his personal wear. Even in the purchase of an automobile it is usually his wife who is the last word in the selection."

"Women are realizing that they must use business methods in the conduct of that important business, home making, quite as much as large business institutions, and so classes for the study of family finance, budgeting, banking, investments, etc., are springing up in hundreds of women's clubs throughout the country, for the modern woman, when she has a job to do, wants to do it in the most approved and business-like way."

POLAR BEARS LOSE THEIR INITIAL GAME

Denver Colorados Won 33 to 26 in Game Last Wednesday

The Polar Bears, Charlevoix's independent basketball team, lost no glory in their defeat by the Denver Colorados at the high school gym last Wednesday night. This was the initial appearance for the home team, who had organized on only a few days' notice and played with practically no practice.

The Denver Colorados, a professional team touring the country, were held on even terms during the first quarter and that period ended with the score 6 all. Charlevoix threw away what chance they had of winning in the second quarter when a full substitute team was thrown in to the game. The visitors made 16 points to the locals 1 during this period and the half ended 22 to 7.

With first string men back in the line-up during the final two quarters, Charlevoix played the visitors off their feet. A strong offensive led by Todd, Brown and Davenport netted 19 points against 11 for the Colorados, and the final whistle found the score 33 to 26 in favor of the visitors. Hallett, Jones and Higman played good basketball for the home team.

The Polar Bears meet the Petoskey Independents at Petoskey on Friday evening of this week and will play a return game with the same team at the high school gymnasium here next Monday evening, January 30. They also plan a game here with East Jordan on Friday of next week.

IRONTON LADIES HAVE SERIES OF PARTIES

Most Recent Event a Birthday Party
Monday Evening

Ironton ladies, who are living in Charlevoix during the winter months, have been enjoying a series of parties during the past couple of weeks.

The most recent event was a birthday party Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Alice Lewis. Some 12 ladies were present and the occasion proved a most enjoyable one. Supper was served and the hostess was presented with a gift as a reminder of the occasion.

On Thursday evening of last week 10 ladies met at the home of Mrs. James Tumuth, to remind her of her birthday anniversary. This was also a very enjoyable event.

Practically the same bunch of entertainers, together with an equal number of ladies living in Ironton, met at the home of Mrs. Sam Alexander of Ironton, to help them observe their 35th wedding anniversary. This event took place some ten days ago and proved to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

GOOD SOIL MEANS
ORCHARD SUCCESS

Good soil is so closely linked with success in orcharding that given good orchard land planted with varieties that are adapted to the locality and market demands, even the amateur will find it hard to keep from succeeding. It is usually the fruit growing business, says H. S. Marsh, horticulture extension specialist at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

If the soil is poor the grower must center all his efforts in building it up before the trees are planted and while the orchard is young.

"In Illinois, at least, the limestone and sweet clover program, which is advocated for corn and other grain and hay crops, also is unsurpassed for orchard soils. Apple and peach trees will grow twice as much on sites where a good crop of sweet clover has been turned under before the trees are set as they will on sites without sweet clover."

"If the trees are set out on a site where the program of limestone and sweet clover has not been practiced it is recommended that sweet clover be grown between the trees to build up the land. Of course, the young trees must be cultivated, but this can be done by establishing cultivation strips about six feet wide along the tree row."

"If apple trees are planted 40 feet apart each way and peach trees not closer than 25 feet apart, there will be plenty of room between the tree rows in which soil building crops can be grown and turned under."

"Although sweet clover stands at the top of the list as a soil building crop, other crops can be used. Such crops as soy beans, cowpeas, buckwheat and the clovers greatly benefit the soil when they are turned under. Under no circumstances should these crops be taken from a young orchard and stored in the barn as hay."

"After the orchard is bearing and clean cultivation is practiced, cover crops should be used to maintain fertility. Cultivation usually will be stopped some time between July 15 and August 1 and then soy beans, cowpeas, buckwheat, millet, oats or vetch can be grown as a cover crop. These crops make a good growth which entices and holds the leaves that drop from the trees, and in the spring when the crop and the leaves are disked under, valuable organic matter is added to the soil. Such crops also help to prevent soil erosion; they hold the winter snows, protect the tree roots against freezing and help the trees harden their tissues for the winter."

"Since soil, site and variety are the most important factors in successful orcharding, many investigations are now going on throughout the United States with orchard soils. The day may not be far off when a fruit tree's ration will be handled like rations for a military force. A balanced food supply will be given young trees for growth the same as young chicks are now fed for growth. Fruit production rations may be given to bearing trees in much the same way that hens are fed for egg production."

Control Young San Jose Scale by Summer Sprays

I cannot speak from experience regarding the control of the young San Jose scale by the use of summer sprays. For the past several years we have not been troubled enough with San Jose scale to consider it a menace in our orchards. On some of our old scattering trees we do have a little scale, enough so that we can show our students the appearance of a few scales on the fruit. This would indicate that neither our dormant nor our summer sprays were controlling the insect.

I doubt if the average summer application of lime-sulphur and arsenate of lead are strong enough to have much effect in the control of the young San Jose scale. Our growers are not using "Black Leaf 40" to any extent, depending upon the delayed dormant application to control the aphids, and consequently the young San Jose scale would not get the "Black Leaf 40" which would otherwise be used for the control of aphids. It has been necessary in years past to use "Black Leaf 40" in some of the later summer sprays.

We are using one of the new liquid dusts today, and if the wind is not blowing it certainly is doing the work, but it is impossible to do effective work against the wind, as I found by personal experience a few days ago when I was spraying our plum trees. Fortunately I was using oil spray for the European red mite on the plum trees, and not dormant strength lime-sulphur. S. P. Hollister, Connecticut Agricultural College.

Benefit to Fruits

Practically all fruits can be indirectly benefited by applications of limestone, especially on soils which are quite sour. Soils which are too sour will not grow leguminous cover crops. Unless large quantities of uterogeneous fertilizers are used in such cases, the trees will be unable to secure a sufficient nitrogen supply. On sour soils, it is a good thing to apply sufficient limestone to enable the legumes to grow. The legumes can then extract nitrogen from the air.

Sewage Disposal Problem Discussed at Meeting

J. M. Hepler, sanitary engineer of the state conservation commission, George Murphy of the same department, and M. M. Larmouth, assistant attorney general, met with council members at their meeting last Wednesday night to discuss plans regarding sewage disposal plants. The state men offered their opinions and suggestions to aid local officials on this important problem and were gratified in finding that Charlevoix had already obtained preliminary plans, which were drawn up some time ago by Pearce, Greeley & Hansen, Chicago sanitary engineers. The state officials were touring northwestern Michigan and had made visits at Charlevoix, Manistee, Ludington, Petoskey and Traverse City.

POLAR BEARS WIN TWO FAST GAMES

TWO PETOSKEY TEAMS ARE THE VICTIMS

Monday Night Contest Was Fast
One—Locals Come From Behind to Win

The Charlevoix Polar Bears won an evenly and clean played basketball game last Friday night on the Petoskey high school gymnasium court, defeating the Petoskey Cementers of the city industrial league 25 to 20. The game was as nice a battle as anyone could want to see and the teams were evenly matched. Fans declared it was anybody's battle from start to finish.

The score at the end of the first half was a tie, 11 to 11, but starting the second half the Cementers came back strong and it looked like something doing. However, the Polar Bears shifted their line and succeeded in checking the Petoskey attack and starting one of their own. The Cementers had some bad luck at this point, Kalbfleisch being out with a badly twisted ankle after a bad spill. Davenport of the Polar Bears also was hurt and went out with a sprained ankle. Cooper took his place with Campbell taking Kalbfleisch's center.

During the third quarter the Polar Bears found the basket for three scores while the Cementers worked three nice ones and also a free throw, making the score 17 to 18 in favor of the Cementers at the end of the third period.

The Polar Bears found the hoop four times during the final quarter while the Cementers made one basket and a free throw.

The lineup was:

Cementers	Polar Bears
Murray	Ernst
Ernst	Kalbfleisch
Kalbfleisch	Davenport
Davenport	Cowan
Cowan	Fettig
Fettig	Substitutes—Campbell for Kalbfleisch, Cooper for Davenport.
Referee, Bates; timer, Sweet; scorer, Phillips. Field baskets—Murray, 3; Ernst, 3; Kalbfleisch, 2; Davenport, 5; Higman, 1; Cooper, 1; Jones, 1; Free throws—Ernst, 4; Kalbfleisch, 1; Cooper, 1.

The Polar Bears, Charlevoix's independent basketball team, tucked another Petoskey scalp under their belt Monday evening by taking the Fitchmans of the Petoskey Industrial league into camp at the high school gymnasium here.

Charlevoix fans were treated to a sample of old-time basketball pep when former high school stars now playing with the Polar Bears pulled from behind at the beginning of the third quarter and won by a neat margin of 7 points. It was no walk-away either, for the visitors fought to the last ditch and only after a last-quarter spurt when the locals scored 10 points to Petoskey's lone basket, was the game safely tucked away for the home five.

The Polar Bears seemed unable to hit their stride during the first half of the contest and the end of this period found them trailing 17 to 12. A talk behind the scene evidently had good results, however, for the locals came out in the third quarter with a strong offense which resulted in a tie score, 23 to 23 at this point. The fourth quarter was Charlevoix's all the way through, for during this period they scored 10 points to the visitors' 2 and the final whistle found them on the long end of a 33 to 25 count.

Hallett, with a total of 11 points, was high score man for Charlevoix. Cooper and Higman played strong games at guard, breaking up Petoskey advances repeatedly. Coach Buchen refereed the game to the satisfaction of all. W. Dudek and Conklin were high point men for Petoskey.

BOYNE CITY GETS BASKETBALL MEET

District Tournament Is Changed From Harbor Springs

In keeping with its policy to give other towns in the state a chance to entertain the district basketball tournaments, the state board of control of high school athletic competition has announced that Boyne City will entertain the 26th district tournament next March.

This tourney was formerly held at Harbor Springs. The board said in announcing the change that Boyne City and Harbor Springs asked for the tournament at the time these meets were inaugurated and that in picking the city, this fact gave Boyne City the advantage over East Jordan and Charlevoix.

Several other changes are also being made this year, the Alpena meet going to Rogers City. Alpena authorities asked Rogers to entertain this season and are co-operating in the work of handling the meet. Other northern district sessions will be at Grayling, Traverse City, Manistee and Big Rapids.

NO DEARTH OF OFFICE SEEKERS

MANY SEEK BERTHS AT COMING PRIMARY ELECTION

Twenty-four Candidates in Field With Contest On In All Three City Wards

Charlevoix voters will have no cause for complaint on account of a lack of timber for city offices this year. The zero hour for filing petitions Tuesday afternoon found 24 candidates in the field seeking various city berths, with contests in all three wards.

Cook will start on her 21st year in that office, which she has held jointly with her husband, the late John Cook, over that period of time. Ray S. Hamilton is also seeking re-election to the city clerk's berth. After a lapse of 20 years or more, Horace S. Harsha has again entered the political arena and seeks nomination as alderman in the second ward.

Following is the line-up.

NEXT P. T. A. MEETING AT GYMNASIUM

Program Will Depict Uca New Building Intended For

The Parent-Teacher meeting will be held next Wednesday in the new gymnasium. The program at that time will show some of the uses to which the building will be put. A group of seventh and eighth grade girls from both the public and parochial schools will demonstrate drills and exercises under the leadership of Mrs. Madill. Pupils from the primary room will put on a more.

A demonstration basketball game will be put on, for the purpose of showing the object of the game and its rules. Fouls will be committed and penalties imposed, both of which will be explained. A. be present, and in addition all others are also asked to come and learn the game.

HARVEST OF PINE SEEDLINGS

MORE THAN FIFTY TONS GATHERED IN THE STATE

Thirty-six Thousand Acres of Land Added to State Forests During Year Just Closed

More than forty tons of Norway, and twelve tons of white pine cones were harvested by the department of conservation, forest division, during the year 1927.

Marcus Schaaf, state forester, estimates a yield of some sixteen hundred pounds of seed from these cones. Were they to be sold at the regular rate of $1.00 an ounce, these seeds would bring $25,000. This supply, however, will be sown in the state forest nursery at Higgins Lake, Roscommon county, and should produce approximately 35,000,000 Norway and 3,500,000 white pine seedlings. These seedlings will be sufficient to care for the needs of the division for several years at the present rate of planting, or until another good crop of cones can be gathered. Fairly good crops of Norway cones can be harvested about every five years, while nature seems to produce an adequate crop of white pine cones about every three years. From cones gathered last year Michigan will secure more Norway pine seeds in 1928 than perhaps any other state in the union.

Seven and one half million pine trees, covering seven thousand four hundred acres were planted in state forests during 1927. Approximately the same number were planted in 1926. The forest division plans to plant between ten and twelve thousand acres to pine during the present year.

During the year just closed, some thirty-six thousand acres of land were added to the state forests that are under management of the department of conservation.

Despite the fact of an unusually long period of dry, hot weather last season, but two hundred and sixty-seven acres in state forests were burned in 1927, and all but seven acres of this area was burned by one fire. Sixty-two miles of new firelines were constructed in state forests during the year and maintenance of old lines in order to keep them clean covered a total of 1,674 miles worked.

THURS. PROGRAM BEST THIS SEASON

DETROIT NEWS CAMERAMAN TOOK CHOICE "SHOTS"

Charlevoix In Line for Big Publicity From Events Last Week

Charlevoix is in line for a "heap" of publicity on the winter sports events pulled off last Thursday morning and afternoon. A battery of photographers with a motion picture machine and "still" camera from the Detroit News were in Charlevoix to take "shots" of activities here. They were headed by Fred E. Janette, News feature writer, who will incorporate the pictures in a story featuring Charlevoix's winter carnival.

Everything in Charlevoix's itinerary of snow and ice events was staged for them. Headed by D. T. McHugh, winter sports director, a group of local people accompanied the photographers Thursday morning on a round of activities which took in skiing, snow shoeing and ski-joring on Lake Charlevoix. Conditions were ideal to take photographs and a choice bunch of "shots" resulted.

A free-for-all dog race was the opening feature of the afternoon program on Bridge street, and these canine speedsters, seeming to sense the purpose of the event, laid aside their petty grudges and performed like a bunch of thoroughbreds. The second race was the best ever staged here with eight dogs bringing up at the finish striving madly for the lead. It was a good exhibition. Pictures of coasting followed the dog races and all went to Mt. McSaubia for ski-jumping and toboggan pictures.

Here a group of local ski performers were already on hand. A number of the boys, jumping between 25 and 40 feet, completed several trials successfully. Others found the jump a little too much for them and they provided just the right amount of "spills" to add spice to the pictures. Results of the exhibition at the ski jump promise a nice bit of competition at the ski tournament during carnival week. The toboggan slide, being a bit rough Thursday afternoon, provided plenty of action for the cameramen.

A great number of Charlevoix citizens turned out for the events Thursday afternoon, as well as quite a few from out of town.

CUSHMAN ANNEX GUTTED BY FIRE

Popular Petoskey Hostelry Suffers Heavy Fire Loss

The annex of the Cushman Hotel, Petoskey, was destroyed by fire which started shortly before four o'clock last Friday morning and which was not brought under control until near eight o'clock. The four story structure was completely gutted leaving only the four walls standing. Fire walls between the annex and the hotel proper saved that part of the building, but water damaged some of the guest rooms, but caused little loss in other parts of the hotel.

The flames apparently started somewhere near the elevator shaft in the north end of the building and spread quickly to every floor. The burned structure contained 47 guest rooms used during the summer tourist season and the ground floor was occupied by the Royal Cigar Store, boot organ's barber shop, the Northern Michigan Magazine and restaurant.

The loss is difficult to estimate, but is set somewhere between $75,000 and $100,000, and only partly covered by insurance. According to W. L. McManis, owner and operator, the building will be rebuilt immediately.

The burning of this structure, coming as it has almost at the height of Petoskey's winter sports program, may greatly handicap the city's housing facilities.

P. W. WOOLLEY NOW LOCATED AT EAST JORDAN

P. W. Woolley, for years a Charlevoix resident, locating at Dearborn, Mich., some few years ago, has been appointed manager of the East Jordan branch of the Northern Auto Company, and has already taken up his work there. While in Charlevoix Mr. Woolley was connected with the Lakeway Garage and later at the Benjamin Brown garage. He with his family plan to make their home in East Jordan.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS

It is too early to assess the year 1927 as to the exact industrial prosperity which it yielded or to reconcile the conflicting statements concerning the measure of that prosperity which existed. Nevertheless, while there may be a difference of opinion as to the degree of prosperity, the flat statement that no prosperity existed appears to emanate only from political sources. There is no doubt that there is a political issue in the question of prosperity, but men in business are more concerned with actual facts and figures than in theoretical conditions that may fit political necessities. There is no reason to believe that 1928 will fall behind 1927 in business. There is an abundance of easy money and business is in a healthy condition. Industry has carried on conservation with high intelligence, while failing at no time to take advantage of business opportunities as well as ways and means of increasing output and its distribution. The markets of the distributors are also in a healthy condition since there is a substantial purchasing power, and the results of our position in foreign countries show an excellent situation.

We shall have congress with us at least during the first six months of 1928, and there is always the possibility that something may develop in Washington which will have an irritating influence. We are to have some additional investigations, but the country is not excited by that prospect. The people will await the results and discount the broadening which usually accompanies these investigations. The senate is in a mixed condition politically. No party really has a majority, but we need not worry about that since there are as many conservative democrats as there are conservative republicans, and the combination of radical republicans and radical democrats is not sufficient to make any serious trouble. Furthermore, the house is conservative and efficient, and congress may be dismissed as a possible irritant and as a source of dangerous infection to the body industrial. Industry in 1928 will have to remain alert so far as unionism is concerned. It will be a political year, and at such times the unions make their greatest efforts to secure additional power. They attempt to prey upon the weakness of political parties and candidates. It may well be that there will be additional strikes, and where there are strikes there is usually violence. Consequently industry will have to watch the situation carefully, and the position of the open shop must be consolidated and strengthened.

THE SENATE AND THE REVENUE BILL

Conditions in Washington concerning the new tax bill are somewhat chaotic. The house passed a bill and sent it over to the senate, and this bill provided for an approximate reduction in taxes of 287 million dollars. The president, the secretary of the treasury and the chairman of the finance committee of the senate, Mr. Smoot, thought it was too much. Despite these various statements and thought, it was hinted that before the bill got through the senate there would be even a larger sum deducted. Now comes the chairman of the finance committee of the senate—one of the ablest men who has ever sat in the United States senate—and he proposes that the bill should lay over until March 15th, until the treasury is able to determine its surplus more accurately. The secretary of the treasury agrees with him. But a large and vigorous dissent comes from the senate and from the taxpayers of the country. It may be true that the house bill will come very close to leaving a deficit if it should be enacted into law, but in view of the fact that the treasury has been for many years extremely conservative in its estimates, there is ground for those who protest that the treasury attitude on taxation is in consequence wrong. No one can accuse the president or Mr. Mellon or Mr. Smoot of playing party politics, but the country wants tax reduction and will ask many questions if tax reduction is denied, and then we find that we have a very substantial surplus which will be applied eventually through failure of tax reform, to the national debt. There is no particular reason why the present generation should bear the entire burden of the late war. The country wants a tax reduction, and it is not so interested in debt reduction or in huge congressional appropriations.

BLESSED ARE THE MEEK

Anything for business. Those who would condemn this age of materialism would find a subject for a sermon in the modern attitude towards religion and its application in business. Of course the principles of religion must be applied to business. But too many subvert religion to business.

Anyway, here is something from the magazine Time that is worth thinking about:

The Review of Reviews craves subscribers. Like nearly all non-fiction magazines, it lures them with rich promises of premium—i. e., something presumably more attractive than the magazine itself. Through the mails citizens are receiving the latest lure. The premiums offered with 15 months subscription to the Review are copies of Bruce Barton's "The Man Nobody Knows" and "The Book Nobody Knows." The Man is Jesus Christ; the Book is the Bible.

In advertising these books the premium circular preaches: "Jesus... a killjoy? He was the most popular dinner guest in Jerusalem."

"A failure? He picked up twelve... men and forged them into an organization that conquered the world."

"Every business man will read it and send it to his partners and salesmen, for it will be the story of the founder of modern business."

Jesus was a real executive... a great advertising man. The parables are the greatest advertisements of all time."

Scattered between these curious descriptions of the founder of Christianity are paragraphs extolling the benefits of a subscription to The Review of Reviews.

In a letter accompanying the circular was the following paragraph: Barton's two books interest and aid the rich and powerful; they help any cub salesman to get orders for shoe polish—and to work on principles that lead him toward riches and power."

Commented The Nation, intellectual weekly: "Riches and power—and orders for shoe polish. There was once a man who talked differently. 'Blessed are the meek,' he said. 'Why take ye thought for raiment?' 'Ye cannot serve God and Mammon.' 'Go and sell all that thou hast and give to the poor.' 'Varily I say unto you, that a rich man shall hardly enter into the Kingdom of Heaven.' 'It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God.' And in a terrible passage: 'Woe unto ye, scribes and Pharisees.'"

'ROXY', GREAT RADIO FAVORITE, WILL AID FOX IN MICHIGAN

May Circuit All Music And Stage Presentations From New York

"Roxy," of radio fame, who first gave cinema productions grace, sophistication and pulse, figuratively teaching the crude, awkward, messy cinema youngster how to wear a dress suit, handle a demi-tasse, and be gracious and courteous—it is expected, will direct all musical programs and stage presentations in Michigan's new Fox Theatre, in Detroit, as in the others of the one hundred fifty million dollar effort of theatres now being built or planned in the leading cities of the country.

Elaborate entertainment, Roxy gives the people, and they like it. He emphasizes the beauty, drama, and humor of screen subjects, by his orchestral settings. Grand opera, for example, he gives one week, and the next beautiful orchestrations of the collected works of Irving Berlin; violin solos by the great Frederic Franke, two saxophone solos by Rudy Wiedott. "Roxy" has become an international figure because of the type of entertainment he has introduced so successfully into the moving picture palaces he has directed.

A chain of theatres along Roxy lines is considered by many to be a tremendous contribution to civilization—and Michigan is to have one of the chain. It will be the largest theatre in the world, outside of the Roxy in New York. Besides reviving the Hindoo architecture which has long been the mystery and wonder of the historians, the Detroit architects of the Fox Theatre have sounded a note to theatre designing that will reverberate a great distance.

Roxy (S. L. Rothafel) has developed more big theatres than any showman in the world. He is directly responsible for the modern type of presentation. Besides, he has created through sheer personality the greatest radio following in America.

CO-OPERATION IN MARKETING WOOL

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Approximately 100 co-operative wool-marketing associations were doing business in the United States in 1925, according to reports for that year recently compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture. These associations had an estimated membership of 50,000 and handled business amounting to $10,000,000. They were of five general types, namely, regional pools, independent local associations, sales agencies, associations handling wool as a secondary consideration, and educational associations.

The greater part of the wool marketed co-operatively was handled by the regional pools. These pools operate over a large area, receive wool graded and sell it to the mills or other purchasers, returning to their members the average pool price for the grade of wool delivered. The sales agencies were located in the principal wool markets and received wool on consignment from producers in various sections of the country. The oldest wool association now operating was formed in 1885. The majority of the associations, however, have come into existence since 1920, a year when the price of wool dropped disastrously.

Practically all of the early attempts at co-operative marketing of wool were local efforts. Some of the associations were very informally organized and functioned only during the period of the year when wool was marketed. The associations organized since 1920 have, for the most part, been state or regional associations, some of which have a number of units, others of which deal directly with the member from the central association. The associations are widely scattered, covering 28 states and extending from coast to coast.

ARCHITECT ACHIEVES BRILLIANT SUCCESS WITH NEW THEATRE

Michigan Architect Adds to International Fame in Designing Fox-Detroit

With the interesting Mexican architecture adapted exteriorly, and a brilliant Hindoo temple adaptation for the interior, C. Howard Crane and Associates, Michigan architects, will have achieved an architectural non-stop fight in the new Fox Theatre, now building in the heart of Detroit.

Joseph's coat of many colors was not sayer than the ornamental splendours planned in polychrome to decorate the exterior of the building. Terra cotta will be moulded for the base course, in the ornamental windows, and for the corners and finials in the brick field. Store fronts on the main floor will be richly wrought of metal.

The lobby of the Fox office building is fashioned after the Spanish Great Hall type, with two entrances, and shops opening off the lobby in all directions.

Pastel colorings, in reserved designs, will set off the ornamental coffered ceiling of the lobby, while Travertine marble is to be used in the lobby floor and walls.

Panels, rosette-etched, bronze doors distinguish the elevator entrances, and high-speed, automatic control elevators with the latest and surest safety devices will be provided.

Interiorly, done in the Hindoo Temple style, the Fox Theatre, breaking through the office building for six stories, strikes a new note that reverberates 'round the world architecturally and theatrically, for it is the first theatre in the world to be modeled in this strikingly appropriate meter. And the Fox, Michigan's own, completed early in 1928, will be the largest theatre in the world, except The Roxy in New York.

SO ORIGINAL AND DIFFERENT that Comparisons are Impossible

Frankly, The Victory has left current practice so far behind that comparisons are impossible.

Conservative drivers will never really discover the car's astonishing resources.

They will delight in its pick-up and low gas needs—their comfort and streamline beauty.

But the magnificent, all-day speed of the car—its faultless smoothness over clouds and cobblestones—thrills that await the adventurer!

Six powerful cylinders are six powerful reasons for this. A seventh vital reason is the basic Victory ideal.

For the first time in motor car history, chassis and body are a unit. Floor and seats are built in the chassis. The wide Victory chassis frame replaces the customary body sill—and eliminates the customary body overhang. The body itself has only 8 major parts!

The result is 175 less pounds, 330 less parts, standard road and head clearance, yet a car that is extremely low, steady and safe—with a power plant stripped for instant and brilliant action!

And the smartest car at the price ever created!

MEETING HELD IN MANCERONA

COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION
FEBRUARY 22

All interested in "Religious Education" Are Urgently Invited to Attend

There is to be a meeting of the Antrim County Council of Religious Education held in Mancelona, February 22, 1928. (A county council is composed of all the pastors and Sunday school superintendents of the county, the county officers, and the several district presidents.) All others interested in "Religious Education" are also invited to attend.

Rev. C. F. Badder, county superintendent of religious education, will have something of interest to all pastors and superintendents.

Rev. W. P. Mosher, county superintendent of the adult division, will conduct a round table discussion to which all teachers of adult classes are invited to attend and take part.

Rev. E. M. Mumby, superintendent of young people's division will meet the teachers of this division and others interested in work with young people, and discuss with them "The Young People's Problem."

Mrs. L. N. Mathewson, who on account of her special training in kindergarten work and her experience as primary superintendent of her home Sunday school is so well qualified for her position as county primary superintendent, will lead the primary teachers in the discussion of the problems which confront them.

L. G. VanLiew, the treasurer of the association, will present the budget as outlined by the executive committee, and discuss methods of meeting it.

Here are some of the reasons why we are asking for the cooperation of the pastors and Sunday school superintendents of the county:

1. The weak Sunday schools need it.
 2. The strong ones should be made to realize their responsibility toward the weak ones.
 3. The untrained and immature Sunday school teacher, as well as the discouraged ones, need the helpful inspiration and instruction provided by it.
 4. The voice of economy asks for it.
 5. The unreached areas are waiting for its assistance.
 6. Overhead denominational boards approve it.
 7. The call of brotherhood is unmistakably in its favor.
 8. And, finally, business men sense its community building possibilities.
- The county president is offering a prize of $10 worth of books for the use of the district making the best showing between January 1, 1928, and the time of the county convention to be held at Ellsworth in July. The percentage of pastors and superintendents of the several districts in attendance at this February meeting will be taken into consideration. Other details governing the granting of the prize will be known at this meeting.

U. S. TO ISSUE SMALLER BILLS

SMALL PAPER MONEY TO APPEAR NEXT FALL

Year 1928 Will Mark the First Change in Size of Money Since Year of 1861

The year 1928 will mark the first change in size of paper money since 1861.

For months the bureau of engraving and printing, the greatest print shop in the world, will be busy making new and smaller $1 bills so that upon some fixed day next fall they may be issued simultaneously throughout the country and the old ones retired at one swoop, to be deemed of course, upon demand. Notes of other denominations will be printed and put in circulation probably in 1929.

The new notes will be 6 5/16 by 2 11/16 inches whereas the notes now in circulation are 7 7/16 by 3 1/8 inches. By the change the government expects to save $2,000,000 annually. The reduction in size of the bills is expected to increase the capacity of the bureau of engraving and printing by 50 per cent because twelve of the smaller notes can be printed at one impression upon the same press which now prints but eight.

Through the change in size the bills will be made more convenient to handle and will be more durable. The new notes will slip into a bill-fold or pocket, it is claimed, without creasing or folding, and for this reason are expected to have a much longer life than those now in use. The life of the average bill now is not more than six or seven months, treasury officials say. Folding is one of the chief items cutting short the life of paper money. Designs on the bills are also to be standardized. Many designs now appear on the different denominations and the various kinds of notes. Washington's portrait, for example, appears both on the $1 and some $20 bills.

Treasury officials point out that through standardizing the designs the new notes cannot be so easily "raised" to higher denominations by the crooked gentry who makes this their business. In addition to standardized designs on the new paper money there will be a relation between the portrait on the face and the engraving on the back, except in the cases of the $1 bill and those above $100.

On the face of the new $100 bill will be the portrait of Washington and on the back will be the word "ONE" in large letters. On the $2 bill will be a portrait of Jefferson with an engraving of Monticello, his home, on the back.

Lincoln's portrait will be on the face of the $5 bill with the Lincoln Memorial for the back. Hamilton's portrait will appear on the face of the $10 bill and the treasury building on the back. For the face of the $20 bill Grover Cleveland's portrait has been chosen with the White House for the back.

Grant's portrait will be on the face of the $50 bill, Benjamin Franklin's on the $100, McKinley's on the $500, Jackson's on the $1,000, Madison's on the $5,000, and Chase's on the $10,000.

All those designs have been approved, although some may be changed, later.

No retirement of money-making machinery will be necessitated by the change, it is said.

Ellsworth vs. Charlevoix Friday night. Admission, 10, 25 and 35c. Ellsworth beat Charlevoix before Christmas. Let's change it this time. Adv. 5-11.

STATE DEPARTMENT APPROVES THEIR PLANS

Harbor Springs Will Correct Its Sewage Disposal

Including Harbor Springs in their itinerary of fifty-two Michigan municipalities to be visited by April 1st, M. M. Larmuth, assistant attorney general, H. S. Murphy of the state department of conservation and J. M. Hepler, assistant sanitary engineer for the state department of health met with the village council of that city last Thursday evening to discuss the sewage disposal problem which has arisen as a result of the 1927 state legislature's action in ordering installation of disposal equipment to protect Michigan's lakes and rivers from pollution.

The purpose of the visit of this joint commission, representing three departments of state government, was to obtain a report from the local authorities regarding the status of their plans for a plant there, to announce official approval of the recommendations submitted by the engineer employed by this village to make a survey of the local disposal requirements, and to urge early action looking toward consummation of the project.

The city of Charlevoix is up against this same problem, which without doubt will be settled during the coming season.

CHARLEVOIX LOSES TO FAST GAYLORD OUTFIT

Visitors Scored 7 Points in Third Period to Cinch Game

Gaylord's high school lanky basketballers, displaying a good brand of team work defeated Charlevoix high school in the home gym last Friday evening 19 to 11.

Charlevoix seemed unable to get going during the first half of the game and were trailing the visitors by quite a margin as the period ended. Charlevoix made a determined effort during the third quarter and in the final few minutes of this period came within one point of tying the count. Gaylord blanked the home team during the fourth quarter and at the same time gathered 7 points for themselves.

Fitzpatrick with 9 points and Denning with 6 points were the high point men for the Gaylord team. Ellsworth comes here for their return game with the home team Friday night. Ellsworth beat the locals on their home court before Christmas and the Red and White are out for revenge. The visitors bring a fast, snappy playing team here and the contest should be a good one.

The Congregational Ladies Aid will serve a six o'clock supper at the church parlors on Wednesday, February 8th, in charge of the Brewster Circle.—Adv. 5-11.

PROMINENT RESORTER IS DEAD IN CHICAGO

J. R. Wineman Had Spent Many Summers in Charlevoix

Charlevoix loses a consistent booster and loyal backer in the death of J. R. Wineman, which occurred Thursday, January 26th, at the Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago.

Mr. Wineman, who had been making Charlevoix his summer home for a great many years, was identified either as instigator or sponsor in most every summer activity in this city. At the time of his death he was commodore of the Charlevoix Boat Club and an honorary life member of the Charlevoix Hospital advisory board. He was active in promoting and carrying on the activities of both of these organizations, besides taking a prominent part in Charlevoix's annual horse shows and other social functions.

Mr. Wineman was an ardent sportsman and spent a great deal of his time fishing. He will be greatly missed by Charlevoix people.

All kinds of candy and mechanical valentines to delight the kiddies and material for making valentines at the Holley Gift Shop.—Adv. 5-12.

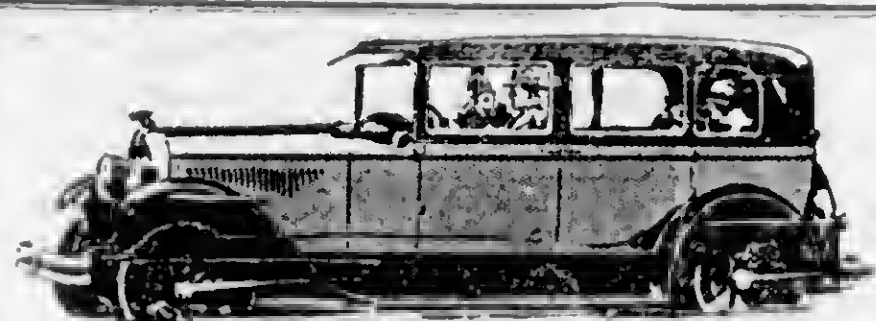

ICE HARVEST STARTED ON MONDAY THIS WEEK

Charlevoix's annual ice harvest started Monday morning, when Hoise & Yettaw, local operators, put a crew of men at work on Lake Charlevoix. Ice houses were nearly depleted of their supply on account of the long, warm fall last year, and this winter's harvest will probably take at least a month. When operations get under full swing 25 men and probably 20 teams will be employed.

expressed in a Motor Car

Step on the starter—let in the clutch—and you somehow know you're in a car that's different... Different in its silence, its smoothness and its snap. Different in the change of pace that sends you darting out through traffic. Different in the atmosphere of smartness which pervades its Fisher body... Different, yes... and something more. Color, youthfulness and personality. Speed, drive and action. The spirit of our breathless age expressed in a motor car... Expressed in All-American engineering—in a car of today for Americans of today—with everything that everybody wants!... The power, drive and sturdiness of a 212 cu. in. engine—the endurance of a longer, sturdier chassis, oversize in vital parts—the luxury of notable new features of design... We note an item from our Evening correspondent that the road between East Jordan and Charlevoix has been snow-plowed out through that district so that farmers may be enabled to drive their cars to East Jordan to do their trading. Charlevoix merchants would do well to look into this matter and see what could be done on roads out of this city other than the state trunk lines.

There seems to be some difficulty in convincing the editor of the Petoskey Evening News that Charlevoix's independent basketball team has adopted the name Polar Bears. After Charlevoix had taken this title for their winter sports club, hockey team and basketball team, Petoskey steps out and names their hockey team the Polar Bears. Probably they are reluctant to drop the title, but whatever the cause we might suggest they try something original once in a while. If they are unable to think up a name, Charlevoix might be able to suggest one. It looks like another case similar to "Oldwood Lodge, located a few miles south of Petoskey."

Alpena high school leads the class B contingent of northern Michigan with a perfect record for the season. Alpena won from Onaway last Friday night, 23 to 14, and ran her string of victories to six with no defeats. Harbor Springs leads class C with another perfect count, having won every Northern Michigan territory battle, even defeating Petoskey of class B. Harbor's only loss was to Bay City Central of the Saginaw Valley circuit. This loss does not count against her Northern Michigan record. Manistee, Petoskey, Traverse City, Cadillac, Boyne City, East Jordan, Cheboygan, Pellston, Ellsworth, Alba, Gaylord, Onaway, Charlevoix and other schools have been defeated.

CADILLAC CARNIVAL STARTS ON SATURDAY

Northern Michigan People Invited to Big Event

Cadillac after having been forced to give up its recently announced Winter Sports program on account of the non-arrival of snow, is at last able to announce a full Winter Sports program which will take place the coming Saturday afternoon.

Big crowds are anticipated and a full list of Winter Sports activities will be indulged in, including fast riding on the new toboggan slides, skiing, snowshoeing, skating, curling, ski-joring (roeing horses on skis) and sports will also take place on Lake Cadillac, featuring some fast skating.

Arrangements have been made by the Cadillac Winter Sports Association to have a large moving picture organization during the afternoon to take moving pictures of all events, which will be shown in the moving picture houses of Michigan and adjoining states.

Selling the Cadillac district to people of this section before urging those from the larger cities to participate in Northern Michigan's natural winter resources is the aim and motive back of Saturday's big event.

The major portion of the events will be held in the Diggins Park, which is made up largely of one of the largest hills in Northern Michigan. The entire program is to be free and C. R. Smith, secretary of the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce, and President Dr. J. F. Carrow of the Winter Sports Association, are extending cordial invitations to everyone in Northern Michigan to attend.

RESOLUTIONS--

A great many resolutions to save money are ineffective because they have no plan. The effort is not organized. There is no definite structure in the builder's mind. And so the thrift resolution fails.

Why not decide upon a certain goal, a certain amount, a certain object. Make up your mind the proportion you are going to put away out of your money as it comes to you. Then put that portion into this strong bank as soon as you get it—before you spend it—and you have started on a plan that will mean much to you in future years.

Strength, courtesy, the highest interest rate consistent with safety,—these make this bank the practical one for you to use.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

"What do they advise? An orphan for adoption, or a husband for attachment?"

"Heaven knows. But anyhow I shouldn't live alone." She laughed pleasantly. "Good-by. I say it with sorrow, for you seem almost one of my own."

He held out his hand, and Gay dropped hers in it.

"Good-by. The best of luck to you. For myself I wish no better luck than the joy of seeing you again."

"Now, now," she reproved him, smiling. "Don't flatter. Consider this ately place, the rugged coast and the surging surf. Flattery doesn't go with the Good Little Island."

"It doesn't go with you, either. I assure you I mean every word of it. Come soon, good luck. Good-by."

Gay walked toward the Lone Pine smiling. He was pleasant. It had been nice, the momentary contact with one of her own kind. But the smiles died on her lips as she turned the door of the Lone Pine. The house seemed still, big, empty. Very still. The stillness was like death.

Gay thought of the sea-washed body with pale gleaming hands hung out beneath the waves, and shuddered. She did not look at the drawing on the first page of her sketch book, but thrust the pad quickly into the drawer of the desk and closed it tight.

She grew increasingly ill at ease as she approached the door. A sudden impulse, at last went out, quickly, ran down the hill and called to Aunt Almira.

"Won't you keep a poor timid nervous old maid all night?" she asked pleadingly. "I don't want to stay alone. I've got the—you know—heehee heehee! My house is haunted. I'm afraid of ghosts, and things. Do you think it was just a ghost, Aunt Almira?"

Aunt Almira gave her a cozy chair and made her a cup of tea. That was Aunt Almira's unfailing resource in case of pervers.

"Now drink your tea, dearie, and don't say a word about it. We'll have a nice cozy evening, just like a party."

She was evidently determined to soothe Gay, determined to humor her, keep her quiet. She peered her, talked pleasantly of inane and pleasant things.

When at last they made ready to retire for the night, she said Gay should have the solitary bed, and she herself would sleep on the couch.

"She's afraid of me, I do believe," Gay thought to herself. "She wants the room between us, in case I turn violent." Her lips twitched with amusement at the thought as she crept between the white covers.

Aunt Almira turned out the lights, and went about the room from window to window raising the blinds. When she came to the window that showed the Lone Pine at the top of the hill she gave a sudden little exclamation.

"Did you leave a light on?" she asked.

"No!" With a bound Gay was out of bed and at her side by the window, both staring up the hill at the cottage. From the wide window of the living room there showed a round circle of misty light, pale, wavering and uncertain, but a light.

"It's no earthly light," Gay said moodily. "It's a ghost. I tell you, Aunt Almira, the spirits are abroad this night. Say what you like, queer things are going on. I feel it. I am all creepy, and—oh, look! Oh, it is the hand!" Oh!

Her voice sank away breathlessly. Watching, suddenly outlined in the misty orb of light had been the reflection of a hand, reaching out, all in shadow and ghastly.

"Oh," Gay murmured sickly, "oh, it is his hand!"

Aunt Almira was shaken. Her arm beneath Gay's hand trembled. But she was firm. She did not believe in ghosts.

"I saw it," she said weakly. "It was just the reflection of a leaf, or a spray of twigs, moving in the wind. Look, it is gone. There is no light, there is no hand. It was the light from a boat reflecting against the leaves. Just a reflection, dearie. They often fool me."

"Have it your own way," Gay said moodily. "Call it a leaf if you like. I call it a hand, his hand."

"I think—maybe—I will sleep with you," Aunt Almira said faintly.

Gay laughed then, and squeezed the little figure gayly as she clambered into bed beside her.

"You'd rather take a chance on me turning violent, than be by yourself when the spirits walk, wouldn't you?" she teased.

"You shouldn't say such things. I'm not violent."

They arose early, and after a quiet breakfast Gay kissed Aunt Almira, thanked her and set out for home. Aunt Almira offered to go with her, but she refused, bravely smiling.

"Oh, no. I am not afraid now it is daylight. Spirits are all nicely back in their snug little graves again."

She went up to the cottage, unlocked the door and entered the room. Over it lay the quiet little bush that was not afraid. Even when she saw that the window shades in the living room were lowered to the bottom, she was not afraid.

"I didn't pull them down," she said, aloud, "because I went out before dark. Oh, well! Perhaps I did it from habit, without thinking. Heaven knows I had other things on my mind."

She sat down at once to her desk. It was her plan to go to the city on the first boat, to relieve herself of all responsibility in this matter. And then, suddenly, she decided that she would not go at all, but write instead.

She would describe the entire incident to the last detail, enclose her sketch, and that would be an end of it. She reached into the drawer and pulled out paper, envelopes and her sketching pad. To measure for the size of envelope, she opened the pad to remove the drawing. The page that met her eyes was virginal and white, no pencil line to mar its purity. Gay turned the pad about in her hand, studying it slowly, and then she turned every page, one after the other, and examined every one.

The page had been neatly extracted from the book, and her penciled sketch of the scene in the cove was not there.

Its disappearance settled the affair of the Little Cove as far as Gay was concerned. With nothing to substantiate her seemingly wild story, she felt the less said of it the better. Gay knew, however, that she was the subject of endless discussion, endless neighborhood wit, in her absence, and for a few days she confined herself as largely as possible to the seclusion of her cottage.

One afternoon, perhaps a week after her discovery and betrayal in the cove, thing and only of her work, she showed the easel into the corner and decided to clean house. Hastily she huddled her slim knickered figure into a great hunched-up apron that made a fat and stodgy housewife of her, twisted a bright silken scarf turbanwise about her small head and fell to work. She dusted, she swept, she rearranged. With brush and pan in hand, she was on her knees at the fireplace, coughing distastefully with the dust of ashes as she cleared out the clinders of last night's driftwood, when suddenly a hand slipped beneath her chin from behind, lifting her head backward, while two firm lips pressed down on hers from above, pressed firmly, warmly, for one long breathless moment.

And then a tremendous, electrifying silence. Gay dropped pan and brush among the ashes and stood up, very tall, very businesslike even with the huge apron hulkily enveloping her, deeply outraged. The man who stood before her, in a silence as great, an amazement as profound as her own, was one she had never seen before, nor seen his like before, she knew at once. Travel-worn boots, his worn, travel-worn knickered, bareheaded, his blond hair, a little tousled, showed sheen. But in that first glance it was really his eyes she saw, eyes dark and gray, with little incoherent glint that shone through his amethyst, gray eyes beneath black lashes, thick and long, that curled upward, veiling the gray with black.

Amusement soon supplanted the astonishment in his face, amusement and interest. His sang froid was perfect.

"Pleased to meet you," he said, with a smugly deferential inclination of the bare and sunburned head.

"So it seems," Gay's voice and eyes were frigid.

"Who art thou, pretty maiden, and where, may I inquire, is the revered and venerable Aunt Almira who one time made this her home?"

"She is here, in the Apples Tree now I live here. Will you sit down?" she asked very formally, and took off the great hunched-up apron.

The daring gray eyes explored the revelation of her, slim and straight in the stout shoes, the smart knickered, and the silken blouse; came to rest contentedly on the sleek, dark, proud little head.

"You don't live alone, do you?" he asked with interest.

"Yes, I do." Gay's voice was curt with the defiance she felt in defense of her lone estate. "I live alone, and I like it, and I am not afraid. I know it makes women folks queer, and it's not accordi' to nature, but I do, and if it suits me, there's an end of it."

"I don't think you're real," he said, wishing me to sit and hear the report of the island," he said thoughtfully, "and I put them off. I should have wanted. I fancy they had news of vast import."

"Yes, they did. And most of it is about me. I know who you are," she said, smilingly. "You are Rand. Are you not?" Her smile was very warm indeed in joy of her discovery.

He shivered slightly, covered "the dark eyes with his hand. "Danger. My prophetic sense says danger," he whispered.

"Every one has been saying, 'When Rand comes home, and now you have come. The boys wanted the old pier to make a boat for swimming, and they said, 'When Rand comes home, he'll dynamite it, and we'll salvage the remains.' And when the summer people wanted to tear down the old fishing shack to make a place to launch their boats, the natives frowned upon them, but everybody said to everybody else, 'Wait till Rand comes, he'll burn it down.'"

"There you have me in a nutshell. The island dynamiter, burner and bomber. Go! anybody you want blown up? Rand's home."

"Rand who?" she asked. Gay was amazed, that having heard the words a hundred times. "When Rand comes home," she had never felt sufficient interest to inquire. "And who is Rand?" Many times again would Gay have heard those words, but never again without a thrill of personal interest, hope and joy.

"Rand Wallace."

"Oh, you're another Wallace."

"I am not only another Wallace, I am a whole section of them. The Wallaces run in branches. I'm the third branch. All the other branches dwindle off into noses and aunts, and nephews, sons and cousins. But I'm a whole series all by myself. It's quite a distinction."

Gay laughed as she pressed the electric button that turned the heat into her tea kettle.

"We'll have a party," she said. "We're so glad Rand's home. And while we're waiting for the water to boil—tell me, where does your series fit into the tout ensemble of House Wallace?"

Gay laughed as she pressed the electric button that turned the heat into her tea kettle.

"We'll have a party," she said. "We're so glad Rand's home. And while we're waiting for the water to boil—tell me, where does your series fit into the tout ensemble of House Wallace?"

Randolph Wallace's version of the family history, a very facetious, slip-

"Yes, dad," replied Nelson, "and when he was your age he was president of the United States."

See you next week.

Lois Wilson Gets Aid From Expert

You wouldn't believe it of the heroine of "French Dressing," which comes to the Palace Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday for a run of two days, but she had her first make-up put on by Lon Chaney.

Lois Wilson, adored by millions, and who has never been photographed more beautifully than by Ernest Haller, the cameraman of this picture, had her first movie job at Universal Studio. She was so inexperienced that she didn't know how to put on her make-up. Lon Chaney, then working on the lot, came to her rescue, and put on the grease paint for her.

H. B. Warner, Olive Brook, and Lilyan Tashman are also in the cast of "French Dressing."

Carnival Parade Made Big Hit—Skiing Races Monday Night
Drew Large Entry

Charlevoix's 3rd annual winter carnival got under way last Thursday afternoon with the annual winter carnival parade, the first event of its kind ever staged in Northern Michigan.

Led by a drum corps decked out in which costumes, devotees of skiing, tobogganing, ski-joring and skating paraded down Bridge street, up Park avenue to State street, down State street to Antrim street and back to Bridge street. Just what nationality the drum corps was supposed to represent is still a mystery, but nevertheless Charles Marshall, Morritt Miller, Frank Bird and George Roderick, leader, "took the cake" for originality in make-up. Spark Plug of Sunday comic-page fame, put in his appearance with Louis O'Neil as driver. The famous horse showed evidence of considerable training, for at a word from his master he danced the Charleston and pulled off a number of comical stunts. Another original feature was a sleigh load of four young girls dressed in white hunting to represent Polar Bear cubs.

Following the parade, the afternoon was spent in sports at Mt. McSaubia. Petoskey copped the hockey game, the main event of the evening program by defeating the Charlevoix Polar Bears 8 to 0. Joe Rautin and Don Golden, Petoskey forwards, were too fast for the local boys and to them fell the credit of making most of the victor's goals.

George Bergman led the field to win the cross country ski race for boys Friday afternoon. The ski race for girls Saturday morning was won by Janet Livingston. On account of Saturday's thaw, the hockey game between Charlevoix and Petoskey high school teams was postponed. Sunday afternoon the Petoskey winter sports club and the Charlevoix Polar Bears battled to a 1 to 1 tie before a large crowd of spectators.

Monday evening's program of skating races at the school rink drew out a big crowd of spectators and a large number of entries. Results of the contest follow: Boys under 11 years, John Winder 1st; Frank Smith 2nd. Girls under 12 years, Bernice Lamphear 1st; Janet Livingston 2nd. Boys 12 to 15 years, George Bergman 1st; David Livingston 2nd. Girl's free-for-all—Catherine Edyvea, Petoskey, 1st; Francis Marshall 2nd. Men's free-for-all—John Shmrow 1st; "Bud" Gill 2nd. Tuesday's program was cancelled on account of rain. Events for the remaining carnival days have been posted throughout the town. Thursday afternoon's program of ski-joring races on Lake Charlevoix should prove a big attraction as should also the events scheduled on the days following. Festivities will close on Monday, February 13, with the annual ski tournament at Mt. McSaubia ski jump.

FAMILY NIGHT HELD AT A. EDWARDS HOME

M. E. Missionary Societies Have Regular Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the missionary societies of the Methodist Episcopal church was held Wednesday, February 1st, with Mrs. Arthur Edwards. The old-fashioned sleigh ride lured the older ones as well as the children.

An interesting program had been arranged for the afternoon. Rev. and Mrs. Lockyer rendered a beautiful vocal duet, accompanied by Mrs. Belding. The lesson review was given by Mrs. Charles Arnold. A vocal solo by Mrs. L. W. Wakeman, accompanied by Mrs. McMillan, was enjoyed by all. The Mystery Box was put over with more enthusiasm than usual.

Families of the members gathered for a six o'clock supper with about fifty in attendance. A birthday cake with candles was the surprise for Mrs. Jolliffe. All departed for home with the hope that they might meet with Mr. and Mrs. Edwards again.

SIX MORE WEEKS OF COLD WEATHER

Woodchucks Celebrate Candlemas Festival and Return to Nest

Michigan Woodchucks celebrated their festive candlemas last Thursday by coming out from under a white blanket, shaking the snow out of their whiskers and looking for their shadows.

In most sections of the state, the shadows were light gray, and hazy, but in Charlevoix the shadows were distinct enough to send the little groundhogs back into the ground for another six weeks of hibernation.

Observers of this annual manifestation said there appeared to be some hesitation on the part of a few groundhogs. They seemed to be content for a while to sit around in small groups telling each other their winter dreams. At intervals they would glance about auspiciously, uncertain whether their shadows were sufficiently distinct to send them back to their burrows.

Then, one by one, the meetings broke up and it was estimated that every last woodchuck retired again and that most sections of the state would experience at least six more weeks of winter.

REO AND WHITE BEAT ELLSWORTH

REVENGE EARLY SEASON DEFEAT BY 14 TO 8 SCORE

Beaudoin's Addition to Team Adds Strength to Offense—Pellston Here on Friday

Charlevoix high school took revenge for a pre-holiday defeat at the hands of Ellsworth when they headed this fast-traveling five a 14 to 8 trimming in the local gym last Friday evening.

Lyle Beaudoin, who had been ineligible according to the state ruling up until the semester examinations, was the outstanding star for the Red and White. His fast foot work and deadly shooting accounted for 7 points and greatly bolstered the offensive strength of the team. Dick Marshall and Billy Novak in addition to doing some good defensive work, garnered the other 7 points. Johnny Williams and Max Novak, guards, had the famed Peebles completely stopped, allowing him only two baskets during the entire game. Vic Smith, freshman member of the squad, made a good account for himself when he replaced Beaudoin, after the latter had gone out on foals.

The game was close-fought throughout. Charlevoix led 7 to 6 at the half and the third quarter ended in a tie score, 7 to 7. The locals held Ellsworth to a single point during the final period, while making 7 for themselves.

The line-up:

Charlevoix	Ellsworth
B. Novak	Rood
Marshall	Young
Beaudoin	Dyke
M. Novak	Peebles
Williams	Kloster
	VanderArk

Charlevoix's second team, under the leadership of Mr. Coleman, won from Boyne City last Friday night in a close game 14 to 13. Billy Supernaw scored 8 points for the home team.

Charlevoix basketball fans will be treated to a double-header on Friday evening of this week when Charlevoix high school tangles with the lucky Pellston five and Charlevoix Polar Bears entertain independent basketballers on the home court. The first contest is to be called at 7:30 sharp and admission prices are to remain the same as at previous games.

PETOSKEY'S CARNIVAL NEXT WEEK

TWO-DAY PROGRAM SET FOR FEBRUARY 14 AND 15

Governor Green and Officials to Be Present—College Hockey Game Wednesday

Petoskey is preparing to entertain distinguished guests on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week on the occasion of her first annual Mid-winter Sports Carnival. Gov. Fred. W. Green will be Petoskey's guest for two days and other prominent Michigan officials and sportsmen are expected.

The event, although staged by the Petoskey Winter club, is not to be merely a city event, but will include the entire region. Tuesday, February 14, is to be "Governor's Day" and it is believed no other town in Michigan will have such a celebration to honor the state's chief executive. All day long there will be events in which he will participate, while at noon he will be the guest of the Kiwanis club for luncheon and in the evening the guests of the region at a great "governor's hall" at the high school gymnasium. All manner of winter activities are listed with handsome cash rewards.

Wednesday will be College Day and the hockey teams from Michigan Tech. at Houghton and Michigan State College at East Lansing will clash at Petoskey's new hockey rink at the high school stadium. The first college hockey game in Northern Michigan will be played in the afternoon, and if the weather is favorable it is believed the crowd will number between two and three thousand fans. The stadium will be open and seats provided at both ends of the south side of the new rink. The game will be a regular one and count on the two college schedules of games won and lost for the season. Michigan State recently won from the University of Michigan while Mich. Tech. won from several powerful Western college teams. Hockey is declared the fastest outdoor sport.

Cash prizes will go to the winner of ski jumping contests, tobogganing races, ski running races, snow shoe racing and handicap races, dog team racing, dog sled races, ox sled racing, long and short skating events, and coasting races down Mitchell street.

Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Traverse City and other places will send teams of ski jumpers and racers. The Charlevoix club leaders have offered to assist in every way possible in staging the event. Following their successful week of events they have numerous experienced men who will aid the Petoskey committees. Dog teams will come from Cross Village, Charlevoix, St. Ignace, Cheboygan and other places. Ski jumpers also will come from nearly every city and town. The coasting race will probably be between the largest pairs of bobs from Charlevoix and Petoskey. Then in addition to all these events on land there will be ice boating on Little Traverse Bay. Harbor Springs sends word her splendid fleet will be ready and other boats will come from Charlevoix and surrounding towns.

Closed Monday, February 13. In observance of Lincoln's birthday, Monday, February 13, the banks of Charlevoix will be closed during the entire day. Charlevoix County Bank. Charlevoix State Savings Bank.—Adv. 6-11.

EAST JORDAN HAS FINE NEW FIRE TRUCK

New Outfit Is Last Word in Fire Fighting Equipment

The big new East Jordan fire truck, which was delivered last week, will give East Jordan and vicinity the latest equipment in fire fighting apparatus.

The equipment is mounted on a large chassis and includes two 170-gallon chemical tanks with a 100-gallon booster tank and a 500-gallon capacity motor-driven pump. It will carry 1,500 feet of hose. The truck is a community affair, being owned by East Jordan and the surrounding townships of Eveline, South Arm, Wilson, Jordan and Baika.

The city has just completed numerous improvements at the fire hall there, which include a new steam heating plant and new club rooms for use of the men of the department. W. E. Malpass is the present fire chief. The company meets twice a month for instruction and drill. The truck, while coming up the state from the factory, displayed a banner with this slogan printed thereon: "Lakes and Streams, Sportsmen's Dreams—East Jordan."

The new equipment was used here for demonstration purposes Saturday.

LECTURE COURSE NUMBER FEB. 17

ENTERTAINMENT WILL BE AT NEW GYMNASIUM

Dumond Concert Company Appears in Varied Program of Musical Numbers

The next number on the local lecture course will be given at the new Charlevoix gymnasium on Friday evening, February 17. The well-known Dumond Concert Company has been secured with a notable program featuring the musical play "Stephen Foster."

This company is composed of three very interesting artists. For five years they have been singing in the company together, and their ensemble work is smooth, perfect and extraordinarily pleasing.

Joe Dumond, who heads the company, is a well-known concert artist. He has a beautiful baritone voice and is the composer of many favorite songs.

Irene Dumond, contralto and pianist, is a graceful and charming artist of music distinction. As the old-fashioned sweetheart in pink hooped gown and demure little bonnet, she might have stepped from a lace-paper valentine.

The third member of this company, Ralph Gram, is a splendid bass singer. He has, moreover, priceless sense of comedy.

The program is distinctly novel. The feature is the presentation of the play "Stephen Foster," a vitally interesting drama based on the life of the great American composer who gave to the world such beloved ballads as Swanee River, Old Black Joe and My Old Kentucky Home. In the costumes and settings of the ante bellum period, a vivid picture is given of the young Stephen Foster, his mother and his home.

Another part of the program is given over to varied instrumental and vocal selections. Costumed song presentations, ranging from side-splitting comedy numbers to selections of haunting love-lies are notable.

DR. C. J. WINDER TO LOCATE HERE

WILL OPEN DENTAL OFFICES IN BRINKRANT BLOCK

Dr. Winder Has Been Prominent in Fraternal and Civic Circles at Eaton Rapids

The Courier is pleased to announce that Dr. C. J. Winder, who, for the past eight years has enjoyed a large dental practice in Eaton Rapids, will locate permanently in Charlevoix. He has taken a suite of rooms in the Brinkrant building at the corner of Bridge street and Park avenue and left here Monday for New York to purchase new equipment for his office.

The following article, furnished by M. J. Martin, editor of the Eaton Rapids Journal, expresses the esteem in which Dr. Winder and family are held by residents of that city:

"Dr. C. J. Winder sprung a decided surprise at the Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday noon in introducing his guest, Dr. J. R. Maxey, of Manitowish, Wisconsin. He announced that Dr. Maxey is to take over his dental practice here starting February 1. The deal was completed last Friday. Dr. Winder plans to leave almost immediately for Charlevoix where he expects to continue his dental practice. He will purchase entirely new equipment for his office there, inasmuch as Dr. Maxey takes the office here as it stands.

During his eight years stay in Eaton Rapids, Dr. Winder has taken a prominent part in civic affairs. He served on the board of education for two terms, during the period the new high school was erected; was a member of the board of the Methodist church for many years; and was the first vice-president of the Kiwanis club when its charter was granted here. At the present time he is Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias. He has also held offices in different Masonic bodies. For six years he acted as a dentist at the Michigan state prison at Jackson.

Mrs. Winder has been prominent in club and Masonic work in the city, and was president of the History club for one term. Dr. and Mrs. Winder state that they regret to leave Eaton Rapids, where they have made many friends, and they will always consider the city as home. Both of their older children, Paul, now a medical student at the University of Michigan, and Evelyn, recently wedded to Mr. Chris Davidson, were graduated from the local high school, and in many ways the family has associations that will be regretfully severed.

Dr. Winder owns a hotel at Charlevoix which his wife is managing. The doctor feels that by living there he can better look after his business interests. He will be in Eaton Rapids for a few weeks yet straightening up his affairs.

Dr. Maxey, who takes over the practice, is reported to be very capable, according to Dr. Winder, and one who stands high in the dental profession."

GLENN WILLIS DIED AT BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Was Ill Less Than a Day With Acute Pneumonia

Relatives and friends were greatly shocked to learn of the death of Glenn Willis, farm Charlevoix boy, who died in the Coney Island hospital, Brooklyn, New York, last Thursday evening. He was taken to the hospital at 3 o'clock that morning where all possible efforts were made to save him from the attack of pneumonia with which he was so suddenly afflicted.

Glenn Willis was born in Lansing, June 22, 1900 and was 27 years old at time of death. He came here with his parents when an infant. He was educated in the Charlevoix public schools and grew to manhood in this city. In October, 1922, Mr. Willis was married to Miss Dorothy Black and soon afterwards the couple took up their residence in the east. Surviving are his wife and son, Glenn, Jr., age 4; his father, George Willis and brother, James, both of Brooklyn, also one sister, Mrs. Pearl Stone of Detroit.

The remains were brought to Charlevoix, arriving here Tuesday afternoon. Funeral services were held at the Brookside chapel, Rev. John Lockyer officiating. Interment will be in Brookside cemetery.

The average politician thinks there is a lot of "pop" in newspapers.

The committee in charge of the program to be given on the 22nd of February, is making rapid progress and we are now looking forward for fair weather for the occasion.

When the two small children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kirby were throwing wood into a woodshed Saturday, the small boy, Nelson, accidentally struck his sister, Beatrice in the forehead. The injury gave her parents quite a scare, but there were no serious results.

Kenneth Pierce narrowly escaped serious injury last Sunday when his glove became entangled in the mechanism of a water pump while he was starting the engine. He was drawn to the top of the pump house and was unconscious when he fell. Some of his boy friends who had just come for a call found him in this condition and assisted him to the house. Outside of a lame arm he was not otherwise injured.

Are You Overdoing?

Overwork Throws a Heavy Burden on the Kidneys.

OVERWORK, rich foods and stimulating drinks put extra burdens on our kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, impurities remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning is scanty or burning secretions.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increases the secretion of the kidneys and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Ralph Davis, formerly of Ellsworth and Phelps, writes us that he has decided to make Greenville, N. C., his home, having purchased a fruit farm of 157 acres at a consideration of $20,000.00. Mr. Davis expects to market 10,000 bushels of apples this coming year, besides other small fruit. We feel quite sure that later on he will see his mistake by not purchasing a certain farm near Atwood, Michigan, where they grow "fruit with flavor." Mr. Davis takes the Charlevoix Courier.

Good-bye Ralph—your many friends wish you success.

Those attending the L. A. S. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons last Thursday were Mr. and Mrs. John Farrell, their daughter, Eva, Earl Farrell and wife, Mrs. Charles Beush, Mrs. Johnson, Mr. Albert Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Henry, Mr. and Mrs. F. CHAPTER IV—Continued.

"Your voice, except that it has some expressiveness, is rather staid of Maine," Gay said thoughtfully. "But you do not seem like the others. You are different."

"My father committed a faux pas," he confessed. "He married an actress from New York who was up here with the actors' summer colony one year. I," he said slowly, "I am the combustion that results from the union of Manhattan and the state of Maine.—It has been a warning to the whole state," he added modestly.

"Your parents—" Gay prompted, enthralled with his blipant tale.

"We were all out in a boat together. I can sort of remember it, though I was a baby. Sudden squall—boat went over—strange, isn't it? They were both strong, able-bodied, good swimmers, used to the sea. I was a baby, but I floated ashore in my mother's arms. She was dead, my father was dead. But I came home."

"Oh, that is very sad," Gay's eyes had darkened with her ready sympathy, her slim hands twisted together.

He smiled at her. To hide her sudden emotion, Gay turned quickly to the serving of tea.

But her desire for information about this surprising person was limitless. She wanted to know about his education, where he had gone to school.

The grammar grades in the island schoolhouse, it seemed, he had persisted doggedly through, and took a great deal of quiet satisfaction in explaining that the three missing bricks beneath the window on the southeast corner had been removed by his own hands at the age of nine years, to facilitate his departure from the seat of learning when the teacher reached for the well-known educational birch branch. The entire high school course he had encompassed, if not with honor, at least without serious mishap, in the city of Portland.

"And then, darned if I didn't go to college," he told her. "But don't blame me. I had to go. My late lamented Grandfather Wallace put it into his will that I couldn't inherit until I went to college. Left me an infant in arms, as you might say, the arms of a guardian. Guess who? The administrator, darn her. That's what got her so stuck on administrating, she did such a good job with me."

"It wouldn't hurt you to go to college."

"Going to college would be ample enough. I had to go through—I did. Bowdoin. I hated to go there. I was afraid I'd turn out a poet. I thought it was required for graduation. But Grump was dead set on Bowdoin. Well, I went. It did me no harm. I've never even written verse since. Though sometimes I feel it come over me all of a sudden—I feel it now when I look at you."

Gay frowned at him, but he smiled disarmingly. His was a pleasant smile. His lips were thin, their curve half-cynical, half-humorous, very sensitive. The vaulted mustache was but a shadowy outlining fringe. His skin had been fair no doubt, save for the rich coat of tan that covered him. His hands were hard and brown, small for their strength, smaller than her own, she noticed quickly.

When he said at last, reluctantly, that he must go and see Aunt Almira she went with him to the door.

"Come again," she told him pleasantly; "come often."

"I feel myself slipping," he said suddenly, "slipping. However, I am no coward. I'll come."

Later in the evening, Gay went down to the Pier grocery store. On every lip was the laughing word, "Maine's home." But whereas before she had taken no notice, now she experienced acute interest, paused breathlessly at the name, and drank in every word that fell from native lips on the subject of Randolph Wallace. The combination of the union between Manhattan and the state of Maine was not entirely approved on the island, she gathered, but altogether loved, although the island never openly acknowledges its loves.

As the dusk fell she went out, alone, untroubled into the little whispering forest, and walked up and down, slowly, deep in thought. The island seemed changed to her, warmer, softer. She felt vaguely troubled, vaguely pleased, strangely stirred. When her thoughts turned to the amazing young man and her surprising encounter with him her lips curved into tremulous smiles and her eyes brightened with pleased expectancy. She shook her head at herself warningly. She was not deceived. She knew these symptoms. She liked him feared them also.

For the first time, the practical boyishness of her costume was distasteful to her, and when she got up on the morning after Rand's return, for the first time since she came to the island she discarded her knickers and slithered shirt. Half ashamed of the instinct that prompted her, but none the less obedient to its bidding, she took from her trunk a costume that was one of her chief treasures, a studio pajama suit, patterned after an improved Japanese style, all in black and fairly blue, the trousers long and wide, the coat, which was really an over-blower reacting to the knees, richly embroidered, all soft lines and delicate curves. With dainty blue and gold slippers and sheer stilet hose, it was a delectable studio conception, designed for theatrical effect, inspired for the enravishment of an audience.

Gay changed her case, considering now not so much the allowance of good light for her work as unobstructed view for herself, and sat where, by the slightest turn of her eyes she could command the entire slope to the orchard below, and the lane that led from the pier to the Captain's house. Whoever ventured forth, must pass that way.

At ten minutes to eleven he came down hastily and crossed into the orchard. Gay leaned forward. Did he turn left to the Apple Tree? No, straight toward the Lone Pine he made his way. Once he stopped to pick and taste and, low away a little green apple. Again he paused, to answer the eager calls of the boys at the pier. But he came on.

He came to a sudden halt outside the window, and stood a moment, spellbound. She looked up, then, and smiled.

"You are blotting out my sunshine," she said.

"I fondly hoped that I was bringing it," he returned impudently. "Don't get up. I always come right in."

He suited action to his words, and came and sat in the window-seat close to her elbow. Gay turned about in her chair and regarded him pleasantly.

"Is Aunt Almira here?" he asked apologetically.

"No, she isn't. Isn't she at the Apple Tree?"

"Well, I didn't really stop to see. I thought I'd better inquire here first. So she isn't here. Dear, dear, all that long walk for nothing."

"Not for nothing. I am just going to have my breakfast, and you still have coffee with me."

Without moving from her chair, Gay swung up a wide tray that hung to the wall, and connected the electric toaster.

As she gave him a coffee (Continued on Page 7)

CREDIT—AND BUSINESS

Each year credit is becoming more and more important as a factor in business. From the greatest industry on down the line to the man who uses his credit to buy his weekly grocery needs, credit is a factor of dominating interest to one and all.

Naturally, when a certain business activity becomes a part and parcel of our own daily life, we are interested in knowing as much as possible about it.

Of first importance to each of us, whether we are in the habit of making daily use of our credit, is the maintaining of our credit rating upon the highest plane.

When we will find it necessary to make use of our credit is not always known—the occasion may arise almost at a moment's notice. Then if we have taken the precaution to maintain our credit, we find our fellow townsmen glad to aid us in every way they can.

Tell you what, folks, it certainly pays to keep your credit "giltedged."

MOTORIST OF 91 DRIVES OAKLAND

Compares Slow Ox-Team Travel With Modern Traffic

Ninety-one years old and still driving an automobile! Alden Ward Chase, a resident of White Pigeon, Mich., who says he will still be driving a car nine years from now when he attains the century mark, is a surprisingly spry and alert exponent of "keeping up with the times."

The hand that 80 years ago snapped a bull whip during an ox-team trek from Indiana to Michigan has acquired and retained the art of guiding a motor car in modern traffic. He was 82 years old when he obtained his first driver's license and proudly exhibits the documents to anyone who may question his age.

In the last four years he has driven his Oakland touring car a distance of 13,000 miles. During a recent visit to Detroit he borrowed an All-American Sport Roadster and drove it around for an hour "just to see whether they still make 'em as good as my old car."

"When I came to Michigan by ox-team, ten miles a day was good traveling," he said. "Now we toot off the center of the road if they loaf along at ten miles an hour. The modern 'covered wagon' is fine—but for a real 'kick' I like the open car best. I was brought up on fresh air and I never got over the fresh air habit."

W. L. DARLING ANSWERS FINAL CALL

Prominent Business Man and Long Time Resident Passes Away

W. L. Darling, prominent business man, a highly respected citizen and a resident of Central Lake for better than thirty-five years, passed away at his home in Central Lake Sunday morning, January 29, following an illness of three years' duration. Tuberculosis was given as being the cause of his death and sickness.

Wilfred Leroy Darling, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Darling was born in Mancelona, Antrim county, Michigan, December 2, 1882. When about ten years of age, he accompanied his parents to Central Lake where they took up their residence.

In 1907 Mr. Darling operated a laundry in Central Lake and in March the same year suffered a fire loss and then went to Charlevoix where he opened up a laundry known for years as the Troy Laundry.

In March 1907, Mr. Darling was united in marriage to Miss Vera Hicks of Sparta. In August of the same year, Mrs. Darling passed away. Mr. Darling was married to Miss Alice Ballard of Cadillac in May, 1911. To this union were born three children, namely: Paul, Ruth and Doris.

Mr. Darling operated the Troy laundry in Charlevoix for about ten years and in 1916 returned to Central Lake where he has since resided. About five years ago Mr. Darling engaged in the grocery business here and conducted the same until health failed him three years ago. The store has since been operated by his wife who has carried on the business very successfully.

Mr. Darling was prominent in fraternal circles, he being a member of the local Central Lake lodge No. 476, I.O.O.F. and was also a member of the local Congregational church.

He leaves to mourn, his wife, the three children and his father and mother besides a host of friends, who deeply mourn his departure. The family has the sincere sympathy of the Torch and the entire community.

BEAVER ISLAND MAIL IS STARTED

Three Sleigh Outfits Make Crossing From St. James Friday

After a delay of many weeks, due to winter weather and storms which made crossing impossible, three one-horse sleigh outfits have crossed from Beaver Island to Cross Village with mail and passengers.

During the cold period the islands are almost cut off from the outside world, except for the radio and the single telephone line. After the December storms halt the trips of the boat from Charlevoix to St. James there is a long wait until the ice forms in upper Lake Michigan solid enough to support horse outfits and men for the crossing.

The distance airline between St. James, capital of the islands, to Cross Village, the nearest mainland port, is 25 miles. However, the teams usually make a long trip skirting the islands to the north and crossing near Temperance point and down the shore line to the village.

RESOLUTIONS--

A great many resolutions to save money are ineffective because they have no plan. The effort is not organized. There is no definite structure in the builder's mind. And so the thrift resolution fails.

Why not decide upon a certain goal, a certain amount, a certain object. Make up your mind the proportion you are going to put away out of your money as it comes to you. Then put that portion into this strong bank as soon as you get it—before you spend it—and you have started on a plan that will mean much to you in future years.

Strength, courtesy, the highest interest rate consistent with safety,—these make this bank the practical one for you to use.

her fingers. "And their eyes met lingeringly. Rand's speculatively smiling. Gay's a little cloudy.

As they drank their coffee slowly, she studied him furtively, noted his easy slouch in the comfortable window-seat, marked the brown arm on the window-seat. But she avoided meeting the merry gray eyes beneath the dark upcurling lashes.

"Do you flirt, Mr. Wallace?" she asked suddenly.

"Hope to tell you I do," he answered wittily.

"Oh! Then you need no warning. We have quite a wicked little flirt in the neighborhood, and I was going to warn you. But since you do, you can take care of yourself."

"Oh, I thought you meant yourself. I thought it was a sort of 'Help Wanted,' like the newspaper ads. I was willing to apply."

Again the friendly, smiling silence. To one like Gay, whose religion was work, whose god accomplishment, it came as a distinct shock to know that this one, with the strong hands, the ready wit and the smiling eyes, was an idler, a dawdler on the face of the earth, that he had no profession and wanted none, no business and was glad of it, no ambition and delighted in its absence. He smiled.

himself a retired gentleman, and said it was a poor island that couldn't support at least one. In fact, he said, the entire state of Maine ought to support him.

"But don't you do anything? You don't just loaf, do you?"

"Loaf! Certainly not. Bums loaf. Landed gentlemen—retire."

Gay scrutinized him gravely, remarked the muscular arms, the straight shoulders, the vigorous look, the deep and understanding eyes, and he was an idler in this rugged land!

She shook her head regretfully. "A world of things to be done," she said. "Why? And you do nothing?"

He explained that for ten weeks he had been doing the coast of Canada with a photographer in a fishing schooner, getting pictures. He had returned to the island to finish up a little work he was doing on a motor launch, for Remis, a lumberman at Bangor. He was to get the boat ready, and with a couple of men as crew, take it to Miami in readiness for Remis when he went down for the winter season later on. He had expected to finish the job on the island, he said, in three days, but now he was beginning to feel it would take him a week.

He said he had gone with Muehlman on one of his trips to the Arctic, had been to the Arctic circle twice, in fact, but he didn't like it. Said it was too cold. Wished somebody would plant the next pole in Florida or Mexico, nice warm place to look for things. He had been in the World War, and served overseas seven months. He said he did not like that either.

"Why not?" Gay was a little bitter. "Were you afraid? Or are you a pacifist? Or perhaps you had to get up too early in the morning?"

"No, I didn't mind those things. It was the uniform. I couldn't stand the uniform. The collar made my neck itch. My neck itched for fifteen months without stopping. One gets tired of it, that's all."

Gay's eyes were dark. She felt saddened. This aimless, pointless, hopeless, dear young man, violated her highest ideals, outraged her finest feelings. He was utterly impossible, she told herself furiously. But when her eyes met his, involuntarily she smiled. Impossible, but how pleasant to have him there in the window seat at her side, drinking her coffee, smiling at her with the dark gray eyes beneath those softly curling lashes.

Ridiculous, she said to herself, that a man should have gray eyes and curly lashes.

Ridiculous, but something very disturbing, rather sweet, about it when one caught the full bright friendly glance of them.

CHAPTER V

Randolph Wallace indeed stood for everything in the world of which Gay Delane professedly disapproved. It was not merely that he did not work, but he disapproved of it on principle. He objected vigorously to the enthronement of Doing, which was Gay's god. He declared stoutly that labor in itself was a childish, ineffective thing, that the need for it was a confession of inferiority, that joy in accomplishment was not merely the last word in selfishness, but was also the sure mark of a narrow nature, lacking vision.

He asked Gay why she had never married.

"Because there is so much to do," she cried intensely. "Because I want to accomplish something in the world, get something done. Because I want to work, work hard, and work well. Why don't you?" she ended mildly.

"Because life is too rare and fine a thing to be devoted to the mere grimy physical effort of doing this or doing that. Soul is too frail and too delicate to be enslaved in the chains of daily toil for board and keep."

Half the time, she realized that he was only humbugging at her, making fun.

But always she felt an undercurrent of scornful conviction in what he said, always she felt in him the inherent yearning of pure spirit for freedom, more freedom, always more. Work, he declared, was confining, success was pinning, ambition the stormiest slave-driver in the universe. Only in thought, desire, the soul was free.

Gay chafed restlessly at his easy indifference, his serene and apparently imperturbable calm. She knew that he could work, that, on occasion, he did work desperately, both hard and well, with mind, with soul, with body. And more than that, he liked it. It was only the compulsion to work that he decried.

County Fertilizer Campaign
Fertilizers were standardized at a meeting of fertilizer manufacturers and agronomists at Chicago a few years ago. The effects of that standardization have not been as complete as was hoped.

Many fertilizer dealers are still handling more analysis than necessary and in many instances analysis that are not adapted to the needs of their particular locality.

There are several important factors to be considered in the use of fertilizers. They are:

1. The type of soil.
2. The type of farming.
3. General soil management.
4. The crop to be grown.

There will be a meeting of the fertilizer dealers of Charlevoix county in the office of County Agent Mellencamp located at Boyne City in the building owned by the Boyne City co-operative Company on Tuesday afternoon, February 14, at 1:30 standard time. At this time points that the dealers should know regarding fertilizer tests throughout the States will be presented and discussed. The larger the number of dealers present, the greater the success of the campaign.

The fertility of our soil should be improved and this can be done only by the addition of the proper plant food. The fertilizer dealer is a big influence in his community when it comes to profitable returns from fertilizers.

If you are interested in selling more fertilizers, come to the meeting. F. W. Trull, soils specialist from the Michigan State College will be present to lead the discussion and clear up many points pertaining to fertilizers that the dealers are in doubt about.

Director Utilizes "Moving" Camera for Striking Effects in "The Noose"

When patrons of the Palace Theatre attend the opening of "The Noose" next Saturday and Sunday they will view a true "moving" picture. This, according to advance reports, is because John Francis Dillon, the director, availed himself of every opportunity to keep the camera itself constantly moving. With the result that wherever Richard Barthelmess, the star of "The Noose," went there followed the camera.

Camera angles are exhausted in the filming of this latest Barthelmess feature, and the tempo of the piece is such that the audience is given the feeling that they are personally present at the actual occurrences pictured therein. The audience suddenly discovers itself walking into the Box Stall Cafe, one of the highly colorful sets of the story, it goes to a table and sits down. Later it goes back stage and follows in the minutest detail the actions of a thrilling drama which transpires.

The camera then takes the audience to the prison. It enters the walls of the gray building and the spectators experience the feeling that he is peering the dark corridors of the penitentiary. Dillon has, with the co-operation of James Van Trees, cameraman, and Richard Barthelmess, the star, evolved several unique "shots," which will place "The Noose" in the category of one of the most dramatic screen productions of the year.

Jean Hersholt and Kenneth Thomson in Pola Negri Film

One leading man isn't enough for Pola Negri.

She has emotion enough for two in "The Secret Hour," her latest Paramount starring picture which arrives at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Kenneth Thomson and Jean Hersholt unite in making love to Miss Negri, serving to keep the final choice in suspense until the last scene.

The story has a background of the orange grove country, and concerns a romantic intrigue that has an unexpected climax. Hersholt begins the courtship, but thinks it will further his interest to send Kenneth Thomson's picture instead of his own when he proposes to Miss Negri by mail. The trouble starts right there.

Rowland V. Lee wrote the story for the screen and also directed it.

DEATH CLOSES A USEFUL LIFE

MRS. HERMAN BURNS DIED AT HOME HERE SUNDAY

Had Dedicated Her Life to Work With Children of the Primary Grades

Charlevoix was saddened Sunday by the death of Mrs. Herman Burns, one of the most beloved and revered of our community.

Minnie Martin Burns, daughter of Phillip and Margaret Martin, and wife of Rev. Herman Burns, D. D., was born at Lockport, New York, February 3rd, 1859, and died at Charlevoix, Michigan, February 12th, 1928.

She was graduated from the academy at Lockport in June, 1877, and the following August 22nd, was married to Herman Burns of Lewiston, Niagara county, New York. One son, Herman M., and a daughter, Mrs. M. H. Gilbert of Detroit, survive besides her husband.

In the early spring of 1881, they migrated to Northern Michigan, locating at Harbor Springs, where they remained until the spring of 1884, when Mr. Burns was persuaded to enter the Baptist ministry, and they began their life's work at Ashland Center, Newaygo county.

While they were located at Harbor Springs she dedicated herself to work with children of primary grades, and for more than forty-five years she continued in this line of religious work. Years before the public schools had adopted what is known as kindergarten methods of instruction she had employed them in her work in the Sunday school. During those years thousands of children have received their first and perhaps their best impressions of spiritual things under the skillful leading of this Godly woman.

Rev. and Mrs. Burns came to Charlevoix October 21st, 1922, and left the following spring, spending a year and a half at their home in Cassopolis and then returned to take up the work which Mrs. Burns was compelled to lay down by a complete nervous collapse, from which she never fully recovered. In November she had a second attack from which she has just passed away. For more than three months she had been a great sufferer, during which time the neighbors and friends have shown their sympathy for her in every way kindness could suggest.

A brief service was held at the home on Tuesday morning, conducted by Rev. B. G. Mattson of the Congregational church and Rev. John E. Lockyer of the Methodist church. The remains were then taken to Detroit, where services will be held in the chapel of the Roseland Park cemetery and interment made in the family lot.

No builder can rear a finer pedestal or monument than she built for herself in the hearts and lives of the myriad of friends and acquaintances gained along the way.

PARENT-TEACHER MEETING VERY INTERESTING

Fine Program and New Officers Chosen Last Wednesday

One of the most delightful meetings of the Parent-Teacher Association was held last week Wednesday in the new gym. Through it, parents were given an idea of the uses to which the building can be put.

Supt. Coverdale gave a talk on the schedule for school pupils. Miss Wilson's pupils presented a delightful little romp to music. Mrs. Madill gave a short talk on physical exercise in the schools and illustrated with the help of a group of girls what can be done in different grades. Demonstration basketball games first by the boys and then by the girls, with an explanation of the rules, closed the program.

A short business was conducted at the beginning, Miss Biggs presiding in the absence of the president. Officers were elected as follows: President, Dr. F. F. McMillan. Vice president, Miss Pearl Biggs. Secretary, Mrs. Henry Partridge. Treasurer, Walter Alexander.

POLAR BEARS WIN IN TWO STRAIGHT GAMES

Pellston Defeated Here and on Their Home Floor

Holding an edge over their opponents throughout the entire battle, the Polar Bears, Charlevoix's independent basketball team, won from Pellston in the high school gymnasium last Friday evening, 38 to 19. The locals took an early lead and were never headed, although Pellston came near tying the count during the second quarter. The Polar Bears when forced, uncorked a fine lot of team work and basket-shooting which gave them a comfortable margin during the last two periods.

They repeated their victory again Monday night by defeating Pellston 36 to 28 at Pellston. The apstaters scored the first basket but were trailing 7 to 4 at the quarter. A strong spurt during the second period gave Pellston 12 points to the local's 9 and at the half the score stood 16 to 16. Play was fast and furious during that period. However, Charlevoix had her opponents completely outclassed in the second half, allowing them but two points while they made 17 for themselves.

MONDAY'S EVENTS CLOSED CARNIVAL

"BILL" WOODS TOOK FIRST PRIZE IN SKI JUMP

Donald McHugh, Jr., Won Toboggan Races With Gerald Roderick Second

Carried through to a successful conclusion in spite of several days of unfavorable weather, Charlevoix's 3rd Annual Winter Sports Carnival closed Monday afternoon with the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club ski tournament and toboggan races at Mt. McSaubia.

First on the program Monday afternoon were the toboggan races with six entries. Donald McHugh, Jr., won first prize and Gerald Rod-erick, second, in competition for distance. Wet snow in the chute cut down speed and distance in the first few slides, but after a track had been made the runs were more successful. "Bill" Woods carried off first honors in the ski jump. Prizes were awarded on the point system, based on form and distance, and, in spite of a spill on his first trial, Woods carried away the prize in account of making the longer leap. Fred Hardy took second prize. The four entrants in the event performed under a great handicap on account of the snow on the slides being wet and sticky. A large number of people witnessed both events.

Last Wednesday's thaw made it necessary to cancel the program of ski-joring events on Lake Charlevoix. However, a large crowd spent the afternoon in sports at Mt. McSaubia and the country dinner and sleigh ride that evening drew out around a hundred people. Supper was served by ladies of the Ironton Congregational church in the church parlors. The evening was spent in coasting, tobogganing and skating on the Price hill at Ironton.

George LaBlanc, Jr., repeated again last Saturday morning in winning the dogsled race. Donald McHugh, Jr., took second place.

As far as any definite program is concerned, Monday's contests officially closed the carnival week attractions.

W. R. C. HAD LINCOLN PARTY LAST WEDNESDAY

Fine Program Followed by Dance at K. of P. Hall

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed at the K. of P. hall last Wednesday evening at a party given in honor of Lincoln's birthday by the Dean Seroggie W. R. C. No. 268.

After a short business session a very entertaining program was given as follows: Patriotic song, by ladies of the Corps; piano solo, Grace Trautman; reading, Anna Howard; violin and piano selection, Grace Trautman and George LaBlanc; harmonic solo, Joseph Arvilla; recitation and song, Marie Hull. The program closed with the singing of "America." A cake presented the Corps by Mereta Bassett, Sylvia Brodin and Maud Sendenberg, was won by Stella Lancaster.

After the program the evening was spent in dancing, followed by a fine lunch served to about 40 guests.

FISH PLANTING IS STUPENDOUS

STATE DEPARTMENT REPORTS ON WORK OF YEAR

Some 218,373,106 Fish of All Species
Are Planted in Michigan Waters

218,373,106 fish of all species were planted last year in the inland lakes, streams, rivers and waters of the Great Lakes from the state's seven-teen hatcheries and nursery ponds, according to Fred A. Westernman, Fish Division, Michigan Department of Conservation, in a report to Geo. R. Hogarth, acting director.

An increasingly large number of fish are being developed to the fingerling stage before planting, the report shows, and these are all being naturally or artificially fed in the hatcheries and nursery ponds.

Approximately 32,600,000 of all fish planted last year were brook, brown and rainbow trout. 1,000,000 were large and small mouth black bass, 93,634,935 were perch. Approximately 1,000,000 were blue gills.

Other plantings were as follows: Lake trout, 3,600,000; Whitefish, 20,000,000; Wall-eyed pike, 58,600,000; Herring, 7,000,000; Grayling, 731,000; Calico bass, 10,000.
